Volunteers needed

Operation Concern, Inc. is asking for volunteer aides. Increasing demands for services made on the agency have created needs for volunteers in all areas. Office aides, typists, clerical workers, warehouse people, store clerks are badly needed.

Volunteers to work as teachers and teacher's aides in the bi-lingual classes are specially needed. Currently, over 80 Haitians and 40 Hispanics are enrolled in English language classes at the learning center on Boynton Road. Classes are held Monday and Thursday evenings. Knowledge of Spanish, French, or Creole is not required. Ability to read and patience are the main requirements. Almost 40 children receive instruction in reading and arts and crafts.

Interested people may contact operation concern at 686-7070. The Rev. Lin Wilcox or John Lyons will be happy to discuss openings in any of the above listed areas.

Hypertension not a disease

Many people think of high blood pressure (hypertension as a "stress" disease - the result of overwork, no exercise, too many cocktail lunches, too much smoking, bad diet, and a thousand other things we do in our tense society.

But according to the American Heart Association doctors don't know what causes high blood pressure, except in a few rare cases. What they do know is that nearly 34 million Americans - about one in six - have it, and nearly half are women. And...only a small portion of all those with the disease are being adequately treated. High blood pressure leads to heart failure, stroke, kidney damage and more.

May is National High Blood Pressure Month. The American Heart Association, a member of the National High Blood Pressure Education Program, urges everyone to have their blood pressure checked regularly, but especially during May.

If you've ever been told you have high blood pressure, you probably know that even though it can't be cured, it can be controlled. If you take your pills, watch your weight, cut down on salt, do whatever your doctor prescribes, and do it every day, no matter how you feel, you can lower your pressure to safe, normal levels.

Advanced security to be at Sailfish Point

Unwanted visitors planning to approach Sailfish Point by land or sea, by day or night, will be challenged by one of the most technologically sophisticated security systems in operation anywhere.

Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation, the company that is turning the 532 acre oceanfront tract known as Sailfish Point, into a yacht and country club community on the southernmost tip of Hutchinson Island, commissioned Caribbean Security Systems to design the finest "state of the art" installation available anywhere.

Caribbean responded with a system which includes electronic interfacing of each of the 765 condominium residences, single family homes and townhouses as well as the utility buildings, sales center, country club, and marina with the Guardhouse Control Center. In addition, the system employs television camera surveillance of the utility buildings, country club facilities, sales center and marina.

Caribbean's "Lifeguard Master Panel," which will be installed in every residence, is the nerve center of the system. Depressing the emergency button will place the residents in instant, two way voice communication with the guardhouse. Each residential unit will also be equipped with sensing devices and smoke detectors.

At the Control Center, guards scheduled seven days per week, 24 hours per day will monitor TV cameras and alarm signals. Should a medical emergency be transmitted to the Control Center from a resident, the guard will immediately refer to a computer-printout which includes extensive information pertaining to that individual. The printout will include doctors' names and phone numbers, specific medical information, family members' phone numbers, etc.

The computer will even record the elapsed time between the activation of the system and the guard's response. This is known in the trade as a "Supervised System." If an attempt is made to cut, jump or bypass it in any way, the system is automatically activated. Because of this feature, it is in use in hundreds of police stations nationwide.

In case of a power failure, each of the residences and other monitored buildings is equipped with an independent backup battery source, and the Control Center is tied into an emergency generator to insure uninterrupted operation.

James R. Ottesen, vice president, marketing and sales, Danes Realty Corporation, the exclusive sales agent for Sailfish Point, pointed out that the Sailfish Point Sales Center, which is under construction and scheduled to open in May, will include a functioning display of the security system.

Sailfish Point will augment the Caribbean equipment with roving patrols.

IRCC Itinerary

Summer is coming up, and Indian River Community College is all set with a series of new classes to help you improve yourself, to become better at what you do, in your work and in your own enrichment activities.

You can learn to paint, speak a foreign language, handle stress, communicate with the deaf, make draperies, or improve your vocabulary and reading skills — wherever your interests lie, IRCC has something for you this summer.

Developmental Reading Offered

You can learn to read faster with greater understanding, and, at the same time, build up your vocabulary through the Developmental Reading classes being offered at the Roschman Site in Stuart.

The Roschman class will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 10 p.m. beginning May 1. This class will run for six weeks; for more information, call the Roschman Site, 283-6550.

Update on Four Day College Week

Although most of the offices and classes at the IRCC Main Campus will be on a four-day week beginning May 5, the branch sites will continue to stay open on Fridays. So, even through the summer, you will be able to conduct college business or take classes as usual Monday through Friday at the Roschman Site in Stuart, the Mueller Center in Vero Beach, and the Okeechobee Site. To conserve energy and save money, most of the Main Campus will close on Fridays until August 15; the Guidance Office, however, will remain open.

Leslie Szakacs Art Classes

For those who suspect that they may have hidden talents, or who are interested in art and want to learn techniques of drawing and painting from Leslie Szakacs, the Continuing Education Division at IRCC is offering a series of classes for beginners to professionals.

On the Main Campus, Oil and Acrylic Painting, Watercolor, Portrait Drawing and Painting will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. beginning May 1 in Room P 202. Introduction to Drawing and Painting will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. beginning May 5 in Room F 202. Registration fee is $5, and students may register at the Guidance Office or at the first class session.

Szakacs will also be conducting off campus classes beginning the first week of May. For information on these outdoor, Spanish Lakes, and Port St. Lucie classes, contact Szakacs at 464-9175.

Student Art Exhibit

Students from the adult non-credit art class of Leslie Szakacs will show their work from April 25 to May 1 at the Fort Pierce Art Gallery. No admission will be charged, and the public is invited to attend.

Brush Up on Your Languages

If you are thinking (or dreaming) of a trip abroad, then the foreign language courses being offered through the Continuing Education Division are for you. Louisa Barnes, fluent in six languages, will teach classes in Conversational Italian, German, and Russian, and each class will be held one night a week at the Main Campus beginning the first week in May.

Call the Guidance Division for specific information. Lydia Balzaretegui will teach Intermediate Spanish on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5:30 to 8 p.m. beginning May 6 at the Main Campus. Classes will be taught by Mary E. Silva, and will meet from 9 a.m. to noon Mondays through Thursdays. The history and culture of Spanish speaking countries will be discussed, as well as the fundamentals of Spanish.

Learn to Communicate with the Deaf

Classes in language of a different sort will also be taught this summer at the Main Campus. Beginning May 6, Lip Reading and Sign Language will be held every Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in room R-103. Offered by the Continuing Education Division, the class will provide instruction on how to communicate on a basic level with deaf persons.

Save Money—Sew Your Own Drapes

Beat the high cost of custom made drapes by enrolling in the Drapery Making course also offered through Continuing Education. To meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in the IRCC Home Ec Department, the class will cover all phases of the sewing and pressing of environmental cooling drapes. For more information, call the IRCC Guidance Office.

Register for Ward Clerk Program

Registration for HWC 3094, the Ward Clerk Program, will take place Friday, may 2, from 10 a.m. to noon in Room J-128 of the IRCC Allied Health Building. Classes will be held at IRCC and at the Lawnwood Medical Center Tuesdays through Fridays from 8 a.m. to noon beginning May 6. The program is under non-credit Adult Continuing Education.

BOOK DONATION—Ocean Village, an oceanfront community, has donated five hundred copies of the book "Reef to River" to the St. Lucie County School System. On behalf of the Ocean Village development, Alan Lavoie, right, Director of Sales and Marketing, made the presentation to Jack Roberts, center, Supervisor of Career Education and Media for St. Lucie County Schools and Ann Middlebrooks, left, Ft. Pierce Central High School science teacher. The book, written and illustrated by 10 year-old native Floridian Michael Sneed, is a complete environmental guide to plant and animal treasures on Hutchinson Island.

Local dealer is penalized or selling gas at low prices

BY BOB FRYER

ehow, someway, the consumer to be the victim

the culprit is a little hard to

Taylor, owner of the Skyline station in Jensen Beach, says ing business because he can't gh gasoline for his customers. or is limiting hours of pumping use he doesn't have enough to

It's hurting me because I don't have gas to sell I lose my customers. And when they go there to buy gas they also go here to have their vehicles ed for lube jobs, tires and the he says.

officials, as well as William the local Civil Defense head fuel allocation officer say the Taylor can't get more gas is se his price is lower than other stations.

in that respect, Taylor's hands ed. His prices last week were for regular, $1.13 for unleaded 16 for high test. He can't charge because he is already charging imum rate allowed by law.

sampling of other stations ted that when Taylor has gas esper Merchants, right across t was selling regular for $1.19 unleaded for $1.29. The land Farms rates were $1.19 ular and $1.29 for unleaded. The station was selling regular for and unleaded for $1.26, and the Beach Texaco prices were for regular and $1.32 for ded.

ll of those cases, those stations sell premium. At Riverviews spokesman was so annoyed for called away from work to an inquiry about his prices hung up without stating the

in March that Taylor says he out bout the state's "set-aside" ply and got an application for a of that supply from local fuel officer O'Brien. Taylor d that each month, the state s all gas distributors in Florida ide 5 per cent of the gas they cated by federal officials to to Florida. Then, when n east, state officials dole out side gas to areas with the tical shortages.

r received a shipment of gas ch 18, but soon ran out n said let's try it again for set-aside gas. But it late for that month, so he said the application for April.

the application was in, it have been one of the first ed, Taylor said. However, didn't get any set-aside gas to n asked O'Brien about it in turn, asked officials of the r's Energy Office.

n said part of the problem stem from the fact that Chevron is selling its gas to Florida dealers at a lower price than many other wholesalers.

Their state officials' thoughts are that the problem is not a shortage of gas, area-wide Chevron's pricing policies have put them in a situation where the demand (because their price is cheaper) is much greater and thus they (the dealers) run out of gas quicker, he said.

O'Brien said it is true that the area does not have as great a need for gas now that it did in March, and the situation is greatly improved over February and January. But Taylor's application was sent in in March, when shortages still existed.

An inquiry was made to the Governor's Energy Office in Tallahassee and supervisor Bill Good explained that office's position.

If you have a Chevron, Gulf and Texaco station all on different corners of the same intersection and the Chevron station price is cheaper, who's going to sell out quicker? The Chevron station. But we feel we shouldn't supply him with gas until the others are short too.

Good said the reason Chevron is offering its gas to dealers in the state cheaper than other firms is because Chevron has a higher volume of domestic crude than other firms, and that the domestic crude costs less than OPEC crude. He said a federal equalization program at the refinery level is supposed to even things out on pricing, but, he said, that does not always work.

Because it apparently hasn't worked in the case of Chevron, the price Chevron sells its gas to local Chevron dealers is lower than the price dealers of other brands are able to buy it for. And, since the law keeps dealers from charging more than 10.1 cents per gallon over the delivery price per gallon, Taylor can't charge any more for his gas at Skyline Chevron than he is already charging.

The state attitude seems to be that to release gas from the set-aside program to Chevron dealers when dealers of other gas still have plenty of fuel to sell would be discriminatory in favor of Chevron dealers. And, they argue that after the first half of the month is over, if Chevron's set-aside gas is not doled out by the state, it reverts to Chevron.

On the other hand, in the case of Taylor, he feels that it is because of state policy that he is being discriminated against. He can't raise his price, yet is because of state policy, he can't get any extra gas for at least the half a month that the state controls it. That means when he runs out, he not only loses gas customers, but also repair customers. He did say, however, that once the gas got back into Chevron hands, he was allocated an extra half load in late April.

Meanwhile, economy-minded gas purchasers in this area were, for at least for a part of April, prevented from buying as much of the cheaper gas as they had a demand for.

The Skyline Chevron problem in obtaining enough gas is not the only one county fuel allocation officer O'Brien has had to deal with this year. Now that many winter tourists have gone back north, the fuel crisis for the area has subsided, but O'Brien commented that he's not at all sure when shortages hit again on an area-wide basis that those controlling gas supplies will be any better off to handle the situation than they have in the past.

Last chance for Langford expansion

BY BOB FRYER

A for sale sign recently posted on a 3.5 acre tract along SR 707 in Jensen Beach represents the last opportunity there will ever be for expansion of the Langford Park recreation area.

Since the sign was posted, officials of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club have been scurrying around, trying to gather information on the tract and come up with ideas for getting the land under county ownership, so the park can be expanded.

There is no other tract adjacent to the park that could be used for expansion, and as Optimist President Larry Barraga sees it, "This is the last opportunity there will ever be for expanding the park."

Barraga is quick to point out that the Optimist Club does not want the tract for itself, but for the county so it can be put to use for recreational purposes. But as the club most actively engaged in supporting recreational programs at the park, the Optimists feel it is up to them to explore all means for obtaining the land and drum up as much support for county ownership of the land as possible.

Since the sign went up, club members have learned that the asking price is $250,000. "We feel the price is too high and hope that the owner will take less. Our next step is to get the land appraised, so we'll have a better sense of its true value. Then, we're hoping to enlist as many clubs and churches and citizens as possible to express support for the acquisition of the land," Barraga said.

The land is just west of the Dolphin Motel and south of the Boccheno ball field. It has 440 feet fronting on SR 707 and is 821 feet deep. Barraga says it would be perfect for a soccer-football field, or for a host of other recreational uses. And, he's hopeful that before the last chance for expansion of the park is lost through purchase of the land by someone else, the land can be purchased for park expansion.

The problem is, it's zoned for commercial use. That could make it attractive to businesses, he said.

Optimist members met Monday night to talk about the land and explore actions they could take to help get the land into county hands. Attorney Norris Tilton was at the meeting and said that after an appraisal is made of the tract, perhaps negotiations could be made for an option on the land.

Barraga said that he has heard the county does not have the funds available for purchase of the tract at present, but he said if an option could be taken out, it might preserve the land for park use until money to buy it with is available.

"The park is already getting overcrowded, and everyone I've talked to said it would be a great idea if the park could be expanded. Just on the basis of the subdivisions planned within a two mile radius of the park, there are enough new people who will be moving into the area to support a demand for that much more park space," he said.

Last year, for example, Barraga says the Optimist Club provided recreational programs for 869 children. He said next year that figure should be around 1,000 children. And, he said the ballfields are used so often by kids already that there isn't enough time left when they're not in use to allow the grass to grow to the condition it should be in. "If another field were added here rather than in another location, it would be cheaper because the equipment for maintaining recreational facilities and fields is already at the park," he added.

Barraga said Jensen Beach Lions Club members have already voiced support for the idea of obtaining the land.

Within a few weeks once more information on the land is gathered and there has been time to get other organizations behind the idea, Barraga says a presentation to the county commission will be made, in hopes the county will find a way to obtain the land.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha was asked Monday if he felt the county commission would be interested in buying the land. Wacha said the tract is ideal for expansion of the park and he would very much like to see it become a part of the park, but he said no funds are budgeted for such an expenditure this fiscal year and he wasn't sure the land would still be available by the time the next fiscal year starts in October.

Barraga urged citizens and civic, social and religious groups in favor of having the land become a part of Langford Park to voice their opinions and to write letters to the editor and to county commissioners stating those opinions. "The idea needs all the support it can get before the opportunity is lost," he said.

Hamburger chain to open in Jensen

Within two months, Jensen Beach should be able to lay claim to its first fast food chain restaurant.

A Hardee's Hamburger restaurant is now under construction along Commercial Street, a short distance east of Savanna Road, and Construction superintendent Walt Parish said Tuesday that he is hopeful the building will be completed in about six weeks.

Parish said he was not sure who will be the franchise operator of the local restaurant, but said "I know it's a local businessman, but can't recall the name."

The building will cost about $300,000 and will contain about 3,600 square feet. There will be two entrances from Commercial Street and one from Sunview Road, and Parish said the restaurant will feature drive in window service and will seat about 120 persons.

He said the building will be similar to the Hardee's restaurant in Fort Pierce, but with a stucco exterior instead of a brick exterior. "The owner wants to open before July 4th," Parish noted.

Cousteau is featured FIT speaker

The Florida Institute of Technology in Jensen Beach will hold its fourth annual Underwater Symposium and Film Festival this Friday, May 2nd, and Saturday, May 3rd.

The two-day program will include experts in the fields of underwater medicine, archeology, and cave diving.

Featured speaker will be Jean Michel Cousteau who will present photographs and film on his recent expedition to remote Wuvulu Island in the South Pacific. Its lush jungles, marine life and coral reefs are among the richest in the world.

Sewall's, island kids may go to Parker in September

Martin County School Superintendent V. James Navitsky described a recent school board session at Jensen Beach Elementary School as a "shake and bake" event.

And, judging from his comments, he feels he was the one parents attending the meeting wanted to shake.

In recent months, a number of parents of children attending Jensen Beach Elementary School have voiced concern that their children may be shifted to J. D. Parker Elementary School this September. As a result of the clamor, school officials pledged to conduct a meeting in the Jensen Beach area before making any final decision on boundary changes.

No final decisions were reached at last week's meeting, but school board members and parents did hear Navitsky present recommendations for school boundary changes.

His recommendations call for all students on Hutchinson Island, as well as all students in Sewall's Point south of the Frances Langford Resort to attend Parker beginning in September.

That, he says, would result in a transfer of about 70 children from the Jensen Beach school to Parker. And, without taking population growth into account, he says this would up Parker's student population figure from 601 to 671 and cut Jensen's population from 787 to 717.

In an interview Monday, Navitsky said he realizes there will be growth in the Jensen area, and, to a smaller degree, growth for Parker. However, he said growth figures were eliminated from his calculations "to take all the speculation out of it, as to what that growth might be." Later, he said he expects about a four percent growth rate for Jensen's school and one percent or less for Parker, based on housing construction data.

When asked why Navitsky was calculating a population at the Jensen school of 787, based on no boundary changes and no growth rate, when the school now houses well over 800 students, he said it is "because you have a larger fifth grade graduating than you have a first grade coming in."

Many fears over boundary changes have been voiced by parents from North River Shores, an area where some 190 children attend Jensen Elementary.

The recommendation to send inland and Sewall's Point students to Parker, and not North River Shores students, was no doubt welcome news for the North River Shores parents who were opposed to sending their children to Parker. But eventually, Navitsky says, the North River Shores kids will probably have to go to Parker.

Navitsky said that during the meeting last week, the site selection committee for a new elementary school reported its findings and listed a site "somewhere in the Cove Road area" as the primary choice, and a site in the Locke Road area as the committee's second choice.

Navitsky said when the new elementary school is built, it is likely that students west of U.S. 1 and south of the Roosevelt Bridge would be assigned to the new school and that North River Shores students would be assigned to Parker.

Original plans called for the school to open for the 1982-83 school year, but due to recent problems with school funding at the state level, Navitsky says it looks like the new school opening will be delayed for at least another year.

Navitsky said the delay in opening the new school will result in a high population at the Jensen school, even if Inland and Sewall's Point children are switched to Parker. But he did say more portables will be available for the Jensen school next year, and that should relieve some problems.

As a result of the meeting at the Jensen school last week, it was decided to continue boundary change discussions at a meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 7, at the Parker Elementary cafeteria. And, he said no final decisions would be made then either, as it will be a workshop meeting.

Currently, the Jensen Beach Elementary School population is 851 students. Assistant Principal Lou Rizzolo said that when the 1979-80 school year began last September, the population was around 760. "But we just grew and grew."

THE CONVERTED SEA PLANE takes off near Stuart after receiving its FAA certification. According to Norman Golden, Resorts director of aviation this marks the start of a broad new approach to full aviation needs in the Caribbean.

Seaplane conversion brings Maureen O'Hara to Stuart

Officials at Grumman Aerospace Center in Stuart played host Tuesday to guests who arrived to celebrate the conversion of a fleet of seaplanes once used for military duty to passenger use.

The planes, which have been purchased by Resorts International Inc. are in the process of being refurbished by Grumman into 28 passenger aircraft for airline commuter service.

The G-111 aircraft will be used by Resorts International parent company of Challe and Antilles Airlines for transportation in the Caribbean.

Representing Antilles, Inc. was Mrs. Charles Blair (better known as Maureen O'Hara). As president of the company, she accepted the FAA certification for the G-111 amphibian.

Looking perhaps a bit older but much as she used to when she played opposite John Wayne in the movies O'Hara, still with fiery red hair beamed as she looked at the airplane. When asked what she thought she smiled and said, pretty nice.

A BLOND, BRUNETTE AND A REDHEAD pose for a shot that will remain in the scrapbook of Mary Meissner and Cathy Farago. Maureen O'Hara who flew to Stuart for the ceremoney, was on hand to accept the long awaited FAA type certification.

According to O'Hara, this project had been on the drawing board for over three years when her husband who was chief pilot for Pan Am and Norm Golden of Resorts International merged their talents. Her husband has since died, but Maureen has taken it upon herself to implement his idea. According to her, selling movies is comparable to selling an airline. In both you hope to sell plenty of seats.

O'Hara now divides her time between St. Croix, Virgin Islands, in the winter and Ireland in the summer.

Act test date set for June 14

June 14 is the final ACT test date for the 1979-80 school year. Registration deadline for the June test is May 16.

To date during 1979-80, more juniors and seniors in Florida's secondary schools have taken the ACT than in any single previous year. Growth of ACT's financial need analysis service, utilizing the FFS, Family Financial Statement, has been spectacular.

ACT's programs of service in Florida including the ACT Assessment, Financial Aid Profile, Proficiency Examination Program, Career Planning and Adult Level Testing (PEP) have reached such a high volume that an eighteen member ACT Executive Committee has been formed.

Applications may be obtained at the Guidance Department at MCHS.

lliance against waste, neutral on marina

Although two member organizations the Martin County Conservation liance have gone on record opposing planned marina at Indian River antation, the alliance will not take a sition on the matter.

That was the consensus of opinion at recent alliance meeting after John cQuigg reported that the developers the resort have changed their plans order to satisfy environmental ncerns.

He noted that the latest plans call for oving the marina about 250 feet rther south of the original location d also call for placing the marina rther out in the water, so no edging will be required to get the oper depth for boats. A bridge is anned to connect the marina docks ith the land, spanning rivergrass eas.

"It honestly appears they have tried make the destruction as minimal as ssible," McQuigg said, adding that under original development agreements, the developers have a right to build a marina somewhere.

John Hetburn said he thought opposition still ought to be registered and he said the moving of the marina southward still doesn't move it away from a fishing hole popular with anglers. The local Organized Fishermen of Florida group, as well as the Martin County Angler's Club are opposing the marina plans.

In other action, the alliance members voted to oppose any plans to dump nuclear waste in Martin County. McQuigg said that when discussions took place in 1976 concerning the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island, saths alliance opposed bringing waste in Martin County, and he said the county commission was to have had an ordinance banning nuclear waste drawn up and approved. He said the ordinance apparently didn't get written. So, alliance members voted to ask the county commission to approve such an ordinance.

The question of dumping nuclear waste in the county came up as a result of a recent federal government announcement that the county soils are favorable for such dumping.

Jean Henry to speak at Angler's

It is easy for people who get social security or supplemental security income checks to arrange to have their payments deposited directly in a checking or savings account.

All a person has to do is to contact his or her financial institution — bank, savings bank, savings and loan association, or similar institution, or Federal or State chartered credit union — and ask for a direct deposit form SF 1199.

Completing the form only authorizes deposits in the account. Only the beneficiary or his or her authorized representative can make withdrawals.

It is a good idea for the person to ask the financial organization how it will handle and report check deposits and if there is any service charge.

Direct deposit has several advantages. Among them:

• No standing in line to cash or deposit checks.

• Money is available immediately in the person's account when he or she is sick or away from home.

• No check cashing problems because the money goes directly into an account.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

So what's new in tennis? A few weeks ago we talked about the new revolutionary Durbin racket. Another fairly new racket, the Head Legend is now available. It's easy to spot: looks like a snow shoe with a handle. Actually it's weird looking ball plays very well, and should with a price tag of $200.00 plus stringing.

I have been using ball machines for years and in my travels have seen quite a selection, in all sizes and shapes. There must be over 25 varieties of as the brochure will read "the best". Most of them have bugs, some worse than others. Some are so big that it would cost a bundle just to send it back for service.

Several years ago I did see one that interested my very much. It was big, it would do almost anything with the ball, the factory would send out a computer specialist to reset or whatever when needed. But there were 7500 reasons why I didn't buy that one, today there are 9000 reasons.

Now here are some of the claims of th newest ball throwing machine on the market. It's so new that no one has seen it yet, the Apollo Wizard.

Some three years ago an internationally prominent consulting engineer Richard Speer began development of a ball throwing machine for his wife to practice with. She had tried most on the market and didn't like them, for one reason or another.

He set his own criteria. It must be simple, versatile, durable, portable, economical, and dependable. It must be able to duplicate every shot there is-even spins, slices, and serves. Above all it must be reliable, it must work all the time.

Made of ABS plastic the same material used in fine luggage. The Apollo Wizard is almost indestructible. Nothing to rust, weather can't hurt it. It's light a mere 30 lbs. which means you can transport it anywhere in almost any thing. It is a completely portable, self-contained unit. Scientifically engineered and designed, the Apollo Wizard was developed and tested through the combined efforts of some of the worlds foremost international tennis authorities. It is a machine with total reliability, no ball jams, no malfunctions ever.

The Apollo Wizard features the patented Power Collar located near the point of ball departure. Unlike all other machines this collar assures consistent speed at any velocity setting, regardless of the condition of the ball. The IVV (Infinite Variable Velocity) control knob on the Power Collar makes the speed control a snap. I knew you would want to know about this.

The Apollo holds 185 balls, full court oscillator, remote control pedal, spin barrel and serving arm and available in 110 V/60 cycle or 60 and 220 V/50 cycle.

It's quite energy efficient, no metal parts, no sharp edges, nothing to rust and delivers balls every 3.6.9 or 12 seconds as you wish.

This unit with accessories runs just under one grand (-NO). I don't own stock, sell it or any other connection, wish I did, but I am thinking of buying one, and I now have three different makes.

The ball machines will be humming June 6 when the most comprehensive junior tennis camp gets under way at the Plantation. For more information, give us a call.

June 21 and 22 are the dates for the Lipton Iced Tea mixed doubles tournament at the Plantation. We will have A and B divisions, open to amateurs only, with a chance for winners to win prizes and trips with the eventual champions going to Monaco.

Something for all the local tennis buffs, the Martin County Tennis Championships. This the fourth annual will again be sponsored by the Stuart National Bank. Divisions in Mens open A, B and C and Womens A, B and C. Get your partner and enter early, singles and doubles.

Happy birthday Betsy. Bet's it's not nice to mention a ladies age so I won't. But I hope I am around in 30 years to celebrate your 100th.

Your MINI lesson for the day: watch the ball and follow through.

EMPHASIS

A REPORT TO OUR CUSTOMERS BY FLORIDA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

NEWSPAPER READERSHIP REMAINS HIGH, BUT... A Florida Press Association newspaper readership survey shows that 8 out of 10 Floridians regularly read a daily newspaper. And that for local news, papers outdraw television and radio: 54.5%, to about 40%.

Readership of financial information, the spring which keeps our economy moving, was low, about 21% on a regular basis. It did beat out agricultural news, 4%, and legal notices, 9%.

A WHOLE NEW BALLGAME

It's interesting to note that in today's environment Washington often rewards failure (like Chrysler) and penalizes winners. A prominent American summarized: "Success is now sufficient evidence to invite scrutiny by the government to determine how success can be remedied" as if it were a disease. To win is to lose, and the losers are not just the companies found guilty of success. The real losers are the consumers.

ENERGY-RICH VS ENERGY-POOR

The nation is at the crossroads in choosing a future that will be either energy rich or energy poor. The energy-poor path leads to more menial jobs, less buying power, lower quality of living, less upward social mobility, inadequate resources for essential services, environmental protection and national defense.

The energy-rich path offers better working environment, more opportunity, greater productivity, greater buying power, more opportunity for more people, greater national strength and unity.

FPL's Board Chairman Marshall McDonald: "I firmly believe we will choose the energy-rich path. I worry that we may not make this choice in time. Decisions relating to the nation's energy future are being made now. You can make your voice heard!"

Would Christopher Columbus have started out from Spain if the bureaucratic red tape had him ensnarled? Capt. Columbus borrowed the money from Queen Isabella and headed west, hoping to find the east. No permits. No public hearings. By contrast, some 84 different permits were required just to build and start-up Turkey Point nuclear generating plants. Just something to think about.

Hospital Problems

Establishment of a hospital, at least an out-patient emergency room facility in Port St Lucie awaits the judgement of the state, and the in-fighting between various groups in that city

Everyone seems to want something else, for many reasons

There is a growing inner jealousy being built, with factions fighting factions over who should have the right to serve the people with their health care

It is entirely possible that the in-fighting will delay hospital services for the people by a few years or more That someone might be seriously injured or not get proper treatment doesn't seem to bother the in-fighters they would rather win a political battle than serve up good health care

We believe that the Martin Memorial Hospital proposal is the best one designed to give the people of Port St Lucie a facility that they can afford at a price they can afford to pay with built in measures for growth that will allow the hospital to grow as the people and therefore the funding becomes available

Best of all, Martin Memorial is a non profit hospital run by a bunch of dedicated people from both Martin County and St Lucie County.

Small doesn't cut it

The problem with Martin County is that it is small It doesn't have the clout of a Dade County or a Palm Beach County

Those counties have the political clout to get the Department of Transportation to do what they need done

However, Martin County is too large to be located in North Florida where little counties have the counterpoint to powerful legislators who can get things done

Thus Martin County is too large and too small

The delay in road building in Martin County is very simple the county is just too small and too big

Letter to the editor, dated: 11 Frances Buchanan, of the Port St Lucie Communications Center, requested her brain helper (phone) be contacted with people who would like checked with members of the sheriff and she would have learned the following facts, which are documented

1 The large section of land that the building is housed on was donated by General Development Corporation

2 The original 14x3 was built by General Development Corporation for rent until had money doing it

3 There was a cash donation made by General Development Corp

6 1978 City of Port St Lucie donated $3000

It is true the Community Center is now owned by the City of Port St Lucie and General Development Corporation But it is sad true to see that it was not supported by them.

And those rummage sales that the Center has had they were supported by me, in donations of merchandise plus the purchasing of merchandise This statement is also true of numerous people who have helped support the Center in the same manner.

Thank you for reading this letter And do get the record straight Frances Buchanan

The final brown nose

Every time I decide to save money by doing it myself, I destroy something or myself.

Once, Sally asked me to disconnect the little lights under her dashboard that somehow shorted out and kept burning even after the car door was closed.

Did it. I'm not sure how much it cost to replace the broken lights and their fixtures, and the brackets that held them in place.

The last time my nose. The napkin was broken. My nose is brown inside

I am painting the white fence racks around our new orange racks. The reason I painted is to cut new color [illegible] is to start with a primer coat that is, after you take a wire brush on a drill and grind away at the racks. Also, you prime after you sand the surface of the white stands.

I primed to paint all the locks and door latches and things I didn't want to have getting all thinking that covering them would be easier.

I didn't have to worry about it. I could have known how to do either one. I primed a few times I'll do that. All the joints, the ones with the [illegible] of patches holding the [illegible] together. They [illegible] primed all over and the knee is torn out just below one of the repair patches.

I think I'm going to make them into cutoffs for working on the boat. That would be a proper resting place for them. The only problem is that the "Kiss This Patch" patch is below the place where I'll have to cut the pants off, to make cutoffs.

I have a deep feeling for the patch It was given to me by my niece, Lori Campbell, who lives in Canadian, Texas. Her mother, Carolyn, sewed it on my jeans when a hole. I have I'll have to rip it off and sew it somewhere else. You grow kinda attached to a patch

All the racks are setting up on two by fours and I just finished the first coat of primer

I was spraying away when Lloyd handed me a nose filter.

I put it on, and my glasses started fogging. It was very uncomfortable How can you hold a cigarette in your mouth when the mouth and nose is covered by a mask?

I left it off after the paint ran out of the can.

That is getting ahead of myself.

First, I found out that the primer I bought was the kind that dries in 48 hours Lloyd told me that if I had just bought regular auto primer it would be dry in a half hour. So I went out and got regular auto primer.

When I got back, Lloyd was standing there looking a little disgusted and said, "Do you know that the enamel is also a 48 hour drying paint?"

I got back in the car and drove down to have the paint mixed our orange and came back several hours later

I had already sprayed three of the racks with the 48 hour stuff It was still wet to the touch. So I got to work on the next batch. I sprayed and sprayed and sprayed

I just blew my nose again. It is still brown

I finished about 4:30, and Jack came up and said it looked like I was doing a pretty good job

"I'll be back in the morning to put on the second prime coat and finish off with the enamel," I said, proudly "But, now I have to go back to the office and write. I've got to write my column."

Jack laughed

"You just try to write," he said "You've been sniffing that chemical You'll be silly for the whole evening.

Imagine him thinking I'd write something silly

Andy's a busy man

The task was simple enough

Ms editor Dick Campbell had told me about a local service station operator who was having problems getting enough gas for his customers, while other stations in the community seemed to have plenty. The station manager had told Dick a few reasons why he was having a problem and Dick left me a short note about it

The note contained the name and telephone number of a man in Tallahassee who may be able to shed some light on the story. The man was cocked for the state government specifically the man was Bill Good supervisor of the Governor's Energy Office

After talking to the station manager myself as well as William O'Brien, the county's fuel allocation officer I gave Good a call It was about 11 a.m.

A secretary told me that Good was in conference and she didn't know when he'd be free I told her the nature of my inquiry and she offered to transfer my call to another man who she said could help

That man was out of town but his secretary transferred me to another office and assured me that the man in that office Andy Pace, was the man who could answer my questions

Andy was in conference but was expected to be free soon The secretary asked if I could leave a message and assured me Andy would return my call

Having had some experience in trying to reach state officials in Tallahassee before, I commented that it was a rather unbelievable thing to think Andy would return my call, but said I'd count on her and hope that she and Andy would prove to be exceptions to the rule

She sounded convincing, so I made my first mistake Rather than trying Good's office all over again and asking for him or any of three other persons in Good's office which O'Brien had told me could be of assistance, I went to work on other stories and trusted Andy to return my call

You may have noted that I have referred to all the other folks in this story by their last name but have referred to Andy Pace by his first name

That's because when I finally got ahold of him he seemed so down right friendly that I figured we should be on a first name basis Also, when I finally got ahold of him, he kept calling me by my first name, in a tone as though he's known me for years

Andy Mesa has first name-basis heart never called me No, I waited most of the day, but he didn't call And when it was getting late in the day and he hadn't called, I must admit I didn't try him first

I tried Good's office again Amazingly the secretary remembered me And just as amazingly, Good was still in conference, she said

She offered to transfer me to the same fellow she's transferred me to before, but I told her that man was out of town and asked her to transfer me to Andy

That was a Southern Bell impossibility she told me, so I hung up and tried Andy's number was busy So I called Good's secretary again, told her Andy's number was busy, and asked for the three folks in Good's office who O'Brien remember O'Brien had told me might be of help Of the three, the secretary had a good excuse for each They were either on another line or in conference They have lots of conferences in Tallahassee Besides, nobody in this office is allowed to talk to the press Mr Pace is the only one authorized to do that," she said I wondered why, then, she had twice before tried to transfer me to someone other than Pace, but I didn't mention it to her

So, I tried Andy again This time, I got an answer A man answered and I asked for Mr Pace If was about 4:38 p.m.

"I'm sorry, but Mr Pace is very busy and couldn't possibly break free to talk to you now, but I'll be glad to take your name and number and have him call you in the morning," he said

Mustering up all the calm I could, I told him in a rather unsteady voice "Sir, you know I'm pretty busy myself, and I've been waiting to talk to Mr Pace all day. I already called in the morning and was told he would call me back, and right now I'm so mad I can hardly see straight I have a deadline before tomorrow morning, and, quite frankly, I don't believe he'll call back then anyway

Maybe those aren't my exact words but they're close

Anyway, for some inexplicable reason, Andy became unbusy in about 15 seconds And when he got on the phone, he was a pleasant as could be Said he'd been in conference with the Governor all day and hadn't gotten to his stack of messages yet

He even answered most all of my questions And for those he couldn't answer, he promised to make a call and have a fellow call me right back with the answers

I hung up, fully expecting that to be the end of it But in no more than five minutes, I got a call It was Bill Good

Bill was a friendly chap too, and he answered the remainder of my questions after telling me that he too had been in conference with the Governor all day His answers were thorough, but nonetheless confusing I related my confusion to Campbell and he said to hold the story until I could make more calls and sort things out

So, the story got held, and as of this writing, I'm not sure if it will ever see print

But the thing is, it would sure be a lot easier on us reporters if answers from Tallahassee could be obtained without one losing one's temper I mean, just think how many folks I could know on a first-name basis if I didn't have to get mad at them before getting them

A toast to a Grand old pirate

I'm happy to report that the stained glass half moon is still in the john door, that the delightfully haphazard chairs and tables of uncertain vintage still furnish the rooms, and Cervantes still leers lecherously at the Indies passing by.

And lovers still carve their initials on the rafters of rooms that have given them delight and a sense of individualistic privacy.

Yes, the Driftwood Inn, up in Vero is being allowed to remain true to the tradition of the late great Waldo Sexton, under its new ownership. As yet, at least, it isn't being ruined by over-modernization.

I made this reassuring discovery last week, when I had occasion to go up and spend the afternoon with dear old friends, the Sam DeCamps, who over the years have become dedicated Driftwood-philes. Dot DeC., one of my favorite neurotics of all time, worked with me on The Oak Ridger up in Tennessee in my first plateau at newspapering, and I hadn't seen Dot or Sam for nigh on to 16 years, so the day was a special double treat for me — the DeCamps and the Driftwood all in one fell swoop.

The DeCamps are like I am about the Driftwood — it's not so much a place to stay as a mood created by some pixie buffoon with romantic inclinations.

"We discovered it a few years ago when we were vacationing in this area, and we'd pulled into the Holiday Inn right behind a pink Cadillac from Texas. They got the last available room, as we went hunting and found this," Dot told me. "We've been thanking that pink Cadillac ever since."

I know exactly how they feel because I too have a room at the Driftwood with my number on it — the one I stayed at for a weekend while getting the story of Waldo Sexton in person, back in 1961.

It was a story I left I was due in retribution I'd met Waldo during my first go around on The New Tribune as a connoisseur of the arts, I'd made friends with artist Cookie Delapiane, and she'd invited me down to her house on Indian River Drive to met the legend Waldo, also a lover of the arts, but on the other end of the financial scale from me. Waldo Sexton, promoter and developer of Vero Beach, could buy an entire gallery and use the artists for small change.

I went down to the Delaplane house to await the arrival of his subs. Finally, in came the big burly Waldo, glasses as thick as telescope lenses, a broad brimmed Stetson pushed back on his head.

After a brief introduction, he marched me back to the kitchen. Taking a cloth bag out of his pocket, he dumped a junior sized mint of silver dollars on the counter.

"Pick out one with your birth year on it, and it's yours," he instructed me.

Greedily, I pawed through the pile and found it — one perfect silver dollar dated 1917.

Good, he grunted "Now I know how old you are."

The sneak.

Waldo Sexton, nonetheless, was a beautiful man, with a thousand beautiful stories, as I was to discover later. In an attempt to get a few of them on paper, I coerced him into giving me the guided Sexton tour through the pathways of his youth.

In case you're not familiar with the Driftwood, or the Patio, or the Ocean Grill, you should be. They are all demented meccas of fantasy, and all great fun. Balconies straight out of villas in Spain, fancy iron grill work mingling with stained glass, treasure in copper and brass and stone make one sure that the creator must have combed the globe for their contents.

But no, Waldo confessed.

I followed in the trail of the robber barons, he told me, confidentially.

He did his collecting mostly in those days of the early 30s, when bankrupted Palm Beach millionaires had to give up their palaces and out them to the auction block. For every one worth looking at, Waldo was there to pick the skeletons, buying everything in sight.

His passion was doors. No two doors in the original Driftwood are the same, and hanging them must have driven several carpenters off their rockers. But the effect is charming. The Driftwood and the other restaurants on which Waldo left his imprint are unique in the purest sense of the word.

Waldo died in 1966, but until last year, the tradition set by the old man was carried on by son Ralph, the only one of the Sexton children with Waldo's sense of the bizarre combined with a love of the hospitality business. We were sorry to hear that it was being sold out of the family, and fearful of what might become of it.

So here's a toast to the group of men from John's Island who bought it and to manager Sam Pascal — long may you wave, and keep alive the elfin spirit of the man who dreamed it all up. Vero would never again be Vero, without it.

Locals voice reaction to attempted rescue

BY CATHIE GRASSO

President Jimmy Carter's recent attempt to rescue the hostages in Iran has raised both sharp criticism as well as praise from many Americans.

Although a shroud remains over the rescue mission that only time and history will lift, local residents like many others are nevertheless attempting to piece the puzzle together and come to some conclusions about what really happened.

Gerald Morris, assistant pastor of St. Martin De Porres Catholic Church, says, "I guess you get desperate. He's in charge and we should let him do what he thinks is best." Father Morris added that although they were praying for peace, "We're also human beings and self defense is sometimes necessary. When asked about the possibility of a full scale war, he state "I don't think war is effective either. You have a lot of dead people, but it doesn't necessarily solve the problems."

Martin County Commissioner Frank Warha verbalized his opinions in saying that, "I don't see how people can blame the failure of the mission on Carter. There is no one running for President who has offered a plan they're all on reaction standby. If it doesn't work, they criticize if it does they support."

Rather Warha seemed to find fault with the military and the fact that its high price tag equipment couldn't function when needed. "It appears that our military either mechanically or mentally, wasn't prepared for a mission such as this. Somewhere, our intelligence was lacking."

Like many others, he felt there weren't enough facts to find an alternative solution, however he said, "Somewhere along the line, we have to show we're not going to be pushed around."

Jensen Beach Bank President Ron Mitchell expressed his concern by saying that it's a shame that we had to lose the lives of our boys for such a mission. I'm ashamed it wasn't successful."

Feeling that the U.S. is dealing with a very inhumane group of people, Mitchell wonders if the whole world is going crazy. Realizing the possibility of another World War, he said "There's no rhyme or reason for anyone to kill, but they (Iran) don't give you any options."

Mitchell added that, with all the recent events that have taken place lately, Americans are being taught a lesson in humility. "We are extremely spoiled children with inflated egos. We must realize that we're not perfect."

Port St. Lucie Mayor William Metheney says of the recent attempt, "I approve of the method but it should have been done considerably earlier. When asked where the fault was, he said, "Something breaks down, who do you blame." I went through World War II, and mistakes were made." Metheney agreed that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's resignation was going to do Carter anything but good, and added that it's going to be a very interesting year.

Sewall's Point Mayor Edward Gluckler felt, "We should have done something like this instantly. This shows the armed forces are not in a state they should be. Lord knows what would happen if we went to war with Russia. When posed with the question of an American blockade on Iran, Gluckler said, "I'm not so sure it's a wise thing. They can ship out of the Gulf or directly into Russia. For awhile, we'd better see what real results are from the raid."

Rehersals are underway

Rehersals have begun for the Barn Theatre's next production "Agatha Christie's 'A Murder is Announced'."

The play is a story of two elderly women living a lie to receive an inheritance and revolves around the deception the women must carry out to keep the lie a secret. In addition to all else, the English language is murdered by a feisty maid.

Ray Hilton is designing the constructing a masterful set for the play, and director of the play will be Kathleen Cohen who last directed Christie's "Ten Little Indians."

The show opens May 30 and will run for three consecutive weekends. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and due to the usual heavy demand for tickets, early reservations are suggested.

Tickets go on sale at the box office on May 19.

HOW TAX LOSSES WORK

QUESTION: I am a little bit confused. I hear real estate investors talking about a single property giving them BOTH "tax losses" and "cash flow." How can your property give you both in the same year?

ANSWER: To determine cash flow from say an apartment building, we start with collected rents. We then subtract the operating expenses, exclusive of financing costs. This calculation gives us the property's net operating income. When the net operating income is reduced by interest payments on the mortgage and by depreciation the result equals the taxable income on the property. Frequently depreciation, a bookkeeping deduction is large enough to give us a negative number — a LOSS in terms of income taxes.

This means that even though the building gives us a positive cash flow (cash in hand after mortgage payments) we report negative taxable income to Uncle Sam. Consequently, we pocket the cash flow undisturbed by taxation. In many cases, we save taxes that would have been paid on other income because it is "sheltered" by our real estate tax loss.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

THAM, left, chats with Dr. and Mrs. Michael Nardone during last ting of writers. The Mirror hosted park column writers and social s publicity writers from the Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie area to appreciate their efforts and to seek ways for all of us to do a better

Mirror draws 100 publicity agents

IS POINT—Mirror Editor Dick Campbell was full of gestures when l to a crowd of about 100 publicity writers last week why their copy is ost in the shuffle and gave pointers as to how they can better insure up in print.

The Mirror entertained a group of 100 club presidents and publicity chairpersons Friday at First Federal's Hoke Hall in Jensen Beach. The continental breakfast meet was designed to be a short seminar on news writing tips.

The response to the meeting and its results were a surprise to the Mirror staff in attendance, as what was designed as an appreciation for club news writers during national volunteer week turned out as an appreciation meeting for both the Mirror and its writers.

The meeting was informal, with questions roughly asked from the floor as Dick Campbell, editor, gave some of the basics of what is needed in news and what is not needed, and City Editor Bob Fryer outlined the proper way to write a news release.

Campbell then presented regular contributors of news with appreciation certificates and a corsage.

Many writers expressed appreciation for the coverage of news that The Mirror had given them, to the point that the editor called off the "thank yous," saying that The Mirror appreciates all the news that it can get into the newspaper, and is just doing its job.

Fryer displayed many examples of improper news releases, carefully covering the names of the organizations submitting them. He outlined the "who, what, where, when and why" of the typical news story, urging all writers to include their name and telephone number on each news release so that items could be checked or corrected.

DICK CAMPBELL welcomes a crowd of 100 writers to a special meeting called last week by r to discuss what Mirror editors are looking for in the way of publicity notices from the writers and to thank the writers for the fine job they've done in the past. The event seemed to be a popular one with the writers, and plans are already underway for another one next year.

NG QUESTIONS—Publicity writers from local civic and social organizations gathered last week ting with Mirror officials to discuss how their news is processed and to seek better ways assuring their news is printed. Fielding questions from the audience are city editor Bob Fryer, left, and editor Dick Campbell, right.

GUARD—At every meeting, there is always a at seems to generate toward the back of the room instead of taking seats up front. At the Mirror meeting last week, there was just cause to do so, as it placed these publicity writers closer to the refreshments.

NANCY KLINE made a last minute check at the refreshment table to be sure all was ready for the arrival of 100 publicity writers for The Mirror's meeting. Nancy is a Mirror ad salesperson.

LINING UP—Representatives of scores of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie social, civic and religious organizations joined up for coffee and Danish buns before the program began last week at The Mirror's special meeting for presidentf and publicity writers from the various groups.

THE WHOLE GANG—It's been years since the employees of the Stuart test center for Outboard Marine Center gathered together for a group photo, but when employee Don Everett retired last week, the gang decided to assemble for a photo before they had an honored member of the group. Then they went back inside the plant to continue their party for everett. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

FIRST RETIREE—Don Everett, right, was all smiles last Friday when fellow employees at the Stuart test center for Outboard Marine Corporation gave a party for him. Everett is the first person at the local center to retire from OMC, and as shown above with plant manager Jim McFarland, who is helping cut a cake made for the party, Everett, a technician in carburation development, worked for OMC for 25 years, the last seven in Stuart. ## Bids sought for fire station, park projects

If all goes well, Jensen Beach will have a new fire station building and recreation facilities at Langford Park will be improved by Sept. 30.

Martin County commissioners voted last week to authorize advertising for bids on the fire station and on the park improvements, and commissioner Frank Wacha said Monday that the target date for completion of all the projects bid on is Sept. 30.

Bids were authorized for two shutters to be used to drag the ball fields at the park as well as bids for a concrete slab and chimney for a log cabin senior citizen's center at the park and bids for installing roofs over bleachers at the park.

Additionally, the commission authorized advertising for bids to construct a fire station-community center building along Savanna Road next to the Timberwick project entrance. Once completed, it will mean firemen can get to fires on both sides of the FEC railroad tracks without having to wait for passing trains.

Alex Haynes seeks Martin County Commission seat held by Wacha

ALEX HAYNES

Though the general election isn't until Nov. 4, the political season arrived here early when Alex Haynes, a consulting engineer from Angler's Cove, declared himself a candidate last week for the Martin County Commission seat now held by Frank Wacha.

Haynes, running as a Republican, attributed "all degradation in the quality of life" in the county since he moved to Hutchinson Island in 1972 as the prime reason for seeking office.

He said that degradation stems from "poor or inept planning" and laid the blame for it on "present and previous commissioners."

"We've had enough ill piecemeal planning. It is time for someone with management experience," Haynes commented, adding that he felt he could bring fresh approaches to county problems.

He outlined a two-page platform which called for an immediate start on a comprehensive plan for the entire county, with Director of Planning Tom Mumford detached from all other duties to work on the plan. Also, he called for a Citizen's Advisory Committee and for hiring the best consulting firm in the country to work together on the plan.

Other points of his platform included enactment of an ethics ordinance to prevent conflict of interest votes by commissioners, to pass an ordinance requiring development projects to be reviewed by the school board before approval by the county commission and the appointment of several committees. Those committees include a builders committee, a beautification committee, a task force committee to find low cost housing solutions, and a conservation committee. He also called for two persons to answer citizen's complaints of county ordinance violations and to enlist experienced retirees to insure lines of authority in government are clearly defined.

During a question and answer session with reporters Haynes said he supports school impact fee and opposes the land use element of the Palm City plan.

He said he is not a no growth candidate, but instead favors planned growth.

Outside of saying the density in Ledani Heights is too high, Haynes made no other specific comments about the Jensen Beach area. When asked what future he envisioned for Jensen and Rio, he said he would have to study matters before commenting, and when asked about particulars of the land use plan for the north county area, he said he had not yet familiarized himself with the plan. However, he said he had read the Palm City plan, and when one reporter asked how he felt people would react when reading he was intimately familiar with the Palm City plan, but not familiar with the plan for Jensen Beach?", Haynes replied, "I'd have to say it's because I don't know. It (the north county plan) hasn't been in the news much. But I'm a fast learner."

Haynes has extensive experience in automotive engineering and has served since 1973 as a consulting engineer. He is president of the Angler's Cove Association.

Sailfish Regatta

Some 6,000 to 8,000 spectators are expected to turn out for the 13th annual Stuart Sailfish Regatta power boat races this weekend.

The regatta, sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association and sponsored by the Stuart Martin County Chamber of Commerce, will feature races in 10 classes and will take place in the St. Lucie River northwest of the Roosevelt Bridge.

Races will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday and at noon on Sunday and are expected to last until around 4:30 p.m. both days.

If this year's regatta is like others in the past, if you're planning to travel to Stuart from the north and not planning to go to the races, you should use Indian River Drive or A1A, as traffic should be jammed along U.S. 1 at the Roosevelt Bridge. The lanes of the bridge normally open to southbound traffic will be closed both days from 7 a.m. until the races are over, thus allowing only the half of the bridge to carry north and south traffic.

Parking will be in areas along U.S. 1 on both sides of the bridge, and spectators are reminded they may wish to bring lawn chairs and cameras. Seven sets of bleachers will be provided, however.

Four cranes will be used to lift race boats into and out of the water, and the races will include competition for cash prizes and seven trophies. A ski show will be held on both days during breaks in the racing, but a previously scheduled model boat demonstration has been cancelled. The race announcer this year, as in past years, will be Dick Crippen, sports director of WLCY TV in Tampa.

Ray Navitsky, executive director of the chamber, said this week he expects 65 to 70 boats to compete in the races, and he said as of Monday, more out-of-state boats had been registered than those from Florida. The number of entries means in some classes there may be elimination heats before the races.

Instead of having an awards banquet, as was the case in previous races, awards will be presented in the pit area at the end of the competition.

Concession stands will be operated during the races, and proceeds from the races will go this year to the Stuart Police Officers Association Emergency Fund.

Queen of the regatta this year is Jeanna Janiero of Jensen Beach.

Snook moving in

The snook are slowly supplanting the blues as stars on the local fishing scene, but there are still plenty of the big blue ones out there, says Tony Battaglia at the Jensen Bait and Tackle. Tony has landed 23 of the latter out of the surf on cut bait during the past few days.

Champs on the snook catching scene have been George Kettler, Bob Keating and Harry Grennough, who took — and released — 47, all of legal limit out of the St. Lucie River on Golden Eye. The trio also brought up five tarpon on the same bait and in the same area.

Others reporting to the JB Tackle were: Earl Widman, a 21 pound snook out of the Indian River on a feather jig; Charlie Kroh, four trout to eight pounds, one blue and one flounder, in the Indian River on live shrimp; Bill Widson, an 11½ pound snook off the Indian River bridge, on bunker.

Blues reported to the Snook Nook, according to Ron, have been: Elwood Fareman, 14 blues; Charles Neff, 20 blues; Clyde Dyonas, 22 blues; Frank Nicholson, 12 blues; Herb Campbell, 26 blues, and Robert Johnson, 10 blues. All were taken out of the Indian River on Krorkodil spoons.

Snook recorded at the Nook were caught by Jack McConnell, a 15 and a half pounder on Rebel lure; Henry Schielke, 23 pounder out of the Indian River, also on Rebel lure, and the Mittler Keating Greenough catch.

Joanne and Ken Sellers brought in three blues and a 15 pound triple tail. Carl Duryea, three trout to eight pounds out of the Indian River on Mirrolure. Tom St. Clair, two trout, to six pounds, in the Indian River on live shrimp; Randy and Rick Richardson, a five and three quarters and a 10½ pound trout; Phil Adams, an eight and a quarter pound trout out of the Indian River on live shrimp; Ron Witek, 16 trout out of Indian River on Mirrolure; Ira Fisher, 12 trout and three blues, in the Indian River on Trout Tours; Jim Allen, three trout to 10½ pounds in Indian River on Mirrolure; John Harrell and his wife Sandra, 24 flounders to 17 pounds while night fishing.

Knights of Columbus hold successful Inaugural Ball

Officers have been elected and directors have been appointed, and the council is moving very fast.

The officers have already set up many programs to help you find this council a family council, and they have already had four very interesting meetings, two first degrees and the Inaugural Ball, which was staged last Saturday in the St. Lucie Education Hall. The ball featured dining, dancing to live music, and several honored guests. And, the next meeting scheduled will be a second degree.

Members are requested to attend all meetings and to try to bring a new member or trans-ferred member. For those who wish to join there will be an admission committee to meet with you at 6:15 p.m. at the church hall. The regular meeting starts at 7 p.m.

Some of the council's new officers will be attending a convention on May 9-11 in Orlando. They will take a scrap book along with them. The book is now being assembled and will show that the council is already working on projects, even though it is a brand new council. It should aid in getting recognition at the convention for the council.

The first affair of the council was the Inaugural Ball, held at the Education Hall of the St. Lucie Catholic Church in Port St. Lucie last Saturday.

Tickets were sold a week in advance and sold out the same day. About 250 persons attended and seemed to have a very good time. Before leaving, many asked when the next social affair would be.

District Director Ed Swiniuki and his wife, District Warden William Ward and his wife, as well as Father Bernard Hickey, opened the ball with a prayer.

Guests were also honored by the presence of Rev. Donald Fegron and Sisters Lynn Bayette and Carol Stovall from the Stuart council and Grand Knight and Mrs. Paul McGill.

District Director Swaniski officially opened the council by installing all of the officers. There was an honor guard of six fourth degree Knights, and their dress and presence at the affair showed their appreciation for the new council.

As a result of the installation of officers, the council is now allowed to send delegates to the convention in Orlando.

Members expressed their thanks for the fine dinner prepared by Nat Ruvallo and his staff. They worked hard all day Saturday to be ready for the affair Saturday night.

Members are also thanked for pitching in to help get the hall ready for the evening and for returning Sunday morning to clean up and get the hall ready for Sunday church activities.

Those who attended the ball and won prizes are:

Frank Bonfield, president of Travel House of Florida, presented a trip to Freeport, Bahamas for two days and three nights to Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jugenheimer.

Tony Lato won the basket of cheer and extra prizes were won by John Vogel and Virginia Summons.

The Grand Knight presented each charter member with an official charter for the Port St. Lucie council.

Bird causes blackout

This time of the year the weather is glorious and all the birds are singing joyously, that is all but one, who gave his life to science. A big bird blundered into the high voltage power lines near Bay Drive and in one big flash was burned to death and put the whole area in darkness for hours.

Another batch of snowbirds winged away last week; 65 of them to make the season total over 250. The reduction in population made it necessary for the Night Patrol to set up a new daylight saving time schedule. All patrols are adequately covered, but volunteers are needed for this security duty that has been so successful in deterring the vandals and burglars. If you can spare a few hours, contact the park office.

Park events

Saturday Night Dancers are turning out in almost mid season numbers for their disco, square, round, mixer and ballroom dancing and they were a very lively crowd Saturday, April 26 for the last dance of the season with its special treat of ice cold punch and cookies.

Shufflers are also very active, 6 or 5 courts busy returning add evening, but not in the best of the noon day sun. Pot Luck games, Friday at 6 p.m. drew 7 courts of shufflers last week. But the big event of the week, which the men are not talking about, was the grudge match, Monday, April 21, when the gals got revenge for the whallopping they took in the Battle of the Sexes. Score records were destroyed but a disgruntled male, but it's an establish fact, the men lost all four games.

Rambling around

Ed and Rhoda Pettit, 11 Key Lime, recently moved up from Lil' Bit Ln. so it looks as though they are here to stay. Ed is much interested in the art of stained glass windows, having taught it at times, designing and making windows for churches and for special occasions. Right now he is busy on eight windows for the Episcopal Church in South River, N.J. Then, in the midst of this project they going to take off for the Passion Play, July First to Fifteenth at Oberammergau. They can be reached at P.O. Box #63, Lanoka Harbor, N.J. 08734

Henry and Olive Donaldson, 14 Key Lime, received a letter from Roy Donaldson of 21 Kumquat, saying they had good trip back home after spending two days visiting in Kentucky, but did have light rain much of the way and found 6 inches of snow in Burlington, Iowa. Roy will be busy with his farms in Illinois this summer.

Oscar Dishman, 16 Oak St. had a son Warren, wife and two children visiting recently, for two weeks (their third visit). The son lives in Pontiac, Md. and works for General Motors, so enjoyed the balmy Florida weather and the two grandchildren, 6 and 12 years old spent most of their time at the beach or fishing off the bridge - caught some big snook; one day had the best fish and another time the most, in between all that, they did get to Sea World and Lion Country Safari. They are back home to warm rain.

Buzz and Mary Jane Wilhame, 2 NE Fifth Ave. are newcomer having come down here in 1979 from Rome, N.Y. where they were both school teachers and Mary Jane is still on substitute call

THANK YOU

I want to thank all my dear friends for your prayers, kind thoughts and the cards that you sent me, while I was in the hospital and when I returned home. And, I want to thank all the dear nurses and most of all, Dr. Allison and Dr. Goeinckle. Also, those that visited me in the hospital, especially Rev. Thompson. Thank you all very much

Sincerely,

Book delivery is fun

The delivery of new telephone books can be fun. That column has often suggested that some seniors could earn a buck or two if they wanted to and has mentioned some job opportunities from time to time. Well, this time your reporter decided to find out what he was talking about and took on the delivery job for part of Jensen Beach.

First, at a center set up for the delivery operation a group is told how to courteously deliver the books and how to mark the subscriber cards. Then "they were given a batch of cards, the amount and area can be arranged to suit. Next, bundles of 12 books are loaded into their cars and they are off to work.

The first day was some what hit or miss, but the next day before starting out, from a map the route was laved out, with cards arranged in order, odd and even groups, etc.

CHAPTER OF AARP

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Then, the delivery went smoothly and if one didn't talk about senior problems with everyone, a rate of 30 to 40 per hour could be maintained for say $35 per day. So, it was really fun to wander around the back roads of Jensen Beach, in the bright sunshine meeting many of you, who take time to read this column each week, so I'll say thank you all and it was very pleasant getting acquainted.

There is no question what the seniors talked about after dreadful Friday morning. At first they were too disappointed and aghast that the rescue attempt had failed, then they seemed to divide themselves into three groups, about as follows:

The first, and possibly the largest, felt that Pres. Carter had made an all out effort to do something in answer to the insistant demands, and almost in spite of the TV network news, was to be commended for effort.

The second group, and perhaps the most articulate, agreed with some senators, some foreign countries and some TV, that the timming was off, that it wasn't handled properly and that our Allies and Congress should have been consulted, as this aborted rescue attempt has made the situation much more difficult.

The third group, believing a negotiated settlement is possible, felt that we were lucky that the 'attempt' was aborted, as a military assault on the embassy could have resulted many deaths; hostages, Iranian militants and USA servicemen, with very little chance of success.

There were many rebuttals to the above positions, such as: Let's not investigate the president's motives, better investigate reason for failure - consulting congress and allies would be hazardous, as they have leaked like sieves at times, timming may have been contrived for the lull before May 17 sanction deadline. Pres Carter emphasized that it was a good plan (sounded as though there might be inside help), and many said it is very easy to be Sunday morning quarter backs. So, it sounded as though the seniors were quite tolerant with a wait and see attitude.

JB Women's Association--Key to community growth in Jensen

Thirty years of growth and contribution to the community were marked recently by a birthday luncheon held for and by members of the Jensen Beach Women's Associa tion, an organization that has given much toward building a positive identity for this unincorporate community.

The party was held in the clubhouse on Sugar Hill, which it built in 1969 on land donated by the Kiplinger Associ ation Trust Fund, and which the club has since generously shared for use by other organizations.

The Jensen Beach Women's Wom en's Association was born of the enter prise of a group of women who recognized the lack of activity outside the home for women in the area. While the men had plenty to keep them occupied, with fishing and boating, there was no organized extracurricu lar recreation for the women. The club was founded to take up this slack.

Among the founding "mothers" were Hilda Costello, Julia Wood, Myrtle Whitman, Marie Elliot, Jennie Escott, Hazel Vincent, Mrs. Edith Hansen, Marie Gibson, Ethel Nodine, Jorrieene Maddleton and Zola Swarth out.

Over the years, the club has initiated many worthwhile projects, in addition to its regular social get gethers. The membership has provided help for needy families, sponsored a Girl Scout Troop, and for several years had an organized choral group which performed for public functions. It was also co sponsor with the Chamber of Commerce of the First Sunrise Easter Service.

In its first years, the club met at the Community Center on Commercial Street. When it outgrew those quar ters, the association purchased a building on Route 707, but this, too, was soon outgrown.

The big break came with the donation of land by the Kiplinger Association in 1968 - a tract including approximately four acres. The build ing, completed in 1969, has two wings and can seat up to 500 people. The true test of its accommodations comes annually with the Memorial Day services which have filled the building to capacity.

Mrs. Florence Klose is the new assis tation prenecent, succeeding Mrs. Irene Hunter. Other presidents have been: Mrs. R. H. Escott, 1950 '55; Mrs. Harry Wood, 1951 '53; Mrs. Mack Costello, 1953 '55; Mrs. Edwin Whitman, '55 '57; Mrs. E. M. Dixon, '57 '59; Mrs. Helen Richardson, '59 '61; Mrs. Edwin Miller, Mr. John Meyer, 1961 '63; Mrs. Frances Hubbell, 1963 '64; Mrs. Edwin Miller, 1964 '66;

Mrs. Hazel Forsberg, 1966 '69; Mrs. Jean Pendleton, 1969; Mrs. E. J. Whitman, 1969 '71; Mrs. Geneva Siebert, 1971 '73; Mrs. Mildred Greenland, 1973; Mrs. Mack Costello, 1974 '75; Mrs. Irene Hunter, 1975 '77, Mrs. Regina Justi, 1977 '78; Mrs. Catharine Nix, 1978 '79.

The association has had three trustees — Mrs. Edwin Miller, Mrs. Lyndon Crumbaugh, and Mrs. Lee Hill.

Chapter events

The Martin County Senio Center Assoc held a board meeting Friday, April 25, at the Library, with 8 attending to pass the following motions. One, Bob Maurer was authorized to invest part of the funds in 14½ percent, 90 day funds. Two, Fred Sundheim was instructed to draw up incorporation papers, three, Fred Sundheim was also asked to prepare tentative Bylaws and Standing Rules.

Here's another senior center item: Vince Succhano, Superintendent of Langford Field, gave Dorris Walker, site manager of the Treasure Coast Senior Services a section of one of the Log Cabin Logs, showing that it was pitch hard and is very good shape, spiking the rumors that the logs were rotten and worthless.

The Mirror public relations meeting 9:30 a.m. Fri April 23, at the Harry Hoke room of First Federal S&L Building was attended by PR chairmen and presidents of local organizations, who met with the staff of the Jensen Beach Mirror. After fruit juice, danish and coffee publisher Dick Campbell and news editor Bob Fryer thanked them for their contribution and explained some of the mysteries of copy writing. Then, awards were made for outstanding volunteer service to Ernie C. Hugh Jenks (AARP), and eight other contributors (see story elsewhere in the issue). It was an impressive ceremony and the bright boutonnieres made the group pictures very colorful.

A multi-chapter picnic has been held at the 'Savannas' County Park in White City, in 1977 and 1978 around June 15, with lots of fun and a chance for the members of the nearby chapters to get acquainted. If the Martin County Chapter members are interested they better tell it up at the May meeting (near the Port St. Lucie and Ft. Pierce chapters are interested).

While delivering phone books many AARP members asked the usual, why don't we have one of that service, that is doing so well, some place up north, and one of the subjects mentioned most often was a good active senior discount program (and food buying coop). It's been tried a number of times, but always petters-out for the lack of energetic volunteers. So, is there anyone who would like to give it another try?

A tiny gripe came to my attention last week. As AARPer received a notice from Colonial Penn saying they were glad to announce a policy change, giving more coverage. The AARPer said the policy 'upgrade' was scrutinized with magnifier and dictionary was referred to, still they can't make out just what was changed. If anyone has solved it please let us know.

Once over lightly

Venture Three

BY PHYLLIS CLARK 229-1860

What a perfect tropical night for a backyard barbecue! The host and hostess, Paul and Evelyn Seban, were fortunate indeed for such weather. The moonbeams shimmering on the water and the stars brightly shining provided a perfect setting for their party. The food was super delicious and the company great! Among the merry-makers were Marge & Tommie Stelter, Bette & Jack Joseph, Jack & Phyllis Clark, Al & Theo DeSmit, Keith & Margaret Howden, Lou & Mary Russell, Hank & Bert Schipper, Dick & Evie Shertzer, and Jane and Elmer Dieter.

MEN'S POOL

Jack Scott and Harold, his friend, George Sterling and Ben Benson, Joe Goodwin and Harold Seelye, Jack Clark and Jack Norton, Bill Thompson and Andy Whiton, Floyd Reynolds and Jack Joseph. The winners were Floyd Reynolds and Jack Joseph. Congratulations, CHAMPS!

CARD NIGHT

Only one table of bridge was seen Tuesday night. Val Calahan and Neil Peterson played Ben Bensen and Jack Scott. Ben Benson came in first for the night and Jack Scott came in second. Nice work, boys! Next Tuesday we hope to see more out there.

"Crazy eights" is also still being played by the regulars at the same time. Remember, the time is 7:30 p.m. Come, join the fun!

SEWING CLASS

A neat trick was taught in making a very professional looking outside or top pocket and a simple method of cuffing a sleeve was also demonstrated. Among those in the class Monday were Ann Bensberger, Jane Rochelle, Dorothy Saulys, Winnie Williams, Lois Elliott, Marian Harrison and we were happy to welcome back Naomi Morton. The Fall class will start October 6 - so, if you want to get in on learning the "tricks of the trade" and some neat short cuts, contact Yvonne Wiencke at 228-1630.

BOWLING FOR FUN

Some pretty good scores were rolled this past week. Cora Lee Irwin, 458; Jane Nolan, 429; Gerri Benson, 403; Bill Thompson, 403; Ward Irwin, 396; Todd Bowling, 389; Ed Dayton, 351; Edna Wilston, 349; and Marion Dayton, 295.

As the season draws to a close, fewer people are bowling; but the fun still continues. Continue to some on out, keglers.

Our thanks and appreciation got to Lou and Mary Russell for their very capable organization and handling of the arrangements and details that go into a successful bowling season. Thanks, you two!

HOUSE GUESTS

Evie and Dick Shertzer had as their house guest this past week their son, Randy, from Glen Riddle, Pennsylvania. He enjoyed the relaxation and sunshine on the beach and at the pool. He was fortunate to observe the feeding and antics of a manatee and her young one in our canal. She was in a playful mood, frolicking in the water, rolling over and showing her stomach, fin and tail for Randy.

The Clarks, Phyllis & Jack, also had guests. Wilma and Ford Perry from Novi, Michigan, visited them this past week. They, too, are looking for a spot nearby, as they're close to retirement. As part of the entertainment planned for the Clarks' guests "went to the dogs" at the Palm Beach track and enjoyed a delicious dinner enroute. Included in the group, in addition to the Perrys and Clarks, were Margaret Howden, Josh and Bette Joseph, Paul and Evelyn Seban and Marge and Tommie "Teddy Bear" Stelter.

Church ends season

To the tune of "Till We Meet Again" the Pavilion Church at the Recreation Hall closed till November 35 persons, were in attendance. Martha Lewis was Lay Leader, Rev. Clark Thompson officiated. Dee Brink, organist, Grace Thau, pianist. Grace also sang the Anthem. Then Mr. and Mrs. A. Thau sang the offertory, a pleasant surprise and appreciated. Martha Lewis thanked everyone that helped to make this past season so successful.

Saturday, April 26, the Board of Directors held another meeting to make some decisions for the summer work to be done while most are away. Many important suggestions were given for Manager Jack McConnell's guidance.

The summer hours 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Recreation Hall start Wednesday, April 30.

Cards on Monday night at 7:30 had four tables. Winners were Ben Jenson, Helen Bundy, Jack Scott, Edna Vansant and Jan Parr.

Sophie Heller's exercise classes ended Tuesday, April 29. A few enthusiasts hope to continue on with tapes at the Recreation Hall.

The Art Classes discontinued Tuesday, April 29. A little celebration of punch and cookies were served.

Nearly all H. Outers, who leave for the summer have gone.

Ruth Bowen, Peg Ray & Elizabeth O'Donnell, attended an informal meeting, hosted by the "Mirror", last Friday, April 23. Interesting discussions on reporting Community affairs were led by Dick Campbell and Bob Fryer.

Martha and Jim Lewis entertained Jim's brother and sister in law from Bradenton, Florida over the weekend.

Holiday Outlines

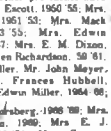
BY RUTH BOWEN

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray



Holiday Out is being helped some on inflation. The two chicks abandoned here in the spring of 1979 were loved and fed by many & grew up laying eggs and cackling every morning.

Charlie Ullmann entertained wife Carrie on Saturday, April 29 by taking her to the dog races in West Palm, then to a famous restaurant, all for her birthday.

Cliff and Harriet Byers invited a nice group to celebrate Bob Schilhorn's birthday, he was really surprised. The B Freers, Al Wrights, Jack Smiths, Bruce Majors, Casey Jerals, Pat Sykora and Del Stam all helped in the celebration.

Russ and Mary Desmerich enjoyed seeing Camelot with the Al Rays Thursday night, before leaving for Indiana Saturday morning.

The Dick Nourses entertained Carrie Ullmann on Sunday night for her birthday with other friends, and husband Charlie. Refreshments were served — look out Carrie for all those calories.

Peg and Al Ray were pleased by a surprise visit on Saturday with their son Bob and Betty, his wife.

Congratulation Anniversary— Mimi & George Doerflel 5-6.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Philtas Bourber, Dick Hare, Grace Pearsall 5-1, Mary Cammack, Tuck Schaerer 5-2, Carla McConnell, Frank Wahlage, Robert Oswegen, Willard Krause 5-3, John Vetteri, Michael McConnell 5-4, Marie Dangelmaier, Betty Everyingham 5-5, Grace Madden 5-6.

Peg and Clancy Guthrie asked a few neighbors in to meet Clancy's sister Rita Fredin and her husband Ivan when they visited the Guthrie recently. The Fredins winter on the west coast of Florida and were enroute to their summer home in Eagle Bay, New York.

Thelma and Ike Gingrich have been having a delightful time entertaining their granddaughter, Nikki Semerad and her friend Doreen Massey from Schenectady, New ork. The charming young ladies are in their Junior year in high school.

We are sorry to learn that Anne Houghton is a patient in Martin Memorial Hospital, but sincerely wish her a speedy recovery.

Otto Fischleu is still in Good Samaritan Hospital in West Palm Beach, but is making progress towards recovery.

Every one had such a good time "Bowling For Fun" this season that Thursday, the last day, no one had a good enough score to wish to have it published! All the keglers are looking forward to next November, when seasons start again on Thursdays at 1:00 p.m. Jensen Lanes.

GALLERY-CUM-OFFICE—Carol and Ed Kepp have pooled their talents in their latest enterprise—a combination art gallery and studio and a real-estate office. Carol not only sells her pictures to home buyers but teaches painting in the studio in the rear of the new building on U.S. 1.

COOL COLONADES—Carol Kepp stands in the arched entryway to their new home in Sandpiper Bay, artistic enough in itself to inspire one of the many works she turns out regularly. Carol paints every day, September through May.

Kepps' double-header- New home, new gallery

What does an artist's house look like?

On the bleak side, artistically, if the artist, like Carol Kepp, has just moved into a new house and is opening a new gallery, almost simultaneously.

But there's little doubt that the new Kepp home in the Port St. Sandpiper Bay country club section will have its walls filled with art in little or no time, because Carol is one of the most determined and prolific painters in the area. She paints daily, from September through May, with a minimum of time off for housekeeping chores and shopping.

Carol's works are fast sellers, and for good reason. She uses the palette knife technique, turning out semi-impressionistic land and waterscapes which "turn on" the most indifferent buyer. With a minimum of variety in pigmentation, she can produce a harbor scene or a field of sea oats that dances with sunshine and light and color, by subtle blendings of basic hues.

Landscapes with still water are my favorites," she told the Mirror.

Although the home of Edward and Carol Kepp isn't officially finished yet, as far as the interior decor goes, the basic components are there for gracious living. The sand-toned Spanish dwelling greets the guest with an archway which leads past the tile-walled patio into a short formal hallway that branches into either the big family room or the more elegant living room and dining room ell.

The local point in the living room is the handsome organ, an outlet for the talents of both Mr. and Mrs. Kepp.

Both music and art are my life," Carol said. She began playing piano when she was very small, and wound up as her church organist in her high school and college years.

Husband Ed at one time played with a band, and is proficient at all instruments, including the organ. But Ed's first love is sports — he's a fanatic about racquet ball, when he isn't selling real estate.

Carol Selkovse and Ed Kepp met in their mutual hometown of Cleveland, Ohio. Carol, who had been drawing ever since she could remember, decided early she wanted to become a commercial artist. She'd taken every art class that high school had to offer, and she was studying art at the college level when fate brought them together.

His sister was in art class with me," she recalled. "He was in real estate. He talked me into opening my own commercial art studio — he was my salesman.

Ed's ability as a real estate salesman was uppermost, however, and when he was offered a job by General Development at Port Malabar, he made the move to Florida. Carol followed him down, and they were married in the Sunshine State.

While Carol was successful with her commercial art, "every thing was very tight — I didn't like what I was doing."

She was exposed to the palette work of a prominent artist, Charlie Velik, and she began studying under him. She loved what she was learning, and worked hard at it.

Velik told me that in order to be a good painter, I had to paint every day," she said. She has been following those orders faithfully ever since.

The Kepps came to the Port St. Lucie area in 1969, when Ed was made manager of the GD office here. Now, he and Carol have again pooled their individual resources and have opened a combination real-estate office and art gallery, in the new shopping mall adjacent to the Port St. Lucie Funeral Home. He sells the customers houses, and with Carol's wide selection of paintings they have the opportunity to begin their decoration without leaving the office.

In the course of the years since she began working with the palette knife, Carol has developed a substantial following. Her paintings hang in permanent collections in Dallas, Tex., Lake Tahoe and Jacksonville. She will also have a one-woman show May 3 through 15 in the capitol in Tallahassee.

The attractive young artist also has a high reputation among her peers. She's a past president of the Martin County Art Associates, a past vice president of the Fort Pierce Art Club, and two years ago served as chairman for the nationally famous "On the Green" show in Fort Pierce.

Her popularity among patrons is recorded indelibly in her sales of paintings, which range in price from $50 to $500. Last year, she sold 184 canvases, the year before that 164, and to date this year, 50. Kepp paintings have gone to happy customers

IN HARMONY—Both Carol Kepp and her husband Ed (whose portrait is on the wall) are artists at playing the organ, one of the major centers of attention in their new Sandpiper Bay home. Artist Carol began playing in high school, as organist for her church, and now considers it a large part of her life.

ANTIDOTE TO WORK—Long hours of standing in one place painting take exercise to counteract the effect. Carol Kepp keeps the muscles toned by pedaling regularly on her exer-cycle that occupies a prominent spot in the Florida room.

Story and photos by Sally Latham

SPANISH INFLUENCE—The exterior of the Ed Kepps' new home in Sandpiper Bay sets the mood of the decor throughout, with the low-railed patio accenting the arched entryway.

Wilson seeks independent course for U.S. Senate seat

This year, the name of Lory Wilson may well appear on the ballot for the United States Senate.

Wilson, who recently announced her candidacy for office, will be campaigning as an independent for the post now held by Democrat Richard Stone. Says Wilson, "I'm running because I'm fed up with the political party games in Washington which have ruined our economy and brought us disgrace abroad."

Running on an independent ticket is not something new to Wilson. In 1972, she was the only woman and only independent to capture a state Senate seat. It was a feat she repeated two years later in a three-way race.

To be on the November ballot this year, bypassing party primaries, she will have to gather 127,000 signatures representing three percent of Florida's registered voters, by July 22.

Wilson, 43, of Cocoa Beach, first entered politics in 1969 when she served on the Brevard County Commission for three years before deciding to run for State Senate in 1972.

During her tenure in the legislature, Wilson, who describes herself as a political moderate, sponsored bills to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, increased property assessments and double homestead exemption for the elderly or disabled. After her term in office, she bowed out of politics for two years, not wanting to become a permanent professional politician.

This year, she's back in the race and although Wilson admits we have a difficult job ahead of us, she remains confident that people politics without party politics will eventually overcome any party's road blocks. Relying, as she has in previous elections, on a grassroots volunteer organization to gather needed signatures, Wilson laughingly says "if Jimmy Carter can take a peanut brigade and take on the United States, I think we can take the Brevard brigade and take on the state of Florida."

LORI WILSON, running as an independent for the U.S. Senate, is pictured greeting guests and volunteers who have come to lend their support towards her campaign. Wilson plans to bypass party primaries, running straight on the November election ballot.

CELEBRATE ANOTHER DECADE OF SHOPPING PLEASURE!

Now we're celebrating the "Nifty Fifties."

The United States added two new stars to its flag — Alaska and Hawaii. And Elvis Presley became the nation's biggest rock 'n roll star. Publix drew hundreds of fans of its own by offering S & H Green Stamps for the first time in 1953. And as retirees and tourists flocked to Florida in record numbers, Publix grew from 21 to 60 stores, including the first Publix in Miami.

Join us for a look back at the "Nifty Fifties" as we continue our 50th-anniversary celebration. It was the decade television became a permanent part of the family living room and tv dinners soon followed in Publix freezer cases. Frozen juice concentrates became so popular that thousands of new orange groves were planted in Florida. And Publix brought its customers all the exciting, new products of the 50's. Just like we'll be doing for you in the 80's.

'Alphebet soup' ties hands of commission

BY DICK CAMPBELL

There was a time when the five county commissioners saw a problem, figured out a solution, and took care of that problem, according to County Commissioner Frank Wacha. That time is over.

"Now we have to deal with alphebet soup," he said, alluding to the many federal agencies that must pass on all projects.

Those initial agencies include the Department of Transportation (DOT), Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) and one that Wacha said had so many letters he couldn't remember them all, the South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD). There are others.

Wacha cited the case of having the Coast Guard (USCG) and the U.S. Corps of Engineers (USCE) involved in problems with South Savanna Road in Jensen Beach.

The "alphebet soup" subject was just one of many as three county officials, Wacha, County Engineer Ed Greenameyer, and Tax Collector Tom Crook appeared at a question-answer session of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Forum held Tuesday morning at First Federal's Hoke Hall.

The officials covered a wide range of topics, from homestead exemption to traffic, from shopping centers to paying taxes.

Some of the topics included:

The DiBartolo Mall: Wacha said that the proposed mall was "just new paper talk." Besides, the permit for a billboard on U.S. 1 there has been no contact with county planning on the mall from the developer.

Public in Jensen: The property, located on the west side of the Florida East Coast Railroad tracks on the south side of Commercial Street, is proposed for a shopping center. It is in the Town of Ocean Breeze Park. There will be a "tug of war," according to Wacha, over traffic in and out of the center, which will be built "when finances get good."

Britt Road extension: Construction off Savanna Road is such that a direct route as an extension of Britt Road from U.S. 1 would be impossible, but the county has master planned such a road.

Traffic problems: The DOT plans the improvement of intersections at Indian River Drive and Causeway Blvd., and at A-1-A and Causeway Blvd. to be included in the 1982-83 fiscal year, according to Greenameyer. This means that traffic tie-ups will have to be endured for another year or two.

Traffic control: On the same two intersections, Wacha was asked if the sheriff's department could provide deputies traffic control at both ends of the causeway if the county approved the money for them until the problem was solved by the DOT. Wacha said, "We did it two years ago when we gave him more money for deputies. You should invite the sheriff to your meeting to ask him why it isn't being done."

More traffic: The DOT likes a one-way solution to the problem of traffic control at Commercial and Ricou Blvd. and Indian Rive Drive, according to Greenameyer.

Delinquent taxes: Asked if the number of delinquent tax listings had increased his year, Crook said that the number was about average, with over four pages of listings from Palm Beach Heights (Rotunda) in southern Martin County. The tax sale will be held May 27.

Paying taxes: Crook also explained that a new law provides for installment paying of taxes quarterly. The tax discount is six percent for the first quarter, four and one-half percent for the second, three percent for the third and none for the fourth. Persons paying all by November come out ahead with the straight four-percent discount, he said.

Langford Park: Wacha said he supported the expansion of Langford Park through the 3.5 acre purchase but added that "money is the problem." The over $200,000 price tag is more than the entire district one budget, he said, adding that the community will have to raise funds through donations to acquire the land.

On water: Greenameyer said that funding of the water plant and purchase of Southern Gulf Utilities is being delayed because the Farmers Home Administration is "holding us up." He said feasibility studies show that borrowing money is not right at this time. Wacha added that a public referendum would be needed to approve a mortgage purchase of the system. He added that the SFWMD gets twice as much money in taxes from the average citizen than the county does for road taxes. "And, most of what we get (from SFWMD) is delay and slowing down of projects."

Island protection: Complaints about traffic problems north of the Martin County line on Hutchinson Island and the lack of sheriff's department patrols there brought Wacha's response that the residents of that area write to their county commissioners in St. Lucie County to seek relief. One merchant said, "If you call it takes them an hour to get there." Wacha said, "It's a long way from Ft. Pierce. Maybe they would build another bridge across from Walton Road."

The Chamber forum was sponsored by Paris Inn Shopp.

SPEAKERS—Answering questions of members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at Tuesday's monthly coffee forum were County Commissioner Frank Wacha, County Engineer Ed Greenameyer and County Tax Collector Tom Crook.

Lundin Outdoor Editor

Dick Lundin, a member of the Outdoor Writers Association of America became the Outdoor Editor of the Mirror as of May 1, according to Publisher Richard Campbell.

A resident of Port St. Lucie since 1966, Lundin is nearly as well known in that community for his presidency of the Port St. Lucie Community Center from 1973 to 1980, as for his newspaper experience.

He has been outdoor editor of the Ft. Pierce News-Tribune for eight years. Before joining the staff of The News-Tribune on June 1, 1970, he taught school for the St. Lucie County Board of Education, at the secondary level at the Edwards Road School, St. Lucie Middle School and Lincoln Park Academy. Subjects taught were english-journalism and a year of beginning Spanish.

While a member of the editorial staff of The News-Tribune, he worked as a general news reporter for three years before giving up full time employment in favor of a part time assignment as Outdoor Editor. He has also covered the Miami Dolphins since 1971 and will do a weekly column on the Dolphins for the Mirror, Campbell said.

Lundin has a wife, Wanda, and two children and three grandchildren. His son Barry, wife Marilyn and grandson Wade live in Casselberry (Orlando) and daughter Susan with husband Jim Hilbert and grandchildren Lori and Chris live in Hampton, Virginia, (where Dick and Wanda lived before coming to Florida.

Born in Chicago, Illinois, Dec. 23, 1911, Dick attended New Trier High School in Winnetka, Ill. has an A.B. degree from Florida Southern College and a masters degree in Education (English) from Florida Atlantic University.

As a captain in the Army's Finance Corps he served at Third Army Headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., and with AFFE in Yokohama, Japan during the Korean War from 1950 to 1954.

His primary occupational experience was as a program director for the command channel division of the Army Stock Fund at Headquarters, Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., from 1957 to 1966 when he retired from the U.S. Civil Service after completing 32 years of Federal service. He is a director of the Port St. Lucie Chapter of the National Association of Federal Retired Employees.

Dick and Wanda, who are eagerly looking forward to moving into their new home on Pitcher Road in Port St. Lucie this month, have lived in Chicago, Blue Island and Joliet in Illinois, Jackson and Flora in Mississippi, Talladega in Alabama, Atlanta, Georgia, Yokohama and Hampton, Virginia, both say the happiest and most meaningful years of their lives have been the 14 spent in Port St. Lucie.

"I've heard the term 'God's Country' all my life, but for us it has to be Port St. Lucie. We've enjoyed excellent health, met wonderful people, and have been privileged to become an integral part of the community and area through newspaper work, teaching and our association with the Port St. Lucie Community Center. I had some rewarding years with The News-Tribune, but now want to try something different, and the Mirror has given me that opportunity. I only hope that its readers will be as pleased as I am," Lundin said.

Turtle watch plan and organization is beginning

Efforts to organize the annual Jensen Beach Turtle Watches have moved into high gear in preparation for June and July watches.

The Naturalist Club of Florida Institute of Technology has sixteen members ready to lead the watches, which will be organized through the offices of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. At a recent meeting the club members divided up the various sections of a proposed booklet outlining the history of the watches, the etiquette of persons going to the watch, and the laying of eggs by the loggerhead and green turtles.

The Chamber plans to publish the booklet to give to tourists and distribute to those who sign up at the Chamber office for the watches.

The Naturalists will be leading the watches, which may be held two to three times a week during the height of the laying season, June and July. The Florida Marine Patrol is being contacted to offer both advice and assistance. Also much help is coming from Ross Witham, head of the local turtle program through the Department of Natural Resources.

Opening dates for the turtle watches have not yet been set, but Chamber President Dick Campbell said it is hoped that the first watch will be early in June.

Jean Henry: running out of room for wildlife

by BOB FRYER

A Laughing Gull with its left wing shot off, two baby Screech Owls knocked out of their nest by a bulldozer, a beautiful Red Shouldered Hawk blinded, most likely, by rat poison, and a Yellow-billed Cuckoo with no sense of balance served to dramatically prove a point. Jean Henry has been trying to make for years.

The birds were from Ms. Henry's Audubon Wildlife Hospital west of Stuart and were on display for members of the Martin County Anglers Club during their meeting in Jensen Beach Monday night.

They're just a sample of the hundreds of sick and maimed birds she and assistant Ruth Stanwood care for at the hospital each year.

Last year, the hospital received 1,017 birds of those, a little more than 300 were restored to health and released. The rest either died from sickness or injury or were in such pathetic condition that they had to be humanely put to sleep, Ms. Henry said.

For years Ms. Henry has been operating the hospital through the support of local Audubon funds and private donations. Her work at the hospital occupies most all of her time away from her job as Martin County deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court, and, if she had it to spare, could probably occupy all of her time.

Local conservationists have often praised the work Ms. Henry and Ms. Stanwood do at the hospital, and they have saved hundreds of birds from certain death. But Ms. Henry told Martin County Anglers Monday night that in a way, she wishes the statistics on the birds handled consisted of smaller figures. That's because she knows the growing numbers of birds she cares for represent only a small percentage of the growing number of birds that are falling victim to the destructive forces of man.

"It scared me tonight when I drove out Savanna Road to get here and saw the development that's taking place. It scares me because, little by little, we aren't going to have any land left for wildlife. We've reached a point already where we are having trouble finding places to release birds," she said.

Ms. Henry asked: "Are we going to be a concrete jungle? I think so. I really think so and it's very sad. And, it's not only happening in Martin County, but all over the country."

She quoted a line from George Burns in the movie "Oh God", when Burns challenged John Denver to "Try making a mackerel from scratch. You can't. Only I (God) could do that."

"We can't make any living thing from scratch, so we have to protect what we've got," she told the Anglers.

Ms. Henry also told them that fishermen injure more pelicans than anyone else, though she qualified that by saying a certain group of ruthless commercial fishermen — but by no means all commercial fishermen — seem to have done the most damage around these parts. She told of fishermen clubbing the birds to death and of slitting their pouches so they couldn't eat, and cited one example of a pelican from the Jensen Causeway which required 32 stitches in its pouch from a knife wound.

Occasionally, pelicans, dive on bait fish in areas anglers are fishing in, and wind up swallowing lures instead of fish. Ms. Henry instructed the anglers to reel the pelicans in slowly and, if possible to cut off the barb and remove the hook. And, she said if that's not possible and the angler can't get in touch with her, they should cut the line as close to the hook as possible. In many cases, the hooks rust away and the bird is not harmed, she said, but added that if monofilament line is left attached, the birds often cut off wings or feet on the line.

But don't mess with blue herons or cormorants or anhingas," she cautioned the group, explaining that they can be very vicious and poke out eyes with their beaks. In the case of those birds, she said it's best to call her by dialing 911 or 283-0345.

During her talk, Ms. Henry showed the anglers the blind Red Shouldered Hawk, the Laughing gull with its wing shot off, the baby Screech Owls and the Yellow headed Cuckoo, and the demonstration seemed to make a lasting impression on the group.

BLIND HAWK—This red shouldered hawk is one of the sadder cases Jean Henry has had to handle at her Audubon Wildlife Hospital. She received the bird as a result of an injury it sustained. The injury healed, but Ms. Henry discovered the bird is blind, probably from the result of eating a rat or mouse that had been poisoned. She said man's use of poisons and chemicals often has disasterous effects on wildlife. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Be Kind to Animals party is Saturday at Animal Shelter

If you're an animal lover then you won't want to miss "Be Kind to Animals" day at the Martin County Animal Rescue League.

Make a note. It's from 3 to 4 p.m. this Saturday.

On "Be Kind" day you'll have the chance to feed the animals.

The Martin County Animal Rescue League Shelter is going to be completely open to the public for a special observance that's being planned to show animals that people do care, that they do love animals.

A gala party, complete with music, guests, party favors and cake for the four footed guests is being thrown at the shelter. The shelter is located on A1A, across from the Martin County Fairgrounds.

Cakes will be made from the kind of things that dogs and cats dream of at night.

Fresh fish, baked and steamed until flaky, and hamburger cakes made of eggs and fresh lean ground meat, decorated with doggie treats, will be served to almost 100 animals who call the shelter home these days.

You're invited to come and help feed the animals their cake and to show that you care for National Be Kind to Animals Week.

For information call 287-5753.

VOLUNTEER HONORED—For about eight and a half years, Irene Stephenson, left, has been working as a volunteer for the Martin County Chapter of the Palm Beach Blood Bank. Last week was National Volunteer Week, and Blood Bank head Sara Timon felt that Irene should get some recognition for all the thousands of hours she has put in as a volunteer. So, the next time you go to the blood bank to donate blood, or the next time you or a loved one needs blood, say a special thanks for all the work Irene has done. She is shown above with another Jensen Beach resident, Cynthia Delaney, who is doing her part by donating blood. Mrs. Delaney has been a Jensen resident for 17 years.

"Beatitudes" on exhibit

Several paintings and 20 drawings based on "The Beatitudes" by Doris Thurston of Stuart, are on exhibit for the month of May at the First Federal Savings and Loan of Ft. Pierce. The hours are from 9:00 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Fridays from 9 to 6:30 p.m.

"These paintings grew out of dance," says Miss Thurston. "I was inspired to dance the "Beatitudes" (from Sermon on the Mount, Matthew V) after reading Bible scripture to music.

"I realized, through dance, that there were two parts to each Beatitude," explains Miss Thurston. We must fall in our own 'crucifixion', before we can rise with God in our own 'resurrection'".

After creating the illustrations, for which she wrote prayers (with meditations inspired by Emmett Fox), she again danced the meditations and a series of 20 large oil paintings evolved, interpreting the Beatitudes in psychological color "moods".

Her art work has been exhibited at Christ Methodist Church and the Interchurch Center in New York City.

She was interviewed on several television shows, appearing on WOR-TV's "Point of VIEW" program, presented by the Archdiocese of New York. Her paintings were used as back ground for religious dances which she performed and choreographed.

EMT program is in danger

We cannot understand how the politicians can possibly survive without lousing up everything. Now they are taking aim on one program that does more than any other in the area of public safety.

In Florida, a vindictive senator who has not had his local college certified for Emergency Medical Training EMT has called for the elimination of waiving fees for EMT programs throughout the state.

While we agree that the state Emergency Medical Service office in Tallahassee has pretty well bogged down any reasonable guidelines for EMT certification in bureaucratic red tape, we cannot see scrapping what is already approved.

The EMTs are mostly volunteers with over 40 percent volunteers in the nation. They give of their time and training to help save lives, and thereby the cost of emergency medical services to the people.

Action is if possible to encourage volunteers if, in lieu of paying a five dollare fee, take the training to be a volunteer, the state requires the full fee of $150 to take the

The already depleted corps of EMTs would be frther depleted by such a fee.

It is going to take a good deal of political lobbying to keep this fee from being placed on the volunteers. However, if it is the counties themselves should pick up the tab for the volunteers.

Then on the national level, President Carter has asked that the entire Emergency Medical Services program be scrapped in favor of a balanced budget.

While we object to defecit spending, we do feel that the program is needed badly. It costs $36 million, and is a far cry better than many of the programs that are being funded by Congress.

The program has helped to train 200,000 active EMTs in the United States, and is worth over a half-billion dollars in volunteer experience and labor.

If such a program is eliminated in favor of a balanced budget, the people should insist that the state pick up the tab to continue it.

It has been over a year and a half since The Mirror exposed some of the problems related to the state EMT program. Just a few weeks ago, we found that the promised guidelines of so long ago, including the certification of Florida Institute of Technology program, was still a square one.

Our legislator, Dr. Bill Myers, excused the delays in guidelines by saying that the state EMT was understaffed and not able to get the work done.

If such is the case, perhaps the legislator should ask the governor to fire the whole batch of incompetants and get someone in there who can take state problems one at a time and get something done.

Oh, yes. In that year and a half the state still hasn't appointed a head of the department of EMS.

We think that the real problem lies in Tallahassee. The time to act is now, when we know that no one is doing anything. The problems will not go away.

We should encourage volunteers, not discourage them.

A welcome addition

I have a new roomie, and I'm delighted.

Daughter Valerie, who will try anything and is good at most everything, has kicked the red mud of Tennessee off her shoes and has decided to become a full-fledged Floridian. Needless to say, I'm delighted. I don't know why she didn't get the smarts years ago.

Valerie, totally unlike her chicken mother, doesn't know the meaning of "can't". In my book, it would have been impossible to load up a U Haul on the end of a pick up truck and drive it all the way down from Tennessee by myself particularly with no effective rear view mirrors to find out what was going on behind me. I quiver at the thought.

But Val did it, driving straight through, to boot, with only three hours of off the highway rest on the seat of her truck. She started out one morning and came bouncing in my door shortly after noon the next, looking as if she were good for another couple hundred miles before falling apart the way I would have done may weary hours back even at her age.

Oh, well. That's the way she always was. The only girl in a brood with three boys, Val started out early having to do everything faster, faster and harder than her three brothers. Val was diving while older brother Bill was still on waterwings, climbing higher in the apple tree and running faster in the footrace. She was even on the school football team for a while, until they found out she wasn't just a soft little boy.

Marriage didn't slow her down a bit but speeded her up in her ambitions to excell, if anything. Some years back, when I was going to be the big adventurer and make my dream trip to California, I decided to drive up to Chattanooga to say farewell to my housewifely only daughter (and to brag a little bit about the boldness of my plans, I must admit.)

I should have known better about the latter. While I wasn't looking, she'd bought a plane. (I didn't even know she was into flying.) had her instructor's license and was teaching instruction when I arrived. Within half the guys in town how to fly, and most recently had flown in the Powder Puff Derby to Seattle and back solo yet. Nearly all the other entrants had traveled with co-pilots, but no Val. She did it herself.

It cured me of ever thinking of boasting to her of my would-be accomplishments. Whatever I'm thinking of doing, she's already done it twice, and done it better.

P.S.: I never did get my trip to California. Instead, I stubbed my toe on a job with the Chattanooga Post and never got west of the Mississippi River on my own. The only thing I have that she hasn't got is a vast store of inertia.

srl srl srl

Politics is in the air, on the TV and is threatening to suffocate us from every direction, with the general election still six months in the offing.

And, as usual, the political Great Words of Wisdom continue to filter through the mail into the Mirror office.

Normally, I pitch into File 13 the words of all politicos after scanning them briefly. But I have to admit my eye became glued to one bit from the office of U.S. Sen. Richard Stone with whom I disagree as often as I agree.

It caught my attention because it is dealing with my pocketbook. Stone was sponsoring a bill which would freeze Senators salaries for three years. The good senators (and I'm not taling about the baseball team) now haul down a fat $60,662 per annum, an increase of some $16,000 over what they were making in 1977.

Stone says he doesn't accept his entire salary because he "opposes the way Congress is able to vote itself pay raises that take effect immediately. Such pay increases, he contends, should be postponed until after the next general election, so the voters would have some say in the matter.

To this, I should amen! The present psychology of congress is the whole psychology of inflation. If the big shots get themselves raises, deserved or not, the smaller fry justifiably feel entitled to the same privilege. Then the guys on down the line get mad and strike for higher pay, prices soar again, and the whole ball rolls back to Washington again where the centure ugly mess began in the first place.

On this issue, Stone gets my vote. May he roll effectively.

Langford Park memories

For about five years, Don Wilkie and I coached peanut league at Langford Park. The "peanuts" were the first timers, and we began by telling them, "This is a ball. Do not get in the way of it. Do not get hit by it."

We worked in sheer frustration as the kids slowly learned to stop the ball, and then throw it. Then, they learned to catch the ball. In the meantime, they were learning to hit the ball.

About half way through the season, we began teaching them strategy. We began using simple signals. Seldom did they understand.

My favorite story was about one kid, who, in the last inning, kept tugging at my pant leg. I ignored the kid, as he really wasn't that good, and we were five runs behind, with the bases full and no outs.

Finally, I angrily looked down and said, "What is it?"

The kid, with tears in his eyes, said, "I have to go to the bathroom."

All of these kids are grown now. Some are still playing in slow pitch leagues at Langford Park. Some others are already coaching little league teams that feature their sons as members.

Where we had two little league teams, there is now an entire league. The growth of the park has been fantastic.

The last piece of land near the park is now available.

That is why we need the 3.5 acre tract for the expansion of the Langford park facility. The price must be met. The money must come from somewhere.

Where we had, at most, 100 kids taking part, the Jensen Optimist Club estimates 1,000 or ten times as many as we had back in 1962.

We had peanut and little league then, on one field, built and maintained by volunteers. Rick Carroll and I organized the scouts in Jensen. Troop #700, and one of our first activities was to have the boy scouts paint the bleachers. We all ended up with more paint on us than the stand, but the job was done, and we were proud.

That was back in the days of the old Langford Park Association, before the county took the park over.

Since then the place has had the support of just about every organization in the Jensen Rio area.

There is tennis, racketball, shuffleboard, kid's playground, foot ball, basketball, soccer, and a Heart Parcour track.

We built the field house from volunteer workers and donated block and lumber. It is used by many organizations. The log cabin senior activities center is grown out of the ground. We are flat running out of room.

I remember once asking the Jensen Garden Club to landscape the Arch. They wanted water for the plants. I asked Frank Wacha about it, and he said we could have the water if we dug a trench from the field house to the Arch. I ended up with blisters all over my hands. Then, one guy walked up and said, "I wish I had known, I'd have brought my trencher over and done it in a half hour."

Many, many people have spent time, money and blisters to get the fantastic operation at Langford Park. The Optimists are the key to its operation, with at $40,000 budget (donated money) for next year. They even plan to add gymnastics to widen the reach to area youngster.

It is a far cry from our little operation in 1962 when Don and I coached a peanut team.

I hope the people respond to the Optimist plea for support. I'm certain that the people of Distrcet One will support a mill tax to raise some of the money that it would take to buy the 3.5 acres.

In the meantime, the clubs and organizations in the area should rally behind the drive to get the land. It is one of the priority items in this community's growth.

The curse of beauty

It doesn't pay to be a beautiful woman.

At least it doesn't pay to be one and have your photo make page one of The Mirror. Especially if you're wearing a bathing suit.

Sure, you probably get lots of recognition, and maybe it will help further your modeling career ambitions.

But it sure makes enemies for you.

A couple of weeks ago we ran a photo of Jeanna Ianeiri, in her bathing suit, on page one of The Mirror. She was selected as Sailfish Regatta Queen and is from Jensen Beach, and for those reasons, she made page one.

We put lots of folks on page one of our paper, but few elicited the sorts of remarks I've heard around the office since Ms Ianeira made page one.

I've never met her, and none of our staff members have either. But that didn't stop some of the female members of our staff from developing an instant animosity towards her.

"Bet she spent a week practicing how to suck in her belly so flat before they took that picture."

"She's not real. She must be an inflatable doll. No real girl can look like that."

"Yeah, she's pretty, but she's probably dumb."

"How come she can wear those new bathing suits that are slit up the side of the legs and I can't?"

"Well that's just the front of her. She probably has warts all over her back."

I won't attribute the quotes to any of our staffers, to keep them anonymous and because those may not have been their exact words. But their thoughts were along those lines.

One might say they were simply jealous of Ms Ianeiri's striking figure--but one better not be Mirror city editor and say that if one wants to live peacefully around here. So, I'll attribute that thought to Dick Campbell. After all, he's editor and the buck stops there, doesn't it?

I've done my meager best to defend the running of Ms Ianeiri on page one by pointing out that we often run photos of local persons selected for an honor on our front page, and even explained that, in the case of Sailfish Regatta Queens, beauty is one of the major factors in the queen selection process.

None of that stopped the comments. So, I tried telling the hostile staffers that they too were attractive. It's true. We have some good looking women around this office. But they'd picture themselves in Ms Ianeiri's bathing suit, compare that image with the page one photo and, in their eyes, the comparison was not flattering.

Beauty is a strange sort of thing. I know a goodly number of people who are as beautiful as you could ever want. But in most cases, their beauty is an inner beauty.

That sort of beauty is, in the final analysis, the only beauty of real value.

That does not, unfortunately, stop folks from admiring outward beauty, and from doing all sorts of things to achieve it, or from resenting it in others when they don't possess equal quantities of it.

I perceived at an early age that outward beauty will open many doors for you, and, in a lot of ways, make your life easier. That conviction came to me as I worked the cash register at Hardee's Hamburgers in my high school days. There were two counters, and often they both backed up with customers. But at a pretty girl got in line, and you should have seen the amazing speed at which the other guy at the register and I worked. Our speediness was designed so we could either keep her in our line, or shorten ours so she'd jump lines to ours if she was in the other one.

The pretty girls never knew their wait in line was being shortened compared to the wait the regular slobs had to endure. They just took it for granted, just as I imagine they took for granted the hundreds of other little acts done by others just to bring them closer, or to simply elicit a smile.

I don't know why we like beauty and want outwardly beautiful people to like us, but most all of us do.

They say there are dangers in being beautiful, that it's hard to know who are your friends and who admire you only for your beauty. They say it creates jealousy and resentment in others, thus preventing friendships from developing. And, as the writer of a popular song says, "When you're in love with a beautiful woman, you watch your friends."

So, I guess it's tough to be beautiful, and I've tried to explain this to some of our staffers when they make unkind remarks about a girl they don't even know. It doesn't stop them though.

Personally, I've never had to cope with the problems of being beautiful, and, in fact, am far enough removed from it that folks like Robert Redford and Paul Newman don't even cause too much jealousy.

I am vain about one aspect of my body though. If nothing else, I figure my legs are above average. So when talk turns to the comparison of men's bodies, I put on a pair of shorts, suck in my belly, and strut.

Update on gasoline

Last week, The Mirror examined how one local gasoline station was losing customers because it wasn't able to get gas due to selling the product at a lower price than other stations.

Localites seeking the best price in the marketplace went to the local Chevron stations and bought gas a ten-cents less a gallon. Of course, the Chevron stations ran out first.

With the price frozen, because Chevron has access to more domestic gas and less OPEC gas, there was a problem created. The Chevron stations couldn't get more gas, and customers went somewhere else when the tanks went dry.

We have just learned that the government is going to solve the problem.

Chevron is being forced to raise its prices.

And, again, the consumer gets it in the neck.

Jensen is featured in German magazine

The German magazine "Merian" featured a two page, color photograph of the St. Lucie River in its August edition. The photo was by Fred Meissner of Stuart.

The entire edition of Merian was devoted to Florida. The magazine is the equivilent of National Geographic in E Europe and is priniciply circulated in Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

The pictorial map included the edition featured the House of Reguge Museum on Hutchinson Island, and there was a section devoted to the Jensen Beach area.

On of the editors touring Florida was a visitor here, staying at Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort. He was given an areial tour of Martin and St. Lucie Counties by Ransom Tilton, and later toured the waterways aboard the Salli, captained by Dick Campbell.

Letters

To the Editor:

The letter from E. Spotto in your April 30 issue in answer to Mrs. "Budmundson" was most ungentle, mainly not to say impolite.

Considering the man hours of labor contributed by Mrs. Gudmundsen and all the volunteers who keep the Community Center operating it was most unwise for the councilman to make his remarks. How many hours of labor has he contributed or are his contributions of cast offs considered sufficient to keep the Center open and operating.

It will be remembered at election time, to be sure.

Elizabeth V. Shaffer

To the Editor:

The project of planting an island or some trees near the sign "Entering Port St. Lucie", on Airoso Boulevard near Sportsman Park has been suggested by a civic minded citizen. It is a marvelous idea, but can not be entertained until some surveillance is possible by our new Police Department. The destruction and vandelism of numerous plantings at the library is a good example of the utter futility of this project at this time.

Buck-a-gallon gasoline. It's a reality. And they say it's going to get worse. For most of us, this means changing our driving habits. The less you drive, the more you save.

We can help. Our new Gas-Miser Program is a package of services that can eliminate dozens of trips to the bank. The program includes direct deposit of regular payments, such as Social Security and stock dividends; telephone transfers of money from checking to savings, and vice versa; deposits by mail to checking and savings (we pay the postage both ways) and more.

Our trained personnel have all the Gas Miser details. They'll help you stop passing the buck for non-essential driving.

"ANYWAY HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY"
ODE TO A MESSY ROOM

Some call me a writer, as I use the written word
Others call me things that I pretend I haven't heard
Some say I'm a worker, as I daily do my job
But Ma, you must admit that when I rise above the mob
It's simply for my talent as a great unrivaled slob

I might have been a doctor, but my stomach is too weak
Or a lawyer whose career would reach some newer reaches for peak
I might have been a tennis star who'd smack a deadly lob
But the Fates were just not with you, when they plucked me from the cob
Your daughter is a simple extra-ordinary slob

I thrive in cluttered corners, and I think I must confess
I'm in my greatest glory when I've made my biggest mess Scattered clothes amaze me, it's a thrill you cannot rob
There is no secret switch to pull, or safety valve or knob
That will transform, in any way, this much contented slob

My desk at work is a shambles, from the papers that I fling
I must unearth my telephone when it begins to ring
It's my creative sanctum and it helps me do my job
You can ask the folks I interview or Dick or Peg or Bob
For they know and love me as I am, a simple happy slob

It was a tricky twist of fate, too late now to delete
That I'd be born to a mother so meticulously neat
I know it isn't right to make you always whine and sob
So though it makes my head to ache and heart to pound and throb
I'll try to be a little less of such a perfect slob

Your Loving Daughter,

Son of Jensen woman in charge of launches

When all systems are go at Cape Kennedy and a rocket lifts off the ground and soars into space, a Jensen Beach woman swells with pride.

That's because, in most cases, the man pushing the button to launch those rockets is her son, Chuck Gay.

Gay is NASA Launch Director and, in that capacity, has the final authority for the launch of unmanned rockets from the Cape.

His father, now deceased, owned and operated the Melaleuca Lodge in Jensen, where his mother, Claire, now lives.

Though he grew up in West Palm Beach, Chuck Gay lived for awhile here. He attended the University of Florida, had that interrupted by a stint in the Navy as an aviation electronics technician, then returned to earn a degree in industrial engineering.

It was while he was in the Navy that he became interested in the aerospace field. He worked for awhile for General Dynamics Corporation on the Atlas missile for the Air Force when his duties turned to preparation of the rocket for the NASA Mercury manned spaceflight program. He joined NASA in 1964 and served as Spacecraft Test Conductor and deputy division chief during the Gemini and Apollo manned moonshot, finally becoming Director of Deployable Payloads Operations.

Among his duties under that title is to make the final judgement before allowing a rocket to blast off.

Gay mans controls in a concrete blockhouse and watches the rocket on a small television screen as he monitors critical information about the rocket systems. Though he says the final moments before a launch he gets goosebumps, it's the sort of job you can tell he's glad to have especially when the rockets soar into space and he can sit back and know he played a critical part in their success.

SAFE BOATING.—The annual Blessing of the Fleet, staged recently in the St Lucie River, is more than an opportunity for local boaters to parade their boats and have them blessed by the clergy. It also serves to raise cash for boating safety education. Each year the Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 50 conducts safe boating classes, conducts boat safety examinations, and makes regular waterway patrols to aid boaters in distress. In order to continue those programs, Blessing of the Fleet Committee member Edward Benedict, right, recently presented Flotilla 50 Commander Frank Walsh with a check for $775 from the Blessing of the Fleet.

anly Cup, Rand Classic tournaments bloom in Spring

by BOB FRYER

local Frisbee enthusiasts, is the best time of the year. l a couple of years ago, there organized Frisbee competition rea. But in the Spring of 1978, a of residents at Seminole Shores got together and organized a nine-hole Frisbee-golf tournament.

Later that year the residents of Seminole Shores had to move out to make way for the Sailfish Point project. But most resettled in the area and since then, have held several tournaments.

Last Spring, former Shores resident Mark Perry hosted the first annual James Rand Spring Classic on the grounds of the Florida Oceanographic Society along the St. Lucie River in Stuart. He later hosted tourneys for Independence Day and Labor Day.

This Spring, on April 20, Shores resident Bob Fryer, along with Mary Meissner and Cathie Farago, brought Frisbee-golf to St. Lucie County when they hosted what they called the fourth annual (why start with the first?) Stanly Cup Touney on their grounds in Eden.

And last weekend, Perry and friends staged the second annual Rand Spring Classic.

In both recent tourneys, the competition was fierce and the courses were demanding, requiring pinpoing tossing around trees, over houses and through hula-hoops. At the Stanly Cup tourney - named in memory of a Frisbee-catching dog - stinging nettles proved a major hazard. At the Rand Classic, the water surrounding the grounds proved the bane of many competitors.

In keeping with the tradition established at the Seminole Shores tourney, bottles of rum were offered as the prizes at both the Stanly and Rand tourneys. And, at the event, champagne and wine was offered for tossers in the women's division.

Two rounds of play over a nine-hole course were featured for the 12 competitors at the Stanly Cup event, and Chris Perry carded scores of 33 and 33 for a 66 total to cop the first place bottle.

Chip Turknett, always a top competitor in previous tournaments, turned in scores of 35 and 35 to finish second with a 70.

Bob Fenton, an excellent free-style player who never seemed to put it all together on the Frisbee-golf course, did just that at the Stanly Cup event for rounds of 33 and 39 to take third with a 72.

Eryer finished just off the mark with a 73 for fourth place.

At the Rand tourney, a new format was introduced. There were 26 players in the men's division, and two nine-hole rounds were played to narrow the field to the top 11 scorers. Then another two rounds were played to determine the winners.

Ric Pauly out-tossed the field to take first with a 109, followed by Chris Perry at 112, Peter Pauly at 114, and, just out of the money, Labor Day tourney winner Marshall Smith came in with a 115.

In the women's division, two rounds were played, and Mary Meissner finished well ahead of the 12-woman field with a score of 66. There was a three-way tie, for second, between Cathie Farago, Jackie Wortham and Rella Edwards. In a sudden death playoff Farago took second and Wortham whose engagement to Mark Perry was announced at the tourney placed third.

ECKING SCORES—Mark Perry, Rand Classic host, cks the scores of women competitors. They are, from the left: Marcy Olson, who is partially obscured by Jackie Wortham; Cynthia Guernsey, and Rojan Pauly.

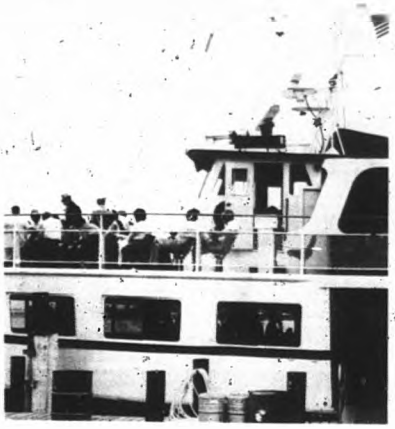
ON THE BOUNDING MAIN—Water has a fascination for every would-be sailor and, whether his legs work or not, Mickey Laird, left, and Ray Hade are no different from most men, gazing with yearning out over the waters of the river during East Chop cruise.



READY TO SAIL—The East Chop, with its load of happy passengers on board, gets ready to take off for the down the-river cruise bearing 22 members of and guests of the ACE club. The cruise boat goes out every day from its moorings north of Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart.

HAPPILY ABOARD—Mr. and Mrs. Mike Laird and their son Mickey look happy about the whole thing as they arrive safely on board the East Chop for the ACE first birthday cruise. They were among the 22 ACE members, parents and guests taking advantage of the afternoon of fun.

ACE goes cruising

It was "cruising down the river on a Sunday afternoon" for 22 members and guests of the Ace Club during the past weekend, and a very pleasant afternoon it was, thanks to the kindness of the crew of the East Chop.

According to Joe Elko, president of the club for the handicapped, the captain not only gave them a discount; they were helped aboard, in wheel chairs on walkers and canes, by the cordial and courteous crew members. Thanks to their splendid treatment, everyone had a delightful time.

Making the trip were Corey Volvo and four guests, Ray Hade and his wife Carol, Mrs. A. Acello and Alice Acell, Brent Lloyd of Canada and his companion Chris, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Laird with their son Mickey and two friends, Sharron Bennion, ACE Club assistant, Jim Griffis, Florence Klose, Elko, Esther Riddle and president Joe.

The ACE Club, standing for Achievement, Creativity and, Education is made up of young people in the 15-45 age bracket who are physically handicapped. Meeting are held on the first Sunday of each month at the Jensen Beach Community Church.

NEW EXPERIENCE—The East Chop cruise was obviously a strange and exciting venture for this quartet relatives of ACE member Corey Volvo who came along for the boat ride.

HAPPY COUPLE—Ray Hade, a victim of multiple sclerosis, and his wife Carol find the ride aboard the East Chop a happy happening. The Hades who live in Port St. Lucie, are charter members of the ACE club, an organization for disabled young people.

AARP MCCA gets new bus

The May Martin Council on Aging Meeting took up three new items. Pres. Lela Williams reported on the estate left there by a duplex in Pasburzana Village; and a purposed rummage sale, also mentioned that funds realized from estate might be used to start a permanent office.

George Jacobi, exec. dir. said that the new Dodge mini bus that had been donated would be ready for use in June and that service now includes all seniors over 60. Rima Conner, PR dir. explained the 'CETA Snafu' whereby a State mistake might cost the Council $12,000.00.

Langford Park meal program is still under Treasure Coast Senior Services and is providing some excellent recreation features, such as a musical last Tuesday with: Connie Betsch, piano; Allen Betsch, drums, Elbot Arlisch, Prog. Dir., Sax- Joe Fruiberg, ex-pres. SAC, violin- Alta Russell, Hawaiian guitar, Fred Schmidt and Smitty Smith, soloists. It was fast stamping entertainment. Snowbirds are flitting away, leaving some vacancies for meals, call site mgr. Dorris Walker, 334-2570.

The seniors were discussing an interesting topic this week, and here is the way it went.

Salty Capt. Joe remarked, "I just had a letter from Senator Stone, saying that he was pushing legislation to stop penalizing senior who work after 65," and with a grin adds, "at 78, I could care less, but I'm sure glad they didn't cut the 14.3 percent C of L increase."

Lil' Imogene, who has to watch her nickles, pipes up, "I agree, but it's still unfair to two retirees, according to what I saw in the paper the other day. Now, listen to this. A 3.9% retiree with $275 benefit, in July will get $286 and a 1988 retiree will jump from $286 to $772. Now, here's the point, before the increase they were only $400 apart, but after, it's $486. Another case of the rich getting richer and the poor getting poorer. Still both groups worked all their lives in similar jobs and now trade in the same market place."

Grumpy Pete, jabbing his cane at an imaginary bureaucrat, sputters, "That's not the worst by far, I saw those figures carried out for 10 yrs. at 10 percent inflation, showing the 1988 retiree would be getting $740 a month by 1991 and the 1980 retiree getting $1828, or about $1100 more per month. Seems unbelievable, but that's what inflation will do. And, as Imogene says both groups worked just as hard all their lives."

Mildred, a fairly recent retiree, who always has a good word for the worst of us, butted in, "You both are probably right, but remember the latter day retirees - although they did have big inflation incomes, they did pay huge 'S.S.' taxes, so made a larger contribution to the fund."

Salty Capt. Joe remarked, "Even so, I'd like to see the total of the 'C of L' increase divided equally, each person getting the same number of dollars, that way, the 1988 retiree wouldn't fall behind so darn fast."

"Sounds good to me," piped up, Millie the letter writer, "I'm going to tell my congressmen and ask others to do the same."

Some forget the north

Some folks when leaving say they can't stand the Florida summer heat, little remembering those stifling, muggy days, up there in Michigan, New England or Ohio, and there wasn't any southeast trade winds up there, to make the bright sunshine quite bearable. Folks that do summer here, know that this wonderful weather is worth the few uncomfortable days, so stay on year after year.

Fifty left this week to make the total only 300, which still does not jibe with the number of closed up homes, so past records were examined, and here's how it was for the same week 1975, 34 left, 1976 it was 56, 1977, 83, 1978, 91 and in 1979, the main interest, was the 78.9 cent gasoline (little did we know"!) Looks as though folks were slipping away without being recorded.

Note that there are fewer OBPers around, the birds and beast come out to play. Parakeets, blue and green are choosing nests, left and right as marked on little houses, then sitting on a perch in front, hopefully guarding an egg, while all the others talk up a storm. Then, next door, in the old monkey cage, 2 white doves, sit sedately, watching a young green parakeet that invited himself in for a free handout.

Squirrels go whizzing by, to scamper up one palm and down another, as they go 'a courtin'. Bunnies by the dozen seem to come out of the ground, to sit calmly, munchin some petunia leaves, while keeping one eye on passers by. We learned where they come from as school, but where do they go, hundreds of new ones each year, but population stays constant."

PARK EVENTS

Game night, every Monday and Wednesday, at 7 p.m. in the clubhouse, goes on and on, until September. Now, that the crowd is less, it is a bit easier to win a little bit less, and it's still a good place to get up to date on park doings.

Shuffleers don't give up, even when many regulars have taken off for Hendersonville, as there were 8 courts out for the pot luck games last Friday, at 6 p.m. Also, there are two or more courts busy morning and night as new foresomes form, to carry on the George Levangi tradition of it pays to talk up a good game. Then, there are always a dozen kibitzers, who willingly solve both local and national problems at a drop of a bit.

HOSPITAL

The following are home from the hospital: Mildred Epler, 17 Indian River Dr.; Stan Hughson, 6 Arbor Vitae; Allen Matherve, 11 NE 6th St.; Earl Sheehey, South and Oak; Larry Moore, Road and Fifth; Pappy Snyder, 10 NE Fifth Ave.

Still in the hospital: Edna Strominger, 23 Almond St., Room 329; Ruby Masson, 4 Palm Rd. Rm. 224; Colin Ashley, 18 Ocean Breeze Dr. Rm 411; Polly Kaeppner, Melaleuca, Rm. 434.

RAMBLING AROUND

Frank and Cindy Zimmerman, 39 Almond St., recently enjoyed the visit of their daughter Doris Hippensteel from Etters, Penna. Doris had a great time fishing, and no wonder, she caught 20 nice 'blues' one day while fishing at the crossroads with her dad Ken Herron. In between times she was gadding about and playing cards.

Vincie Taylor, 8 Ocean Breeze Dr. came here 40 years ago with her husband Lee, backed their little travel trailer into a space on Circle drive near the hall in 1940. They lived on NE Tenth in 1962, when with a lot of arm twisting, Lee agreed to move to Ocean Breeze Dr., they were the fourth mobile home in the so called 'north 40' new section.

They came originally from Greenfield, Mass. and did a lot of camping with Margaret Weeks and did a lot of fishing in those bygone days, in fact they came to OBP, because they heard the 'blues' were running and wanted to try their luck. Lee was in the Monument business for years and when he came to Florida continued with painting and designing under Baccus of Ft. Pierce. Vincie has a son in Hobe Sound and keeps busy with many home card parties.

Elston and Doris Lehning, 1 Key Lime, came down here from Nashville, Tenn. a while ago, then put an addition on his home, so he could have some visitors, and he did, with more still to come. Elston's first cousin Charles Lehning and wife will stop off on their way to see an aunt in Hollywood, and although they are first cousins, they have not met in 30 years.

Then, Elston's son George, a construction engineer, wife Sheryol and teenagers George, Irby and Ted will be here for the third time and spending most of the time at the beach. Next, Elson's daughter and friend will be here the first week of June for some swimming. Sometime this summer the Lehnings are going on cruises with the Brunts and Chases, before they take their frigid winter jaunt up to Nashville.

Nina Zigelhofer and Ellen Nixon received newsy cards from Elmer and Dorothy Rains of Pine Lane. They say they had a nice trip back to Box 236, Pragah, IA 51564, with only a little rain and mostly warm weather. They made a stop off at Chattanooga and did Lookout Mountain, Ruby Falls and Rock City. They proudly report that they have had the care of new "little great grandson", so all must be well on that well.

A going away 'for good' party was given to Helen Dennis by Marsian Curwen, Sunday, April 27, with Helen's daughter, Barbara Collier; Dot Beck, Dick and Juba Aumiller; and Jim and Ellen Nixon attending. Helen is going back to Mattewan, Mass., to be near her family. We all wish Helen a lot of happiness back home and hope that she will find time to come back for a visit.

THANK YOU

Pappy and Veronica Snyder want to thank all their wonderful Ocean Breeze friends and neighbors for the cards of encouragement, their well wishes, visits to hospital and at home and especially to all those who exercised the vital transportation when needed. Also, a special thank you to the doctors and nurses at the Martin Memorial Hospital. We truly thank you all very much.

There were only 11 members at the picnic to get the bullshit 'out' last week, but by loss talk and more work, it was ready for mailing by 'brown bag' lunch time. Al Tucker, bus. mgr. and Mildred Capanna, circ. mgr. says thank you and hopes there will be more workers next month.

Legislative Chairman, Pearl Wyse, read a letter from 'Augie' Maltregeot, property appraiser on a petition for property tax relief. He advocates a reduction to 65 percent assessment, so that with the 'homestead' exemptions, the small guy will get a break, with business paying a bit more. Also, the same petition advocates, limiting any increase to 5 percent, without vote approval. Must have 256,000 signatures by July 1 to get on November ballot. Pearl will have forms at May meeting.

The rumors that there would be something doing' at the May meeting have been confirmed. There will be 4 or more humorous skits' and your reporter was 'shanghaied', so is in position to 'leak' some of the mysterious details. Eleven, would be and hopeful actors were brought together by prog. chm. Ruth Woodrugg and 'skit' director Peggy Standbergh put them through their paces, one afternoon recently at the Fairgrounds.

Such hidden talent, one wouldn't believe, as it true professional manner, each guy or gal came right in on cue to bring out the punch line with a bang. The rehersal turned out to be a lot of fun, as Peggy and the actors made suggestions for improving and smoothing out the routine and suggesting props to make it all more realistic. This show shouldn't be missed, at the May meeting Thursday, the 15th.

The May Bulletin again mentions the 'Vial of Life' program, that the chapter is interested in. Margret Evans, Red Cross Mgt. would like to make this a county wide project, with a Vial in every refrigerator. These small vials containing pertinent medical information, so in case of emergency, the correct and not the wrong treatment could be given immediately. All interested in working on project call Pearl 334-0088.

Also, the Red Cross is in need of volunteers, so if you can spare a few hours a week, call Margret, 287-2082. And, there is a need for folks to drive cars for the Cancer Association to West Palm for patient treatment (using patients car). Often, there are requests for local car drivers, at min wage using their cars. Something to do this summer?

CHAPTER EVENTS

There were only 11 members at the picnic to get the bulletin 'out' last week, but by less talk and more work, it was ready for mailing by 'brown bag' lunch time. Al Tucker, bus. mgt. and Mildred Caspanas, clr. mgt., says thank you and hopes there will be more workers next month.

Legislative Chairman, Pearl Wyse, read a letter from 'Augie' Malfregeot, property appraiser on a petition for property tax relief. He advocates a reduction to 85 percent assessment, so that with the 'homestead' exemptions, the small guy will get a break, with business paying a bit more. Also, the same petition advocates, limiting any increase to 5 percent, without vote approval. Must have 256,000 signatures by July 1 to get on November ballot. Pearl will have forms at May meeting.

The rumors that there would be something doing' at the May meeting have been confirmed. There will be 4 or more humorous 'skits' and your reporter was 'shanghaised', so is in position to 'leak' some of the mysterious details. Eleven, would be and hopeful actors were brought to gether by prog chm. Ruth Woodrugg and skit' director Peggy Standbergh put, them through their paces, one afternoon recently at the Fairgrounds.

Such hidden talent, one wouldn't believe, as 11 true professional manner, each guy or gal came right in on cue to bring out the punch line with a bang. The rehersal turned out to be a lot of fun, as Peggy and the actors made suggestions for improving and smoothing out the routine and suggesting props to make it all more realistic. This show shouldn't be missed, at the May meeting Thursday, the 15th.

The May Bulletin again mentions the 'Vial-of-Life' program, that the chapter is interested in. Margret Evans, Red Cross Mgt. would like to make this a county wide project, with a Vial in every refrigerator. These small vials containing pertinent medical information, so in case of emergency, the correct and not the wrong treatment could be given immediately. All interested in working on project call Pear 334-5806.

Also, the Red Cross is in need of volunteers, so if you can spare a few hours a week, call Margret, 287-3003. And, there is a need for folks to drive cars for the Cancer Association to West Palm for patient treatment (using patients car). Often, there are requests for local car drivers, at min wage using their cars. Something to do this summer?

BOWLING

All good things must come to an end and so the park's bowling season did last week. Only four keglers appeared for the last day's competition—Gerri Benson, Billy Thompson, Ben Benson, Edna Winston. Since so few were present, no scores were submitted, but they had a farewell "ball", bowling ball, that is.

Any ideas for innovations or changes for next season will be most welcome. Contact Lou and/or Mary Russell at the park.

BINGO

With our own Bingo activity open for the season, a contingent from our park could be seen at Windmill Village Friday night. Imagine the surprise when veteran Bingo players Edith Painter, Margaret Howden, Phyllis Clark, Polly Forte, Marge Bieber, Lena Black and Rose Kurth all won. Rose won twice and Mary Spanek practiced calling "Bingo" even without a winner. What a fitting finale for the final night at the Village.

MEN'S POOL

The final Saturday tournament in Men's pool gave us champions in Floyd Reynolds and Joe Goodwin, who beat Ed Calahan and Jack Clark. It was a hard won and thrilling game. That's it for this season, folks. Maybe we can get a new pool table for next season for one ever increasing group.

CARDS

All the bridge players seem to have left. Only "Crazy Sara" were in session last Tuesday. They surely enjoy playing cards. The game will be continued each Tuesday evening just as long as a group comes out to play at 7:30 p.m.

SUMMER POT LUCK

The summer Pot Luck Dinners have started with a pot roast with potatoes dinner on Thursday May 15, at the recreation hall. The hostesses are Jesse Shaver and Fran Tener. We hope to see many of our summerly residents attending these cozy get-togethers.

SEWING CLASS

The last class of the current session was last Monday. The members bid a "summer adieu" to the teacher, Vera, and hope she has a pleasant summer. Lee Scarpula modeled her very fashionable and well fitting two-piece pants outfit, which was a class project. It looked very good on her, too.

EXERCISE CLASS

The daily morning exercise class will continue throughout the month of May, so continue to come on out, gals. It will do you good.

The recreation committee has ended its meetings for the summer, with meetings resuming the first or second Tuesday of October.

Work is still in progress on the recreation building addition. The parquet wood floor is now in and the carpeting has been laid at the entrance to the room. Looks good.

Venture Harbour welcomes its new residents, Kitty and Ernie Hufnagel, who came to us from Indian River section of the park. Good luck to you at your new home!

CONDOMINIUMS VS. COOPERATIVES?

QUESTION: Over the past few years I have watched the growth of investment in condominiums. Now I am beginning to hear about ownership in cooperatives. Would you explain the difference?

ANSWER: A cooperative is a dwelling unit owned by a cooperative in a dwelling unit owned by a cooperative housing corporation. Stockholders are entitled to a proprietary lease on a specific unit. Like a condominium, a cooperative is a way of enjoying ownership in a multi-unit complex. Both offer similar tax and appreciation advantages.

Cooperative "ownership" involves having both shares of the corporation and a proprietary lease. The lease entitles the shareholder to possession of a unit provided he pays his pro-rata share of the property's operating expenses.

Until recently the major drawback to cooperative ownership was the problem involved in financing the equity in each unit. Because the cooperative buyer has shares in the corporation which owns the real estate, rather than holding title to his unit, financing the re-sale of these shares has often been difficult.

This was in contrast to condominium ownership where the owner receives a deed and can finance his unit independent of the other.

Recently, changes have been made in the method of financing cooperatives. These changes should make cooperatives a lot more popular in the next few years.

Cultural Arts night at Jensen School is a smashing success

Jensen Beach prides itself on being the "Sea Turtle Capital of the World."

That may be so, but judging from the performances of a group of youngsters at Jensen Beach Elementary School last Thursday night, we could also stake a claim as a cultural arts capital.

The school's PTA sponsored Cultural Arts night last Thursday, and the students provided a wealth of talent for parents and friends to enjoy.

The Sailfish Cloggers, consisting of many Jensen students, gave a rousing performance to a packed house, and a special awards ceremony for students turning in outstanding art work followed the dancing demostration.

Then it was the musicians' turn. A large group of students gathered before music teacher Delores Daniels and proceeded to display a wealth of musical talent as they performed songs on flutophones. Again, the audience loved it.

And, for those parents whose children didn't have to go home in order to make bedtime, a special treat was still to come. A group of fifth grade students, under the direction of Dr. Ron Howells, put on a delightful play about a group of snobbish folks from England who went on an African safari and nearly wound up in the soup of cannibals. Though there were occasional giggles not called for in the script, the students showed a high degree of acting skill for their tender age and completely won the hearts of their audience.

Fishing tournament at Lake Okeechobee

BY DICK LUNDIN

LAKE OKEECHOBEE — Ed Staley of Cocoa, president of the Florida Fly Rod Club and a heavy favorite, won the 14th annual Invitational Fly Fishing Contest, Thlathlo Tumka, at Lake Okeechobee April 28-30, from a field of 18 outdoor writers.

Staley had to hold off the late rush of last year's winner, Bill Brown, also of the Fly Rod Club, who weighed in the big bass of the tournament, 5 lbs 8 oz, on the last afternoon of trophy fishing.

Two female flycasters were a first for the tournament. Cynthia Boomhower, president of the Women's International Fishing Ass'n and a writer for the Palm Beach Post, and the association's secretary, Joan Gibson, Cynthia finished seventh and Joan wound up 17th in competition with their male opponents.

Dick Lundin, representing the Fort Pierce News-Tribune, wound up 12th, his best finish ever in four appearances.

Coordinator Harold DeTar of Moore Haven, explained that the words Thlathlo Tumka are Seminole Indian for "catching a fish on a fly."

Final standings in the three-day event that saw contestants fishing four hours each morning and afternoon with a different guide from six different fish camps.

Staley, 723 points based on panfish and bass catches. Brown, 636. Bill Sargent, Melbourne Today, 604. Bill Miller, Ft. Myers News-Press, 533. Bill Lampton, Hammell Newspapers, 499. Jim Hardie, Miami Herald, 447. Boomhower, 445. Steve Gibson, Fla. Sportsman, 437. Rosa Parsons, WPB Times and Channel 12, 418. Charlie Harris, Orlando Sentinel, 340. Buck Lovegrove, Sarasota Journal, 340. Lundin, 291. Jerry Hill, Bradenton Herald, 255. Herb Allen, Tampa Tribune, 234. Bob Burns, Daytona Beach Channel 2, 229. Al Jones, Hollywood Sun Tattler, 228. Gibson, 226. and Jim Miller, 88.

The annual Hard Luck Award went to Lundin by acclamation at the awards banquet at the Buckhead Fire Station Wednesday night. He lost his plastic tackle box with all of his flies during the first hour's fishing on Tuesday morning when it blew out of the side. Jim Woodward's Storm bass boat while "flying" across Chobee's waters at 67 miles per hour. "My greatest loss actually was several cherished Peck's Poppers, no longer available," Lundin said ruefully.

Leland Pearce, owner of Buckhead Ridge Marina, hosted the 18 contestants throughout the tournament.

The fish camps providing guide service were Slim's Fish Camp and J. Mark Fish Camp in Belle Glade, Angler's Marina and Robbie's Restaurant in Clewiston, Uncle Joe's south of Moore Haven and Lakeside Marina in the town, Big Bass Lodge, Fisheating Bay Village and Dick's Fish Camp, all in Lake Port, Calusa Lodge just above Lake Port, and Sarasota's Bass Pro Shop guiding from there, Buckhead Ridge Marina, Brighton Camparina in the Indian Reservation.

Sunday afternoon preceding the evening drawing for fishing spots, there was a flycasting contest for both distance and accuracy. Both trophies were won by Staley, who thus wound up with the three of the four major trophies awarded during the affair.

Although high winds plagued flycasters Monday and Tuesday, and much of Wednesday, coordinator DeTar expressed himself as being highly pleased with "the way things went," and promised that things would be done on an even larger scale next year. He said consideration would be given to cutting down the long trips involved in the 1989 event, some of the participants having to drive as much as 50 miles each way to their "honey holes."

Contestant Lovegrove said at the banquet that he felt he spoke for all with "We feel that this kind of a tournament for outdoor writers and broadcasters is simply super. It's the greatest thing like it in the state and we enjoyed every minute of the action here this week. I just hope you invite us back next year. Don't forget me!"

Lundin added "Amen to that, but you can bet I'll be checking out the horsepower next year. No more flying machine' rides for me, unless my tackle box is tied around my waist. Oh, for some more Peck's Poppers!"

OUTBOARD MOTOR is great until it won't start. This one quit near the Moore Haven launching ramp when the solenoid stuck and wouldn't engage the electric starter. Guide Dick Hughes from Dick's Fish Camp at Lake Port oh the Calusa Lake Okeechobee is shown pulling the cord trying to start the 115 horsepower motor. He pulled for 45 minutes until another angler started the motor by jumping up the solenoid with a screwdriver. "After I nearly pulled my arm out and had to dislocated my shoulder, he starts it just like that!, Dick moaned. (Dick Lundin photo)

FLYCASTING isn't really my cup of tea but Thlathlo Tumka is such a great sporting event for outdoor writers that you just can't resist it even if you know you're hopelessly outmatched by at least a dozen or more who flyfish more or less frequently, some quite frequently. For that reason, I accepted Coordinator Harold De Tar's invitation this year and trekked on over to Buckhead Ridge Marina last Sunday evening to join the 17 other contestants at the drawing for fishing spots and guides.

We fished with a different guide each day from a different fish camp, and it made for a fascinating, entertaining three days of fishing, even if it was interminable flycasting all the way. I even got to like it toward the end, especially when a lunker bass of some six pounds grabbed my pet fly and tore away with it and the end of my leader. That taught me the value of having a pile of line at your feet while you fish. It hadn't occurred to me that a big fish might hit my fly. Well it did and what a great moment and sudden letdown! Guide Deb Spencer nearly cried when the leader parted.

That first morning, guide Jim Woodward and I fished out of Big Bass Lodge on SR 721 about 20 miles across SR 78 from the Kissimmee River Tom and Mary Tindell (813-946-1707) are the owners. They have motel rooms, rec vehicle hookups, rental boats and motors, bait and tackle, and a launch ramp right at the Lake Port locks on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee. We didn't do well, getting only five bluegills for 29 points, but it was windy and I was rusty. If you're not looking for a Holiday Inn, I think you'd like Big Bass Lodge.

Monday afternoon's fishing was out of Calusa Lodge just a couple miles east of Big Bass Lodge. The Lodge is operated by Ken and Diana Hodge (813-946-0544) and the very fine restaurant by John and Shirley Miller (813-946-1202). Calusa has hotel rooms, campgrounds, a launch ramp and a tackle shop. The guide was Bob Brown out of the Bass Pro Shop in Sarasota. The afternoon was very windy and Brown and I couldn't produce much of anything, just 11 points. Flycasting is hard enough anyway when you do it only once in three years, but when it's windy it's Katy Bar the Door.

That night, we all ate catfish at the Brighton Indian Reservation just above Lake Port and had lecture on aquaculture.

Tuesday morning was blustery and I went flyfishing with guide Charlie Whidden, and got just 28 points and still not bass! We fished Harney Pond Canal and Worm Cove out of Jerry Beck's Fisheating Bay Village (813-946-0555) at Lake Port where they have a trailer park for RV's, trailers for rent, shuffleboard courts and barbecue pits and boats and motors, with the Lake Port grocery nearby. It was a job to fish with Charlie but the odds were against us.

Dick's Fish Camp, (813-946-0811) just across SR 78 from the Lake Port grocery, is owned by Dick and Carol Hughes. It has campgrounds for 20 RV's with hookups, and also tent camp sites, that, gas, tackle, boat rentals and a launch ramp. They even had a 2 bedroom air conditioned cabin on the water for six persons, available for weekends or one week at a time. Hot showers and guide service are available there on the Rim Canal about a mile from the Lake Port Locks. We lost an hour because of a balky solenoid, but some friendly anglers fixed it with 45 minutes left to fish and wouldn't you know, after all that we caught two nice bass and a big bluegill worth 96 points. You never know.

Everyone ate dinner that night, courtesy of Big Bass Lodge.

Wednesday morning, I overslept and had to skip breakfast at Buckhead Ridge. It was 38 miles to Uncle Joe's (813-983-9421) on SR 720 between Clewiston and Moore Haven and I arrived there at 6:53 a.m., barely in time for the 7 a.m. starting. Uncle Joe's is owned by Jim and Art Smith, managed by Tiny Barnes. They have 24 efficiency apartments, a launch ramp, restaurant, swimming pool, bait, tackle, boats and motors there on the west shore of Lake Okeechobee, also 30 hookups for campers. I checked out three apartments and believe you me they are well above average. Guide Randy McQueary put me on two small bass and six bluegills for a respectable 50 points, all in the Moore Haven Canal.

The finale was Wednesday afternoon when I fished out of the Lakeside Marina (813-946-0722) in Moore Haven, owned by Shirley and Deb Spencer. They have 38 permanent RV pads and hookups, live bait and tackle, gas, and 38 covered dock spaces protected by a night watchman. The Spencers have plans to enlarge the marina along the Caloosahatchee River on adjoining land if they can work out a lease with the City of Moore Haven. Deb and I had good luck on bass, catching four and losing that lunker because of my inexperience. With four small bluegills, the point total was 70 and I was beginning to feel like a fly fisherman but you should have heard me wail when that huge largemouth took off with my last Peck's Popper. Deb observed that I seemed more shook up over the loss of the popper than the big bass that might have been worth close to 200 points.

We closed out the three days of fishing with the banquet at the fire station where the Ladies Auxiliary of Buckhead Ridge served an excellent meal and Coordinator De Tar acted as master of ceremonies.

Wait until next year! This time I'm going to practice first!

SALUTATIONS!

AS THE NEW OUTDOOR EDITOR of The Mirror, it seems in order to greet its readers, and here is that greeting for better or for worse. We'll make every effort to see that it's for better, always.

This column will have two major thrusts, to try to tell it like it is at all time, and to stress conservation of our dwindling fishery resources. If the fishing's bad, we'll tell you it is, and will everlastingly beat the drum urging you to let them go to bite another day if you don't have a need for them on your table. Even those pesky saltwater catfish deserve to live, so let them. Don't toss them on the bridge or jetty to die in the salt air.

It'll take a little while to get my feet on the ground down here after eight years up in the Fort Pierce area, so bear with me during the shakedown cruise.

Another thing. Give me a call whenever you've got some fishing news you'd like to share or if you take a clear picture of a fish, bring it to The Mirror for me, or mail it to me at 1533 S.E. Pitcher Rd., Port St. Lucie, Fla. 33452. Color photos are acceptable if they're in good color and focus. Remember, please, I'm allergic to pictures taken too far from the fish and those that emphasize the angler instead of the fish. Always attach a sheet identifying persons from left to right and giving the salient facts about the catch, i.e. kind of fish, weight, bait used and where it was caught (offshore, include directions from inlet and depth of water). Don't write on the back of the photo!

We plan to have a jam-up Outdoor Page each week in The Mirror and you can help, so let's hear from you.

TOM STEWART, from the Enoch Nook: "There are blues in the surf from the St. Lucie Inlet clear up past the power plant to Little Mud Creek, hitting Krocodile and Gator spoons mostly, and ribbon fish occasionally. Whiting are fair around the Sheraton, ther are some croakers in the surf and now and then a small pompano (they must be 6½ inches). They have been catching a few snook in the SL Inlet on live bait and some at night from the Evans Crary (18 cent) Bridge. Some blues are being caught from the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge on cut bait. Seatrout are scattered and generally small. The best trout action seems to be in Herman's Bay and around the power plant on trout lures and mirrolures. The Jensen Causeway is slow. There are lots and lots of dolphin offshore, east of the SL Inlet, hitting trolled ballyhoo."

The Nook's log: Howard Byers and Aaron Johnson, 32 dolphin to 15-0 (16 lbs.) and three bonito, ballyhoo, east of the inlet; Frank Nicholson, 18 blues to 3.0 kroes, surf: Joe Danek, 45 blues, kroes, surf: Doran Dunaway, 32 blues, kroes, surf; Irv Fisher, 12 trout, mirrolures and tours, power plant. Jesse Dehman, 2 snook to 20-0, live bunker, Evans Crary; Bill Bailey, 22 croakers and 4 whiting, cut clams, surf.

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Tony Battaglia: "Blues are good in the surf on Krocodile and Gator spoons with the best action around the power plant. There are some nice big whiting near the Plantation. There are small pompano in the surf and a few croakers. Trout fishing in the river is slow but they have been catching some small ones (must be 12 inches) on live shrimp from the Jensen Causeway. They've been catching quite a few snook on live baby bunker (menhaden) in the N. Fork of the St. Lucie near Sandpipe Bay. Offshore, there are dolphin east of the SL Inlet hitting trolled ballyhoo in 75 to 250 ft. of water."

Jensen's log: Wayne and Helen Kendall, Bob and Judy Brague, 11 dolphin to 19-0 and 9 amberjack to 12-0, ballyhoo and bunker, 2 days offshore fishing; Jack Geis and family, a 16-0 dolphin, ballyhoo, east of inlet; Charles Kreh, an 8-0 trout, a bluefish and a flounder, live shrimp, power plant; Earl Widman, a 21-0 snook, white leather, Evans Crary.

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE at the S. end of the Roosevelt Bridge, Murial Weidemann: "In the night and early morning they have been catching some nice snook on mirrolures and live bait from the bridge. Fishing is picking up some. They've been getting a few black drum, sheepshead, channel bass (redfish), mangrove snappers and even a sergeant now and then."

TRAVIS DUERMAN, JR., from Pier 1, just north of the Roosevelt Bridge: "It's slow in the Indian River, just a few sand perch and some snookfish. There are some big tarpon up in Tarpon Bay in the N. Fork. It's been generally slow but they have been catching a few snook at the Roosevelt Bridge."

Party boat fishing is something anyone can do if you have about $20 and like human company. We have two party boats in the area now, the Miss Fort Pierce (464-4628 at the Fort Pierce Marina and the Lady Stuart (286-1680) at the Sailfish Marina down in Port Salerno. This is the slow time of the year but you'd better make a reservation anyway.

RITA FASANO, from the Miss Fort Pierce: "Fishing's been a bit slow, Dick, but we've been getting lots of vermilions (snappers) and a grouper now and then. We go Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday from 8 am. to 4 pm. and Friday from 8 a.m. to 2 pm. and 7 pm. to 1 am. We run a ladies and children's special on Friday. We'll keep this schedule until mid June."

FROM THE LADY STUART, Capt. Marlin Moody: "We tried an all day trip on Saturday and made a nice catch of grouper and triggerfish. We'll run full days on Saturdays until June 15. The grouper seem to have moved into shallow water and the Lane and vermillion snappers have gone to their spawning beds. The weeds have a lot of salt on them this year and it could be detrumental to reef fishing. We've been here five years but this has been the craziest year ever. Our schedule now is 8 am. to 12 and 1.5 pm. on Sunday; no trip on Monday, 8 am. to noon Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 8 am. to 4 pm. on Saturday. On both Wednesday and Friday, we'll go out nights from 7-11 pm."

GOOD FISHING!

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis Indian River Plantation

Another new entry in the racket field The new Prince WOODIE Graphite overlays ash and maple with two graphite inlays As the name implies it's basicly a wood racket The graphite will reinforce the wood, which it needs as the new racket is an oversize, the same shape and size as the other Prince's

The inventor is responsible for many things including the Head Skis, ski Head rackets, the JP D P basicly a carbon copy of the Prince racket and now the Woodie When people see Mr Head they chuckle as he is a ski n head But Howard Head has made many millions in tennis equipment, and a good portion from the oversized Prince

He was the first to take advantage of the fact that there was no standard size or shape of a tennis racket, simply because no one bothered to change them Now he holds the pat on just the size, and collects from companies like Wilson for their Extra model, another oversized bat

In Mr Heads experiments he was startled to discover that the best point to hit the ball was about two thirds up from where your hand grips the racket, the throat of conventional rackets He immediately designed an expanded face to include that area A lot of you know the spot I'm talking about

And of course, to test all these rackets he also had to invent the Prince ball machine

Many top players are now using this racket, especially in the senior division However, just across the state in Sarasota, Nick Bollettieri has hundreds of the best juniors in the country also using one Prince or another

Speaking of juniors, here is a sad note The Florida Tennis Assn had a drop in membership for 1979, and this decreases their income, and limits the money for Youth Development, and also decreases the quota for the juniors to attend THE NATIONALS This year, they are only sending 6 to the Nationals

Remember, I was just talking about the need for an organization here in Martin County to help all levels of junior development

Now the FTA is asking all Club members to assist them in a membership drive All tournament players have to belong, but any and all that would like to help keep kids on the court and not in the court are most welcome to join

The club that has obtained the most new members by May 1, 1980, will receive a trophy, I really need another one, and the person who obtains the most new members will receive a Life Membership in the USTA, I have long been a Life Member, But all kidding aside, they need help and I think it is a very very good cause, and I will be signing up any and all that will just come to the Pro Shop at Indian River Plantation Bring a check for $15 00 made out to U S T A or $200 00 for a Life Membership

The USTA is a tax-exempt charitable organization engaged in youth work Spalding Sporting Goods just donated 600 rackets to the USTA and it even cost money to give them away to worthy or needy juniors, so come on and join now, a member is elegible to play all USTA or FTA sanctioned tournaments, plus receive the monthly newsletter from the FTA.

Speaking of juniors one more time, I have been hearing an awful lot of IPS lately around the club If that ball had just been a tenth of an inch higher, if he wasn't so lucky, if I hadn't served doubles that one time, if I only had my racket, or a new one, or a bigger one or 50 more JF's Kid's, if a frog had wings, he wouldn't bumb his A every time he jumped, and that horse in the Irish Sweepstakes would be the winner if he hadn't bumbed while heading to the front. So forget the if's and maybe's, and make it your name in the record book

THE END OF THE LINE. This hapless alligator, about an eight footer, lies along the bank of the Caloosahatchee River near Moore Haven, mute testimony to the depredations of poachers bent on a meal of gator tail Why they gutted the reptile in removing its tail wasn t apparent (Dick Landin photo)

Neighbors alternate shots for low Sandpiper tally

Thursday's action in Sandpiper Bay's men's golf action found neighbors Russ Skinner and Denny Long turning on their alternators to the best advantage in the Partner's Chapman Scotch event,

They alternated their shots for the lowest round score of the day, 58½, for top place in the novel event which attracted some 150 participants

Druggist Sid Tanner and partner Joe Schwartz finished in a deadlock for second place at 60½ with the combine of Prexy Bob Wilson and Tome Bonne. A trio of doubles ended up in a three way for third place at 62½ including the teams of Charley Heiden and Joe Monte Hank Eastwood and Charley Hyde, and Flick Flinkinger with Al Van Nostrand.

Only a half point out of third at 62 was another triple dead heat, and figuring in the photo finish were Howard Kierk and Harry Kessler, Mark Vasey and Fred Gradishar, and the dynamic duo of Dan Smorzanck and Dr. Oscar Rozett.

The scheduled event for Thrusday, May 8, will be a Partners Best Ball setup with play on the 18 hole championship Saints Course

Seniors pave way in Pro-Am

by MIKE SANDY

A bit of the Legends prevailed in the weekly Pro-Am golf event staged at Mariner Sands Country Club in Stuart when Joe Lopez, a 65 year-old tour tested veteran now unattached out of Miami, carded a one under par 71 to waltz off with the top award among the 29 professionals who participated over the 18 hole championship course.

Another of the Legendary group, Clarence Doser, retired and living at JDM Golf Course, ranked third with a 73-only three shots over his age. One of the youngsters managed to take the runnerup slot when Fred Harkness of Johnathon's Landing posted an even par 72

Three of the area's younger golfers deadlocked for fourth at 74 including, Kelly Childs of Mid Rivers, Greg Gerulli of Sandpiper Bay and Rick Dyrtich of Boca Del Mar in Boca Raton.

Another old timer, now retired, Jim Johnson, led a trio of amateurs to capture the top award in teh Pro-Am segment of the event whe his team posted a 24 under tally in the two best of four balls. The score of 120 was posted by Johnson and these amateurs: Steve Gerich, Jerry Boyd and Ed Fletcher, the latter a new member of the Mariner Sands club.

Three teams ended in a virtual tie for second including Pors Burce Harrison, Sandpiper Bay; Clarence Doser and Fred Harness. Their amateur partners included Bill Meyers, Dick Whiting Ed McGavock, Chuck Ankrom, Ozzie Kirkby, Tony Paris, Bob Wilson, Doug Swanson and John Voorhes

The next pro am event will be staged at Sandpiper Bay on Friday, May 9, and will be followed with another event at Mariner Sands on May 16. Amateurs and pros alike are urged to be in contact with either pro shop and sign up as an entrant With the limited number of professionals in the area during the time of the year it makes it impossible to accept the many amateurs who continue to enter this popular event. Therefore amateurs are especially urged to sign up as quickly as possible The pro shop at Mariner Sands is headed by Chuck Knebels, while Chuck Johnson holds down the fort at Sandpiper

Census Bureau making rounds

Census takers are making their rounds in this area, calling at households which have not mailed back their 1980 census questionnaires. They are making telephone calls at most households which have mailed back incompletely filled out questionnaires.

Luciano Martinez, manager of the district office, says the round-up should be completed in the next few weeks.

"You can easily tell if someone who knocks on your door is a census taker," the manager advises. "We all wear red, white and blue identification cards, with the U.S. Department of Commerce seal and 'Census Enumerator. Official Credential' printed on them and each bears the wearer's signature. Census takers also carry large portfolios boldly [illegible] U.S. Census - 1980' against a red, white and blue background.

Are We Nearing the Third World War Predicted by Our Lady?

What Has Happened to The Catholic Church?

Was This predicted by the mother of GOD at Fatima and LaSalette?

LaSalette

"Many shall abandon the faith and great shall be the number of priests and religious who shall separate themselves from the true religion!"

Fatima

"Satan rules even in the highest positions and determines the direction of things. He will succeed in entering his way into the HIGHEST summits of The Church."

Garden Mausoleum

The ultimate means of perpetuating the memory of a loved one

At Pre-Construction Cost

Selection of a final resting place is a sacred family duty which, sooner or later, we must all face. How much better to do it now while members of the family are able to consult together, discuss calmly, and decide sensible on what would be best for all. Here caskets rest permanently, always dry and sheltered from the elements. Always cared for and protected in an atmosphere of inspiring beauty.

Please Consider Now

- There would be no graves, vaults or monuments to buy.
- This desired method of burial is no more expensive than comparable underground burial.
- Nuccari terms suitable for any family.
- A mausoleum endowment care trust assures continued maintenance and beauty.

Stops inflation...perhaps saving hundreds of dollars in the future.

Coach delivers message to 158 graduates at IRCC

It was a celebration of success.

For the 158 graduates who were awarded diplomas Sunday evening by Indian River Community College president Herman A. Heins and Herb Brooks, the gold medal Olympic hockey coach who addressed the graduates on the value of motivation, this year's Commencement Exercises recognized accomplishment, not as an end in itself, but as a gateway to new challenges.

On the surface, it would seem that a 42-year old hockey coach from Minnesota has little in common with a class of community college graduates in Florida. For Herb Brooks, however, his inspired Olympic victory changed all that. Like the graduates, Brooks has just met success with a major accomplishment, and now faces the same questions about the future that the graduates must answer.

That hard-earned moment of glory came for the graduates Sunday evening as they stepped forward, one by one, to received their Associate of Art, Associate of Science, or Associate of Applied Science Degrees, having completed two year college programs, the graduates now have hard choices to make and futures to plan.

Brooks, too, has plenty of options. Since the unexpected and astonishing win of the United States Olympic Hockey Team at the 1980 Winter Olympics, Brooks has been on a dizzying merry-go-round of speaking engagements and public appearances. Reportedly looking around for an opportunity to coach pro hockey, Brooks' current challenge lies in finding something to do to surpass his Olympic triumph.

A living example that persuasance pays off, Brooks has been involved with the Olympics, either as a coach or player, longer than anyone in U.S. hockey history. He has played hockey in high school, on the University of Minnesota team, on U.S. National Team, and on the 1964 and 1968 Olympic teams. His coaching has led the UM team to three NCAA Championships, as well as earning Books the World Cup Hockey Association Coach of the Year award in 1974. The peak of his career came, of course, with the Olympic wins over Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union, and Finland for the gold medal.

The mark of a winner, is making the most of every opporunity, a quality as important in business, education, technical fields, or any other area as it is in sports. So when Brooks addressed the 1980 IRCC graduates on motivation Sunday night, he was talking about a lot more than hockey he was talking about their futures.

54th annual Early Settlers picnic planned for May 17

Arrangements are now being formulated for the 54th annual get together and picnic lunch of the Early Settlers of Lower Indian River Area to be held at the Agricultural Center on Airport Road, Fort Pierce, on Saturday, May 17.

Margaret Carlton, president, is asking members of her various committees to help handle all phases of this meeting.

Annual meetings of the Early Settlers are held the first Saturday after Mother's Day. Registrations will begin at 9:30 a.m. followed by the business meeting at 11 a.m. Picnic lunch begins at noon. Presentation of awards will be held from 1 - 3 p.m.

Early Settlers of Lower Indian River Area include those persons who settled in the Indian River, Martin and St. Lucie Counties prior to 1905 and their descendants.

MMH booth at Montery Plaza

In recognition of National Hospital Week, Martin Memorial Hospital will have a display booth at Monterey Shopping Plaza on Tuesday, May 13, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to showing the public the past, present and future aspects of the quality of health care available to Martin County residents, the new Aerobic Measurement System will be demonstrated.

The Martin Memorial Hospital booth will be located next to the entrance of Stuart National Bank.

Dinkins to run for U.S. Senate

Ocala attorney Lewis F. Dinkins announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate today. Dinkins will run on the Republican ticket.

In his announcement, Dinkins says he strongly believes head-on dealing with the issues of the day will overcome the "popularity contest" aspects of this race.

People are tired of the same old empty promises and political platitudes on local, national, and international problems which are directly effecting their lives," Dinkins said. "I'm convinced that they're ready for a change."

Dinkins, a former state Senate candidate, said that during the summer of '78, he began to sense that something was lacking in radio, TV and newspaper reports. "I began to do some research behind the scenes in order to find out what was missing, and discovered shocking information!" he declared. "I found that America is not being told the truth. Groups of people in powerful positions are working to destroy the Godly principles upon which this nation was founded. Our rights to live in freedom, work in a free enterprise system, and even to own property were being jeopardized."

In 1980, 4,300 homeowners will save $739,000 and 24,000 barrels of oil.

Those are pretty impressive numbers. And they represent the energy savings of the 4,300 Watt-Wise™ homes currently within the FPL service area.

$739,000 buys a lot of electricity. Or a lot of other things for Watt-Wise home owners who don't have to spend it on their electric bills.

And 24,000 barrels of oil? That's 24,000 barrels that Florida Power & Light doesn't have to import from foreign sources at ever increasing prices. Which saves FPL money. Saves our customers money. And puts our country that much closer to energy independence.

Watt-Wise Living™ pays. So if you're planning to buy or build a new home, plan to make it a Watt-Wise home. FPL's money-saving Watt-Wise homes have features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar and heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump, power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors (with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up). It may cost a little more now. But in the long run, it'll cost a whole lot less.

IRCC Itinerary

There is one all-encompassing goal at Indian River Community College, and that is to serve the educational needs of the community as completely as possible. Everyone has a different idea of what they hope to achieve or gain through education, and IRCC offers a range of programs and courses as wide and varied as the community itself.

WHAT IS COLLEGE CREDIT?

For example, there is the student often seen as "typical" who is taking college credit classes and working toward a specific degree or certificate. Although anyone who has been accepted at IRCC can enroll in college credit courses, they are primarily used by students as "building blocks" toward an Associate of Arts, Associate of Science, or Associate of Applied Science Degree, or toward a technical certificate. Usually the degree programs are two years in duration, while the certificate programs normally take one year to complete. Each college credit course is worth a certain number of credit hours, and costs $14 per credit hour for in-state residents, and $28 per credit hour for students who are not Florida residents. An additional lab fee is charged in some of the college credit courses.

WHAT IS INSTITUTIONAL CREDIT?

Another category of course available to students at IRCC is institutional credit. This classification is designed for the student who does not want college credit for classes, who is not seeking a degree, but who does want to take college-level classes of an academic or vocational nature. Persons who have already earned a degree, or who are not interested in earning a degree sometimes take institutional credit courses to gain knowledge in a specific area. Institutional credit classes cost $9 per credit hour.

WHAT IS NON-CREDIT?

The IRCC Continuing Education Division offers a wide variety of non-credit classes, at a cost of $5 each, for any person who wishes to learn new skills, enrich themselves, or expand their knowledge without earning any type of credit. This kind of class does not build toward a degree; rather, it provides an inexpensive opportunity to make learning a lifelong habit.

WHAT IS HIGH SCHOOL CREDIT?

An adult high school program is also offered by the IRCC Continuing Education Division for students 16 years of age or older. Students who have dropped out of high school and adults who have never received a high school diploma comprise the enrollment in this program. Classes cost $5 each.

There are the four classifications of course offerings at IRCC. Now that you know which TYPE of class best suits you, why not pack up a course schedule from the Guidance Division to determine which SPECIFIC classes fit your interests?

EMT PREPARATION IN STUART AND VERO BEACH

To help students who have successfully completed EMT1106C prepare for the State EMT Certification Test to be given in June, 1986, the IRCC Allied Health Division is offering HES 2106-Y101 in Vero Beach and Stuart this summer. This course can be taken for one college or institutional credit, and will ready students for the EMT State Test.

The Vero Beach class will meet at the Indian River County Volunteer Ambulance Squad from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays beginning June 2 and running through June 11. Registration begins May 12, and must be completed prior to the first class session.

The Stuart class will meet at the Martin County Civil Defense Building from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning June 3 and running through June 12. Registration begins May 19, and must be completed before the first class. For more information about either of these classes, contact Debbie Swigler at IRCC, ext. 474.

REAL ESTATE POST-REGISTRATION CLASSES

Post registration education in real estate is being offered in Fort Pierce, Stuart, and Vero Beach this summer. The course required to maintain a Florida real estate license, REE 2090-Y000, will meet in convenient weekend sessions as follows: Fort Pierce - May 16-17, August 22, 23. Stuart - June 13, 14. Vero Beach - July 18, 19. All Friday classes will meet from 5 to 8 p.m., and all Saturday classes will run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call the IRCC Guidance office, ext. 333.

ATHLETIC FACILITIES OPEN TO PUBLIC

Throughout the summer, the IRCC pool, tennis courts and racketball courts are available for use by the public. The pool will be open on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 5 p.m., and on Saturdays and Sundays from 12 to 4 p.m. during Summer Session I, while the tennis and racketball courts can be used anytime there is not a class or team practice in session. In order to use the facilities, you must have an IRCC Activities Card, available at no cost through the Student Activities Office, and if you are under eighteen, you must be accompanied by an adult.

SOMETHING FOR YOUR MOTHER

Mother's Day is coming up, and IRCC has a unique and thoughtful gift idea for you. "Indian River Cuisine," a collector's item cookbook compiled by the IRCC Development Office, features recipes submitted by area residents and a cover design by Florida landscapist Beanie Backus. The cookbook costs $12.95 plus tax, if mailed, add postage and handling; and profits from the sale of the cookbooks will be applied toward IRCC Foundation scholarships.

Student is third in 6 months to die in bicycle accident

BY BOB FRYER

Yellow paint marks on the pavement of SR 707 in front of the Rick Carroll Insurance Agency in Jensen Beach are a grim reminder of the hazards of riding a bicycle on local roads.

Shortly after 8:30 p.m. Friday, Cruz J. Marvel, 24, of 95 South Los Olas, Beach Club Colony, was riding his bicycle along SR 707 near the insurance agency when he was struck from the rear by a pick-up truck. From the point of impact to the paint marks where Marvel's body came to rest, Florida Highway Patrol troopers measured a distance of 210 feet.

Emergency Medical Technicians reportedly got the young man's heart to beat before getting him to Martin Memorial Hospital, but the injuries were too great and he died, one month before his 25th birthday.

Marvel is the third bicyclist to die on local roads since Dec. 30, 1979.

Marvel, a Venezuelan, was a second year Environmental Technology (aquaculture) student at the FIT campus. On Monday night, students gathered outside the chapel at the school to conduct a memorial service for him.

FHP Troopers John Keople and Hal Murphy report Marvel was riding his bicycle east on SR 707 when he was hit by a pick-up truck, driven east on SR 707 by Ted J. Hickey, 28, of 2630 N.E. Dixie Highway, Jensen Beach. As of Monday, charges were still pending against Hickey.

Colonial Saskowsky, roommate of Marvel, said Tuesday that Cruz "was one of the good guys."

Saskowsky said Cruz was apparently returning home from visiting Latin friends in Rio when the accident occurred. "He was always a very active person. He was quiet, but very sensitive," he said, adding that Cruz was active in the school's Naturalist Society and had been working on the future to be used for upcoming whale watches. And, he said Cruz rode his bicycle a lot.

Saskowsky said Cruz came from the city of Margarerita off the Venezuelan coast, and said his parents were from a small fishing village and were apparently in a low-income bracket. "I would imagine he (Cruz) was their hope for having someone in the family with education. His parents could not read or write."

He planned to return to Venezuela. "I really think he would have made a mark there. He was concerned about the environment," Saskowsky said.

"He was always getting involved in projects, and he was the sort of person who would put in time on a project instead of just talking about it. He was trying to organize Latins at the campus to form a soccer team and was talking of getting together a cultural exchange club," Saskowsky said.

"I don't know what it takes to get bike paths around here, but it shouldn't have to take a life," Saskowsky commented. "What can I say? He was a good person."

It was the case in the other fatalities, there was no bicycle path where the victim was riding.

FIT Dean Ernest Tealy voiced concerns over the death of Cruz, and expressed the hope that his death would bring about more bicycle paths in the area. He said another FIT student died while riding a motorcycle a couple of years ago and that still another was severely injured in a bicycle accident last year. "Besides that, we've also had students report being knocked down by cars, but not seriously injured," he said.

Earlier this year a man was killed when struck from behind while riding his bike on SR 707 near the Lil General store. He was just yards away from a point where a bike path began. And, a 12-year old boy was killed late last November when a garbage truck backed into him and his bicycle on Indian Drive in Jensen.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has made the construction of more bike paths in this area its primary goal for the year. The main objective is to get a path built from Jensen along Indian River Drive to the Jensen Beach Causeway. To date, several landowners along the road have agreed to donate the necessary right-of-way for such a path. Officials with FIT and Gomez Breeze Park are among those making such agreements. However, more donations of right-of-way along the road are needed.

The same is true in the case of SR 5, which winds from Jensen through Rio to U.S. 1.

At the time County Commissioner Frank Wachs was asked to comment about the latest bicycle fatality and the lack of bike paths in the Jensen-Rio area, he had not learned details of the accident. He said he expected there would be renewed calls for more bike paths in the community, but said the latest accident may not have been due to the lack of a path.

"I don't know if his bicycle had reflectors, or whether he was riding on the side of the road, in the middle, or was crossing it," he said. Later, Dean Tealy said he had heard Cruz was riding to the side of the road, and FIT instructor Dick McCoy said "I don't know for sure, but I heard the bike had a large reflector on the back of it." The FHP report does not state whether or not the bike had reflectors or state what portion of the road Cruz was riding on.

"It would be real easy to say if we had a bike path, maybe this wouldn't have happened," he said, but said until he knew details of the accident, he just couldn't say.

Wachs said the greatest obstacles against bike paths are the lack of money and the lack of right of way. "Right of way is the biggest problem," he said, adding that as right-of-way and money become available, bike paths are built. He added that to speed up the process of building paths, "It's an expense people will have to come out and support by being willing to pay more taxes for them."

He further noted that in some cases, where paths exist, persons still don't use them.

Martin County Sheriff's press Officer, Jessie Taylor, said, "We can't put enough emphasis on using caution. Whether on a bicycle or as a pedestrian, folks need to be very defensive. You just can't assume it's a quiet, sleepy town anymore."

He added that bike paths are an "imperative need."

MIKE/ZIPKO of Pinelake Village is justly proud of this huge 34 lb. eight ounce snook he caught on a nylure jig fishing from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge at 9 a.m. Tuesday. The big snook was 45 inches long and had a girth of 25 inches. Zipko caught it on 30 lb. test line. The world record for snook is over 50 lbs. but Zipko's is one of the biggest reported in this area during 1980.

July 4 celebration plan taking shape

Local organizations are getting their plans formulated for the annual July 4 Independence Day celebration. The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce is coordinating the effort.

Committees were set up at the Chamber board meeting Monday morning, handling the various contact phases of the day that will be filled with activities and climaxed by a spectacular fireworks show.

There will be games and races, swimming contests and an all-day refreshment stand opened for sandwiches and cold drinks.

The Chamber also began planning for the fireworks fund appeal. The Chamber board is responsible to raise the needed $5,000 to pay for the fire works that are designed and constructed by a volunteer fireworks committee.

The work of the committee in building ground and aerial displays more than doubles the value of the show, which has become known as the best fireworks exhibition in Florida, even better than the Disney World displays.

Persons desiring to donate to the fireworks fund can send checks to "Fireworks Fund," c/o Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, Jensen Beach, Florida 33457.

Lawmen swarm Jensen Beach to break up confrontation

What one lifeguard said could have turned into a riot at Jensen Public Beach Sunday afternoon was defused when about 10 lawmen arrived on the scene.

According to lifeguard Brian Thomas the incident apparently started when a man hit a woman, then another man stepped in to break it up.

He said the man who hit the woman was among a crowd of persons at the south end of the parking lot at the beach and said the man who stepped in was "with a biker crowd" that had gathered in the wooded area below the parking lot.

Thomas said Martin County Sheriff's Deputy Jeffery Mihalik was at the beach, but at the lifeguard quarters, when someone came up and told him a fight was going on.

"He went over there and a big crowd gathered around. It happened after we had closed the beach, but we (lifeguards) stayed to make sure the deputy didn't get overpowered," he said.

Thomas said the two crowds, which he described as "bikers and rednecks" had "been drinking and everybody seemed to be feeling bold."

He said, "It could have been a riot without the police," and he said when the large crowd gathered, a call was placed for back up police assistance.

"There were police from St. Lucie County, Port St. Lucie, Sewall's Point, the Highway Patrol and the Sheriff's Department and some undercover guys that came," Thomas said.

Deputy Mihalik estimated that about 40 to 70 persons gathered around him as he tried to break up the confrontation, and Thomas estimated there were another 110 persons sitting around near the crowd.

Mihalik said he received a call around 5 p.m. that the beach parking lot was blocked by "troublemakers." He said in his attempt to clear the area, he attracted about 10 to 70 "undesirables," but said he observed no physical violence. He attributed the problem to a lack of parking spaces, to overcrowding, and to the consumption of alcohol.

The deputy noted that between the hours of 7 p.m. to 6 a.m., possession of alcoholic beverages at the beach is banned, and he said if he had the power to do so, he would like to see it banned at all times.

Thomas and lifeguard Chris Tatani commented that in recent weeks, there has been a rash of vandalism at the local beach. Tatani said most of those problems occur at night, and added "There are nights when there are as many people there as during the day. I drove by once at 2:30 a.m. and there was a big crowd, with people cooking out on a hibachi," he said.

In spite of a county ordinance banning glass containers at the beach, the lifeguards said they have had problems with broken glass being strewn about the area. Tatani said recent vandalism includes breaking the glass out of a wall of a phone booth, ripping the phone line out, writing obscenities on the walls, tearing up restrooms and scattering broken glass.

Recent reports to the Sheriff's Department show a water pipe was broken at Jensen Beach sometime Sunday night. Chief Lifeguard Jack Cammack had to take beer in bottles away from some men Sunday afternoon, and that sometime Saturday night someone took a log and crashed it against steps leading from a beach pavilion to the beach, breaking several of the wooden steps. "If anyone had tried to walk down those steps at night, they could have broken a hip," Tatani said.

DIFFERENT STROKES—Some folks sail on the ocean, while others ride its waves. Either way, it leads to enjoyment, and last weekend the weather was superb for plying the crystal green waters — or even basking on the beach and watching the others do their thing. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Leilani Heights homeowners take steps to reorganize

BY SALLY LATHAM

The Leilani Heights residents, plagued over the years with sewage problems and other insufficiencies on the part of the developer, are on the move to reorganize as an effective arm to bring their neighborhood up to standards they feel they merit.

Some 210 residents attended a meeting held at Jensen Beach Elementary school to air their gripes and to take steps toward reorganization.

"It was the first time in five years we've had one big meeting," said homeowner Mary Jane (Mrs. Harry) Emme.

George Apostolopoulos, head of the GA Construction Company which developed Leilani Heights, is president of the original Homeowners' Association. Apostolopoulos, however, has failed to pay the corporate taxes, and he now must do so before an association can re-form and be turned over to the subdivision's residents.

Dale Anderson, attorney for Apostolopoulos, was present at the meeting and assured the homeowners that the taxes would be paid.

Bob Coy, of Coy and Daggeller, presented the residents with a check for $500 to help them with the cost of retaining an attorney to handle the legal affairs involved. Robert Mikkanga, a lawyer who lives in the park, served as the meeting's "guiding light," Mrs. Emme said.

The homeowners went to take charge of their own affairs, but not before the developer makes certain improvements they feel necessary for the health and welfare of the community.

Largest among the still unresolved headaches is the sewage plant, which has been beset by woes for several years. On at least two occasions, the plant has been ruled as "unacceptable" by the Department of Environmental regulations, and last summer, the County Commission declared a brief moratorium on certificates of occupancy until the condition was corrected.

The plant is now operating under a temporary permit, and was given six months to correct the odor and other encumbent problems. Cindy Hilty, official of the local DER office, noted two months ago that the plant hand hadn't been operated properly, and a new operator has been hired to attempt to correct the problems.

Mrs. Emme said the odor has continued, but the residents have been assured it does not present a health hazard.

The factor disturbing most of the residents is the appearance of the plant.

"They (G-A Construction) said they would landscape it," Mrs. Emme said. "I guess they put down some sod, but it still sticks out like a sore thumb. I guess it will mean that the homeowners association will have to do it by themselves."

The residents also are hoping to get proper street lighting throughout the area before the takeover from Apostolopoulos.

"We're just keeping our fingers crossed and keep praying a lot," she said.

No boundary change for Jensen Elementary

Parents who live in Sewall's Point and Hutchinson Island who have been sending Jensen Beach Elementary School won't be transferred to Parker Elementary School in Stuart this September afterall.

Martin County School Superintendent V. James Navitsky had recommended recently that those students be transferred to Parker to relieve overcrowding at the Jensen School. The transfer was to involve about 90 students.

Navitsky made the recommendation a couple of weeks ago at a school board workshop meeting held at the Jensen School and again last week at a board meeting at Parker.

Board members did not go along with the recommendation, however, and voted to table the school boundary issue until sometime during the next school year. According to Navitsky, that means that there will be no boundary changes at least until the 1981-82 school year.

"We asked that the board give an indication one way or the other as to what was going to be done about student transfers so parents could have a definite answer and go about registering their children for school," Navitsky said, adding that in response to that request, the matter of school transfers was tabled.

"This means all school boundaries will stay the same for the coming school year," he said.

Navitsky said the Jensen school was designed for a capacity of about 700 students. On the first day of this school year, 750 students attended, and the school's population peaked at 854 before declining to 844 as of Tuesday, May 13. Navitsky said that improvements now under construction at the school, to be completed this summer, will bring the design capacity to 762. And, a few weeks ago, he estimated that there will be about a four per cent growth rate in the school population for the coming school year.

This means more students will be attending the school than it is designed for -- as has been the case all of this year. Meanwhile, the Parker school population is less than its design capacity and only a one per cent growth rate is expected in that population from this year to the coming school year.

In order to cope with the overcrowding at the Jensen Elementary School, Navitsky said if portable classrooms become available from the Warfield School in Indiantown and the situation warrants it, the portables would be moved to Jensen.

The issue of changing school boundaries has been a controversial one this year, with many parents, especially from the North River Shores area, voicing opposition to any boundary change that would result in their children being moved to Parker.

In other action, it was announced that Jensen Beach Elementary School was one of three in the county to win the Golden School award from the state Commissioner of Education. The award is given to schools where volunteers log more than twice as many hours of work as the school's population figure. "This means that there were well over 1,600 hours of work put in by volunteers at Jensen Elementary," Navitsky said.

BY EARLY MORNING the Jensen Public Beach was already starting to fill up with sunbathers last Sunday. The crowd grew throughout the day, and, by 5 p.m. it had gotten downright congested and beachgoing wasn't so idyllic. A confrontation broke out and about 10 lawmen were called in to quell the disturbance. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Sewalls Point objects to outfall

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Residents of Sewall's Point are attempting to put a halt to the City of Stuart's request for an additional three million gallons of waste water to be poured into the St. Lucie River.

So far, the Department of Environmental Regulation has approved the request for the additional outfall, and now the city wants the okay from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler feels there are alternative methods to solve the problem without increasing the flow of waste water into the river and plans to state them in letters to the DER and EPA according to Gluckler, $465,000 was spent a while back for a deep waste water injection well. To date, that well is unfinished and unused. If completed, it could handle the full four million gallon outfall capacity of the plant, thereby alleviating any discharge into the river.

Stuart Mayor Robert Miller says, however, that DER requires an adequate back up system even with the well. He added that an additional $1,000,000 would be required to complete the new defunct project and that their engineers could not guarantee that it would work.

Miller says the water now being dumped into the river more than meets DER and EPA standards, and that all permitting were approved. Further testing would be ensured in comparison, he added that the St. Lucie River presently carries outfall from Okeechobee with its grove pesticides, Port St. Lucie and General Development Corporation, both of which empty into the North Fork.

The cost of running a larger line from the treatment plant to the river would be about $300,000 with the money coming from the present sewer system operation.

Miller says the city is asking for its maximum four million capacity now, although they don't intend to use it for another twenty years, so that they won't have to tear up roads and sidewalks more than once.

Environmentalists are concerned about the long range effects the additional outfall will have on the river when the full four million gallon capacity is met, plus a possible falling off of property values that may result from homes that abut a dying river.

Miller stated that possibly the question of refurbishing the existing well will be put on the November ballot. If the issue is passed, the financing board may go ahead with a bond issue.

The issue of the proposed bike path in Sewall's Point is again on the drawing board. The path, which would be located on the west side of Sewall's Point Road, would run from the Harbor Bay Plaza and continue north to the Outrigger. According to Gluckler, land acquisition is not a major problem, since the city already has a five foot right of way along the road. Many of the commissioners are in favor of the proposed three foot path, however, there are those with reservations. Commissioner Clinton Towl opposes the issue, saying that there is the possibility bicyclists could cause damage to adjoining properties as well as throwing garbage around. He also felt that it would encourage outsiders to come into the village.

In response, one resident, Dennis Roche, felt Towl was inconsistent in objecting to a bike path, while favoring the River Road project, an opening that would surely bring more people to the area.

Unfortunately, Gluckler says that federal funding for the project will not be possible, and combined with the $37,000 setback to the city's budget caused by Hurricane David, a possible increase in the millage rates may be forthcoming. He added that there would probably be substantial increase in assessments with the addition of Harbor Bay Plaza and rapidly appreciating property values.

Feuerbach named to sales staff of Sailfish Point

Dottie Feuerbach has been named to the sales staff of Dunes Realty Corporation, exclusive sales agent for Sailfish Point The announcement was made by James R. Ottesen, vice president marketing and sales, Dunes Realty Corporation

Ottesen explained that Dunes Realty is the marketing and sales agent for Sailfish Point, the luxury oceanfront yacht and country club under construction on the southern most tip of 'Hutchinson Island in Martin County. The developer, Sailfish Point, Inc, is a wholly owned subsidiary of Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation.

"We're fortunate to have Dottie with us," Ottesen said. "Sailfish Point will be one of America's most exclusive communities, and Dottie has a wealth of experience with buyers of luxury residences."

For the past four years, Feuerbach was employed by Stuart area Realtors as a sales representative, and before that, spent 11 years with South Dade Realty, where she was an award winning associate.

"I've enjoyed the past 15 years, I've always gotten satisfaction from helping newcomers find their dream home," Feuerbach said, "but none of the luxury homes I've handled in the past can compare with the magnificent residences available at Sailfish Point."

Fewer than 800 owners at Sailfish Point will enjoy a waterfront environment, including more than a mile of beach, a par 72 golf course designed by Jack Nicklaus, country club facilities, and the largest sea-walled private marina in Florida. A native of Newark, N.J., Feuerbach is the mother of three and the proud grandmother of three. She presently resides at The Yacht and Country Club of Stuart with her husband Charles. Active in community oriented organizations, Feuerbach is a volunteer in the Martin Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, a member of the Women's Republican Club and a former vice chairman of the Christian Women's Club of Stuart.

Fund drive for island fire truck may get started soon

Martin County Commissioner Frank Wacha expressed hope this week that a fund drive can be mounted to raise enough money to buy a fire truck with a 75-foot ladder for fighting fires at Hutchinson Island condominiums

County officials recently viewed a demonstration of the sort of truck they want, and Wacha said he has received comments from some island residents who favor the idea of a fund drive

Currently, the best fire truck available for fighting fires in tall structures of a Jensen Beach truck which only has a 25-foot ladder Wacha said the truck with the 75 foot ladder would be a great improvement in battling island condominium blazes

The commissioner said meetings have been held since the truck was here and that a letter should be going out to island residents by the end of the month to solicit funds for the $305,840 truck He said the funds will probably be collected through the Rio Fire Department

"I have received expressions of interest from individuals within some of the condominium associations, but we have not approached the associations on the subject yet," Wacha said

Wacha noted that the developers of the proposed Bryn Mawr condominium project, which was up for review by the county commission last week pledged to chip in some money for the fire truck fund Wacha said the developers did not state a specific figure for their donation, but said it would be based on the number of units to be built (342) and that it would be in line with the average donation per unit from other island condominiums Wacha guessed that the figure would be around $75 to $100 per unit

The truck, if purchased, will be housed in a fire station that Indian River Plantation developers will soon build along A1A south of the Elliott Museum The station is to be built in conjunction with an agreement Indian River Plantation developers made when seeking approval for their project In addition to room for the truck with a 75-foot ladder, the station is also to have room for a truck to be used to fight brush fires and room for community meetings

Martin celebrates National Hospital Week

We're America's Health Care Team" is what Martin Memorial Hospital and six thousand other hospitals across the country will be saying to their patients, staffs and communities during National Hospital Week, May 11 17, 1980. The theme of National Hospital Week. "We're America's Health Care Team", signifies the importance of a coordinated team of people who are dedicated to the delivery of the highest quality medical care possible. This team work involves not only the over 700 employees at Martin Memorial Hospital and 100 physicians but also devoted auxilians who donated over 100,000 hours annually, plus the many other health care organizations which help support Martin Memorial Hospital and the entire health care system in Martin and south St. Lucie Counties.

During National Hospital Week, Martin Memorial Hospital will be manning a display at malls in Martin and St Lucie Counties as well as at the Martin County High School This display will relay information regarding the past, present and future of Martin Memorial Hospital.

Also on display will be a Cardio-Pulmonary Aerobic Exercise Stress unit. The health team at Martin Memorial Hospital recognizes the importance of exercise in maintaining good health Exercise has been shown to strengthen the heart circulation, lower blood pressure in people with hypertension, decrease pulse rate, help improve cholesterol levels, and contribute to an overall sense of well being

The Cardio Pulmonary Aerobic Stress unit is a computerized system to measure precisely the exercise capabilities of individuals It can define a person s cardio/pulmonary fitness and enable an exact exercise program to be prescribed, suited to each individual's condition. Such a program would be based on preventive medicine, helping individuals from becoming ill and hopefully saving the rising cost of being sick. The Exercise Stress unit is also used at Martin Memorial Hospital to evaluate patients with symptoms such as shortness of breath or early fatigue It can help define whether there is a heart or lung problem or whether a person is simply out of shape. It can be used over a time to measure improvement or deterioration in exercise capability and thereby evaluate the effects of medication or a person s individual exercise program

At the display interested individuals will have an opportunity to participate in a demonstration of the equipment and enter a drawing for a free physical exam utilizing the equipment on display in coordination with members of the medical staff.

In addition to the above, individuals will be available from the hospital to answer any questions people may have regarding Martin Memorial Hospital or the health care services in the area.

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association and its approximately 6000 member hospitals to foster better communication and understanding between hospitals and their patients, their employees and the communities they serve.

Our open door policy starts here.

It starts with Carl Mihaly, manager of our Hutchinson Island office. His door is always open. If you need help with your banking, come in and talk to him. Or Dave Skiles. Or John O'Neill. Or Charlie Paul. As Stuart National managers, their doors are always open, too.

With five full-service offices all over town, and more coming, no matter where you are, you're near Stuart National. When you bank at one office, you can bank at all. And, you spend less time and use less gas getting there. That's important, with today's skyrocketing gas prices.

People like Carl Mihaly make our open door policy work. Like all our managers, he's there when you need him, treating you as a friend and neighbor as well as a customer.

So come to Stuart National. Our doors are open all over town.

Preliminary okay voted for 242-unit condo

Martin County Commissioners granted preliminary development plan approval last week to developers proposing a 242-unit condominium project on Hutchinson Island near the Park 'n Fish beach access.

The project, a development of a firm known as Bryn Mawr, is to be phased, with the first units set for construction within a year. The units will be located on the east and west sides of AIA, and a reverse osmosis water treatment plant will be built to serve it.

In other action commissioners agreed to write a letter of no objection to the state Department of Natural Resources in regard to plans for the Rand's Pier at Sailfish Point. The pier is being removed from the ocean and the Sailfish Point plans are to make the west end of the pier west of the dune line into a deck for viewing the ocean. When the project was originally announced officials had said they would keep the pier and put a new top on it.

Commissioners granted permission to advertise for bids for a roof, air conditioning, electrical wiring, windows, a floor finish and plumbing for the log cabin Senior Citizen's Center now underway at Langford Park.

Center plans concert series

Music spanning nearly 100 years, from a mature "Papa" Haydn to a youthful Richard Strauss, will be presented at this Sunday's Stereo Concert Hall at the Environmental Studies Center, 2900 NE Indian River Drive in Jensen Beach. The 90-minute recorded concert is scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

A semi-monthly offering of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center, the concert is free to the public.

The opening work is Haydn's "London" Symphony, his 104th and last. It is performed by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, Herbert Von Karajan conducting.

The concert's major opus is the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto, written when the composer was 36 and destined to become one of the most popular of all violin concerti only after the composer's death. Tossy Spivakovsky is the soloist with the London Symphony Orchestra conducted by Walter Goehr.

The concluding work is Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration", a work of scope, power and maturity that belied the composer's youth (25) at the time. George Szell conducts The Cleveland Orchestra.

Alphabet soup

Just how much government do we really need? This is a question that all Americans should ask.

Last week, County Commissioner Frank Wacha referred to the problems of getting things done. He blamed most of the problems on "alphabet soup" dealing with the DER, EPA, DOT, SFWMD, and many other initial agencies of state of federal government.

The county itself has the same problem, for the average citizen needs a road map and much patience to get through the many steps required to get things done.

The Jensen Causeway is eroding badly, and the south shore near the park must be bulkheaded. Last December, Wacha asked the county to appeal for expeditious handling of an application for such a bulkhead. The Jensen Chamber supported that appeal.

To date, that application is languishing in the county courthouse. It has not even been made yet. When it is made, "alphabet soup" will take over, and it will be processed with the usual bureaucratic delays in all the agencies involved.

The erosion is continuing on the causeway.

Imagine the Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Coast Guard having jurisdiction over something happening on South Savanna Road. It becomes absolutely frustrating.

So many officials get so involved that people can do little. And, it all adds up to money, in taxes and in cost to the people trying to do something.

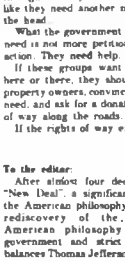
To add to the frustration, as the Jensen Causeway erodes on the south side, and Wacha and the Chamber of Commerce plead for bulkheading, the Corps of Engineers and Department of Environmental Regulation are building erosion control projects on the north side of the causeway.

One hand doesn't seem to know what the other hand is doing.

The bureaucratic agencies are designed to help the people to do a job, not to hinder them. Unfortunately, it doesn't seem to work that way.

Somewhere there is an answer to making the various agencies answerable and more receptive to action.

Perhaps government should establish an agency to look into it.



Dick Campbell

Action isn't talking

One group has decided to form an "action group" to get bike paths built so they can ride their bikes. They are FIT students who want to do anything to get bike paths built.

Another group wants bike paths in Stuart. It is circulating petitions to pressure the City of Stuart into building a bike path from Cedar Point to Pierpont Condominium on St. Lucie Blvd.

Both groups deserve congratulations for taking some kind of action. Both groups will fail.

Unless

City and county governments are up to their ears in projects. They need the rights-of-way search for bike paths like they need another major hole in the head.

What the government people really need is not more petitions, but more action. They need help.

If these groups want a bike path here or there, they should go to the property owners, convince them of the need, and ask for a donation of rights of way along the roads.

If the rights of way exist, perhaps they could do something to raise money for the $43,000 a mile it costs to put in the bike paths.

The roads in Martin County are narrow and have little rights-of-way, especially along the older established roads. The traffic is heavy. Where there are two lanes, there should be four lanes.

There is much opposition to bike paths on one of the keys to a proper bike path program in the area of that opposition lies in Sewall's Point, where some object to the possibility of common folk riding along the exclusive and very narrow Sewall's Point Road.

If those folks ever went down to exclusive Palm Beach, also with very narrow roads, they would see an utterly fantastic system of bike paths that allow all to get exercise, even the tourists who like to take the pleasant ride up and down tree lined streets.

It is good to see that the Sewall's Point council is going to try to build a bike path in this section. It won't be easy, and there will be opposition, but the bike path is dearly needed.

The City of Stuart has done a good job of providing a bike path to the ocean. It is a scenic ride for the bikers, winding through Stuart, across Sewall's Point, and over the bridges to the ocean beaches. Many bikers use the route.

A natural extension is the continuation of the path up Sewall's Point Road to Palmer Road at the Outrigger. There already is a bike path from Sewall's Point Road along Palmer Road to the bowling alley, and some sections are done in Rio.

The day will come when biking enthusiasts will be able to make the complete circle from Stuart, out East Ocean Blvd., up Sewall's Point Road, west on Palmer and SR 707 through Rio, and back across the Roosevelt Bridge, ending up again in Stuart.

Also, the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has its main project this year of getting the rights-of-way donated for the bike path from Palmer Road (which would tie into the Sewall's Point Road project) to the Jensen Causeway. Much of the rights of way has already been obtained. Property owners along the route are enthusiastic about the possibility of a sidewalk-bike path along beautiful Indian River Drive.

It is going to take much work and persuasion to help the towns and county get the necessary rights-of way for the bike paths. Anyone who can help will be welcomed. Anyone who wants to support the project can help by contacting friends who own property and asking them to donate the necessary easements so that the bike paths will be built.

It is good to talk about the need. It's good to talk about anything. But action, constructive action, is needed to get the job done. Bike paths need action, not petitions.

We know that there is a problem. Let's do something constructive about the problem.

Just traveling

By the time you read this, I'll be in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

In fact, probably quite a while before you read it, because my plane takes off at noon and winds up at the Knoxville airport a little after 3 p.m. — with hardly time to annoy the flight attendants and settle down with a good book. Things are moving almost too fast for enjoyment, these days.

Of course, I'm delighted that I'll have the maximum of time to spend with my son Bruce, who is giving me the trip as a Mother's Day present, and with my grandchildren, the youngest of whom will be introduced to her grandmother for the first time. The length of the stay will also enable me to catch up with my past, in the Atomic City where pleasures were few and simple, but friends were many.

Yes I can't help feeling a little cheated every time an airplane whooshes me over the hundreds of miles of America from here to there and from there to here in what seems like a matter of minutes. To me, getting there has always been half the fun.

I think I proved that conclusively some years ago, when I left the Fort Lauderdale News on a leave of absence. I soloed (by car, of course) from Ft. L. to New York the best way possible.

It took me 13 days to get there.

And I met some delightful people in the process — some strange ones, too. But believe me; I had the experience of traveling like our forefathers did it — from inn to inn, with the people in each becoming individuals instead of mere ships that pass in the night.

I'll have to admit that the greatest length of time taken on my time consuming hegira was spent in Oak Ridge, where doors flew open at an alarming rate.

My next splash down was almost as compellingly prone toward tarrying as was the Oak Ridge stint. I had a play to see and old friends to re-visit in Abingdon, Va., home of the Barter Theatre.

I hadn't planned to make it a long stay — just enough to recapture the flavor of the charming little Virginia town that lies on the border of Tennessee, near Bristol, and to go to the theatre.

But when I got there, and made it known to Bob Porterfield, founder of Barter, nothing would do but that I stay over long enough for a visit out at the farm of the theatrical impresario and his wife Miss Mary. That began another delightful delay.

In case you're not familiar with Barter Theatre, it has one of the most colorful histories in drama land. Back in the 1930's, a group of starving actors in New York, among whom Porterfield was one, got together and decided the only way to go was to trade on their commodity.

Setting up shop on the Porterfield family estate in Abingdon, they did just that — bartered their plays for hams, turkeys, bags of potatoes, anything the play minded farmer had a surplus. Voila, the actors ate, and the townspeople got acquainted with the best of entertainment.

Of course, the barter system is long gone from Abingdon, but the splendid theatre (donated by the DuPonts) remains, and it is now, thanks to my late good friend Bob Porterfield, it has become the State Theatre of Virginia.

Needless to say, that stop, which grew on to three days, was hard one to get started from again. One could spend a month basking in the antebellum gracious hospitality of the Martha Washington Inn, taking in the play, attending the almost constant art festivals, and going antiquing in the surrounding countryside. Virginia hospitality is legend, and it's all true.

The rest of that New York trip is almost anticlimax to the first part except for the destination itself. Up there I found even greater gracious ness in the open arms of old friends, the B. Lytton Johnstons, who wined me and dined me and taught me the pleasures of the racetrack. I never did learn how to win money, but I found out how comfortable they make it for you to lose it.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:

The Property Appraisers of Florida drew up a proposition to be placed on the November, 1980 General Election Ballot.

This proposition will lower assessments to 65 per cent of just value and will also place a limit on the schools, counties, cities, etc. of no more than a 5 per cent year-to-year increase in property taxes.

This petition is necessary because the Department of Revenue, acting under orders of the Governor, is forcing all counties in Florida to raise their 1980 assessments to 100 per cent.

Some Florida residents are confused about this mandate, because they think that the Legislature must first vote to raise the assessments to 100 per cent.

This is not the case.

Every Florida county is now undergoing a complete re-valuation and these higher assessments will be reflected on the property tax bill which your readers will receive on November 1, 1980.

Your County Property Appraiser has already been told by the Department of Revenue how much his roll must be increased this year.

Total increases will amount to as much as 50 per cent in a given county.

Do you want higher property taxes or do you want to have a voice in whether your taxes can be raised?

Run, don't walk, to your County Property Appraiser and tell him that you want to sign a petition.

Do it today.

If you don't act now, it will be too late when you receive your tax bill in November.

Just wanted to take a minute to express my appreciation for the helpful seminar-breakfast meeting that The Mirror held recently at the First Federal Building in Jensen Beach.

Even though you said that the seminar was geared mainly toward the amateur publicist, and though I write publicity releases every day for the college, I picked up some very practical ideas and tips at your seminar.

I think that sometimes publicity writers get so caught up in "getting things out" that we occasionally need reminding that there are people on the other end who must wade our "stuff" up into good, readable copy. Thanks for the remainder!

And thanks for the seminar as a whole, Mr. Campbell. It was a pleasurable and informative change of pace for me.

Thank you for publishing a news item about the Martin County Taping Studio in the April 23rd issue.

We particularly appreciate the publicity given to the fact that very few blind or physically handicapped people take advantage of the free services offered by the Government. We have recently received some materials from the Florida Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped in Daytona Beach, Florida, that show in Martin County only 6 per cent of the population eligible for these services are using them, and in St. Lucie County only 3.8 per cent.

If you know of anyone who is not receiving the "Talking Books" and is eligible for the service, we have applications available at our Studio; or, if the person or persons will telephone us we will mail an application.

To the editor:

After almost four decades of the "New Deal", a significant change in the American philosophy has been a rediscovery of the traditional American philosophy of limited government and strict checks and balances. Thomas Jefferson in his First Inaugural Address of 1801 stated "a wise and frugal government which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government."

Our forefathers laid the ground work and it is up to us to continue in this tradition. In the spirit of love of God and Country, we have recently formed the America First Republican Club, a statewide organization with its home base here in Martin County. We are chartered and approved by the State Republican Executive Committee and have the support of our local Republican organizations. The club is open to both men and women. The officers of the club are: John Hitron, 1st Vice President; Sherry Plymale, 2nd Vice President; Grace Ryder, Recording Secretary; Eileen Miraglia, Corresponding Secretary, and Margaret McComb, Treasurer.

We invite you in a spirit of friendship and party loyalty to join us. Let's make politics an enjoyable and positive element.

It still beats teaching

Dick Campbell told them I'd left teaching to find fame and fortune in the newspaper business, then introduced me to them.

There were, according to our list, 98 of them, but it seemed to me like there were at least twice that many.

I told them the reason I left teaching was because I hated speaking before large crowds.

They had the good grace to giggle a bit, and the knot of nervous tension in my stomach relaxed a little.

I don't remember what I said, but I do remember my voice almost cracked right at the beginning and that towards the end I was thinking the ordeal was proving to be a less nerve wracking than I'd thought it would be. I almost caught myself enjoying it.

I think it was the smiles I got from a few of the folks in the audience that made it easier. When they smiled, I knew they weren't going to toss eggs or tomatoes at me.

The meeting was a special seminar sponsored by The Mirror, and the audience consisted of publicity chairpersons and presidents of a wide variety of civic, social and religious organizations in our area.

We planned the seminar for several reasons. We wanted to thank the publicity writers for the volunteer work they've done in writing publicity notices for their clubs, to tell them a little about the form and style we prefer for publicity notices, and we wanted to meet them and socialize a bit.

I think we succeeded in achieving all those goals, and the audience seemed to like the idea of the seminar so much that we're already planning to do it again next year.

Each week we receive hundreds of publicity notices for our Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie editions of The Mirror. The task of editing them had become so time consuming that we felt the seminar might be helpful in making our job easier.

My job was to cite some of the examples of what causes us delays in processing publicity notices and then to talk about what the publicity writers could do to make that job go quicker.

As I said earlier in this column, I was so nervous I don't remember what I told the audience. But somewhere along the line, our message seems to have gotten through.

Oh, there are still some notices that take longer than they should to edit and write headlines for, and I guess that will always remain the case. But since the seminar I have found some welcome changes in many of the notices we receive at The Mirror. This morning I got a notice that required no more than half a minute to process and send down to the typesetters. Prior to the seminar, that notice would have received from that writer had required about five minutes, as they all had to be completely rewritten.

The writer's notices contain the same information, but now they're in the form we prefer, and for that, I want to express my thanks.

We have a small staff at the paper, and I have scores of other duties around here in addition to editing publicity notices. The time saved in handling those notices means I have more time for those other jobs. Ultimately, that should make for a better product, and, of course, we're always trying to improve our papers.

Since the meeting, I've run into several publicity writers who said the seminar was helpful. And one of those writers — who has been sending us publicity notices for years — commented about a point we just touched on at the seminar. I never realized you put out two papers and that if I wrote a note on my notices asking for it, I could have it included in both editions," she said.

It's true, and it's something we take so for granted around here that we often forget to tell our writers about. So, if you weren't at the seminar or missed that point, here's a reminder that we do put out two editions of The Mirror. Both contain the same advertisements, but many of the pages are changed. One edition is distributed in the Port St. Lucie area and contains news of interest to that community, and the other is distributed in the Jensen area, containing news of interest to those folks.

On the pages that remain the same in both editions, we try to put news that is of interest to both Jensen and Port St. Lucie residents. And if your organization has members from both areas, your notices belong on the "common" pages. So, if you think we're missing some of your members by not getting the word out to all of them, let us know, and we'll run your notices in both editions.

If you're a publicity writer and missed our seminar, please let us know. We passed out some information at the seminar about writing notices that should be helpful to you — and us. Just give me a call at 334-4333, and I'll be glad to get copies of that information to you.

As for finding fame and fortune in the newspaper business, it seems I've found little of either. But it's not a bad job, and it sure beats supervising a 100 tenth grade youths for dropouts each day.

BUILDING SAFETY INTO A PURCHASE-MONEY MORTGAGE

QUESTION: I have an opportunity to sell a small retail block which I have owned for several years. It would be to my advantage to help in the financing of the sale by taking part of my purchase price in the form of a promissory note secured by a second mortgage. How can I make the transaction as safe and secure as possible?

ANSWER: There are several things you can do to protect yourself when taking back a promissory note secured by a purchase-money mortgage and a second mortgage.

First, you can ask the buyer to personally guarantee the note. Then, if there is a default, you can look not only to the equity in the property but to the buyer's other assets to satisfy any deficiency. Before doing this, you must carefully evaluate the buyer's net worth.

If the buyer does not have sufficient net worth, ask for a co-endorser or a co-signer on the note. The buyer may have a business partner or a relative who is willing to co-sign. Or, he may induce someone to co-sign by offering a "piece of the action" -- an interest in the property.

You may also ask the buyer to pledge additional collateral to guarantee payment of the note. For example, the buyer may own some common stock which he might be willing to observe to make the note more secure. Keep in mind that buyers are not always willing to personally sign notes. This is a matter of negotiation. You must weigh your demands for security against your desire to sell when you negotiate.

Be sure to consult with your legal advisor about this kind of transaction.

SAMARITANS CALLING
WE NEED HELP RIGHT NOW
BY NETTIE D. COOK

In a recent issue of the J.B. Mirror one of the reporters said more & more people are staying here. Lets add to that more people are moving here to stay and become year round residents.

From the standpoint of the Samaritans there are many, many more for us to care for when Ambulance Service is needed. Our problem and I speak only for the Samaritans is we are not getting help in proportion to the increase in our population.

Among the thousands of Retired-and-younger working people who have moved here in the last few years there must be some who care about the welfare of the elderly and the many others who do or may need Ambulance Service.

Looking into the records of the Samaritans a few years ago the quote having 1,000 plus people to service in the area. That may be only Jensen Beach and Rio. Take a good look at today. See the homes, apartments, condos, more and larger trailer parks, and full to capacity with people.

If you have any doubts about the increase in population lets say as an example you go shopping at Winn Dixie of Jensen Beach. If you have shopped there recently did you find parking space. Did you find the aisles crowded with shoppers. Did you have to stand & wait at the check out? In brief, did you find Wall to Wall People.

No matter where you go to trade it is the same situation in Jensen. Have you noticed the increase in traffic on our roads? The School Busses filled with children. All these things indicate More and More people. To the State and County the Census tallies the Statistics for 1980, but to the Samaritans each of these persons is a potential Ambulance Call.

Today our service covers a much larger area than a few years ago. Take for example Hutchinson Island, North River Shores, the growth of Mobile Home housing, Pinelake Village. There are others too numerous to mention at this time.

Now lets go back to the records when there were 5,000 people to service. According to records the Samaritans had 27 drivers.

Our roster printed April 1, 1980 shows 22 active drivers, while our area population is 20,000 plus. Does not make much sense does it? What are you going to do about it?" I am addressing every able bodies person in the area. Surely with all the cars we see on the roads today there are some drivers who could qualify for Emergency Vehicle Drivers." How about those who can give a day each week in some other capacity" Then there are some of you who love to read and learn new skills" How about reading the E.M.T. Text Book and taking the Course" Thanks to the generosity of so many friends we are not short of money. The Monetary Response has been terrific, and we thank you but no amount of money can buy a pair of Willing Hands.

I have given you the Pro Side, now how about the con.

Do you want a Volunteer Service to continue here in Jensen Beach? Would you prefer Advanced Life Support, a fully paid Service? It is coming but, not (for possibly five years. That Service requires fully trained Para Medics.

At present the Samaritans have a Transport Service for their own people which extends when necessary to Medical Centers such as Miami. An out of County would probably ask $600.00 for the same service. A private Service could not organize in less than a year, and that is if a person was anxious to gamble a minimum of $350,000 for equipment, then arrange for housing for the vehicle, and for E.M.T.'s and Drivers. Also there might be a problem getting a State and County Operational License. Looking at all the possibilities there are none that look too bright from where I sit.

Now if any of you reading this are interested but feel you are too old, but are in good health, please do a re-think.

There are five active on our squad that have passed their seventieth birthday. I am one of those just mentioned, and on occasion have been asked if I am still on the Ambulance by friends and acquaintances, some of whom have said such things as. You are crazy. Why don't you quit and enjoy yourself" Anyway you are too old to bounce around on one of those things. I am sure others in my age range have had a few remarks made to them also. Again there is another side. A call come in and we respond, at the scene I am greeted by. I am so glad you are here. You folks are wonderful for all you do, and how quick you got here. I don't know how you do it. Well I love people especially those who need our services. Age does not really matter to the patient, it just getting relief, or attention, which enables her, or him to get where the problem can be alleviated.

We are very short of help, but the worst is yet to come, since the wonderful young students from F.I.T. will soon be going on vacation till Sept and some are going to graduate and will not be returning to this area. So you see our situation from that source. Next our young married will be getting vacations from regular work, and taking their families away for from 6 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., but if some of you join with us and we have more Active Samaritans, then maybe we could cut the duty hours to 8 or 10.

Please think this over, and say "Yes I will try".

For information or interviews call any one of these numbers V. Hewslip 334-5694, M. Bailey, 334-1305, or Kathy Krauss 334-1365. The building number is 334-8818. There is not always someone there, but most days you will be answered. Come help others as you would want to be helped.

This Organization began in 1957 and has been continuous. Don't be responsible for letting it fold. It's up to you.

vacation. That leaves the Old and the Middle aged to do the job.

We have three fully equipped vehicles which just this week rated excellent in State and County Inspection. Of those two should be manned and ready to roll 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. A crew of three on each. Day squad hours of duty are

It is a showcase for the doctor's creative talents and Telle's flair for decor.

Walking into the living room with its vaulted ceiling, your breath is immediately taken away by the fireplace, over which is a gigantic piece of driftwood, stained black to contrast dramatically with the white walls.

And the coffee table, a glass topped decorator's dream, was made by the doctor, who counts among his many interests and hobbies art deco welding. He also made another handsome link "love and peace" table which dresses up the living room in individual style.

Everything in the Penick home is geared to step saving. The big deep kitchen which connects living and dining room has a serve through window into the living area; the laundry located in the bedroom wing has push-through shelves for towels into both bathrooms, and a hallway hamper pushes through into the laundry. It is a comfortable house for busy people.

Even the doctor has his own "push through" a side door leading directly from the bedroom to the carport so he can come and go on call without disturbing the rest of the household.

The spacious dining room is an especial joy for the Penick family.

"We can sit here and look at the lake as we eat," Dr. Penick pointed out.

They can also keep an eye on the doctor's office, just a block away on 707. Nothing could be handier for both of them, since Telly is her husband's office nurse.

"We make a real nice team," Dr. Penick told The Mirror.

In visiting the Penick home, the big fun comes down in the basement, which looks like the combination of a summer stock prop room and a toy chest for some Brobdingnagian child.

Dr. Penick is a collector supreme. There's the antique player piano, the ornate pool table straight out of an 1890's saloon, washboards, hand wringers, mugs of all ages and determinations, costumes, masks, parts and paraphernalia of every description.

And, tucked in a little study behind all this glorious debris is mental workshop of this amazingly versatile man. Here, for the past three years, he has spent long hours poring over historical books, pamphlets and documents to compile the genealogical history of the Penick family. The book is now complete and in the hands of the printers.

Penick is not only the senior ranking doctor in the area, he was one of the founders of the Skyline Drive Clinic, and the acknowledged daddy of the volunteer ambulance service in the Jensen area.

"Shortly after we came here, I was distressed that Jensen Beach had no ambulance service at all," he said. Ransom, Gene Hoke and I got to talking about it."

Shortly thereafter, Dr. Penick spotted a VW ambulance up in Vero Beach.

"We brought it down and had a block party the carnival people had their hot dog wagons there it was quite an event."

The idea caught on, and the whole community got behind it. Soon the ambulance was running from its "station" at the Chamber of Commerce office, and the townspeople volunteered their services as drivers.

Developing the Jensen Area Samaritans to its present full fledged status as the best of its sort in the area wasn't all smooth going. The first slump came through a "matter of administration.

"Then Dick (Campbell) got into it, and breathed new life into it through The Mirror," he said.

The next stumbling block came with the state requirements that an Emergency Medical Technician be on every run. That meant arduous special training to meet state standards for the volunteers. But these obstacles were overcome as they arose, and now the Samaritans are hailed as among the finest, with its status of the only volunteer service in the county to have its own county supported headquarters building.

When the Penicks first came to town, their brood was small. Now they are all grown and away fro home. Jackie Lynn 27 is married to Harold Holcombe and has a "ready-made" son, Chris, 13; son Terry, 30 lives in Port St. Lucie where he is in charge of the commercial division of Florida Homefinders, and Kaylean, 23, is substitute teaching in Martin County Schools.

Jackie, incidentally, is cordinator of day care center in Buncombe County, N.C.

"She was born with her wheel spanning," her fond father says.

In his years here, Dr. Penick has been an outstanding asset not only to the community but to the medical profession as a whole. In 1961, he was president of the Tri-County Medical Society, in 1959 president of staff at Martin Memorial Hospital, and in 1977 president of the Martin County Medical Society.

He has also been working closely with the Palm Beach Chapter of the American Heart Association since 1961, and was instrumental in the decision to form a Martin County unit of the PB group. Thanks to his efforts, Jensen Beach now has its fine Heart Parcours at Langford Park.

"I first read about the Parcours concept in Switzerland," he said. "I told them it was the greatest thing they could do people thought the money all went to Palm Beach. This was the greatest tangible evidence that the money does go to help people in other areas."

Now that the Penicks' children are grown and away from home, people have advised them to sell the large house they love and move into smaller quarter.

"But I like having the elbow room," the doctor said. "We like it here, and we intend to stay."

OAK HILL'—The name of the Dr Richard Penick home is proclaimed on the slate house sign in front of the house. It has particular significance to the physician, because in tracing his ancestry he discovered his name derives from the English 'Bannock' meaning 'Oak Hill'

IMPRESSIVE DECOR—Dr Richard Penick and his wife Telly pose in front of the living room fireplace of their River Court home, which is graced by an imposing piece of driftwood dragged up from the beach by friends. Dr Penick, the town's first doctor, has a wide scope of friendships made not only professionally but in civic activities. Telly is active in the National Organization of Women.

Story and photos by Sally Latham

HOOK—One of Dr Richard Penick's talents, craft welding, is evidenced in 'fascinating sky hook' which he welded into a speculative conversation. It stands outside the physician's 'glory hole" that contains a wonderland treasures and junk

R-AROUND PORCH—One of the easy-to-live-with es of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Penick is the comfortable back verandah which wraps around the side and rear of the spacious dwelling. The view from the porch overlooks the little lake abutting their back yard

TASTEFUL KITCHEN—The kitchen is truly the heart of the home for Telly Penick. The well-arranged work area is centered between the living room and dining room. Guests may be served directly into the living room through a serve-through window, in background.

Rio Lindo Garden Club celebrates 20th anniversary

The Rio Lindo Garden Club of Port St. Lucie celebrated its 20th anniversary Monday, with a luncheon at the Community Center and the club's 20th installation of officers.

Club member Leone Hett took the garden club for a "stroll down memory lane," as she read a capsulization of the club's activities since 1980.

Through extensive research, Hett was able to record some interesting bits of Rio Lindo folklore that will stay with the club as it moves into its third decade of existence.

As an example of some interesting Rio Lindo Garden Club history, Hett reports that the Club's Annual Hat Parade originated at the 1960 organizational meeting, where first president Mrs. Harold Ward suggested that those wishing to be charter members wear a funny hat.

In 1961, under the leadership of president Harriette Hunt, the club joined the State Natural Council of State Garden Clubs. The highlight of the year, however, was the club's incorporation, as it received charter approval from the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs on October 3, 1961.

It was in 1964, while Elisabeth Brogan was president, that two Rio Lindo members, Ola Neiff and Margaret Young, were winners in the annual Flower Arranging Contest. At the time Brogan, who is now deceased, took office, the membership roster totaled 57. But in less than a year, the membership roster boosted to accommodate more than a hundred.

The "yard of the month" project was born in 1965, while Dora Edwards served as president. General Development Corporation co-sponsored this project and its contribution was a silver bowl to the winners. Hett reports that this was a "much sought after honor and prize" at the time and the very first residents to receive it were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Martin of 213 Reach Ave.

Also during Edwards' term, the club entered its first float in the Port St. Lucie 4th of July parade.

But it was not until 1966 that the Rio Lindo Garden Club won the July 4th parade for the prettiest float. Then president Olga Atkins made her own hat to wear in the parade and walked off with first prize in the dress review.

The two terms that followed, from 1963 to 1970, were held by a well remembered and active ninth president — Olive Smith. On October 28, 1969, the Rio Lindo Club had the honor of holding the District Annual Meeting of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs at Convention Hall, which is now Sandpiper Bay. Also during the year 1969-70, the club was instrumental in having the Port St. Lucie community designated a bird sanctuary; and several metal signs were purchased and placed strategically throughout the area.

In 1970, while Marie Reading served as president, Rio Lindo became an active financial sponsor of several worthy local causes, including a $100 donation to the Community Center for the construction of the Kelfstadt room, and $50 to the North Port Marina for the purchase and planting of several plam trees around the shuffleboard courts. Also in this year, the club celebrated its 10th anniversary and held its first horticulture show at the marina.

It was during the two year term of Nickie Porter from 1971-73 that the club participated in the Brazilian Soccer Team Parade and the Holiday Table and Centered Flower Show.

Rio Lindo contributed another $375 to the Community Center, in 1973, during the first of two terms past president Dora Edwards was to serve. The money was donated for the landscaping of the Center grounds. But money wasn't all that was donated. Hett reports that garden clubbers had "aching backs, sore muscles and broken finger nails" to attest to their desire to "Keep Port St. Lucie Beautiful."

For their work on the Center grounds, the Rio Lindo Club won a first place Florida State Beautification Award, which included a blue ribbon and $15.

Also in 1973, the Garden Club distributed 1,000 live oak tree seedlings, which were donated by Ralph Chambers of Port St. Lucie Realty, to residents of Port St. Lucie.

The Rio Lindo Club made headlines in 1974, when they discontinued the Yard of the Month program, which had become a nine year tradition. Hett says the program was ended due to the extensive growth of the city, which made it impossible to cover all residents adequately. Former PSL residents George and Mary Winter of Reach Ave were the last recipients of that honor.

A number of club members received awards in the "Distaff Side of America Flower Show," held in 1976 during the term of Sally Coulon. Included among winners were: Dora Edwards, Marian Wehner and Margaret Ade.

The years 1977 and 1978 were landmark years for the Rio Lindo Club, thanks to the efforts of then president Betty Cline. During this period, the club sponsored a Junior Garden Club, which is still in existence, and sent two Port St. Lucie Elementary students to Camp Wekiva in Apopka. In November of 1978, the club joined with the PSL Women's Club for a House and Garden Tour that netted some $400 for the Tri County Rehabilitation Center.

The recently passed 1979, during which Reta Wilkins, served as president, was another good year, which saw the club sponsoring a Westwood High School student to the Youth Environmental Conference of Florida Technological University in Orlando. One of the year's highlight's was the club's entry of a golf cart — bedecked with scores of native flowers — in the annual 4th of July parade.

The Rio Lindo Garden Club now hopes to begin its 20th year and third decade with more progressive, community minded projects, as 16th president Marion Wehner takes over the seat of command.

Joining Wehner in executive positions are Evelyn Norton, first vice; Betty Zuckerman, 2nd vice; Dorothy Shonberg, corresponding secretary; and Lorraine Ferguson, recording secretary.

The Garden Club, begun by a fledgling group in 1960, has certainly had an active part in seeing that Port St. Lucie is still a beautiful place to live in the 1980's.

1.8 million more seniors

May was proclaimed "Older American Month" and May 8 "Senior Citizen Day" by President Carter, continuing a tradition established in 1963, it was stated that 1.8 million Americans over 65, joined the ranks since last May making their 'client' over 25 million voters; and candidates should take heed.

Generally, seniors have 'kicked-off' projects in May. Tree Planting, Parade Floats, Health Programs, etc., so this year they may get the "Vial of Life" project off the ground. However, seniors now seemed to be pre-occupied with international events and here is how it went.

When the 'Mirror' hit the streets, Ralph of the Great Depression days took Grumpy Pete and Lil' Imogene to task for saying that the 1980 and 1980 retirees worked equally hard for a life time. Ralph said, "the 1980 retirees worked 54 hours per week for years, with no paid vacations and no coffee breaks and there was a guy outside already to take his job if he didn't shape-up", hence the good quality products. They were darn proud to line up for pay envelope every Saturday noon, knowing they'd earned it."

"But, now a-days, times are more nerve-racking", replied Mildred who has a good word for all, "folks need more leisure and they have recession and unemployment to worry about. They have problems, too, you know."

Grumpy Pete thumps his cane for attention and barks, "Mildred you're too darn easy, the unemployment is of their own making. They've demanded higher and higher wages for producing less and less, until now no one can afford to buy what they make. No wonder there's 7.3 million out of work with 7 percent unemployed, but they do get big unemployment benefits and won't have to loose their homes, cars, etc as Ralph and I had to do, to get eating money back in the 30's. They'll make out all right."

"But, we all have a problem", grumbles Salty Capt. Joe, "it sounds as though Pres Carter is going to welcome 250,000 Cubans and Haitians. WOW! that's half a million more jobs to be found or more unemployment."

"Half million is only 0.2 percent of population", explains Mildred, "and if all are workers, that's only 0.5 percent more unemployed. And, aren't other countries going to help out, also won't there be funds to relieve the high unemployment areas. If Congress will get on the 'ball' with funds and regulations to keep out common criminals and terminally ill, they'll probably be absorbed without a ripple the same as Vitnamese."

"What an interesting discussion", pipes up Miller, the letter writer, "I've been seeing Cubans on every door step, but I guess if Congrss does get on the 'ball' we'll weather the storm. But, I'm going to write to them anyway and I wish others would do the same."

Don't forget, thus is Blood Pressure Check week Thursday, May 15, 13:30, 11:30, also Tues. and Fri. 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. at the Martin County Community pool.

Library plans summer reading for children

Martin County Public Library invites boys and girls to join the "Energetic Summer Program" at the library.

Registration opens Monday, May 19. Every Wednesday, beginning June 4, programs will be held for club members at the library. Children 3-5 years old will come at 10 a.m. and 6 year olds and up at 11:15 a.m. Both programs will last about 45 minutes and continue for about 8 weeks. Programs will feature stories, flannel boards, movies, filmstrips, puppet shows, and special guests. The purpose of the program is to stimulate reading during the summer. It is funded under Title I of the Library Services and Construction Act.

Horse shoes are in

It seems that horse shoeing is the "in" fun for the summer. Since the new boxes and spikes were put in, the play has grown in the breezes by the ocean.

Happy Mothers Day was shared in many ways. By phone calls from children and many visits here at the Park. Others had dinners out with children or good friends accompany them.

Anniversaries: Congratulation for Harriet & Sebersky Green 5-15, Charlotte & Ross Burgess 5-16, Catherine & John May, Maxine & Samuel Graber 5-19, Beatrice & Ernest Dewhurst 5-20.

Happy Birthday Wishes for— Yvonne Henricks, Beryle Roy, Mike Butt 5-15, Edna Vansant, Harry Smith 5-16, Virginia Belmore 5-19, Rita Royal 5-20, Irene Hamm 5-21.

OB residents worried

Damon Smith, a representative from Senator Lawton Chiles came to Ocean Breeze Park Monday in an attempt to get some feed-back from area residents.

According to Smith, most of the comments and-or complaints from both the Sewall's Point area and the Park had to do with the current immigration problem.

Many questioned the quota system feeling that a tremendous surge of 60,000 Cubans expected by the end of the month could put a strain on tax-payers.

One Park resident, Ruth Hoke felt that when immigrants came over two hundred years ago, they were a working segment of society. However it seems that nowadays many depend on either food stamps or welfare, she said.

Another resident felt that "if everybody were working, that would be different," however as it is, our country should attempt to solve our own welfare program before we start taking on everybody else.

Questions were asked about third and fourth generation welfare recipients who have grown up watching their parents do nothing but take welfare for years. Smith, who seemed to agree with the concerned residents, nevertheless felt that to completely shut off immigrants was not necessarily solving the problem.

"It's not just an American-Cuban problem, but a hemisphere one," he said. He added that Senator Chiles was scheduled to meet with the president Tuesday in an attempt to induce other countries to do their share.

According to Smith, Senator Chiles feels that Florida should not be the only resettlement area, since there are already half of the one and one half million Cuban-American population that live in the southern area of the state. Smith said that recently, President Carter has ordered the Pennsylvania and Maryland bases to be opened up, which will transfer some 40,000 people to the northern states.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

Mac McKeever & Vicki had a very enjoyable six days with two of their grandchildren, Danielle & Dansan who flew down to visit their other grandparents in Ft. Lauderdale for a few days. The McKeevers drove them up here to enjoy the beach at Holiday Out. They also spent two days at Disney World, then visited the Space Center on Merritt Island.

Ethel & Bob Shilborn had a going away party for the Cliff Byers. Bruce and Billie Major, Al and Caroline Wright, Doris and Bucky Freer, Dottie and Jack Smith and Del Starr were the guests. Ethel was a good hostess.

We received word that Beryle Roy had a minor stroke, soon after arriving home in Mich. The damage suffered was slight and all her friends are rejoicing Beryle, take it easy now and come back to us in good health.

Billie and Bruce Major gave a lovely dinner party Wednesday night. The Majors are sure busy since they returned to the Park. Bruce's boy scout days got the best of him Thursday night, he built a bonfire on the beach and gathered twelve of his friends to enjoy his efforts. Bill and Doris Bond cooked the hot dogs and marshmallows and Al Ray entertained all with songs and ukelele playing. The no see-ums tried to discourage everyone for a while, but were gone when the fire got hot.

Carrie Ullmans wrote that they had a nice trip home to Smallwood, N.Y. Its all work and no play so far for Carrie.

Roy and Barthan Lamon entertained five couples for dinner. Guests were the Bob Blacks, Lester Ullmans, Frank Pizza, Alice Perrault and Allen Pohl.

Al and Peggy Ray had pleasant surprise visit with their Hialeah neighbors, the Wey Jordans. The Jordans are heading out West for a lengthy trip, wishing the Rays would

DOUSING THE BLAZE—A small woods fire broke out last week, and Jensen Beach firemen were called in to put it out. The fire was contained to a relatively small area and did not approach any structures. (Photo by Bob Pryor)

Pinney and Zoo Bennett have just returned after spending a month in Spain visiting their daughter Sue and son-in-law "T.C." Cobb of the U.S. Army Air Force. Besides touring many cities and towns in Spain they took some fascinating side trips to Tadgiers, Morocco and Portugal. Zoo allows as to how he has seen enough cathedrals and caves for awhile — there seemed to be one every place they went!

While on the subway in Madrid, an unfriendly person picked Zoo's pocket and made off with his wallet, credit cards, driver's license, etc. This put a damper on the Bennetts enthusiasm for that city.

After leaving Spain they spent a few days of sightseeing in London. They were in a hotel a block and a half from the Iranian Embassy in Hyde Park when the Embassy was seized by terrorists. The London police were everywhere in the area but they still had time to be pleasant to two concerned American tourists. It was quite an exciting finale to the Bennetts trip.

Ike Gingrich is a surgical patient in Martin Memorial Hospital but we hope he will soon be home again. His daughter Nancy came down from New York State and will stay until Ike is well enough to travel North for the summer.

Anne Houghton who has been hospitalized the past week is expecting to be discharged the early part of this week. Friends report she is doing fine and looking very well after recent surgery.

Sisters Lois Foster and Lou Kettner and their husbands had a family get-together Mother's Day weekend. Lois and Lou's sister Jane Wyckoff and husband Bob from West Palm Beach were here and family friends Jane and Vic Watson from Lake Worth came too. They all enjoyed Holiday Out, the beautiful weather and particularly a recent catch of snook in the river.

The exodus has abated to a mere trickle with most that are still "to go", saying we will wait until reports from 'up there' are better, as this wonderful weather is too superb to miss, especially with the TV reporting snow in Chicago, 39 in Ohio, 45 and sleet in Michigan, black flies and rain in New Hampshire and a comment by a Maine couple, that the mosquitos only allowed them to sit out 4 nights last year. No wonder, postman John Ross says of those who left too soon, "Serves 'em right".

OBBers work hard making their property attractive, then in some cases, just across the street (in the county) there is a very untidy eye-sore. Commissioner Frank Wacha says he'll investigate.

Hurrican David is long gone, but the damage still lives on. However, soon there will be a new sea wall as the many government permits have been obtained and reconstruction has been started with the pouring of concrete wall slabs down on Lil Bit Lane. Project is moving along very well in spite of an outstanding lack of sidewalk superintendents. Those with a few minutes to spare might be able to help out.

This is blood pressure check week and a good chance for those going north soon to get a final check up. Thursday, May 15, 13:30 p.m. AARP, retired nurses at First Presbyterian Church, North River Shores. Then if you miss that, at 2 p.m., the same day, there will be a check at Treasure Coast Senior Services at Langford Park. Finally, the Martin County Health Clinic, 9 to 11 a.m. at Langford Field House.

While down Lil' Bit la. supervising the Sea Wall project, take a look at the new improvements at palace number one, where your reporter lived for a few years. The folks that had been staying in an Airstream for the last few winters, like it so much, the space has been improved so that they can have a big 12 by 30 mobile home set up.

PARK EVENTS

Shuffleers are undaunted by their reduced ranks, and as long as they can muster four courts for "pot luck" at six p.m. Friday nights, it will be continued, according to Elston Lehning, the president. Of course, there are still 4 courts busy mornings and evenings when the summer time shufflers venture forth.

The Wissers and Fuscos have already left for Hendersonville, a northern center of summertime shuffling and the Fairs, Ella Lee, Fran Runyan and Ken Smith are soon to follow.

HOSPITAL AND OBITUARY

Back home recouperating: Edna Stromminger, 23 Almond St.; Ruby Masson, 4 Palm Rd.; Celia Ashley, 18 Ocean Breeze Dr.; Polly Kaeppner, 2 Melaleuca Dr.;

Frances Ruyan, 16 Pepper St. and Alice Cline, 16 Arborview Dr. were in the out last week and are now back home, as is Bea Hartmen, 20 Sixth St., who has been recouperating at her sister's in Port St. Lucie.

Elmina Joslyn, 18 Mango Dr. is resting with her daughter in Stuart. Bill Yunger, 21 Almond St. is out of hospital in Stoneybrook, L.I. and Margaret Duncan, 4 Mango Dr. is back home in Creve, Va.

However, Earl Sheehey, 11 Oak St. is still in Martin Memorial Hospital.

Roy Zigelhofer's daughter Edith died last week and Roy flew to Massilom, Ohio for the funeral. Alonzo Reed, ExOBPer of NE Eight St. died Saturday, May 10, in Glen Spey, N.Y.

CARD WINNERS

Contract, May 6: Dorothy Waldron, Ness Moore, Ginny Whitehead and Isabella Bagg.

Pinochle, May 5: Gladys Baier and Ness Moore.

Pinochle, May 8: Gladys Baier and Bobbie Tucker.

Pinochle, May 12: Marge Sharp, Sue Billmek; Gladys Baier, and C Wiedemann.

RAMBLING AROUND

Bill and Dorothy Waldron have just moved from NE 16th St. to 4 Bay Dr. by Moped, lock, stock and barrel and it wasn't easy according to Bill and Dorothy. Just as soon as settled and car repaired, off they went-bag and baggage to spend the summer on beautiful Lake Freeman, Indiana.

Bill was a truck line executive for years and Dorothy had a Beauty Shop in Indianapolis. They have two children, boy and girl, both married, and they have five grand-daughters. So, they can expect a lot of visitors next year, as no tar only a daughter and her two girls have been down to visit.

Olga Duncan, 38 Key Lime has just come up from West Palm after spending 18 winters there. She has a son in Port St. Lucie and wanted to be near him, so they looked all around the area and found OBP best suited their needs. Olga also has a son Mel in South Carolina, a daughter Delpha in Grand Rapids and 9 grandchildren, so she too can expect some visitors when she returns from summering on Horse Shoe Lake, Minn.

Olga's husband was principal of the Grand Forks High School and before he died last year, they traveled extensively in Europe and Japan, so she has many stories to tell her grandchildren along with making them very fancy birthday cakes.

Cliff and Helen Phelphs, 9 NE 10th St. are from North Adams, Mass and although they have been visiting his mother Ruth Phelps for 13 years, they just got around to buying a place last year. Cliff was a supervisor of the Public Works Dept. and Helen had a Gift and Antique Shop.

They have two boys and two girls and a grandson and granddaughter, so sooner or later, they will be having their share of visitors, that is after they get back here next October, after attending a daughter's wedding. Seems Helen is interested in the Art class and Cliff fishing for blues.

Freda Peterkin received a letter from Ted and Oliver Witmer, the other day. They are up there at: P.O. Box 414, New Cumberland, Pa. 17070, and say, the weather is not nice, have to have a fire every day as there is a lot of cold and rain. Ted is only going to raise two beef cattle and have a small garden this year. Hopes 'Cookie' has a good summer and wants to hear from everybody.

GRANDSONS VISIT

Guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Frank van Malle of Ocean Breeze Park were their grandsons, Mr. and Mrs. ERic Hauser and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hauser and daughter Shannon Lee, all from Walden, N.Y. The visitors came down to help the van Malles celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary on May 13. Mr. and Mrs. van Malle met and were married in Ocean Breeze.

AARP 1st Presbyterian Church and 2 p.m. by Treasure Coast Senior Services, at Langford Field. Then, Friday, May 16, 9 to 11 a.m. Martin County Health Dept. at Langford Field. Get checked before going north.

CHAPTER EVENTS

First president John Vance ran a snappy Board-ExCom meeting Thurs. May 8, at the Roachman Site of Indian River College, taking up the following items:

Fred Sundheim, Parliamentarian checked to see if all was in order for the membership vote on dues increase and change in tenure of secretary and treasure. Doris Cass, Treas. and Membership Chm. reported 35 new members. Lucy Prohaska will be away for awhile, so turned over the Buy-A-Block journal to Bob Maurer, chm of that committee.

The May general meeting will be the last until October 17. ExCom-Board will meet all summer except for July. The bulletin will be issued, in June, August and October, but as usual none in July or September. Picnics if any will be at Mildred Capanna's when the bulletin is prepared for mailing, until kids are back in school and Langford Field House is again available.

A multi-chapter picnic was great fun in 1978 and 79, and it sounds as though Port St. Lucie, Ft. Pierce and Vero were going ahead with one this year, but Martin County chapter don't seem interested.

Dorothy Stokes reported that the Tax Aide group handled 715 requests for income tax assistance this year, topping last year's total by a dozen or more with Stuart handling 565 and Jensen 150. Next year there will be a group in Hobe Sound.

The May meeting will be a fun meeting with humorous skits and musical interludes. Don't miss this last meeting of the season, as the AARP talent has rehearsed diligently(?) to give the members a happy memory to take north with them this summer.

Al Cammisa, Chm of Insurance Committee generally has the answers to your insurance problems and is very glad to talk them over with you at 283-3455, but please not before 8 a.m. and not on Sunday. Pearl Wyse, Legislative Chm. said, call 1-800-342-1827 for the latest on Florida legislation.

There was a meeting of the Martin County Senior Center Association, right after the Board meeting and Fred Sundheim submitted for consideration, very well prepared 'Incorporation Papers' and tentative 'By-Laws', that after study by directors will be revised for final approval.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Thur May 15: AARP General Meeting, 1:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church (Blood pressure checks at 12:30).

Fri May 16: Martin County Health Dept. Clinic for blood pressure screening and nutrition counciling, 9 to 11 a.m. at Langford Field.

Sat May 17: Swimming, 9:30 to EVERYTHING ELSE, fish' its ups and downs and this the year is strictly "down" for ers. Generally, fishing is slow re are a few bright spots.

ere fishermen report some tion on dolphin along the weed ne seven to eight miles off the rie Inlet., trolling, ballyhoo re a few kings over the reefs e scamp grouper too but lots of small amberjack to frus nuper anglers drifting live bait ead herring.

sh are schooling some around ges but your best bet to come a few snapper blues is to fish surf with cut ribbon fish any along the beaches from the Causeway up to the power the trick is to locate a small of feeding blues, a most iffy ion according to all reports.

BEST action seems to be on asty silver or gray trout in the Weakfish Hole some h south of the Ernest Lyons Bridge, along the east shore. mp will get the job done but a tipped with shrimp may be tter.

and seatrout fishing isn't ing but the experts are a few trout on trout tonts on flats north of the Jensen y and there are some snook in Lucie Inlet and around the rary (10 cent) Bridge. A few ones have been taken from Crary this week, like the bs. 8 oz.) lunker snook caught by Mike Zipko Tuesday MARLIN MOUDY, from the art party boat docking at the Marina near Port Salerno off below Stuart: "we've been some scamp grouper on the the inlet drifting real slow e reels with thread herring. e amberjacks drive us crazy They're everywhere now. eem to be very few kings now. The snappers are, and we aren't catching too the big jewfish are coming in to and they ve really been tearing when they grab a bait and just

SHIPP from Capt. Bennie's a 40 foot charter boat docking e's Sportfishing Dock with the Oodles of Capt. Charles "They've been catching lots fish around the weed lines off Lucie Inlet, some bonito, and thefish. Fishing was quite e a while but it's begun to slow the past few days."

M D&M BAIT AND TACKLE south end of the Roosevelt on U.S. 1 north of Stuart. Weiderman: "They've been some big drum and a few head, mangrove snappers and casional flounder from the eit this week It's nothing ic but fishing has improved and etting more fishermen. There wo 20 lb. black drum caught the bridge this week on cut

N ARD, manger of the Sailfish store: "Most of our charter have gone for the summer re fishing is slow now."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "The blues have moved off the surf, it looks like. They seem to be schooling some in the river around the bridges. There are, a few snook at the Roosevelt and more at the Evans Crary. The best lure for snook now seems to be one of those Cisco Kid 6-0 plugs, but some are being taken on live shrimp too or live bait like bunker (menhaden) or croakers. Unfortunately, the live shrimp are getting smaller all the time and next month we'll be lucky to have any at all. It's that way every June, as you know. Offshore fishing is excellent for dolphin out around the weed lines There are some big kings over the reefs and just off the St. Lucie Inlet. Incidentally, Dick, we stay open until 8 p.m. seven days a week so that fishermen can pick up their bait after supper."

TOM STEWART, from the Snook Nook: "It hasn't been anything too great, Dick. We've had a few scattered blues in the surf, from the Jensen Causeway to the power plant. You just have to be lucky enough to find them. They've stopped hitting spoons and want cut bait now. Ribbon fish is best. There are some whiting and croakers in the surf. Fish for them in the after noon with cut bait or fresh or frozen shrimp from the Martin County Park-N-Fish below the Holiday Inn off A1A clear up to the Oceana condo above the Jensen Causeway. In the Indian River, there are some seatrout but now it pretty much takes an expert to catch them on trout touts or mirrolures. Some of the best fishing around now is in the Weakfish Hole some 200 yards below the Ernest Lyons Bridge in -10-12 ft of water along the east shore. There are lots of weakfish (silver or gray trout, actually) there taking nylures tipped with shrimp or live shrimp. Dick, I don't know why they call them weakfish down here. Snook are very slow now, just a few in the St. Lucie Inlet and some around the bridges like the Roosevelt and Evans Crary. There are sand perch and mangrove snappers at the Jensen Causeway taking fresh or frozen cut and live shrimp. They are getting them along the Causeway and from the Frank Wacha eastwalk and that little Mosquito Bridge just east of the Frank Wacha Bridge. Offshore, there are some nice dolphin around weed lines some 7-8 miles off the St. Lucie Inlet, and some mutton and mangrove snappers on the reefs off the inlet."

The Nook's log: Eddie Arenz, 5 blues, ribbon fish, surf; Ed Meyers, 6 whiting, cut shrimp, surf; Bill Mayo, 2 croakers and 3 whiting, cut shrimp, surf; Ron and Bill Wiles, 22 silver trout and a Spanish mackerel, live shrimp, Weakfish Hole; Steve Steele, 4 trout, live shrimp, Mosquito Bridge; Timmy and Paul Brennan, 4 sand perch and 3 mangrove snappers, frozen shrimp and clams, Frank Wacha; Ed Wagner and Pat Patterson, an average of 5 to 10 seatrout to 3-0 and a snook, daily, on trout touts, wading north of the power plant to Little mud Creek; Cindy Gassery a 4-0 snook on a Cisco Kid plug in the St. Lucie River, Tom Desobato, 4 trout to 9.4, a channel bass (redfish) and a snook; wading along the west bank near Walton Road, fishing a 7M27 mirrolure with a brown back and silver belly, Sherman Coy, 20 blues in two days, ribbon fish, surf; Mike Zipko, a 34 lb snook on a nylure jig, Evans Crary Bridge

THAT FISH CLEANING STATION on the Jensen Causeway is a popular hangout for hungry pelicans and Florida egrets too when fish are being cleaned and the leavings tossed to the pack. It's a case of who gets there "fastest with the mostest" bill, it would seem (Dick Lundin photo)

State sets hunting season dates

THE 1980-81 HUNTING SEASON will officially begin the second Saturday in November, according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. The general hunting season will open on November 8, statewide.

Deer and hog hunting will continue until Jan. 4 everywhere but the Northwest Region where it will close on Jan. 25.

A new regulation will allow the taking of deer with at least one antler visible above the hairline. Previously, hunters were restricted to taking deer with at least one antler five or more inches in length.

The archery season will open later and run longer, with the Commission adopting dates of Sept. 23 through Oct. 12.

There will be a special muzzleload ing run season from Oct 24 through 26 in all regions but the Northwest where it will run from Feb. 7-22.

Quail and squirrel seasons have been established from Nov. 8 through March 1, statewide.

There will be a special muzzleload ing season from Oct 24 through 26 in all regions except the Northwest where it will be Oct. 4-26.

Turkey hunters in Alachua County will see that county reopened to gobblers only Nov. 8 through Jan. 4. Those dates coincide with the fall either set turkey season dates for all the state except the 16-county area from the eastern boundary of Jefferson County westward (the Northwest Region). That portion of the state will only see gobbler hunting in Leon, Gadsden, Jefferson and Wakulla counties from Nov. 8 through Jan. 25. The remaining 12 counties will be closed to fall turkey hunting.

Spring turkey hunting will begin in that portion of the state lying south of SR 50 on March 7 and run through March 29. The area of the state lying north of SR 50 to the eastern boundary of Jefferson County will have spring turkey hunting from March 14 through April 5, and the remainder of the state from March 14 through April 12.

LAKE APOPKA, near Orlando, has been a veritable disaster area for freshwater anglers for many decades.

I can remember fishing it as good bass water when attending Florida Southern College back in 1961. The bass are long gone and now the big 30,000 acre lake is filled with shad and rough fish. It hasn't produced for anglers in a long time, but better days are coming there if we can believe the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

The Commission has recently stocked some 200,000 sunshine bass fingerlings in Apopka, a man made cross between the white bass and striped bass produced by Commission fisheries biologists. Because Sunshine bass are a very effective predator of shad, the Commission feels that by feeding off the excessive shad population in the lake, the fingerlings should thrive and furnish sport fishing in Apopka once again.

According to Commission biologists, these bass have reached 14 pounds in four years in some of the lakes where they have been stocked in Florida. The fish is an aggressive fighter and excellent table fare, but can't reproduce, making it necessary for the state to conduct a put and take program to keep a stable bass population in the lake.

The fingerlings used to stock Apopka were produced at the Commission's Richloam Fish Hatchery. Some of them were grown to stocking size at the Welaka National Fish Hatchery.

Put Apopka on your fishing calendar for 1982. Those bass should be primed and ready by then.

IF YOU THINK that it's high time sport fishermen fought back to do something to preserve their sport of fishing, endangered by anti-fishing groups, increasing fishing pressure, disappearance of favorable habitat, discharge of hazardous wastes, fish stocking cutbacks and acid rain to name a few black clouds on the fishing horizon, maybe you should look into the new American Sport Fishing Federation being formed by the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn (AFTMA).

Once AFTMA's starting role is completed, ASF will become an independent organization that will represent fishermen on a state and national basis.

A good way to crystallize your thoughts in this matter would be to pick up a copy of the May issue of Fishing Facts magazine and read the excellent, thought provoking editorial on page 6 by editor and publisher George Frank. George lays it on the line for the fledgling ASF and concludes his editorial with: "I never dreamt that something would come along to offer us the chance to save sportfishing for your children, but ASF is that chance. At last we can mount a battle against all the factors that threaten the life of our beloved sport. It will not be easy and it will not be quick, but we can do it. ASF is an idea big enough for the size of the problems. This is truly a time for fishermen to fight back. Join with us."

If you can't find the magazine locally, you can get a copy by sending $1.50 to the Northwoods Publishing Co., Inc., N84 W 13660 Leon Road, Menomonee Falls, Wis. 53051. On the other hand, if you prefer, subscribe by sending $14.98 for one year. It's a great publication even without that editorial. The May issue has a fine article on how to catch crappies after they have finished spawning, and part one of a two part article on plastic worms fishing for largemouth bass.

It admits the bearer to many Federal areas which charge an entrance fee, and provides a 50 per cent discount on Federal use fee charges for facilities and services such as camping, boat launching, parking.

The passports may be secured at National Park Service and Forest Service National headquarters and their respective regional offices. Looking for a honey hole?

Try this one

Fishing is down this week but your best bet to put some fish on the table would be to fish that Weakfish Hole some 150 to 200 yards south of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge in 10-13 feet of water about 100 yards from the east shore of the Indian River. Use a nylure jig tipped with shrimp or just plain live shrimp to take those silver or gray trout (locals whimsically call them weakfish, hence the name Weakfish Hole). To be weakfish, they have to be spotted.

Your next best bet, and it's pretty far behind, would be to try your luck on bluefish in the surf from the Jensen Causeway to the power plant. There aren't too many left and they're hard to find, but if you do luck onto a small school and have some cut ribbon fish handy, you should wind up with several of the snapper blues.

Next? Nada! It's like the first Lipton's Cup race around the Isle of Wight. The queen was told that the American yacht was leading. She queried the man with the glass as to the second boat. "Alas, your majesty, there is no second." There is no third, and that's that.

Weekly pro-am captured by Cliff Settergen

Cliff Settergren of Fort Pierce, who is a Seniors Committee head for the Florida PGA, walked off with the top pro prize of Friday's event at Sandpiper Bay when he carded an even par 72. A trio of popular area swingers shared second place with 73's including Steve Cunningham of Port St. Lucie; Kelly Childs of Mid Rivers CC in Stuart and the veteran Joe Lopez Sr., a former Florida Open champion.

Local Sandpiper Bay assistant pro J. J. LaFlair led his three amateur partners to top place in the pro-am event with a 17 under par, 127, in the two best balls of a foursome format. The simon pures included Jack Early and Tony Franza of Port St. Lucie with John Smith of Stuart.

Steve Cunningham led partners Dale Cifert, Lou Parisi and Carl Alfrey to second place with 16 under par, 128.

A newcomer to the area pro ranks, Rick Weihs, paced his three amateurs to third place including Chuck Alfrey, Paul Aman and Charley McNabb.

Three teams deadlocked in fourth place with pros Dave Gower, Sam Davis and Steve Cunningham (whose name was drawn by three amateurs.

Mariner Sands golf course will be the site of the next Pro Am Two Best Ball event, which is being played weekly alternating every Friday at the Mariner Sands site and Sandpiper Bay.

Chuck Knebels, head pro at the Stuart facility, is accepting entries for the May 16 program which is expected to attract some 30 professionals and 120 amateurs.

Amateurs especially are urged to sign up as the field is expected to be on a limited basis because of the shortage of pros in the area, many of whom have returned north for the summer season. The next pro am at Sandpiper Bay will be contested May 23rd.

Van Sickle, Cy Edwards win Sandpiper partners play

Scoring in general by the Sandpiper Men golfers Thursday was on the low side, despite abnormal playing conditions as most of the 18 greens and many fairways had been recently top dressed and verti-cut.

Nine of the 141 who participated entered the charmed circle of "Break Eighty" category. Ret. Col. Sam Dawhirst and veteran Tom Wood shared the low gross honors with 75 blows while the team of Cy Edwards and Orland "Doc" Van Sickle teamed up to capture the top award in the Partner's Best Ball feature scoring a net of 15 under par, 57.

Taking the second slot with a net of 14 under par, 58, was the combo of Fred Schuchterle and Charley Davis. Three pairs ended in a triple deadlock at 59 for third including the teams of Henry Small and Ken Pagel; Mark Vasey and Charley Swan; Frank Blalock and Nels Howary.

A five way tie existed with a net score of 60 including "Pack" Pickinger and Al Van Nostrand; Tom Chapman and Charley McNabb; Chuck Hendsh and Joe Mosely; Bob Johnson and Norm Nardone and Tom Francoline with John Walsh.

Others who entered the "Break Eighty" club included Tom Chapman and Dale Cifert with 76, Tom Sesma 77; Cy Edwards, Henry Small, and Carl Starsich, 78, and Jim Orms at 79.

The scheduled event for Thursday, May 15, which will be played at the Saints course, will be an individual last stinger, 6-6th of handicap and eliminating the three worst holes of the round.

Northport men's golf

Jim Vanderbyde returned to the wars Tuesday and scored a net of 63 to win flight A among the Northport Men's Golf Association playing Tuesday. John Schwartz was second with a 64.

John Jankowski and Tom Cole tied for flight B with nets of 54. Bob Tew had a score of 53 to win flight C. Stan Vick had a 57. In flight D Frank Rhein had a 54 and Bill Harris a 56.

In the competition for closest to the hole, Archie Taylor won on hole number 6 and Stan Nowicki on the 14th hole.

The club held its Awards Dinner Friday, May 9, at the Stuart Elks club.

SPECKLED PERCH (black crappies) are the quarry of these two anglers drifting live minnows slowly along the west bank of the Kissimmee River just below the SR 70 bridge in the background. The spawning season is over and now it's a matter of finding where the specks are suspended in deep water not too far from where they were spawning. If you can find them, you can catch them. It's the finding that's the trick once spawning season is over. (Dick Lundin photo)

GOLFING NEWS
BY MIKE SANDY

For the first time in 40 years Saturday's Preakness, second leg of the Triple Crown 3-year-old events, will feature a filly--Genuine Risk, winner of the Kentucky Derby.

It is not very likely that the champion filly will compete in the Belmont since that race will require a strong animal over the longer distance. However, the "Genuine" one will be competing in a shorter race Saturday and is again expected to give a good account. She will be facing a pair of vastly improved colts which did not compete in the Derby. Colonel Moran and California Comet Codex are in top fettle and many close observers believe that either of two mentioned may take the second leg on Saturday. Plugged Nickel, a co-favorite in the Derby will not run in the Preakness. Many of the horse buffs around the St. Lucie Training Track in Indiantown have made much about Genuine Risk, the filly which got her schooling and training at the local center. She has been under the watchful eye of seasoned trainer John Nazareth. Kelly Mills has been the groom along with Joe Colombo, a former exercise boy at New York's Belmont track. We also learned that a pair of two-year olds trained at the local center, both sired by Foolish Pleasure, are now enroute to the New York tracks to compete in the leading two year old races. they are Dash for Pleasure and Clint Maroon, a pair which are highly regarded by Nazareth and his crew who work under Head Trainer LeRoy Jolley.

Another race which is attracting world wide attention is the May 25th Indianapolis 500. Three of the nation's top wheelers have earned the nos. 1, 2 and 3 slots Johnnie Rutherford, Mario Andretti and Bobby Unser. They had the three fastest qualifying times.

We notice that holders of Flag cards will now be able to play 20 of South Florida's leading golf courses. The membership card, which costs $35, entitles holders to Free Green Fess, play as often as you want at any Flag Sanctioned courses. The card is good May 1st to November 15th. You are required to pay for the use of motorized carts at regular rental rates. You need to make starting times, however, 24 hours in advance. For more info regarding a Flag membership write to Flag Inc. Drawer 1099, Deerfield Beach, Fla. 33441.

A doff of our fedora to Nick and Julie Nickisch who have taken over operations of The Magazine Rack store located in Weg Plaza, Port St. Lucie. They purchases the store from Frank Harber and Mike Monyhan and carry a full line of leading newspapers and magazines. Nick has been with Terminex for some time, has his own vending machine route and both he and Julie want to do more for thier four adopted daughters---Suzanne, 15; Lisa, going on 13, Lynn, 10, and Missy 8.

Lonnie Stubbs and his greenskeeping crew are putting in many hours these days getting both the Saints and Sinners golf course in readiness for the forthcoming Florida Open to be played again on both Sandpiper courses. Greens and fairways have gone through a verti-cutting program and the roughs just off the fairways are growing to almost unplayable condition. Larry Mowry of Maitland, will be defending his 1979 championship against the field which will undoubtedly include Julius Boros and Bob Michael, four-time winner of the National Left-Handed golfers tournament. He's a 26 year old champion of The Sara Bay CC of Sarasota.

Others who will be expected to compete in the annual event here will also include, such luminaries as former teammates Jim King, Billy Maxwell, Richie Bassett, Dub Pagan, Lee Wykle, Tony Valentine and local and area stalwarts--Larry Rinker, Chuck Knehpls, Jay Pyle, Steve Cunningham, Cliff Settergren and Kelly Childs. We will list entries of other notable as they are registered.

The next event scheduled for the Pro tour players will be the Colonial National Invitation in Fort Worth, Tex., May 15 to 18, and will be televised over CBS. Muirfield Village G.C. will be the site of the Memorial Tournament in Dublin, Ohio with a $300,000 purse and will be telecast via CBS May 22 to 25. The Kemper Open will be played May 29 to June 1 on the famed Congressional Golf Course, Bethesda, Md.

Junior Deputy Day is Wednesday

Sheriff Lanie Norvell announced that the Fifth Annual Junior Deputy Dine Out Day is scheduled for Wednesday, May 14. This is the only fund raising activity to support the Sheriff's Junior Deputy Program, which has reached over 5,000 fifth grade students in St. Lucie County during the past five years.

By purchasing a two-dollar ticket, area residents can contribute to the program. The ticket entitles its purchaser to two dollars worth of food at one of the 60 participating area restaurants. Proceeds are divided between the Junior Deputies League, with one dollar going to the restaurant and one dollar to the League. The dollar to the restaurant helps to cover their food costs and they donate their overhead for that day. This project is federal income tax exempt.

The Junior Deputy program is designed to teach young people about law enforcement and the dangers of breaking the law. Participants attend six lectures by deputies on the law enforcement role of the Sheriff's Department, laws concerning juveniles and the penalties for breaking them.

Each student in the program receives a junior deputy manual, which covers drug identification, laboratory techniques, juvenile laws, bicycle safety, and various other safety rules young people should know. Each junior deputy also receives an identification card and a badge. For the first time this year, junior deputies received a yellow cap with the junior deputy patch on it.

"The Junior Deputy Dine-Out Day is the only funding we have for this program, and we are very grateful to all of the restaurants who participate in this each year with us," said Sheriff Lanie Norvell.

...s hard pressed for time to ...e the new application before ...4 deadline for getting them ...But on Friday, Dr. Stokes ...reported that the deadline had been met and that the application is in.

The new application contains a lot of data borrowed from the original application, as well as new information and a collection of color aerial and ground photos. As an unexpected bonus, Dr. Stokes said the day before he was to send in the application, he received a 25-page report from Dick Roberts, naturalist for the state park service, outlining the tentative plan for management of the Savannas once sufficient acreage is under state control. "It contained all kinds of biological and ecological data and will really help the application," Dr. Stokes said. He included the Roberts report in the application.

As to what acerage will be bought if new state approval is granted, Dr. Stokes said "It will be up to the state park service to determine what is needed for proper management of the Savannas, so we won't be too nosey in telling them what should and should not be bought," he said.

He predicted that it may be as long as five years before his dream of having the Savannas under active management of the state comes true.

Martin County Commission Chairwoman Maggy Hurchalla praised Dr. Stokes for "doing a fantastic job" of putting the application together, and Dr. Stokes in turn said the county planning department provided "invaluable help. I have never seen more beautiful cooperation from county officials."

In addition to filing an application for purchase of Savannas wetlands, Dr. Stokes also helped prepare an application for state purchase of lands along a portion of the south fork of the St. Lucie River.

Dr. Stokes says the portion he and other conservationists are trying to preserve starts about two miles south of the SR 76 bridge over the south fork, and runs south "about a mile and a quarter as the crow flies, but the river twists so much, it's about three miles." He said nobody lives along that section of the river and commented "It's truly wild and scenic."

In response to the applications he filed, Dick Ludington, executive director of the state Lands Division, wrote Stokes to confirm he had received the applications and commented that he had done "an outstanding job in compiling the applications."

A state committee to review the applications was to meet Tuesday, May 20, in Hollywood to hear presentations. Dr. Stokes was getting to make slide presentations for the Savannas and South Fork, but the meeting was cancelled due to racial strife in nearby Miami. "I don't know when it will be rescheduled," Dr. Stokes said.

witsky outlines school pact fee to businessmen

...pact fee is viewed by school ...mbers as another tool it could use, only when necessary, to avoid a money crunch in the future when growth creates a demand for new schools.

Before such a fee goes into effect, the county commission and all municipalities within the county will have to adopt separate ordinances to allow for such a fee to be charged, and for each governmental entity, the formula for the fee will likely vary, he said.

The fee is to be based on the impact of new homes, not on the value of them, he said, explaining that family residences would therefore be more likely for a higher fee imposed on them than condominiums or mobile homes in adult mobile home parks. And, he said the fee would only be on new residential units, not existing ones.

Collection of the fee would likely take place when building permits are issued or when certificates of occupancy are issued.

"The money raised could only be used for new pupil stations, inc. using a school site, building or furnishings," he said.

No figure as to what the fee would be for a new home was stated during the talk. Navitsky and school board attorney Douglas Sands explained that this is because the fee would vary according to a formula contained in the ordinance. That formula would take into account the type of housing, location and a number of other factors, and he said each year public hearings would be conducted to establish new figures for the formula.

He said the impact fee is needed, "because we don't ever again want to be facing the situation we did several years ago (before the bond issued was approved)."

Sewall's Point engineer to draw bicycle path specs

BY CATHIE FARAGO

In the wake of the recent death of an FIT student who was killed by a motorist while riding his bike on SR 707 in Jensen Beach, the importance of a much needed bike path was driven home to many area residents.

At a recent Sewall's Point town commission meeting, discussion on the subject was held to determine the cost of a bike path that would extend from Harbor Bay Plaza to FIT. Town Engineer Richard Hallstrom estimated a three-foot wide path will cost $4.50 a linear foot for concrete pavement, bringing the total cost to $35,000 for the mile and a half long pavement. The path, tentatively planned for the west side of North Sewall's Point Road will be done in stages beginning at Harbor Bay Plaza. Since only $10,000 has been set aside in this year's budget for the path, Mayor Ed Gluckler suggested work be done in half-mile increments, or as far beyond that as the $10,000 may go.

Hopefully, the council plans to finish work on the project within the next two years. It was moved that Hallstrom prepare bids specifications on the first segment of the path so that clearing can begin as soon as possible.

Gluckler told Hallstrom to let him know as soon as the specifications are ready for bidding. "I'll call a special meeting if necessary," he said.

If all goes according to plan, the county will get the needed right-of-ways from the remaining property owners to continue the path north of the town line to the Jensen Beach causeway. This year alone, of the twelve traffic fatalities in the county, at least three of those have been bicycle related accidents.

Gluckler presently owns the board a letter he drafted to both the Department of Environmental Regulation and Environmental Protection Agency stating why he remained opposed to the City of Stuart's request for a four million gallon per day outfall of sewage to be emptied into the St. Lucie River. So far, DER has approved the permit, however city officials are still waiting for word from EPA. Sewall's Point commissioners were in agreement that any halting of the project must be done soon, before the second and final approval is received. Gluckler, who feels that Stuart is taking the line of least resistance, was joined in sentiment by most of the commissioners who agreed the letter should be sent as soon as possible.

A representative from Perry Cable TV was at the meeting to discuss the rate increase to eight dollars.

Jim Meador, general manager of Perry Cable, listened to Mayor Ed Gluckler's comments about the many complaints he'd received in the past about the system, saying that "over the years, I've developed a tough skin." Meador responded by saying that cable television is a highly vulnerable business when it comes to customer service and that people are not willing to accept even brief denials when it comes to TV. He added that the normal two hundred calls per day are upped to eight hundred when the bills go out but admitted that "we still have a problem."

Commissioner Bill Barton asked "with the rate increase, what enhancement to the community can be expected," to which Meador answered not only will there be a twenty four hour dispatching service, but Perry Cable will be upgrading their present twelve-channel system to twenty-six this fall. Unfortunately, many conventional television sets do not have a capacity for this many stations, and therefore set-type converters, which can be attached to the back of a set, will be made available, for a price, to the general public.

Meador seemed to defend the system by saying that "we are operating in Martin County at a deficit." He further reasoned that there is presently a strain on the cable operation due to the fact that it's being built all over the country, creating a "bad case of supply and demand." He said equipment recently purchased by the company is now taking a minimum of six months to receive.

Amid some skepticism from both the audience and commissioners, Meador ended by saying "hopefully, within a year, you're going to have beautiful pictures. I give you my word, we're not going to let you down."

Awards Night at FIT will be held Thursday

Florida Institute of Technology's Awards Night ceremony for the Jensen Beach campus will be held on Thursday, may 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Francis Langford Evinrude Little Theatre.

Forty-two members of the Alpha Epsilon honor society will be initiated by Dr. William Hagan. Academic awards will be presented to outstanding students in humanities, chemistry, biology, physics, mathematics, diving and ocean project. Awards will also be made to students in each major and several scholarships from the community will be presented. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Turtle watches will begin on June 12

Annual Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce turtle watches will begin on June 13-15 and 14 with a three night series of watches, directed by Naturalist Society students at Florida Institute of Technology. It was announced this week by Dennis Doyle, executive secretary of the Chamber. Watches would be held each week, depending upon the interest shown.

Doyle said that coordination of the program by the FIT students had reached the point that they would begin holding the weekly turtle watches "as soon as final examinations are over."

Registration of the turtle watchers will be held at the Chamber of Commerce in Jensen Beach on Commercial Street. The number of people to be conducted on a watch will be limited to 30, according to the FIT Naturalist Society.

Doyle said that the Chamber hopes to have brochures printed before the first turtle watch date. The watches would be held each week by the Naturalist Society of FIT during the months of June and July, the peak months of turtle nesting.

The giant turtles, loggerheads, green and trunkback, weigh up to 300 pounds. They crawl ashore and dig a nest, with their flippers. Then they lay up to 140 eggs in the nest. When the female turtle covers the nest it is difficult to remember where the nest actually was.

The giant turtles are among the last of the prehistoric beasts that once roamed the world. Jensen Beach is the center of the effort to maintain the sea turtle life cycle. Many eggs are taken to be hatched at the local sea turtle and management Florida Marine Research Laboratory, operated by the Department of Natural Resources. There, they are raised to an age that offers greater chances of survival, and are then released in the ocean after being tagged.

The sight of a turtle nesting has been a great attraction to Jensen Beach in the summer time, and has been responsible for making Jensen Beach "The Sea Turtle Capital of the World."

Alliance praises Witham for research on sea turtles

Ross Witham, head of the sea turtle research station on the Jensen Beach Causeway, got a pat on the back for a job well done from the Martin County Conservation Alliance.

During an alliance meeting last Friday, John McQuigg noted that due to recent changes in the administration of the state Department of Natural Resources, "perhaps it's time we should let them know we're proud of the research going on here."

The former head of the DNR, Harmon Shields, dismissed a few months ago when allegations were brought against him over improper land purchases. The new head of the DNR is Dr. Elton Gissendanner.

McQuigg apparently felt that since Dr. Gissendanner is new to the job and does not know the history of many on going projects, he should be told that Witham is highly appreciated here.

"Ross Witham has done an outstanding job of research," Mc Quigg said, adding that Witham's research, as well as the Jensen Chamber of Commerce sponsored sea turtle watches, "have become local institutions."

The Alliance voted unanimously to authorize McQuigg to write Dr. Gissendanner to praise the work of Witham.

Fire Department reports Evinrude home close call

A brush fire came within about 30 feet of the Hutchinson Island home of Ralph and Frances Evinrude Monday afternoon, but was put out by Jensen Beach firemen before it endangered the home.

Jensen Fire Chief Joe Luciano said he is not sure how the fire got started, but did note that conditions are very dry throughout the county and issued a plea for citizens to be careful with fires and cigarettes.

The fire was reported at 3:45 p.m. and Luciano arrived a short time later. "I used an extinguisher to knock the fire down, then the men in the trucks arrived and put it out," the chief said.

Luciano commented that had the fire not been reported sooner, the Evinrude house could have been in real danger. "The fire was working its way toward the house and got close to some thick vegetation that could have made it bad," he said.

The department responded to the call with five trucks and 14 men and had the fire out in about 15 minutes.

On last Thursday, May 15, a home was damaged by a fire. Luciano reports that a fire started in the bedroom of a home owned by Cheryl Murray, 2771 N.E. Savanna Road.

A five year-old child apparently left a hairdryer on in the bedroom and it ignited a bed. Smoke damage was labeled "considerable," according to Luciano. He said three Jensen trucks and two Rio Fire trucks responded to the fire call, which came in at 12:29 p.m.

ALL SMILES-Brian Wachs was all smiles as he rocked gently in a swing during a recent visit to Langford Park. He took to the swing while his dad got in a workout on the handball courts. The park offers a wide variety of recreational facilities, and some local folks are hoping the park can be expanded to offer even more facilities for the athletically inclined. A story and photo page on the park is in today's issue of The Mirror. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

BLANKET MORTGAGES

QUESTION: The buyer of my property has asked me to take back a ——me money, second mortgage. However, he is unwilling to pledge any additional collateral or to obtain a cosigner for the note. He has explained that he will give me a "blanket mortgage" on another property that he owns. Would you explain what a blanket mortgage is? Also, what should I look out for if I take one?

ANSWER: A blanket mortgage is a device for pledging more than one property to secure a promissory note. For example, if you took back a $20,000 mortgage in connection with the sale of your property at 10 Main Street, you would receive a note promising to pay you $20,000. The note would also set forth the interest rate and repayment terms. To guarantee the payment of the note, you would receive a mortgage pledging the property that you are selling — just as you would with a conventional mortgage.

With a blanket mortgage, you also receive a mortage on another property the buyer owns — say 20 Main Street. The blanket mortgage says, in effect, that if there's a default you can look not only to the equity in 10 Main Street but also to the equity in 20 Main Street.

Be sure that there is sufficient equity in both properties to satisfy repayment of the note after any losses incurred through foreclosure.

IRCC Itinerary

Contribution is a funny thing. It is not the size or importance of the contribution that matters; it is the spirit of the giving. Many people at Indian River Community College are deserving of recognition for their achievements, but there is one individual and one group at the college who contribute so wholeheartedly that they deserve special notice.

FRED MESSNER, IRCC PHOTOGRAPHER

Honored earlier this Spring with the President's Cup award for outstanding service to the college, Fred Messner, the IRCC photographer has recently received another sort of recognition. His color photo of the St. Lucie River was featured in the latest issue of a German travel magazine, "Merian," which is comparable to the National Geographic in America. It seems that the editors were touring this state gathering information for an edition about Florida, when they stopped at the Outrigger Resort in Jensen Beach. One thing led to another, someone mentioned that Messner had some nice shots of the Jensen Beach area. Messner submitted some slides, and the result is a two-page full color picture of the lovely Treasure Coast palm-treed waterways. Widely circulated in Europe, the magazine uses Messner's photo to show the unspoiled beauty of our area.

SKILLS DEVELOPMENT CENTER

One group at IRCC that makes a genuine contribution to our community is the Skills Development Center. The purpose and goal of the Center is vocational rehabilitation -- all of the students enrolled are either physically or emotionally handicapped, and are unable to obtain and hold employment in the competitive job market. Counselors at the Center evaluate the student's problems, skills, and interests, and then use a classroom and workshop setting to help the students develop useful work habits and abilities.

The only community college in Florida to offer a workshop program, IRCC makes it work by providing bus transportation to the college from each of the four counties in its service area. Although the students in the program are referred by the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, the Center maintains the workshop, not as a state-supported service, but as a paying business. Jobs such as packaging, simple assembly, benchwork, industrial sewing, sorting, mailing, and collating are accepted on a contractual basis, and like any successful business, the Center guarantees a good product with good quality at a fair price. Those enrolled at the workshop are paid for their work based on productivity. Of the approximate 300 people who go through the center each year, about 85 per cent are successfully employed off-campus once they have completed their individualized rehabilitation programs. This statistic is especially remarkable when you consider that the Center deals with chronically unemployed persons, most of whom have not worked at a job in the previous two years. For handicapped persons who are depressed or who have major emotional adjustments to make, the workshop may provide the first successful experience that they have had in years.

The Center workshop is eager to bid on contracts for jobs, area businesses that have a large quantity of piece work may find it profitable to use the services of the IRCC Skills Development Center. For more information, call the IRCC Main Campus extension 288.

ADULT HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

The Continuing Education Division at IRCC announced that seventeen IRCC Adult High School students are graduating this Spring. The graduates include: Russell Ira Baringer, Ft. Pierce; John Joseph Baum, Jensen Beach; Robert LaVictor Carter, Ft. Pierce; Susan Eileen Dixon, Ft. Pierce; Isabelle McDowell Gamble, Ft. Pierce; Robert Lee Green, Ft. Pierce; Mark Joseph Kubler, Ft. Pierce; Saverio Massary, Sunnyvale, Cal.; Stephanie Kyle Morgan, Ft. Pierce; Michael Alan Palmer, Ft. Pierce; Edward Michael Pautenis, Ft. Pierce; Todd Lawton Perkins, Ft. Pierce; Alice M. Pritchard, Ft. Pierce; Barry K. Rauch, Ft. St. Lucie; Bonnie Ellen Rolle, Ft. Pierce; Michael L. Smith, Ft. Pierce; and Cherie L. Snead, Ft. Pierce.

NURSING ASSISTANT PROGRAM OFFERED

Interviews and registration for a new Nursing Assistant Program at IRCC will be held in Room J-128 on Thursday, May 29, from 9 a.m. to noon. Classes will begin Monday, June 9, and will meet daily Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The courses, to be held at the Main Campus and the Lawnwood Medical Center, will be offered on an non-credit basis, and a certificate will be issued for successful completion. For more information, call the IRCC Guidance Office, extension 323.

DID YOU KNOW...

Did you know that you can use the IRCC Learning Resources Center even if you are not a student at the college? Your county public library card is sufficient to check books out from the college library, and the variety of resource materials, publications, and audio-visual equipment is available for your enjoyment. Come by and check out what the IRCC Learning Resources Center has for you!

Ellis find days are busy at PSL Auto Parts

Pam and Don Ellis look like many other married young couples.

They live in a nice house, have a family of four children, and probably worry about the rising food costs like everyone else.

The only difference between the Ellises and many others, is that when they leave for work in the morning at different hours, the rendezvous at the Port St. Lucie Auto Parts Store to share in the work load of the business they've recently started.

Their business is not only selling a wide range of auto parts, but offering what they hope will one day be a full service center. To reach that end, they have incorporated into their operation a radiator shop as well as a garage, which is run by Don. Additionally, they have an agreement with a local towing service offering discount rates to customers.

The idea to open a complete service store is one that Don has been thinking about for many years while he was working as a mechanic. Now, Pam says that her husband is so pleased with their business venture that he would work twenty-four hours a day. With six full time employees and a grand opening going on this week it's taking almost that much time to get things in order.

Pam is very involved in the business as well, and though she admits "I'd like to be a mechanic, she says that "They won't let me out there." Instead, she devotes her efforts handling the bookkeeping system as well as helping out in retail sales.

Walking into the garage located behind the store is like walking into an intensive care unit at a hospital. Huge computers looking something like heart monitors, dominate the area, and one almost expects someone to put a cuff on you and take your blood pressure. Instead, these computers take your car and give an analysis readout of the problem, as well as a number of other things.

Don's life is very much centered around cars. Not only does he repair them, but collects them as well. He's proud of the '48 Duhonair he owns, as well as the '66 Mustang Pam drives. Pam shares his interest in cars and occasionally drives their restored Corvette, although her dream is not to own a Model T, but a Maserati.

In keeping with the professional motto of the cobblers children going barefoot, Pam says that their mechanical problems come after the customers. She merely shrugs it off, adding that it's unfortunate how a few crooked mechanics ran and have given the entire profession a bad name.

She and her husband have set out to rectify that in the area and hope to do well enough that some time in the future, they will be able to add both an auto electrical and paint and body shop to their automotive center. Until then, they'll continue raising their four children, worrying about today's inflated prices, and rendezvousing at the Port St. Lucie Auto Parts Store.

Campoli, LaFlair grab top spots in Pro-Am tourney

The golfers who have dominated the spotlite in recent pro-am events staged at Mariner Sands CC, and Sandpiper Bay Resort took a "rumble seat" ride this week as a pair of the young lions shared the honors at Stuart's Mariner Sands Golf and Country Club Friday.

Phil Campoli, assistant to Jay Pyle at Crane Creek CC, put his shots together for an even par 72 to take solo pro honors over the perfectly "manicured" 18 hole championship layout.

Jay J. LaFlair, an assistant pro at the Sandpiper Resort, walked off with the second pro prize with a two over 74, while the veteran Cliff Sottergren of Ft. Pierce, Jay Pyle of Crane Creek, and Rick Dustrych of Boca Del Mar turned in like cards of 75.

With 27 four man teams in competition, including the same number of pros and 81 amateurs, a team headed by Fred Pacacha, head pro at Stuart Yacht and CC, won all the marbles for first place in the Two Best of Four Ball event with a 21 under score of 123. His amateur partners included Jim Dow, Sam Zinaich and Chuck Alfrey.

Taking away the runnerup spot in the team play was the team of Pro Tom Asoff of Heritage CC and amateurs Frank and Jack Eiler of Jensen Beach and Carl Schulze, Hobe Sound. Third place in the team event found Campoli leading Pat Bottoff, Ed Fletcher and Bob Madyda.

The shots produced by Campoli and LaFlair proved that time on the practice range "pays off." Both young men are ardent golfers with promising futures. Campoli has the distinction of having caddied for Johnnie Miller when Miller scorched the courses for record victories. He is a native of Philadelphia, Pa. while LaFlair, who played with tour star Wayne Levi, hails from Herkimer, N.Y.

Rainwater explains Veterans' benefits

An estimated 584,000 World War I and Mexican Border campaign veterans in Florida are now eligible for outpatient care (except dental treatement) at Veterans Administration clinics without regard to whether the medical problem is related to their military service.

Carlos L. Rainwater, Acting Director of the St. Petersburg VA Regional Office, said legislation signed by President Carter in December will enable these veterans not needing bed care to avoid hospitalization if they can be treated effectively as outpatients.

Veterans of that period already had the right to treatment for non-service connected conditions as bed patients in VA medical centers.

There are some 400,000 veterans who served during the periods to which the new provision applies.

The legislation, known as the Veterans Health Programs Extension and Improvement Act of 1979, also expands the eligibility of veterans served by VA outpatient clinics to receive government-paid emergency care at non-VA hospitals, Mr. Rainwater said.

The law gives VA the authority to contract for such care when the eligible veteran patient is at a clinic where there is no nearby VA medical center and there is a serious threat to his life or health. VA could pay for this kind of care previously in much more limited circumstances involving only veterans with service connected disabilities.

Other provisions of the 1979 act are: Eligibility for care under VA's Civilian Health and Medical Program, called CHAMPVA, was extended to the spouse or child of individuals who died on active duty who is not eligible for Medicare or the military CHAMPUS program.

Medical benefits for up to two years before VA is authorized to pay more than $500 to a non-VA dentist for a veteran's dental care in any 12-month period. A VA dentist must first determine that the care is necessary.

Rainwater urged veterans having questions about the expanded benefits under the new law to contact the nearest VA medical center or regional office or one of the National Veterans service organizations in their community.

Our open door policy starts here.

It starts with John O'Neill, manager of our Northside office. His door is always open. If you need help with your banking, come in and talk to him. Or Carl Mihaly. Or Dave Skiles. Or Charlie Paul. As Stuart National managers, their doors are always open, too.

With five full-service offices all over town, and more coming, no matter where you are, you're near Stuart National. When you bank at one office, you can bank at all. And, you spend less time and use less gas getting there. That's important, with today's skyrocketing gas prices.

People like John O'Neill make our open door policy work. Like all our managers, he's there when you need him, treating you as a friend and neighbor as well as a customer.

So come to Stuart National. Our doors are open all over town.

Trinity honored Mrs. Bloom

A reception was given by the congregation of Trinity United Methodist Church, last Sunday evening, May 18, to honor Mrs. Alva Bloom, Music Director, who is retiring.

Mrs. Bloom has been the Music Director of Trinity for the past five years, and through her ability and efforts has developed the choir into one of the best in the county.

A special gift was presented to Mrs. Bloom during the reception in appreciation for her devotion and service to Trinity. During the morning Worship Services, Mrs. Bloom was given special recognition by the choir. The choir was also honored during the reception.

Summertime begins

The deluge last week was just what the doctor ordered' sure things will green-up in summertime splendor and the lawn mowers will start chattering again. But even so, don't waste the precious water.

Cable TV may cost more in OBP than just around the corner, as the new rates approved for the county are $7.75, but the park sure has the edge on the electric rates, ask anyone. Florida Power and Light would like to buy the park system, so they could put in their own meters and charge the county wide rate with a $3.50 service charge when up north, but the management has refused many good offers to sell out, even though they could save money on maintenance, equipment and salaries of Jack Bowden and Jack Heston.

Hurricane season starts June 1st, and some newcomers, seeing the destruction of the tornado in Michigan last week, began to ask questions. One very important difference, hurricanes can be tracked and their course predicted, so there is always ample warning, not like those vicious tornados that can destroy a whole community before the word gets out.

Civil Defense will probably have movies and talks on what to do in a hurricane, but for now, folks who are leaving should button up as tight as possible and not leave any loose objects around to be blown at 200 miles per hour into some person or mobile home.

Not too long ago, folks with a flat full of silver dollars were elated, they were worth $35 each, or more. Then, the other day, some of these same folks found that $4.25 hearing aid batteries were now $9.50. The shoe was on the other foot, and it pinched.

RAMBLING AROUND

Walter and Alva Scott, 15 Matalecca Dr., who came down here for visits from Cape May in 1955 and to live in 1966, had their daughter Carol Slavin, from Somerville, N.J. for a visitor over Mother's Day. Alva called daughter shortly before Mother's Day and was asked what she would like best. Alva said, "See you." So, Carol said OK, I'll fly down tomorrow, and she did. And, they both had a wonderful Mother's Day.

Andy Sherkey, 19 Key Lime came to OBP in 1959, but was unable to return from the north this winter. He is happy and comfortable, still panting away, in a convalescent home, according to Andy's sister-in-law, Florence Swierkowski, 2108 176th Pl., Lansing, Ill. 60438.

Harry and Jeannie Jewsberry, 10 Mango St. came down here from Niles, Mich., where they go back to in the summer. However, this year before going north, their grandson, Rick McClain flew down for a short vacation from his work with the Nursing Home Advocacy Program. Jeannie said they both worked like the dickens around the place, then Jeannie cooked up some of those meals she is famous for.

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Vi Watts, exOBPer, 6th and Banyan, wrote to Marion Curwen from Beverly, Mass. saying that she met Ruth Moore at airport and her area is beautiful with all the spring flowers. Vi enclosed "Salem Senior Power" magazine, listing hundreds of senior activities, that she wished we had in Florida.

Ethel Rafuse, exOBPer, 8 NE 5th Ave., wrote to Marion C. from Meredith, N.H. saying, weather not too bad, not very cold but lots of clouds and rain, however, she has been able to plant some swiss chard and sugar peas, and asked about renting a trailer for next year, so maybe OBP is the place for her after, all.

Dick and Julia Aumiller, 1 Indian River Dr. wrote to Ellen Nixon from Port Royal, Penn. saying trip north was OK, beautiful weather, but the traffic, WOW! hundreds of trucks roaring by, never again! Julia says it's "a dull, damp, showery day," but, Dick was cleaning up the flower beds. They have seen all their family and got acquainted with the new senior center, so they are ready for an enjoyable summer.

Rausy Mathews, 20 SW 7th St. writes to Ellen Nixon, from Kent City, Mich., saying she has seen all her family and they are all well. Same weather complaint as all the other early birds, "First day the sun had been out." Rausy reports the men are busy planting 6000 cherry and peach trees, as they expect a good crop this year.

Art and Sue Bygd, SW 6th St. wrote to Ellen Nixon from Bayesville, Wisc. saying for a change, it is nice and warm, almost 80 today. They have seen all their family and most are very well and they got evchance to see their great grandchildren. Sue says they have lots of Jonquils and May flowers in banks, that are very beautiful.

VENTURE HARBOUR NEWS

First summer pot luck was held on Thursday evening, May 15, at the rec hall with 29 people attending. Food was good and fellowship was very good. It was decided to continue pot luck during the summer on Thursday. If you are in the park during the summer you are invited to sign up in the office and join in the fun. Plans are in the works for some good recreational happy times.

Venture Harbourites extend their sympathy to Betty and Al Jones in the loss of Al's brother in Alabama. Betty returned from their stay in Melbourne with a bug and she was laid low for quite some time. However, she recouped enough to entertain a nephew and his family. Fran Tener has overnight guests. Long time friends, Esther and Pete Delohery were on their way home to Washington, D.C. from their winter home in Boca Raton and they stopped off in Venture Harbour to visit.

A letter from Barbara Clark said that Stanley stood the trip home to Conn very well. They have been baby sitting with three grandchildren while their mother had a hospital stay.

Catherine Higgins is home from the hospital and we're happy to report that she is improving.

Winnie Widlake had a letter from Lou and Jack Elliot, who also had a safe trip home to Canada.

The rain of Thursday evening, May 15, was a welcome one, but wish it had been at a different time and hadn't been so much of a downpour just as we were trying to get to the hall to start the pot luck. However, it cleared up by 6:00 p.m. and it was a lovely evening and the grass looks greener than Friday morning.

Again, the same old cry, we can't put news in the column if we don't hear from each and everyone of you, both in the park and away from here.

VENTURE OUT AT ST. LUCIE

When Joe and Dorothy Huston put Grandma Billings on a plane headed for her home in Michigan last Tuesday with arrangements for her granddaughter to meet her at the Chicago airport and accompany her to Kalamazoo, they didn't count on the Terrible Tornado hitting that city at 4:00 p.m. Fortunately, the granddaughter's call to the Hustons saying they had arrived safely was in the original plan. But, when they heard the tornado had arrived only one half hour after grand-daughter's trip they were thankful for being spared a family tragedy.

Doris Day, who has been in Martin Memorial Hospital for two weeks is being taken by medical flight to her home in Syracuse. We are glad to hear she is in her usual good spirits and join in best wishes for her birthday coming up soon. Cards may be sent to the following address: c-o Leona Lathrop, 48-1 Ponderosa Street, Syracuse, New York, 13213.

VENTURE OUT AT INDIAN RIVER

We have a new "baby" in the park. The Frank Lawsons have a new Airstream trailer. They have embarked on another of their tours of our great country which will include meeting with an Airstream Caravan.

Bette Joseph is recuperating from a bad knee sprain. Hopefully, she will soon be able to hobble down to the pool for her daily swim.

Bob and Marilyn Wilson and their children will soon be leaving the park. They will be making their home in South Carolina.

Mary Spizak is off on another of her little jaunts, but will be back in the park on the first of June.

Kitty and Ernie Hufnagel have moved from Stagray Drive to Snook Street in Venture Harbour.

Kilroy's Legion

Happy birthday, American Legion.

There are so many people and organizations that owe such a salutation and good wishes to the American Legion; so many that it is difficult to list them.

We might start with the many veterans who owe their benefits to the strong legislative efforts of the national Legion, and the continuing effort through lobbying in Congress.

We might add the many youth activities, including boy and girl staters who get a boost from learning about their government, and the voice of democracy youngsters who learn Americanism and public speaking through the program, and the youngsters who move into American Legion baseball in a difficult age.

There are many organizations benefiting through donations that come from fund-raising bingo games conducted by volunteer legionnaires doing community service work.

The American Legion in Jensen Beach has been an important part of community life in this area. However, the legionnaires need more veterans to add to their ranks, especially Korean and Viet Nam vets who should be relieving the World War Two vets who have carried the Legion ball for so many years.

We ask all veterans to seek membership in the Legion.

And, we ask the community to turn out for the Legion Open House, planned for this Saturday at the post home on South Savanna Road.

And, for the good they do, and what they stand for, we salute the American Legion.

Death stalks bike path need

An FIT student's death lends added impetus to the need for more bike paths along the narrow Jensen Beach roads. The bike path is an idea whose time has come.

Perhaps now the people of District One will accept the high cost of a bike path system through the community, and encourage the county commission to finance the project.

A considerable amount of right of way is now under negotiation or is in the hands of the county. More is needed, and should be given to allow the county to proceed with what construction it can achieve with whatever funds are available.

A small amount of bike path construction would at least offer that much protection as we reach for more in the future.

We do not need more death to arouse the public to the need.

Fireworks fund needs donation

The Jensen Beach Fireworks Committee is made up of many men and women who volunteer their time and talent to provide the people of this area, and many visitors, with an outstanding fireworks exhibition.

The show costs $5,000. It is valued at more than double that cost because the volunteers do much work that would run up the cost. The $5,000 pays for just fireworks.

We hope that the people of this area will join in donating to the fireworks fund. To donate, send a check to: Fireworks Fund, Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, Jensen Beach, Fl. 33457.

Stuart's sewage

When the City of Stuart proposed a deep well injection system of sewage disposal, The Mirror opposed the idea. Environmentalists applauded the idea. They didn't like the alternative of dumping the treated effluent into the St. Lucie River.

A half-million dollars later, the deep well injection plan doesn't work. It hasn't worked, and has been a source of both embarrassment and frustration to both the City of Stuart administration and the elected officials.

We do not want to say "We told you so," as the problem with sewage disposal is a major concern and is not a measure for humor. We opposed both the deep-well injection and the dumping of effluent into the St. Lucie River.

In keeping with our policy of offering an alternative, rather than just criticizing, our recommendation to the City of Stuart was to move to aerial spray irrigation of the nutrient-rich effluent.

The city could have the greenest parks in Florida. The properly treated effluent could be used to water grassy areas, and even be pumped to the groves in nearby Palm City and Indiantown.

If the fresh water from Lake Okeechobee can be used to irrigate groves through a network of canals and pumps, so, also, could the sewage water be used to do the same.

Some would say that the idea is not practical due to the high cost of moving the water. We would counter with the fact that the City of Stuart certainly didn't expect to spend half a million dollars on a well that doesn't work.

Aerial spray irrigation offers a return of nutrients to the soil and evaporation of water into the air. It would be the natural answer to a man-made problem.

It is the only alternative.

Thoughtful vein of life

On the radio and television these days, all eyes and ears have been attuned to the mass influx of Cubans and Haitians into south Florida — a flood of frightened people seeking haven, but mostly seeking that precious commodity unknown under a dictatorship — freedom.

Of course, it wasn't surprising to me to see among the crowds watching the refugees land a white sheet or two — the Klan deserves dark favor of any hue and makes no attempt to see beneath the color. But I was surprised, and a little shocked, to see and hear Cuban people from Miami among the protesters. Where were they, nearly 20 years ago, but on the other end of the receiving line?

The negative attitude toward the Haitians, however, is the one that bothers me the greatest. The Cubans have been getting an overabundance of help from American boat owners, and even from the Castro regime which boasts about cleaning out its mental and moral debris on our shores. The Haitians, in my opinion, deserve the biggest possible share of our help and compassion. These people, with no help at all, are braving the almost suicidal rigors of a trip over uncharted waters in small open boats to escape the pressure of the Duvalier heel.

People who say we have no room for these determined immigrants are forgetting one thing — the same was said when the Irish famine drove thousands of Irish into our country — they forget that thriving and productive communities have been established by German immigrants descending "alarmingly" on our shores before and after nearly every war here and abroad.

Perhaps, in the course of our own personal involvements which tend toward isolationism, we've forgotten the big sign on our front door, the Statue of Liberty. Written by poet Emma Lazarus, it proclaims:

"Give me your tired, your poor,
"Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free.
"The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
"Send these, the homeless, tempest tossed, to me;
"I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

The meaning of that promise is iterated in a recent copy of "The Net," Florida publication for the Episcopal Church, in an editorial by Bishop Calvin O. Schofield. He writes:

"It is obvious to the most casual observer of current affairs that something is terribly wrong with a foreign policy that permits immigration from some countries but not others. Ballet dancers and athletes are routinely encouraged to defect from communist countries. Thousands of Iranians entered the United States after the shameful takeover of the American embassy in Tehran. How can this be? Hundreds of Cuban political prisoners are being escorted into Florida on comfortable airliners, while thousands of Haitians brave ocean exposure and certain death to arrive here on boats, rafts, and anything that will float. How can this be?

"The government officials tell us that because President Jean Claude Duvalier is a 'friend' of America it would be a breach of foreign policy to extend any form of welcome to the Haitian refugees.

"Let it be known that many Western nations, most notably Great Britain, have publicly pronounced immigrantee quotas as of "coloureds," and have served notice that their gates are closed to blacks. Could it be that America is seeking induction into this exclusive Hall of Shame? Does the American government mean to say that we too have enough blacks? The shameful way we are treating the Haitian boat people indicates this notion.

"The Church will not define the foreign policy for our nation but as guardians of human dignity, justice and peace we have a solemn obligation to protect the basic human rights of anyone who finds himself in our midst. Though we have not sought out or encouraged these black people to come to us, they are here, and Christ calls on us to care for them in His Name.

"As individuals, we can write our congressmen and President expressing our concern and prayer for a speedy resolution of the Haitian status problem. As congregations we can collect food, clothing and other house hold articles or whatever else is needed for the Haitian refugees now within our cities (United Way or local Haitian relief agencies can help with the distribution.) As a diocese, we can petition the Executive Council and Presiding Bishop to allocate money to the poorest of the poor in Southeast Florida.

"The government can do us a favor and issue work permits to the immigrants so that they may become gainfully employed and not be a tax burden.

"The Net regrets that the world's problems have encroached upon our daily consciousness and have ruined our level of awareness of human sorrow to a point of almost anesthetizing us from empathy. Could it be that what we see is simply more evidence of the need for God's people to care for and serve a suffering world which God's Son was content to die for?

Could it be that we've forgotten we are a nation of immigrants? My great great great grandfather was an immigrant, persecuted by the English, when he first put foot on American soil and the only real natives were Indians. On another side, my great great grandfather was a French Huguenot, escaping from the French regime. And others were Quakers, seeking haven from religious oppression. We all have this responsibility to the memory of our ancestors who came looking to America for that "golden door."

Or could it be that, as the Bishop put it so nicely, we feel prejudice against blacks, and would rather not allow them the same freedom of choice our ancestors had. Perhaps it is a case of:

Dark skinned brother, passing by,
I dare not look you in the eye.
Your glances mark me overmuch
With Herod's heart and Judas touch.

So I proscribe, for my salvation,
Your eternal condemnation.

Dick Campbell

They finally did it

We were sitting around the Chamber of Commerce office back in 1964, grousing about the problems of trying to run a Chamber of Commerce by committees.

"There are too many committees," Don Wilkie said. "We had better get some streamlining around here."

Al Palmer looked around and said, "Maybe we should look at the constitution and bylaws. Perhaps it is time to update them and streamline the Chamber's operation."

Al is a former association manager, having been the head of the very powerful hotel and restaurant association in Florida, and that association's chief lobbyist in Tallahassee. He had retired to Jensen Beach, opened Palmer's Variety Store where Pinsky's Optical is now, and soon was active in the Chamber.

I sat there musing, and an idea came.

"Why don't we form a committee to study committees," I said without a smile.

Wilkie thoughtfully considered it for a full ten seconds before looking up at me with a frown, and saying, Campbell, you're impossible."

It was good for a laugh, and we ended up forming that committee anyway, and the results of the research and evaluation cut the number of committees in the Chamber in half.

This memory came to mind when I read last week about the effort of the U.S. House of Representatives to reduce the number of subcommittees in that august body. The House spent $800,000 to accomplish nothing.

No one likes to give up power. A subcommittee is power, and payroll. You add subcommittees, not reduce the number of them.

There are now almost 200 subcommittees in the House. Concerned about the number, and the cost of keeping that much staff, a conservative group of Republicans and some Democrats last many of those got the House leadership to appoint another committee, called the "Select Committee on Committees."

(See, Don, we were 16 years ahead of them!)

The committee was charged with the responsibility of streamlining sub committees.

For example, on energy alone, there are 24 committee and subcommittee chairmen who would have lost their piece of energy action if the recommendations of the select committee to form one energy committee had been taken.

However, after all the maneuvering, the House did assign primary responsibility of energy to the Commerce Committee while leaving all 24 other pieces in energy intact.

That was the closest thing to success that the $800,000 bought.

In another attempt, the select committee sought to limit the number of committees that a congressman could serve on, and to limit the number of subcommittees under each full committee to six. That measure didn't even make it to the House floor.

Believe it or not, the Select Committee on Narcotics has fourteen subcommittees. Those fourteen subcommittees are headed by fourteen Democratic congressmen who wouldn't want to see their power (and staff, and budget) cut by some streamlining.

Of course, the Republicans, not being subcommittee chairmen, are in favor of the reform, as are some conservative Democrats who do not hold such powerful posts.

The best part of the $800,000 job done by the Select Committee on Committees was a recommendation to remodel part of the Capitol for more office space for the congressmen. It was defeated by congressmen who complained that it would be a waste of money.

Perhaps if the Congress did what Don and Al and I did the Select Subcommittee on Committees would have accomplished something.

We didn't spend any money to reduce our committees.

Bike path suggestions

The communities of Jensen Beach and Rio were shocked and saddened by the recent death of Cruz Marvel, a 24 year-old Venezuelan attending the Florida Institute of Technology campus in Jensen.

Marvel was riding his bicycle on SR 707 near the Rick Carroll Insurance agency when he was hit by a pick-up truck. He was the third bicyclist to die on local roadways within the last six months.

Marvel's death brought about renewed calls for bicycle paths.

Though the Sewall's Point town commissioners had budgeted $10,000 for a bike path last year, before any of the bicyclists died, there seemed to be more of an urgency to get the project underway when commissioners met last week.

The town plans to build a path along North Sewall's Point Road from A1A to FIT, a distance of about a mile and a half. The commissioners are hopeful they can build approximately half a mile of the path this year and the other two half miles in the next two years.

It would be nice if the town could get the path built sooner but the cost of building the entire path in one year seems to be too much for the town budget.

And, compared to the progress being made by the county to build a bike path from FIT to the Jensen Beach Causeway, the town's path may be long before the county's is.

The town has no right-of-way problems blocking construction of its path. The county does have right-of-way problems. Some land owners along Indian River Drive between FIT and the causeway have donated right-of-way. But many others haven't. Before the entire length of the path from FIT to the causeway can be built, the necessary right-of-way will either have to be donated or bought, and if it comes to buying it, the cost will no doubt be another factor adding to the time between now and the time the path is built.

In last week's column, Dick Campbell said action, not talk or petitions, is needed if the bike paths are to be built.

I've thought about his comments, and have come up with a few ideas that might help speed things up, and maybe make bicycling safer between now and the time they're built.

First, in the cases where bike paths exist, signs need to be posted directing bicyclists to them. There is a bike path along Sunview Road from Skyline Drive to Savanna Road, but since it's a block off the beaten path of Commercial Street, there may be some bicyclists who don't know it exists. A sign on Confluential directing bicyclists to the path would help. Also, for bicyclists traveling through Rio, there are some back roads that, in several places, parallel SR 707. For instance, you can take the road leading to WSTU from SR 707, then turn left onto Aiken Avenue and follow it west to a point near the Anchorage Marina.

Farther west, you can depart from SR 707 on Rhodes Avenue and take it to River Court, then go down that road to Hillcrest Lane before returning to SR 707. Though no bike paths exist along these routes, maybe signs could be posted stating they're safer than SR 707.

Second, perhaps a committee of volunteers could be formed to go knocking on the doors of the property owners along Indian River Drive who have not yet donated right-of-way, to see if they would donate it.

Thirdly, why not build paths on the sections where right-of-way has been donated. Maybe there is not enough money to build them all at once, but surely there is enough money in county coffers to get a start on them. I saw the small crew of men who built the path along Sunview Road last year. They used shovels to dig out the path, then made forms, installed wire, and once the concrete was poured, worked the concrete to smoothness. It didn't seem like complicated labor and I would not be too surprised if volunteers, perhaps members of the recently-formed bike club at FIT, could be found to at least get the path ready for concrete. I'd even be willing to put some time in with a shovel.

Still another thing that would, no doubt, help, is money. If the county can't come up with the necessary money to get paths built soon, then it just may be time to start a fund drive. I'm sure there are a lot of folks in our communities who feel the lives in six months is too steep a price to pay, and who would be willing to chip in some cash to avoid more tragedies like those.

Chiles concerned about refugees

Senator Chiles is much concerned about President Carter's Cuban policy, according to Damond Smith, his district assistant at a conference with 12 seniors last Monday. Smith said he would tell the senator that "Cuban refugees" was the main topic and concern of all he talked with in this "swing" around the district.

Also, Smith said the senator was for balanced budget but not committed on "GNP" tie-in and he was for immediate registration with more funds for defense. Mr. Damond Smith, has a staff of specialists ready to answer and investigate, feel free to contact them. Federal Building, Room 831, 51 SW 1st Ave., Miami, Fla. 33130 or call 305-350-4981.

Maybe these reports got back, as President Carter came up with a 5 point program two days later. It's too soon to tell if it will be effective, or just another "too late weak actions", say the seniors.

And, the seniors did talk a "blue streak" on the same bug-a-boo USA hasn't done anything right, except put a man-on-the-moon", since WW II, can it all be a coincidence, or is there a sinister evil hand pushing USA into these ineffective, sloppy decisions".

The sloppy decisions teed off a bunch of seniors, with them saying what can we expect as sloppy appearance in the "in thing on TV. Even our officials sprawl with a leg over a chair arm supposedly creating a homey empathy.

"Bah", they say, "it just looks lazy with little respect for their audience". Why even employment counsellers say sprucing up for an interview wasn't necessary as that wasn't the way you'd come to work, - maybe so, but it shouldn't be.

Seniors learned, during the Great Depression, that neat and clean got the job and later found the neat and clean led to sound work and straight thinking and an era of the greatest growth in all the world, with USA products the greatest.

Now it looks like sloppy appearance leads to sloppy work and sloppy thinking, just like gam-pa told'em with USA and its products losing all world respect.

Some seniors wonder if it isn't time for them to set an example and drop a hint to their grandkids that the ol' fashion way did have some merits and they must have developed plenty of wisdom to make it for 70 years in mighty hard times and end up retired in sunny Florida.

Maybe they should put this wisdom to work as consultants on all committees, sort-of "Senior Wisdom Counsellors attached to all legislative business and labor organizations to lead USA back on sound footing. It is a good positive project, let-s have idea on how it could be done.

NARFE - National Association of Retired Federal Employees - at their Annual May meeting, elected the following: President, Rowland Williams, first vice president, Jack Eckersley, second vice president, Charles Mason, secretary, Rose Marie Jenoulis, public relation, Nick Stathis.

This organization is much concerned with lobbying to maintain the semi-annual cost of living adjustment - COLA - and holding their pensions against pending budget cuts. They also have social meetings and tour groups, but no meetings now until second Wednesday in October.

CHAPTER EVENTS

John Vance, 1st V.P. got the May meeting of AARP off to a flying start and kept it moving along fast, as the motions to change tenure of Sec. and of Treas. and increase the dues to $2.00 were found to be out of order and referred back to the board; so that left plenty of time for the ALL AARP entertainment.

Ruth Woodruff, prog chm appointed a special committee: Lottie Lee DeBerry (skit writer), Betty Taylor (song leader), Peggy Strandbergh (director) to work out a program for the meeting, they did a remarkable job.

There were four humorous skits: "Too Tired to Move", "Down on the Farm", "Day in Dog Patch", "Fountain of Youth", with the following cast: Mildred Capanna, Ernie Curwen, Herb Hiers, Ben and Rose Hochberg; Dan Pichulo; Emmett and Loritta Kelly, Lottie Lee DeBerry, Virginia Malone, Martin Strandbergh, Al Tucker, Leta Keith, with soloists, Nellie Lenz and Ethel Tucker, and recital by Constance Schmidt, and Mae Swope and Leta Keith, the accompanists.

Also, before, between and after the skits there was a sing-a-long of the ol' favorites, led by Betty Taylor. It was evident by the applause that the members were having a great ol' time - enjoying the surprisingly excellent talent of their fellow members.

So, to wind up a darn good meeting, there was a drawing for prizes, as follows: Buy-A-Block ($10 gift certificate), M-M Algozzini and three $1.00 door prizes, Clare Koop, Laurie Middleton and Jannet Bouthilier.

Vice President John Vance wished all the members a pleasant and safe summer and reminding them the next meeting would be October 16, but there would be Board-ExCom meeting as usual except, none in July, the Bulletin would come out in June, August and October, and there would be bulletin mailing workshops and picnics June 5 and Aug. 7 at Mildred Capanna's before returning to Langford Field on Sept. 4.

Just a reminder, it is hoped that all members who go north for the summer will investigate the activities of northern chapter and senior centers and from time to time send back items of interest. Snowbirds are always saying that they have such and such a wonderful service back home, why don't we have it in Florida. You find out how they do it and our chapter will give it a try.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWEN

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

One last meeting of the Board of Directors until Nov., was held on Saturday, May 17. An interim board was selected for the summer.

An interesting observation was made by a gentleman of H. Out who loves to keep statistics of varies happenings. He came up after three weeks of counting the departures from Venture Three and H. Out's homeward bound owners. It came to 200 souls. The coming week will be the last of the "going homers" but all seem to agree its rather foolish to leave, such ideal weather, warm & breezy.

We welcome new owners, Lot 201 Mrs. Donna M. Meersman, and Walter Binder Jr., James & Marjorie Brink, 51; Daniel & Ann Clifton, 188; Gordon & Carol Guild, 128; Wm. Jr. & Marie Henderson, 295; Carl Sr. & Audrey Jackson, 403; Ronald & Judith Layton, 264; Maynard & Pauline Lehman, 223; Dale & Margaret Leonhard, 43; Elmer & Catherine Lindeland, 518; Orla & Jo Ellen Polish, 486; John & Joyce Shaneberger, 31; Paul & Betty Dome, Francher & Catherine Wakefield, 332; Gerald & Suzanne Wilbur, 63; Ronald & Pauline Westman, 427; and Clarence Roy, 278.

The H.Out Exercisers at the Recreation Hall are down to seven.

At cards on Monday night Audrey Jackson was first and Helen Bundy from Windmill Village was second.

News, which we are very thankful to received: Helen Eury and Carrie Ullmann have reached their homes safely. Tina and Geoff Van Raay arrived in Chatham, Ontario Canada, having a good trip, but found 38 degrees awaiting them, not like Florida. Erma and Bob Barton are enjoying their little tent, camping at Rio Grande Valley Campgrounds, finding the mountains canyons and rivers all exciting to see. Nature is truly beautiful. Mary and Mark Sumner, tell of its being hot in Hillsboro, Ohio.

Mr. Bob Barnard of Lot 135 was, taken to Plantation General Hospital. He will undergo surgery on Monday, May 19. We extend our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

The Jerry Belmores had guests last Sunday, Vicki and Mac McKeever, Bob and Grace Murphy. The Belmores will be leaving soon in their new camper for the New England states.

Friends gave Dee and Morris Brink a Bon Voyage cocktail party Monday afternoon, prior to the Brinks departure for home on Tuesday.

When the Brinks do get home they will hardly have time to unpack their bags before repacking for a tour of the Scandinavian countries and a cruise through the Norwegian fjords.

Dot and Freeman Browne were wakened early Friday, March 9, by rain slashing at the windows of their motor home and wind gusts rocking the couch. They were staying in Ft. De Soto Park at Terra Verde, near Tampa, that morning while visiting friends in the area.

While having breakfast they listened to the news and were appalled to hear of the collapse of the nearby Sunshine Skyway bridge.

When the wind-caused nonsense, they could hear sirens of emergency vehicles approaching the span from every direction.

GDC is a bright star in GDV report

DICK CAMPBELL

"Coming from New York to Port St. Lucie is like going from a dark room to bright sunshine," said one of the board members of GDV, parent company of General Development Corporation.

The director's comment followed the annual report of the company to stockholders last Friday at Sandpiper Bay, a report that glowingly praised the financial progress of GDC sales of homes and land.

With a backdrop of bright sunshine on a manicured golf course outside the meeting room at Sandpiper Bay Resort, Peter Huang, president of GDV, outlined the growth of GDC and related GDV companies over the past year.

It was a mixture of pride and concern that highlighted the fiscal conversation of Huang's comments. He spoke without notes, dealing with each of the five divisions of GDV in a procession of financial facts and figures that indicated an amazing memory and a total grasp of the company he heads.

The bright star of GDV was GDC, which had a record year in both homesite and home sales. Homes moved from 1,284 units in 1978 to 1,983 units in 1979, and homesites recorded $250 million in 1979 from the previous year's $217 million.

Huang also noted that homesite sales in the first four months of 1980 were up 80 percent over the same period last year, and home sales indicate that GDC will build 2,300 this year.

Citing dropping interest rates and a "pent-up demand for homes and mobile homes" as a sign of quick recovery "when interest rates get down to a more normal level."

It was interest rates that reflected in reduced sales in the other GDV divisions, with Guerdon Industries, the mobile home manufacturing division, reporting a downturn from 15,636 to 15,111 units, and Wood Brothers Homes, building in Southwestern U.S., down from 3,937 units in 1978 to 3,665 units in 1979.

However, a bright picture was painted for the Motel 6 chain purchased in April, 1979. It had expanded to 283 motels by the year end. And, Servomation, the cafeteria, vending machine and mobile coffee service, had a substantial increase in operating revenues, moving from $7.746 million in 1978 to $27.966 million in 1979.

Huang said that the downturn in homes, mobile homes and the securities sales last year reduced profitability for the year, but looked for a bright future for the company.

The question period following Huang's comments was short, and the first question dealt with dividends. Joseph Schwartz of Port St. Lucie asked when the company would again start paying dividends. George Scharffengerger, chairman of the board of GDV said that "fiscal strength should come first. We have a strong earnings flow. It should reduce our $170 million debt.

"Be patient," Scharffenberger said. "We should start paying soon. Everyone feels we should reduce debt before paying dividends," he added that GDV board members took no salary and charged no expenses to GDV.

David Moses, Port St. Lucie, spoke next, asking for optimism in the future. He wanted to know if the class action suit against GDC resulting in a committment of GDC to spend $2.5 million to improve its Florida communities would supercede local law, and if the city's comprehensive planning of Port St. Lucie would take into account planning by GDC.

Scharffenberger said that the company is optimistic, completely optimistic, about the future.

"This world has never come to an end, and it isn't going to," he added. He then referred the first question to David Doheny, executive vice president and general counsel.

Doheny said that he felt that the "settlement put before members of the class to be approved...is very fair. It will supercede local law as it relates to the case."

Robert Ehrling, newly named president of GDC then praised the cooperation of local authorities in answering the planning question. He said that both the City of Port St. Lucie and St. Lucie County officials had consulted with GDC on planning.

After a coffee break, the meeting moved to the formal program, in which Huang, Scharffenberger, Daniel Lyons and J. Douglas Street were elected to the board of directors and Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. were appointed GDV auditors for 1980.

The balloting was brief, prompting Scharffengerger to smilingly comment, "It is good to have an 80 percent stockholder."

CONCERN—Looking for an optimistic approach to business was stockholder David Moses, 77, who questioned officers of the company at the GDV meeting. Here, he continued his talk with Bob Ehrling, newly named president of GDC.

NO NOTES—Peter Huang delivered a complete financial description of the five GDV companies without the use of notes. Asked how he was able to remember such technical and detailed figures, Huang said, "It's may business."

THIS WAY—Herb Haughton, president of Port St. Lucie Bank, makes a point to Bob Ehrling, president of GDC as Tony Traub, vice president of commercail properties division, GDC looks on.

COFFEE HOUR—Frank Widmann, vice president of resort operations of GDC, and Wayne Allen, vice president and legal counsel GDC, joined the coffee break at the GDV stockholders meeting.

COFFEE—Partaking of coffee during a break in the GDV stockholders meeting at Sandpiper Bay was Peggy Meissner, general manager of The Mirror Newspaper, and Bill Pullen, general manager of Sandpiper Bay and a director of General Development Corporation.

VISITING—Mel Broome, right, manager of Port Malabar, and formerly at Port St. Lucie, renews a friendship with G.D. Zealand.

A Storybook Wedding

Thanks to the graciousness of Dottie Childs, who opened her home to the family and guests of Terry Denise Rodgers and Joseph Sutton Hogan Jr., a fairybook wedding took place last Saturday. Amid flowers and formal gardens the two were married in a quiet and elegant ceremony.

Local kids give piano recital

A piano recital was given by students of Lynn Haynes on Sunday, May 18 at the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church on U.S. 1.

Those participating were Brooke Leary, Sarah Grant, Dick Grant, Laura Hadeler, Clark Collins and Mary Quinn Gladwin of Jensen Beach; Francis Churchey, Ruth Hoon, Michel Hoon and Kathy Overschelde of Stuart; Lara Butler and Melanie Sloan of Palm City; and Daniel D'loughy of Port St. Lucie.

The children will also be participating in the National Piano Playing Auditions, founded by the National Guild of Piano Teachers on May 28, at the Allegro Studio in Stuart. Judging the event will be Ray Melcher from Mount Pleasant, North Carolina.

Haynes is also a member of the West Palm Beach Teachers Association.

The repertoire of the Sunday show consisted of: "A Message", "Frog", "Sugar Cookies", "Solid Rock", "Lollipop Waltz", "Oh, Susanna", "Dancing", "Magic Man", "A Knight Comes Riding", "Taco Joe", "Henry the Cat", "Worry, Worry", "All School Parade", "Mistress Mary", "March ing", "Feet in the Jungle", "Trading Post", "Our School Band", and many others.

WATCHING THE SCENERY—This pair of Port St. Lucie ducks enjoy their days just watching the scenery, and there are plenty of beautiful sights to see in Port St. Lucie. For passing humans, the ducky pair is part of that scenery, although to them, the humans are just a passing annoyance.

His concern for potential conflict of interest prompted Rowe to offer his resignation to the Audubon Society if elected.

Rowe also said that there is a need for a closer working relationship between the county commission and school board.

Problems in Jensen Beach would be of major concern of the Hutchinson Island resident. Rowe said he would work for the resolution of traffic problems on both Commercial Street and the Jensen causeway. He added that the bike path system in Jensen Beach should be completed so that all bicycle riders can feel safe on Jensen roads.

County where Lake Apopka, suffered an overkill from too many nutrients, and now supports Grasard Shad as best.

Although the St. Lucie River is obviously not a lake, but a river that has an inflow of both fresh and salt water, he noted there is nevertheless the possibility of its turning from what is called a diverse system to an algae based one than, more than likely, would support catfish and mullet rather than snook.

John McQuigg, long time conservationist and member of the Martin County Conservation Alliance, is opposed to Stuart's method of waste disposal and says that "there are a lot of things that can be done other than willy nilly dump it in the river." Some alternatives might be a spray irrigation system, holding ponds, such as those presently in use in Jupiter, or possibly a tertiary treatment of sewage. Although this system would almost double the cost of the treatment plant, it would rid almost 97% of the impurities in the sewage. McQuigg feels that "one of the prices of growth is that you have more waste to dispose of" and that Martin County, being a rapidly urbanizing community, should plan adequately for its growth not only in terms of sewage disposal, but in areas as police, fire recreation, and education as well. As he puts it, growth costs money.

Dr. Walter Stokes said the Conservation Alliance is waiting to see exactly what direction Stuart will go. However, he adds that if the city should decide to go through with their plan without any back up system such as the deep well, "we're going to raise hell." Stokes felt that although the water is treated to rid chemicals harmful to humans, if such a volume were dumped into the river, "it would mean death to the fish. We have toxic chemicals that build in the marine life chain that's appalling."

Instead of discharging four million gallons a day into the river, Stokes favors the deep well injection system saying that there are a number of engineers who feel it would work. He added that he would support any bond adoption to revitalize the now defunct well.

To date, not only members of the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board have gone officially on record as opposing the city's proposal, but the Isaac Walton League, a local chapter of a national conservation group, have written DER as well.

assistant vice president and general manager Bill Pullen. "But it would never have been possible without the outstanding employees and the "dedication to making Sandpiper Bay one of the finest resorts in the country."

Pullen also pointed out that awards are "nothing new" to Sandpiper. The resort was also selected as one of the 25 best meeting resorts in the nation, for the second consecutive year, by Meeting and Convention Magazine; one of the 50 top United States tennis resorts, by Tennis Magazine; and one of the nine best "one stop" family vacation resorts, by Better Homes and Gardens Magazine.

In addition to the recognition secured by Sandpiper Bay for receiving the Mobile Guide four star award, resort officials recently learned that had received still another honor.

The Port St. Lucie resort was also presented with the American Automobile Association (AAA) four diamond rating, for the east Florida division.

"significantly exceed Triple A requirements in most physical and operational categories," according to the AAA guide.

All accommodations rated by AAA undergo rigorous inspections by the automobile association's field representatives. As only one fifth of all resorts reviewed actually meet AAA requirements for recommendation, even a single diamond rating is considered to be quite an accomplishment.

1980 represents the second consecutive year that Sandpiper Bay has been honored with a four diamond rating by the Automobile Association.

Schooi's out next Tuesday

Much to the delight of vacation-dreaming students and teachers whose patience by this time of the year is traditionally frazzled, school will be out next Tuesday.

Martin County public school students would normally be hearing their last school bell ring this Friday, but thanks to Hurricane David, they'll have to attend school for half a day on Tuesday to make up for the day lost to the big blow.

School will not be held on Monday, due to Memorial Day.

And, though this school year is not quite over, parents of children who plan to attend kindergarten at Jensen Beach Elementary next school year are urged to bring their kids in to the school on Friday morning, May 23. Testing of children will be given all morning.

Other end of the year activities at the Jensen School include a physical education awards program at 10 a.m. Thursday, May 22, and a party for fifth graders at the school from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday.

Diseased mullet report is to be made on May 31

A South Florida Water Management District report on what caused the deaths of thousands of diseased mullet in the St. Lucie River earlier this year is to be presented during a meeting at the Jensen Beach Campus of Florida Institute of Technology at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, May 31.

"The report should be very interesting, and I urge members of the Alliance to attend," commented Dr. Walter Stokes during a recent Martin County Conservation Alliance meeting.

The meeting will be held in the FIT auditorium, and the public is welcome.

Rio Civic cards May 27

A card party was held at the Rio Civic Club last Tuesday, May 13, with a good group in attendance.

The door prize was won by Florence Klose.

Table prizes were won by Thelma Gordon, Grace Mowder, Mary Stockwell, Esther Wilson, Mildred Greenland, Mary Grant, Grace Lewis, Gladys Frehr, Bert Allen, Margaret Rausch, Helen Shomer, Helen White, Alva Merquelin and Sabina Forster.

Hostesses were: Helen Shomer, Vilma Dowler, Helen Hager and Aida Burgoyne.

The next card party will be on May 27th at 1 p.m. All are welcome.

Vacation church school is set at Prince of Peace

A Vacation Church School will be held jointly by Prince of Peace Lutheran Church and All Saints Episcopal Church from Monday June 9, to Friday, June 13, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon each day.

All children ages 3 through grade 6 are urged to come, learn, sing, make crafts and enjoy fellowship. Member ship of their families in other church is not necessary.

The Bible-based theme, "Travels with Jesus" explores the world of Jesus and His message of God's love for people then and now.

Classes are limited in size. Please register child by May 26. A registration fee of $1.00 is required. If free transportation is needed, call Mrs. Neil Newton at 334-4050.

Town ponders wisdom of fuel tanks at homes

Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler expressed concern last week that the town may be "sitting on a time bomb" because a number of large under ground fuel tanks have been installed at private residences.

Gluckler noted that so far, there have been 11 such tanks installed with a fuel capacity ranging from 1,000 gallons to 10,000 gallons.

He said fire officials have questioned the wisdom of allowing such tanks to be installed, and he said unless they are properly installed they can be highly dangerous.

Commissioners discussed a proposed ordinance to limit the size of fuel tanks at homes in the town, and a meeting with fire officials is planned to get input on the matter before the ordinance is to be presented for further consideration.

The installation of the tanks has apparently come about as a result of winter gas shortages.

Picnic held by Trinity

Trinity United Methodist Church held its annual picnic Saturday, May 17, on the church grounds. The picnic began at 1 p.m. with games for all ages during the afternoon, including sack races and softball. A picnic supper and fellowship was enjoyed by the congregation and friends following the afternoon activities.

Moose Lodge plans dinner

Jensen Beach Moose Lodge 1888 will hold a chicken barbeque dinner on Sunday, May 25, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The Women of the Moose are hosting the event. Members and guests are welcome. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Rio Civic Club awards night

The Rio Civic Club, at its final business meeting of the season recently, made cash awards to a number of local organizations.

Realizing that contributions from the public is their life blood, the Rio Civic Club over the years has contributed to and supported these worthy causes. The membership present approved the following: Jensen Area Samaritan Ambulance Fund, Martin County Council on Aging, Tri-County rehabilitation center, Visiting Nurse Association, and the American legion Baseball Fund of Martin County.

These contributions are made possible through funds derived from bingo. The club wishes to thank its many friends for their loyal support and by that support, ensuring future contributions to these worthy causes.

Community Center Players discuss playbill for next season

The Community Center Players of Port St. Lucie held their monthly meeting May 13. Discussed were next season's playbill. The season will open with a show called "The Fifth Season" by Sylvia Regan. "Day dates are September 18, 19, and 20. Neil McKenzie, who directed "Never Too Late" last season will direct this show.

"The show is about a dress manufacturer who is producing clothes for the fifth season, the season of no business. ... as the owners try to improve business, they weave a web of confusion. This show has many small parts for those who like to participate, but not take a lead. Tryouts are scheduled for July.

The second show is "Norman, Is That You" by Ron Clark and Sam Bobrick. This show has had a very successful run on Broadway. It is the first time any group in this area has attempted to produce it. The action takes place in New York City. When Norman's parents come to visit, a staunch mid-Western couple, and find out that Norman is a homosexual, they are shocked. One problem leads to another and climaxes to a very interesting conclusion. Bliss Crippens will direct this show. Show dates are November 20, 21, and 22.

The third show is "Not With My Daughter" by Jay Christopher. A swinging bachelor is surprised by a visit from his unmarried daughter, who he believes is pregnant. His parental reaction develops into a hilarious plot. Corinne Pansy will direct this show. Show dates are March 26, 27, and 28, 1980.

Also decided at the meeting was the formation of an acting workshop for those who would like to learn to act or just shed their inhibitions for normal everyday life. Jean Park, a retired professional will head this workshop. She has directed five shows a year for the past five years in Miami. As a present resident of White City, she is anxious to share her ability with those interested in theatre in this area. Jean says "I believe theatre is life, and I believe anything that happens in theatre is a reflection of our times."

Jean also works fulltime teaching emotionally disturbed children at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School.

The workshop will run six weeks starting Tuesday, June 3, 1980, 7:9 p.m. at the Port St. Lucie Community Center on Prima Vista Boulevard. Classes are very limited, so it will be first come, first served. There is a nominal fee for the course. For further information, call Wilma Sidelman at 878-4196.

NFCC fights attack on North Fork safeguards

The North Fork Conservation Committee recently announced that it will oppose with all its resources a request by residents of Spanish Lakes River Front to eliminate the 50-foot buffer strip along the bank of the north fork of the St. Lucie River.

A group of Spanish Lakes residents asked the county commission to hold a hearing on their request; the commission set a hearing originally for May 19 and then postponed the date to June 2.

Chairman Roy Black of the NFCC pointed out that a promise by the developers to guarantee the 50-foot buffer strip was one of the conditions to the granting of the original building permit back in 1977.

"The agreement is nothing new," Black said. "We believe that if it is cancelled, the erosion already taking place will increase radically. In fact, the stepped up erosion could eventually threaten the very home sites of the people seeking to eliminate the strip."

Black said the NFCC will send a delegation to the June 2 hearing to oppose the Spanish Lakes request, and to support a proposed county ordinance establishing a buffer along the length of the north fork through county territory. The NFCC has been urging adoption of such an ordinance for the past three years. Port St. Lucie adopted a somewhat similar ordinance in 1978.

The NFCC was organized in 1977 by six Port St. Lucie groups: the PSL Homeowners, the PSL-River Park Homeowners, the Country Club home owners, the Anglers Club, the PSL Civic League and the St. Lucie Conservation Alliance.

'Welcome to Port St. Lucie'

The city government of Port St. Lucie has recently released a new revised edition of the "Welcome to Port St. Lucie" booklet, available at city hall.

The booklet is the result of efforts by local residents, including Hugh Jencks and Herb Tabudy, who composed the editorial content, and Wallace B. Force, who handled the art and layout.

Welcome to Port St. Lucie begins with an introduction by Mayor William B. McChesney and continues with some fundamental background about the city and its origins. It explains the general boundaries of the city and its geographical divisions, such as Northport, Southport and Midport.

Also included are "the A B C's of becoming an informed citizen of PSL", which is comprised of lists of vital information to newcomers. Explained in the booklet are automobile registration and licensing practices, boating information, an explanation of the city government, a list of 60 clubs, social groups and civic organizations, a partial list of churches, a complete list of local newspapers and radio stations that cover Port St. Lucie, a list of emergency telephone numbers, and a mention of the nearby hospitals and medical services, among other things.

Those wishing to pick up a free copy of the informative booklet may stop by city hall during regular business hours or at the Port St. Lucie office of the Chamber of Commerce.

Groceries open, banks closed on Memorial Day

If you're planning to go picnicing on Memorial Day, you won't have to worry about whether or not local supermarkets will be open.

They will. At least, that's the report from Winn Dixie, Publix, Grand Union and Sarveway.

However, unless you have a check-cashing card at one of them, you might want to plan ahead so you'll have some cash with which to buy your groceries. All local banks in Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie, as well as Stuart, will be closed for Memorial Day. The same is true for city and county offices, schools and the post offices.

Still, whatever the price, it's going to be hefty.

Members of the Jensen Optimist Club, which sponsors loads of activities at the park, recently learned the land was for sale. They don't want to buy the land for themselves, but are hopeful funds can be found somewhere to have that tract added to the park.

"It's the last chance for expansion," says Optimist president Larry Barraga.

Club members are hopeful some means of having the county obtain the land can be found before the land is leased for commercial use. They're doing some footwork now, and soon plan to begin seeking support from other clubs in the area to help find a way to expand the park.

It would be nice if the county could buy it with county funds, but local county commissioner Frank Wacha says there simply isn't enough money in the budget this year.

Perhaps a fund drive will have to be started, should no other means of financing it be available. Barraga wasn't ready to call for one when he was last contacted about the park, but he did say lots of vocal support for the park expansion just might get the ball rolling.

One thing is sure, if the park was expanded, local athletes would fill it.

Last week, Jensen Optimist officials announced that a 3.5 acre tract is up for sale next to the park. It is the last chance for expanding the already full park, and club members are hopeful funds can be found somehow be found to make the addition to the park.

Post 126 bingo means much more than fun

The bingo games held each Thursday and Saturday nights at the Jensen Beach Post 126 American Legion hall mean much more to the community than just providing entertainment.

Good natured crowds of all ages gather at the hall on Savanna Road at 7:30 p.m. for several hours of fun at bingo. And in the process, they help a lot of folks.

Last year, the Post raised $5,405 through the bingo games, and spent the money on a wide variety of causes. The largest chunk of money, $3200, went to sponsor an American Legion Junior baseball team.

The Post chipped in $730 last year for staging God and Country Day, and spent $250 for local needy veterans.

A total of $200 each went to the Jensen Area Samaritans, the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department, the Jensen Beach Boy Scout Troop, and the Miami Veterans Administration hospital.

Additionally, $100 each went to sponsor Boy's State representatives, Langford Park, and the Salvation Army.

The Post spent $50 on the VA hospital in Tampa, $50 on the VA clinic in Riviera Beach, and $25 to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The Ladies Auxiliary is in charge of running the bingo games on Thursdays and the Post members run the games on Saturdays. One room is designated for smokers and another for non smokers. Also, refreshments are served at the games.

Legion acts as legislative watchdog

In addition to extensive local involvement, the American Legion is an organization that actively promotes key legislation both on the state and federal government levels.

Among the bills cited by the American Legion as being legislative priorities in the federal bureaucracy is that of the Communist Aggression and Foreign Intelligence. The Legion supports measures that effectively repeal the Hughes Ryan amendment, reducing the number of committees with oversight jurisdiction of covert CIA activities from eight to two.

The Legion also supports legislation that criminalizes disclosure of classified information and constructs the outflow of CIA information under the Freedom of Information Act.

Also on the federal level, the American Legion is in favor of the re establishment of a fully operational and independent Selective Service System, including registration, classification, physicals and Presidential induction authority, at the earliest possible date. The Legion announced that it believes the process should include both men and women, but should never result in the assignment of women to combat roles.

In other legislation, the American Legion supports an increase in the medical care portion of the FY 1981 Veterans Administration budget, as the present budget is considered "insufficient" to maintain current medical standards.

On the state level, the American Legion has been instrumental in safeguarding veterans' rights, with the proposal of certain pieces of legislation.

The proposed House Bill 1552, for example, would require attendants at self service stations to dispense gasoline to disabled veterans who display an exemption entitlement.

Other suggested legislation provides for cost-of-living increases for various veteran benefit programs. The Legion has also expressed support for House Bill 525, which would create a Veteran's Home of Florida, for certain wartime and peacetime veterans, their spouses and certain widows and widowers of veterans, who are not in need of hospitalization or nursing home care. If passed, this proposed legislation would become effective January 1, 1981.

The American Legion is currently sponsoring a total of 11 bills in the Florida house of Representatives, as well as 10 specific legislative proposals on the federal level.

While local American Legion chapters are active in organizing events that affect hometown communities across the nation, the state and national branches of the Legion act as careful watchdogs of governmental matters that touch the lives of all veterans.

American Legion emphasis on God and Country

The American Legion opens all meetings with the recitation of the Preamble which starts with, "For God and Country".

In keeping with this, Post 126 and its Auxiliary attended All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen Beach on February 3rd to make Four Chaplains Day. It is to remember the four Chaplains on the sinking troopship "Dorchester" who gave up their own lifejackets as they helped the men abandon ship.

Six years ago, Father Frank Alvarez started the "God and Country Day" program, co-sponsored by All Saints Church and Post 126. This highly successful event has been listed in the Bicentennial Calendar and has attracted national church leaders as speakers. It will be celebrated on Sunday, February 22, this coming year.

This year Post 126 started an annual Church Visitation on the Sunday following Easter, traditionally a day with poor attendance. This year we attended All Saints and in the future we hope to be invited to other local churches.

The Preamble to the Constitution of The American Legion is: "For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; To maintain law and order; To foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americanism. To preserve the memories and incidents of our associations in the great wars; To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; To combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; To make right the master of might; To promote peace and good will on earth; To safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; To consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

Shipyard inspector lays claim to starting 'Kilroy was here'

"Kilroy was here."

This statement was as much a part of World War II as "Pearl Harbor" ... just as common Korea as the stories of "Parkchop Hill" — and almost as popular in Vietnam as "Saigon Tea."

No one really knows for sure how Kilroy got his start but once he got going, there was no stopping him. The famous "Kilroy was here" slogan has been found on the side of battleships, tanks, airplanes, etc. Scientists inspecting one of the guinea pig battleships used in the first H Bomb test found "Kilroy was here" freshly painted on the blistered hull. There is no doubt that Kilroy is the all time symbol of American initiative, ingenuity and confidence.

James L. Kilroy of Massachusetts, who died in 1962, is credited with the soundest explanation of how the Kilroy phenomenon began. Mr. Kilroy, a dedicated Legionnaire and a veteran of World War II, won the American Transit Association sponsored nation-wide contest to discover who originated "Kilroy was here." Mr. Kilroy claimed that he went to work as an inspector at the Fore Rivers Shipyard in Quincy, Massachusetts two days before Pearl Harbor and began marking "Kilroy was here" on equipment to show test gangs he had checked the job. Soon the slogan spread all over the shipyard and then, as the equipment was sent out overseas, all over the world. And then — somewhere along the line the little cartoon was added featuring a crude figure peering over the top of a fence.

According to Newsweek (December 1, 1945), the real Kilroy was Francis J. Kilroy Jr. A friend, Sgt. James Dalley, posted a sign which said "Kilroy will be here next week" on the bulletin board at Boca Raton Field in Florida in honor of Sgt. Kilroy who was ill with the flu. Legend has it that that single sign began a campaign which Malloy kept writing about "Kilroy." Hundreds of others soon joined Malloy in writing "Kilroy was here." "Kilroy ate here." "Kilroy slept here." etc.

In 1976 a new claim to Kilroy's fame reached The American Legion's National Headquarters in Indianapolis. It was in September of 1976 that a strange shaped box was received by the National Library and Museum Section. Upon examination of the box, the staff was startled to find a life like figure crammed inside. After the initial shock, a well tailored gentleman (only a little over 5 feet tall and weighing about 95 pounds) was lifted from the box. The little guy was wearing very authentic attire common to World War II enlisted army personnel and wore a name-tag which boldly proclaimed his name to be "Kilroy." The only deviation from his regulation uniform (which included genuine combat ribbons, regulation brown shoes and even human teeth) was his shoulder patch which depicted an out house with the working "Kilroy was here."

Accompanying The American Legion National Headquarters' new most famous resident was a note from Mrs. Florence Smith of Trumbull, Connecticut. The note explained that Mrs. Smith's husband, James, had created the dummy he called "Kilroy" in the early 1940's. Mr. Smith had, from the early 40's until his death in January 1976, traveled the country and attended many National Conventions entertaining everyone who came in contact with him and giving them a chance to meet "Kilroy." Florence Smith recalled one special day "When Kilroy marched down Fifth Avenue while the late Cardinal Spellman watched from a parade reviewing stand. Jimmy waved Kilroy's hand and the Cardinal waved back. My husband had many good times with Kilroy".

On Saturday, March 24, The American Legion will be holding an Open House in salute to Kilroy. Kilroy, who has become a permanent resident of The American Legion's Museum at the National Headquarters in Indianapolis, will be riding on a special float in the nationally televised Indianapolis 500 Festival Parade that day. In honor of our most evasive hero of three wars, a thirteen foot replica of Kilroy will be built for the parade and Kilroy himself will be the guest of The American Legion at the Indianapolis 500 Race.

In addition to Kilroy's activities in the National Headquarters city on Open House Day, it is anticipated that he will show up at each of our 16,000 American Legion Posts throughout the world. No one is quite sure how he will accomplish such a demanding feat, but don't be surprised if you attend the Open House at an American Legion Post near you and find that Kilroy had been there and gone.

Legion sponsors variety of programs to honor youth

Although the American Legion is an organization for veterans, much emphasis within the organization is placed on honoring the nation's youth for their outstanding achievements.

Jensen Beach Post 126 is no exception. Each year the Post conducts a number of programs designed to honor local youth.

An oratorical contest is jointly sponsored by all three Legion posts in Martin County. Post 126, 62, and 176. Any high school student is eligible to enter the contest for the best speech on the U.S. Constitution.

This year these were four Martin County High School students who won Patrick Henry oratorical medals. The winner and runner up won U.S. Savings Bonds. Anthony D. George Jr. was the local winner, and he also won the 12th District contest for competitors from Jupiter to Titusville. For that he wons trophy and Savings Bond. He advanced to the Eastern Regional competition in Kissimmee and was runner up, receiving a trophy.

The local posts start planning the contest in October and the national finals are held in April, with the national winner receiving an $8,000 scholarship.

Jensen Beach Post 126 and Stuart Post 62 also jointly sponsor an essay contest each year, with awards given for the best essay by a Martin County High School student and by a student from the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology. Additionally, a poster contest for MCHS students is also conducted. The winners of the essay and poster contests are honored at the annual God and Country Day.

The Jensen and Stuart posts also give two ROTC medals to FIT students, one for scholastic excellence and one for military excellence.

A total of 22 medals are presented to students from the 11 schools in Martin County. At each school a medal is given to the outstanding boy and the outstanding girl in the graduating class.

For the Boys State program, Post 126 sponsored three boys and were aided by the Stuart Sunrise Elks Lodge, which sponsored one boy, and the Jensen Beach Optimist Club, which sponsored one boy, thus making a total of five boys representing the post. There is only a quota of one boy per post for the Boys State program, but since some posts do not send anyone to Boys State, an application was made and accepted for Post 126 to have five boys represent the post.

Local post members feel this is one of the best programs the American Legion sponsors. Boys selected for the program have to have completed their 11th year of school and be in the top third of their class. Their extra curricular activities are considered, and the winners go to Tallahassee in the summer for one week to get practical experience on the workings of government.

Applicants for Boys State are interviewed by a committee of the Post, with parents invited to come along. And, after the students attend Boys State, they are invited back, along with their parents, to a Post meeting.

In addition to those programs, the Post also sponsors a baseball team for youngsters.

Jensen Legionnaire recounts attack on Pearl Harbor

BY MICHELLE SAPINSKI

"At approximately four minutes to eight several planes were observed in a vertical single line, power diving in the vicinity of the seaplane ramps and hangars. At the time, it was thought that they were our planes simulating an attack. One of us looked through the telescope and observed that they were Japanese aircraft." -- excerpt from a U.S.S. Solace, Pearl Harbor log dated December 7, 1941.

Five seamen aboard the medical ship U.S.S. Solace sat down shortly after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and made a three page hand written account of what they witnessed on the morning of December 7. The five were watchmen for the harbor's signal bridge and the log was signed "Harry Brown, seaman third class with the help of the signal gang."

The pages of the log are now yellowed with age and the black quill-drawn letters that stain the parchment read like first-hand history, some 39 years after they were first written.

The fragile log is now in the possession of George Sanford, a Jensen Beach resident who was one of the original members of the Pearl Harbor "signal gang."

Sandford and the other watchmen were aboard the Solace, which was itself unaffected by the attack, while the rest of the harbor was under fire. As the Solace was stationed immediately adjacent to the Japanese bombed battleship the U.S.S. Arizona, however, the medical ship afforded her passengers a perfect, if tremulous, vantage point for observing the destruction.

"I was just getting ready to go ashore, when I heard a lot of noise. That's when I heard an officer say the harbor was under attack," recalled Sandford, "I went out to the stern and saw the planes coming down. There was so much smoke we couldn't signal. We just had to stand by and wait."

As the Solace was a medical ship, it possessed none of the offensive armament of the nearby destroyers and battleships. In addition, as the signal gang had no medical training, they could do nothing but observe the historical drama that was unfolding around them.

"We didn't really feel scared, just helpless," said Sandford, "at one point we were almost hit, but there was no hysteria. We just did what we were supposed to do, everyone was very calm about it."

One person who was likely not so calm about it was Sandford's wife, who heard about the bombing from the couple's home in Milford, Conn. and did not know if her husband was one of the survivors until his next letter reached her.

Sandford explained that he was not permitted to leave the ship for weeks following the Pearl Harbor attack. On December 8, he said rumours of enemy submarines lurking outside the harbor abounded.

"That night there were alerts out," he remembered, "the remaining ships were darkened and there was some shooting going on in the pineapple fields."

According to the log kept by the signal gang, the battleship U.S.S. Utah "turned upside down" approximately 15 minutes after she was first hit.

"After the second torpedo had been released, there seemed to be Japanese planes everywhere. The Japanese seemed to know exactly where every large ship was berthed," the log states. "The Arizona being in the best position for us to observe had a bit just forward of the bridge superstructure. There was smoke and a small fire.

"About ten minutes after the hit, the Arizona exploded forward and flame and black oily smoke engulfed the bridge tower and everything forward of it," the log continued.

Sandford explained that some of the Japanese planes flew so low over the Solace, that the faces of certain pilots were visible.

When the infamous attack--which spurred United States involvement in World War II--became history, Sandford concluded his stint at Pearl Harbor and returned to the mainland United States.

Now he lives in Jensen Beach with many other veterans who have equally colorful stories to tell. Sandford said his life in Jensen is characterized by "peace and quiet."

But that was not always so.

At least not on December 7, 1941.

hodes is one of few to survive USS Franklin bombing

BY BOB FRYER

3,200 men aboard the aircraft USS Ben Franklin on the of March 19, 1945, only 285

hodes of Jensen Beach was e lucky ones.

arrier was off the coast of art of a Naval task force that, rst time during World War II, signed to strike the home of the Japanese Empire. The as designed to neutralize r bases in preperation for the Okinawa.

couldn't have hit us at a me," Rhodes commented as ed the horror of that day so from home. "We had been out planes, 58 at a time. We pecting a group of our planes d the attack came when we ore planes all loaded up with nd rockets and torpedos. It dy so they couldn't see the coming and on radar they tly mistook the Japanese for the ones we had sent out ier," he said.

Out of nowhere, a Japanese bomber dived in and landed two 500-pound armor-piercing bombs on the ship. One struck the forward portion of the ship, on the hangar deck, and the other struck aft. Within minutes the huge carrier was an inferno as explosion after explosion from the fully-armed planes on the deck rocked the ship.

The Franklin was the flagship of the task force, carrying two admirals and five captains aboard. Within 20 minutes of the attack, the ship was in such grave danger that the task force admiral conferred with the Franklin's captain, Leslie Gehres, and advised him to pass the word along to prepare to abandon ship.

Another ship was brought in so the admiral and others commanding the fleet could transfer to another ship and continue directing operations. The captain told the admiral that if he could provide air and surface support, the ship could be saved.

Rhodes, only 18 years old at the time, had just come off duty and was in his bunk, below decks, when the bombs struck. He was knocked out of his bunk. "I remember seeing one man ahead of me who said he was going topside, then there was an explosion and he was dead. There was a man behind me and there was another explosion and he was gone," Rhodes said.

Rhodes and about 35 other men were trapped for awhile in a room, then someone from the outside tapped a wrench against the metal wall, to see if there was any response. The men tapped back, and word was relayed they could get out through an air uptake. The smoke was so bad that the men formed a human chain, holding onto one another as they crawled throught the uptake to an opening on the side of the ship. Then they had to climb hand over hand to reach the flight deck.

"The Japanese flyers had apparently reported to the Emperor that they had sunk us, and when they saw we weren't sunk yet, they kept coming back, trying to save face and finish us off," Rhodes said.

Shortly after the first attack, the ship lost power, and for the rest of the day and into the next, it drifted closer and closer to the Japanese mainland—floating like a sitting duck. It came within 30 miles of the mainland before the Franklin's anchor cable was attached to another ship, The Pittsburg, so it could be towed away.

The ship listed so much that for awhile, the hangar deck, normally about 20 feet above the water, was only four feet above the sea.

Rhodes and other survivors fought the flames on the ship throughout the day, and said numerous times enemy planes attacked. When the final attack came, Rhodes was wearing a red fire helmet. He said the Japanese pilot attacking the carrier must have thought he was top brass, because he seemed to be the intended victim. "He strafed and machinegun fire was hitting all around. I could see the machineguns real good and as the plane passed about 25 feet overhead, I looked up and looked right into the face of the tail gunner," he said.

Congressional medals of honor were awarded to two men aboard the ship as a result of that day. One of them was Chaplain Joseph O'Callahan, who never fired a shot, but rallied the men aboard the carrier and risked his life numerous times. Rhodes said once he and O'Callahan rolled a 500-pound bomb—so hot that it blistered his hands—over the side of the ship so it wouldn't explode. Aside from the blistered hands, Rhodes came through the ordeal unharmed.

Though he wasn't a part of the ship's company, there was another man from Jensen Beach aboard the Franklin that day. Ranson Tilton, who at one time was commander of the famous Black Sheep Squadron, was assigned to a plane on the ship. Tilton was blown overboard and later was fished from the sea.

Rhodes said once while he and others were maining a fire hose, an explosion blew away some other men ahead of him on the hose. "The man behind me turned and ran, and just kept running off the side of the ship. I don't know if he made it. With those fire helmets on, when you hit the water, it can break your neck," Rhodes said.

When asked about how the wounded were cared for, Rhodes said, "In most cases, you were either dead or alive. There wasn't much in between." He added that those who were wounded were transferred off the ship. Not later, when the crew got the engines running enough to limp back to Pearl Harbor at about 10 knots an hour, the ship picked up wounded for trasfer back to the States. "There were 704 of us aboard the ship, and we formed the 704 Club," Rhodes said. He later added that there have been several reunions of survivors over the years and that another reunion is coming up in August.

Rhodes said the Franklin was listing so badly when it made the return trip from Pearl Harbor to the Brooklyn Shipyard that it knocked out all the light poles along the edge of the Panama Canal.

The Franklin arrived at Brooklyn Shipyard on April 12, 1945, a little more than three months after Rhodes shipped out aboard her in San Francisco.

Though his tour of duty outside the States was short compared to that of many men who served in World War II, he saw more death and destruction on March 19, 1945, than many saw in years of war.

Like many local veterans Rhodes is a member of the Jensen Beach American Legion Post 128. "I've been in the Legion going on 38 years. I was in the Sons of Legion since 1939, and in 1955 my Dad was Commander of the local Post in Pennsylvania. I was Post Commander up there in 1955, and then after we moved to Jensen Beach, I was Commander of Post 128 in 1960, and have remained a member ever since," he says.

When Memorial Day is observed this coming Monday the Legion will take part in several local ceremonies. And when the nation takes time to honor its war dead, Rhodes will have many buddies from the Franklin to remember.

HEAVY DAMAGE—There were 3,200 men aboard the USS Ben Franklin on the morning of March 19, 1945, when a Japanese plane dropped two 500-pound armor piercing bombs on it. The carrier had 58 airplanes aboard, loaded with bombs, rockets and torpedos, when the attack occurred. The ensuing inferno claimed the lives of all but 285 men. One of those survivers is local construction contractor Sam Rhodes.

VETERAN S DATA RECORD — IMPORTANT — RETAIN IN SAFE PLACE

You have earned the right to certain "veterans" benefits! Don't let yourself or your family get caught short! Use the form below to record your important data, and then be certain your family knows where it is kept. Do not keep it in a safety deposit box!

Each year hundreds of veterans or their families are denied benefits administered by the Veterans Administration because they are unable to provide important information. Failure to locate vital records results in delay or even denial of VA financial assistance to widows, widowers, children, or dependent parents who are otherwise qualified for survivors' benefits. Certain records are also required to qualify for other VA benefits, ranging from education assistance to compensation and pension.

If you have never filed a claim with the VA (or if you need help with an existing claim), take this form, completed, to your nearest American Legion Service Officer for review. The American Legion Service Officer can assist in determining eligibility for VA benefits and provide further aid if qualifications for a claim are questioned or contested. The Service Officer is also available to assist your survivors family in filing for immediate benefits in the event of your death.

The American Legion has actively championed the cause of equitable benefits for veterans since its founding in 1919. Service Officers are ready to assist you and your family at any time. This service is made available to the veterans of our nation, at no cost, through your membership in The American Legion.

CALLING ALL COOKS AND NUBSES for this year's Everglades Youth Camp Lt. Evan Truettner, camp director, said: "We need a nurse, and while we have an application from a cook, we'd like to interview a few other prospects. These positions are the highest paid on the staff because of the expertise required. The cook will be responsible for preparing three nutritionally balanced meals each day for the staff and campers, while the nurse will be on call 24 hours a day during the sessions."

The GFWFC operates two conservation-oriented camps for boys and girls aged 8-14 each summer. One is located near Ocala and the other near West Palm Beach. The sessions this year begin on June 15 and continue weekly through Aug. 9. Staffers live at the camp and are paid for their services, but money is not the primary motive for most of the applications received thus far, according to Truettner: "Our applicants for counselors and instructors have come mainly from people who just want to be in the out-of-doors and who wish to teach youngsters to enjoy nature."

Campers will attend classes in such subjects as nature appreciation, wildlife management, wild food gathering, firearms safety, fishing, swimming, canoeing and ecology. They'll even have a chance to listen to sounds running at night, hoping no harm'll come to the raccoons they're chasing. "It'll be a rewarding experience," Truettner said.

The weekly sessions are just $60 and include all classes, food and lodging in the cabins situated around a lake.

Registrations for campers are limited to 100 at the Everglades Youth Camp and 120 in Ocala.

For more information on the Youth Camps, call the Commission's Everglades Region Office in West Palm Beach (305) 683-0478) or dial toll free at 1 800-432 2046.

THIS IS THE TIME OF THE YEAR when alligators are most active, and when they will move their greatest distances as they seek mates. At the same time, it's when young gators look for new waters as they flee from intolerant adult males tolerant only of adult females. Dr. Allan L. Egbert, Assistant Director Wildlife Division, GFWFC, points out gators four feet or smaller usually don't pose a threat to either human or pets and the Commission doesn't remove them. Even larger animals may not pose a threat, depending on circumstances, Egbert explains.

"People can be severely injured attempting to deal with an alligator which turns up on their property. We suggest that residents report the presence of any alligator to our nearest Commission office if problems develop. Most especially, do not attempt to feed alligators. Once an alligator has been fed, it may lose its fear of people and may then become dangerous. In addition, feeding is now prohibited by state statute and is punishable by a fine.

"Any alligator bite, no matter how seemingly minor, can pose a risk of serious infection. Anyone who is bitten by an alligator should consult a physician immediately."

"By affording them the respect they deserve, we can hopefully keep conflicts between alligators and people to a minimum," Egbert said.

Although it seems that we are just about up to our ears in gators these days, and they become more and more of a problem as Florida's population continues to expand and the natural living areas of alligators keep on shrinking, never forget that alligators are officially classified as a threatened species by the federal government and are protected by both state and federal law!

IF YOU KEEP UP WITH the activities of Bass'n Gals and their tournaments, you'll want to know that Mary Ann Martin of Broken Arrow, Oklahoma won the Tom Mann/Bass'n Gal Kentucky Invitational on Kentucky Lake with an overall total of 17 lbs. for the two-day event. She outfished a field of 116 Bass'n Gals from 15 states and won an $8,000 fully rigged bass boat, which included a 1980 Ranger boat, 115 Mercury outboard, Motor Guide trol motor, Lowrance electronic equipment and Roadmaster custom trailer. Mary Ann is the wife of Roland Martin, professional bass fishing's all-time money winner.

To compound the problem of catching some fish, the supply of live shrimp is uncertain now, as it is every year during late May and the month of June. If you're going to do any night fishing for snook with live shrimp, you might be wise to zero in on a bait shop that has them before taking off just before dark.

CAPT. MAULLIN MOUDY of the party boat Lady Stuart going half days from the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart: "We had those north winds this week and they made the water a little green again. We had some nice kingfish out at Six Mile and on Sunday we lost a dandy jewfish after having it on for a long time. We're still catching some scamp and gray grouper. Fishing offshore is fair now. It's not quite so good as it was. I think it'll pick up again when this water clears."

FROM SHIPP'S SPORTFISHING DOCK at Port Salerno, Vicki Shipp: "We won't be running so often this summer and won't have too much to report as a result. Saturday, the Vickar (charter boat) had 10 kings to 30-0 (30 lbs.), 2 bonito, 4 Atlantic mackerel; the charter boat Oodles, 4 kings, 2 bonito and a barracuda; the Viking, 2 kings, a bonito and an Atlantic mackerel. On Sunday, the Vickar brought in 17 tilefish to 17-0, 2 dolphin, a king, some bonito and 8 jacks."

CHUCK SHEPHERD from the Bait Hos in Jensen: "I understand there are some nice pompano in the surf but can't tell you where they are catching them. I've been off a couple of days and that's all I can tell you right now. I'll do better next week, Dick, promise."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Tony Battaglia: "There's nothing in the surf, just a very small amount of blues. They're taking cut bait and you have to get over the sand for them. They are getting some trout from the bridges. I think the trout are down in the deep holes. Snook are very slow. There are lots of mullet and small bunker (menhaden) at the C 24 spillway but not much action on fish. It's been quiet and also it's hard to get live shrimp now. There's lots of bait in the surf but the birds are working just out of reach for surfcasters. Joe Salagan caught 17 blues in the Jensen Beach surf on cut bait. Lou Papadero and Jim Shelton got a 7-8 and an 11-8 triple tail on live shrimp in the river."

MURIEL WEIDEMAN, from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1: "Fishing is poor right now around here, Dick. They are catching a few snook at night on live shrimp and live bait. One day last week, they caught a big black drum and some channel bass from the bridge but otherwise it's the pits for now. A big contingent came over from Belle Glade recently but didn't do a thing and they haven't been back. According to reports, they seem to be catching a lot of bonito and a few dolphin offshore."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "Seatrout are picking up real good. Dick. There's no size to them mostly but the river's filling up with them again. Anglers will have to release as many as they catch (12 inches is the magic number). There are still some blues to two pounds in the surf from Park N Fish up to the power plant, taking cut bait. There are some snook and trout at the Frank Wacha and Mosquito Bridges on the Jensen Causeway, and at the Evans Crary and Ernest Lyons Bridges. Big Rapalas in the 13000 series of diving plugs, nylure jigs and pork rind on live shrimp are catching snook at night. Black drum are taking clams some at the Jensen Causeway and they are catching a few mangrove snappers and sand perch there and at the other bridges. We don't have too many whiting and croakers in the surf now. Offshore, there are some wahoo, kings, bonito and dolphin but it's been just too rough most of the week for any good offshore fishing."

The Nook's log: Oscar Dudeman, a 27-12 snook, live shrimp, Evans Crary; Jack Prell and Roy Greenwald, 3 trout to 6-0 and a snook on 7M18 marrolures near the power plant; Jimbo Shipes, a 7-8 trout on the west shore of the river near the county line on cut mullet; Rudy Rode and Carl Nelson, 16 blues on cut mullet just north of the power plant; Jack Eiler, 2 trout of 8-0 and 9-4, live shrimp, Ernest Lyons Bridge; John and Myra Heyburn, 21 silver (gray) trout and a 15-0 jack crevalle on nylure jigs in the Weakfish hole below the Ernest Lyons Bridge; Mike Zipko, a 16-4 triple tail on a nylure at the Evans Crary Bridge; Tom Hargrave, 2 croakers, 2 sand perch and a bluefish on cut shrimp in the surf; Frank Tuohy and Ed Mullenkup, 9 blues to 3-0, cut mackerel, Normandy Beach just south of the power plant; John Crawford and Charlie Kammler, 8 trout to 6-8, a bluefish, a black drum and 6 mangrove snappers, live shrimp, wading in the Big Mud Creek area at the power plant.

Looking for a hot spot? Try, this one

Fishing isn't any better, but if you want a little edge, probably seatrout fishing on the grass flats around the power plant and in Herman's Bay would be your best bet. Trout touts and live shrimp or small live mullet or bunker (menhaden) are best. Just keep in mind that you'll have to release as many as you catch if you observe the legal limit of 12 inches. Some trout are being taken from the Ernest Lyons, Frank Wacha and the Mosquito Bridges. For bridge fishing, floating live shrimp under popping corks can be effective.

A next best bet would be snook fishing at night from area bridges and seawalls. You'll have to work long hours to catch a snook or two but the Ernest Lyons (25 cent), Evans Crary (10 cent) and Frank Wacha and Mosquito Bridges on the Jensen Causeway are all likely spots for anglers doggedly fishing with live shrimp, live mullet or bunker, nylure jigs or diving Rapala plugs, either with blue or black backs, in the 13000 series.

A distant third would be blue fishing in the surf with cut bait from the Martin County Park N Fish area clear up to the power plant. The blues are small and hard to find and you may need to cast out beyond the sandbar to get into them if you spot a feeding school under the wheeling seabirds.

Sandpiper Bay Men's results

Precision golf shots and fractions dominated the play among Sandpiper Bay Men golfers Thursday when some 145 members competed in an event classified as an individual test, dropping the worst three holes of the 18 hole round, and applying a handicap allowance of 5-6th of posted handicaps.

Proving to be the best mathematician of the day was the veteran ex Colgate University star Al Van Nostrand whose final figure was 47 1-3, just nosing out Jim Doron who tabulated his fractions to 48⅓. The only other wizard of the fraction tables was Tom Captain who managed under the half century mark with 49 2-3.

Bob Downing and Archie Gates fussed around for a deadlock score of 50 1-6 while Jack Dalton and Oscar Rogell finished at 50⅓. The other in the money tabulators tied at 50 2-3 were Dr. Bob Arture, Gene Burgette, Will Ferrara and Tom Ryan.

One of the year's most popular scheduled event is on tap for Thursday, May 24, when members will choose partners to compete in the Partner's Bolt Balls 'N Tablefoot scoring feature. This is a test where the participants are credited with four points for an eagle, three for birdies, two for pars and one for a bogey. Over the bogey on a hole draws a blank for the golfer.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

Tennis is for the young, and also for middle aged, whatever that is, and oh yes, the handicapped, the cardiac set, some arthritics, the poor and rich alike. Also for the group of people who feel sorry for themselves because they can't or don't play tennis.

Last week, Arthur Ashe announced his retirement because of heart problems and several bypass operations. Arthur is 36 years old, and has an unusual ease of manner, even when talking about what was his whole life. He was quick to mention that he would still play social tennis, even if his wife could beat him.

Then, last Sunday I was looking for the golf on T.V. when I spotted another sports program about Senior Olympics. I watched octogenarians and a few youngsters of 65 or so competing in many field sports, including tennis. They showed a very senior group vying for the 'Cardiac Cup.' That was interesting to me, because I have been close to that type of situation.

In the past 6 or 7 years I have given the first lesson, and or continuing lessons, to over 500 people aged 60 and over. It's fun for me and lots of fun for the senior group. When they get together and play each other, they don't see much difference between their game and Borg or King. Speaking of King, King Gustav of Sweden played tennis at 95.

Right now in Stuart we have many avid tennis players like Jim Kroneburg, Franz Lushas, and Stew Kehler all pushing or sliding by the 80 plateau. Ernie Maltz plays me three times a week at 77, and would play more often, except he also likes to fish.

There is a publication, 'Super Seniors,' that keeps all the members abreast of tournaments all over the world, in the 55, 60, 65, 70, 75, and 80 divisions. I have played in the first division, but what amazes me is watching some of these 75 and 80 year young boys and girls go at it.

A few years ago, I arrived at Forest Hills to practice for the tournament a couple of days early. While walking towards my court, I noticed four elderly gents having a knock. I stopped and watched several points when I spotted an old friend in the group who had a very severe heart attack in Pompano several years earlier, and I had had the impression he had died. Just then, he iggied me and hollered a salutation. I retorted, 'That looks like 300 years of experience out there.' He replied, 'we were just figuring it out a few minutes ago and it comes to 362 years, and how are you and Connie doing?'

That foursome also included 5 knee braces, 2 elbow sleeves, 1 back brace, and I wrist brace (that were noticable) but there was nothing but smiles on the court.

Several sports, like swimming, diving, and gymnastics, where 15 and 16 year olds are veterans, you would seldom see anyone over 21 competing. Swimming is great, but in the real competition, they are all youngsters. On T.V. you only see 13 and 14 year old Iron Curtain girls doing unbelievable feats on the mat and bars. But what do they do when they get out of school?

Tennis is forever, well almost. But may I suggest that you play in your own class, and or your age group, take it easy on the youngsters, wear a hat, and don't feel embarrassed if you get tired and feel like sitting down or getting some water. Do it. That's only a little battle with a long war in front of you.

Trying, that's important, like last Sunday when I saw Bud Jordon foul five times before he finally got up on the skin and rode into the sunset.

Ah may be biting off too much, but all the old guys are pulling for him.

Reminder: June 21-22 and June 28-29. If you don't know what those important dates are, ask me.

Bon appetennis

FLORIDA'S NATURAL BEAUTY is typified here along the shore of East Cove at Lake Martin, located about four miles west of Kissimmee and U.S. 441, some 14 miles north of Yeehaw Junction. The nine-mile long lake is entirely surrounded by ranches and the Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area, giving it an unspoiled, undeveloped atmosphere, replete with wildfowl of almost every description. Fishing for speckled perch, bluegills, shellcrackers, largemouth bass and shellcuh can be excellent, but nature lovers will find Lake Marion an experience to be remember. ends their time during the long spells at sea, many slept 17 of the 24 hours. Unfortunately, seasickness was a common ailment and to keep busy, they would write letters, play games, and every now and then have a full-blown party. Dieter said one of the drawbacks of living aboard ship is the confined quarters which seem to grow smaller with each passing day.

Although living on a sailboat has its disadvantages, it has more than enough goods points. Dieter, in July of '78, flew to Germany to pick up his wife Laraine and their two young boys and returned to Martinique. For the next year and a half they sailed around the Windward Islands visiting such places as Granada, Guadeloupe, and St. Lucie.

Dieter considers this kind of travelling an education for his children that cannot be replaced. Not only is it "important to learn other's attitudes to understand people," but he adds that "as long as we can afford it, it's a very interesting life." Contrary to what some might think a journey such as this would cost, Dieter thinks it's cheaper than trying to pay today's hotel rates. To him, it's a way of seeing something of the world without spending a fortune."

Dieter has already seen much of the world and anticipates seeing more still, though he admits he has no fixed plans. From the Outrigger Resort in Jensen where he and his family were staying, he intended to sail up the coast to Chesapeake and possibly winter the boat in Charleston, South Carolina. From there he hopes to return to his homeland in Germany for the holidays. When asked if he ever intends to return permanently to his native country, he shook his head and said, "the climate is too severe." Perhaps he will end up somewhere in the Mediterranean. After all, that was his first intention. Maybe this time, he'll get to use his maps.

MOTHERHOOD—to the Nth power was never better exemplified than by this muscovy duck and her brook of 13 ducklings happily cruising the waters of one of the ponds on the fourth hole of the Sinner's course at Sandpiper Bay. Golfers playing the Sinners were dumbfounded a year ago when the same duck had 13 little balls of yellow fluff, then 13 little feathered followers, and finally 13 mature young ducklings, without a loss to the gators, hawks, and other predators that normally take a toll of such a brood. Observers agree that either she's the mother supreme or one of the luckiest ducks afloat at Sandpiper Bay.

Sandtrap

GOLFING NEWS BY MIKE SANDY

With interest in the game of golf once again on the "upswing", the Treasure Coast area of Florida is on the verge of becoming a "mecca" in golfdom.

During the past week we had the distinct pleasure of playing two of the area's newest golf complexes which we believe are second to none. Mariner Sands officials are meeting this week with several leading golf architects who will negotiate the building of Phase Two of the south Stuart facility which already has one of the area's outstanding championship 18 hole courses.

The entire couplex is a "bee hive" of activity and those who haven't been around Mariner Sands in the past three months will certainly marvel at its growth. We have been told that Phase One has been completely "sold out." Homes are going up daily throughout the wide expanse and current dwellers and their friends find a real old fashioned home-like atmosphere throughout the area which includes a spanking new pro shop, and a top shelf club house complete with elaborate restaurant facilities.

The pro shop is headed by Chuck Knebels, the likeable young dean assisted by brother Gerry and adding the feminine touch is Heather Gartzke. We recommend you play the course should you get the chance. You'll play some of the most interesting golf holes in the area.

Another golf and tennis facility is nearing completion down the road a piece. Heritage Ridge, is expected to open its first nine holes for play sometime late in June. This is another complex which is already attracting many "lookers." When completed the layout will include an 18 hole executive course designed primarily for the many avid golfers who just don't hit the long ball anymore. Each hole is designed with accuracy as the "big test." We have been told that single family model homes and townhomes will be ready for inspection in the very near future. According to designer plans, we learned that every living facility will either face a golf hole or be adjacent to one.

Tom Cioffi has been engaged as professional. He hails from Williamsport, Pa. and has excellent credentials as a player and teacher. The new club house, complete with pro shop, locker rooms, showers, card rooms and restaurant is nearing completion and, to say the least, builders of Heritage Ridge are very excited over their project.

We predict this golf and tennis community will take its place as one of the finest in all of South Florida. Be sure to make Heritage a place to visit when the announcements of open house are made to the public.

The other area's leading newcomer which adds top shelf golfing to the area's long list is Crane Creek at Martin Downs. This club and its environs has attracted hundreds of golfing families coming here from all sections of the North and a scattered number who are leaving Broward and Dade counties to make their homes here. Crane Creek is already in its development stages of building the second 18 hole championship course, and reports have it that home site lots in the second phase have been selling at an unexpected high pace. Local golfer Jay Pyle serves the Creek as head pro, ably assisted by Phil Campoli.

Meanwhile, although the Sandpiper Bay resort has more than earned its place as a golf and tennis complex adding to the Treasure Coast, there are those in the area who are anxious to have General Development officials come forth with an announcement that the second nine of the Wilderness course will be built.

The area and the world of golf lost one of its most notable friends in the passing of Dr. Andrew Virtuoso, who served for many years on the rules committee of the Professional Golfer's Association. An avid golfer himself, Dr. Virtuoso made his winter home at the Sandpiper resort and continued as an active member of the Sandpiper Bay Men's Golf Association. All of us who knew him, cherished his friendship and we know full well that the Lord took him while he was playing golf on his home course in Katonah, N.Y. He was stricken, we are told, after he had taken his second shot on the 18th hole.

Boat inspections spark boating week

Safe boating week will be celebrated between May 31 and June 8 this year. Flotilla 58 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will observe the occasion in a number of ways. Most important will be the promotion of boat safety by Courtesy Marine Examinations.

The launching ramps at the Ft. Pierce City Marina, south Bridge and Sandpiper Bay will be manned by vessel examiners from Flotilla 58 on Saturday, May 31; June 1 and Saturday, June 7 from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

North Port Marina, in Port St. Lucie will be manned on May 31. The examiners will, at the request of the boat operator, inspect the safety equipment on the boat. If it meets the requirements of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, a decal is issued which is displayed on the port side of the vessel, indicating to the Coast Guard and other law enforcement officers that the boat has passed such an inspection.

Approximately one third of all vessels examined fail to pass the relatively simple exam. Items such as fire extinguishers not working, life jackets insufficient or unseaworthy, even lack of proper official registration with the State of Florida are found.

If even one life is saved during the year because of the inspection, it will be worth all efforts.

German-American Club plans patio dedication at Center

Dedication ceremonies of the new outdoor patio and dance area donated by the German American Club of Stuart to the Port St. Lucie Community Center will take place on Sunday, June 1, it was announced by Joseph Freitag, president of the German American Club of Stuart.

A picnic and dancing on the new patio will follow the dedication ceremonies, Freitag said. Officials of the Port St. Lucie Community Center and of the Stuart German American Club are expected to attend the ceremonies, which will start at 1 p.m.

The cost for the large patio and the installation of sod in the immediate area was donated by the members of the German American Club of Stuart at their regular meeting last month.

Barbecued chicken and mashed potatoes, as well as bratwurst, potato salad and sauerkraut will be the menu for the afternoon festivities, as well as cold refreshing beverages.

Willy Dagenbach is the picnic chairman, assisted by Bernie Weisgerber. Tickets will be available from committee members Karl Bellman 878-2312; Dagenbach, 878-0649; Weisgerber, 878-2558; and Peggy Kraus, 334-9274.

The German American Club of Stuart have been conducting their social activities at the Community Center for the past three years, according to Freitag. They have made several substantial contributions to the center in the past for improvement of the grounds and to the building fund, Freitag added.

MEMORIAL DAY

On this special day, let us pay tribute to all the brave men and women who gallantly served in our armed forces.

We are truly proud to honor those valiant americans who gave their time, their energy and their very lives in the name of freedom. The dedication and determination of so many to defend this country's ideals have been the foundation of strength for us all.

Their courageous efforts have given all mankind wisdom of the past and bright hope for the future. Let us not forget their heroic deeds and the very principles that they fought to uphold so that this nation may grow and prosper in peace.

Sandpipers to host Indian River Leaguers on June 15

With a total of 127 players competing, the Indian Hills Country Club will host the Indian Rivers Golf League on an early land in the 1980 season. The club test played at the Fort Pierce Country Club Sunday with the Fort Pierce golfers dominating the qualifier.

Represented by 46 players, the Indian Hillers produced an average score of 73.80 to edge out the host club Vero Beach by 8 percentage points, while the Martin County clubbers finished third with an average of 74.30 to Sandpiper Bay's 74.28.

Individual honors were shared by a pair of Fort Pierce swingers with Buck Miller walking off with the low gross award, carding a 73, while Glen Brandt posted a net round of 68. Other club leaders included: Sandpiper Bay — Don McConnell low net 77 and Charley McNabb, low gross 69. Indian Hills Hank Horman, low net 76 and Jack Hammerslow net 68. Vero Beach CC — Pete Peterson, low gross 83 and Jim Cassady, low gross 87. Martin County of Stuart — Lyle Landy, low gross 78 and Bill O'Keefe, low net 68.

The league, now in its 17th year, will play its next match at Sandpiper Bay's Stinger's course on Sunday, June 15 in a shotgun start at 9 a.m.

The championship trophy, won last year by the Martin County Club, was awarded to that group's captain, Fred Rhoades, by the Vero Beach captain, Herman Artt, whose club lost possession of the prized trophy in league play during 1979. Other club captains include Lt. Col. Sam Dewhirst, Sandpiper Bay and Will Gaskell of Indian Hills.

Bob Wilson, who captained the Sandpipers during the 1979 season and who was recently named the general chairman of the league, paid special tribute to Jim Cassady of Vero Beach, who headed the league for 17 years. Also honored was Bob Hess of Fort Pierce, one of the co-founders.

Following league play, all players met at Holiday Inn Oceanside in Vero Beach where individual awards were presented.

Month and a half wait for a special delivery letter

When a special delivery letter containing an income tax refund check arrives a month and a half after it's mailed, the temptation is to point the finger of blame at the Post Office.

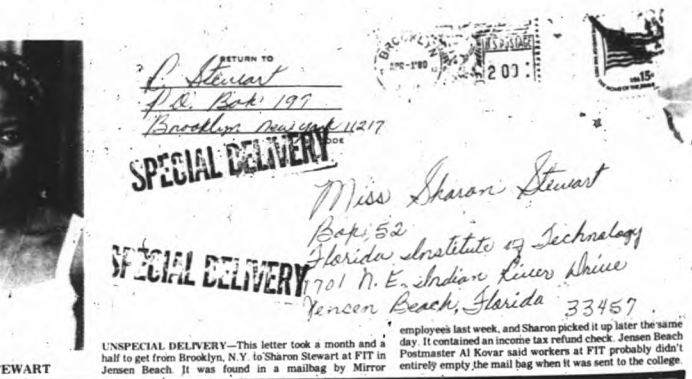
But in the case of a student at the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology, local Postmaster Al Kovar says it's probably not the fault of his workers.

Last Wednesday, May 14, while employees of The Mirror were preparing bundles of the paper for mailing, a special delivery letter was found in the bottom of a canvas mail bag which had been obtained from the local Post Office. The letter was postmarked, appropriately, if you're fond of April Fool's jokes, on April 1, 1980. It was addressed to FIT student Sharon Stewart. It had been mailed from her family in Brooklyn, N.Y., who had paid $2.15 in postage for the special delivery service.

A call was placed to FIT and in a few hours, Sharon was contacted and came by The Mirror to pick up her letter. She said it contained an income tax refund that she had planned to use for living expenses.

Postmaster Kovar said the local Post Office sends about four brown canvas bags (the same type supplied to The Mirror) full of mail per day to FIT, with special delivery mail clipped at the top of each bag. "Chances are that FIT didn't empty all the bag," he said, adding that in cases of mail delivery, regardless of who is at fault, "We generally get the brunt."

SHARON STEWART



UNSPECIAL DELIVERY—This letter took a month and a half to get from Brooklyn, N.Y. to Sharon Stewart at FIT in Jensen Beach. It was found in a mailbag by Mirror employees last week, and Sharon picked it up later the same day. It contained an income tax refund check. Jensen Beach Postmaster Al Kovar said workers at FIT probably didn't entirely empty the mail bag when it was sent to the college.

Bike paths, park site may be up to voters

BY BOB FRYER

his November, when voters are ...ting a new U.S. President, ...dents of Jensen Beach, Rio and Hutchinson Island may also have the option of voting for a bond issue to purchase an 80-acre park site and to get a network of bicycle paths constructed.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha said Tuesday that he is looking into the possibility of holding a referendum on increasing ... tax millage for District A property owners in order to buy the park site and build the bike paths.

Wacha said the proposed referendum, if approved, would mean the money to buy the park site and build the bike paths could be obtained this coming fiscal year, then it would be paid off over a number of years.

"Instead of having to wait a number of years to complete building the bike path network, it would mean it could be completed next year," Wacha said.

The proposed referendum would raise money to build bike paths along Commercial Street, along SR 707 through Rio, along Indian River Drive from FIT to the Jensen Beach Causeway, and across the causeway and down A1A on Hutchinson Island, hooking up with an existing path already built from Stuart to Stuart Beach.

Also to be included for purchase with money raised by an affirmative referendum vote would be an 80-acre recreational park site off SR 707A. Wacha said the site is on the south side of SR 707A (Commercial Street) and west of the Pinecrest Lakes subdivision.

"We only have one regional recreational park in this district and it is already heavily used. We could use another regional park," Wacha said.

Recently, when members of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club learned that a 3.5 acre tract adjacent to Langford Park was up for sale, they began looking for ways to have the county obtain it for park expansion. It is the only tract left for expansion, and carries a price tag of $250,000. Optimist President Larry Boragga said club members are still waiting on an appraisal of the land, to determine if the asking price is reasonable, and said last week that once an appraisal figure was set, an effort would be made to seek county purchase of the land. However, when Wacha was asked if the proposed referendum would include purchase of the tract, he said it is not now contemplated to be part of the referendum. He said that including the tract in the referendum may make the total price tag too high for voter approval, but indicated it is a matter to be considered when more specific dollar figures are available.

"I have asked the county attorney to look into it (the possibility of a referendum) to see what steps would have to be taken; to see if it could be done reasonably, and to see how much money would need to be raised," Wacha said.

District A, the district Wacha represents, includes all areas in the county north of the St. Lucie River and east of U.S. 1 except for the incorporated areas of Stuart, Ocean Breeze Park and Sewall's Point.

In addition to countywide property taxes, additional taxes are levied in each district to pay for special services in those districts. Last year, District A taxes for the Jensen-Rio area were 1 mill and they were 1.2 mills for Hutchinson Island. One mill of tax yields $1 for every $1,000 of assessed value.

Wacha said it is too early to tell how much it would cost to build the bicycle paths and buy the park site, and consequently said until those figures are in, he would not know the amount of extra millage that would need to be charged over a number of years to pay for those items. He added that the number of years the extra tax would be added to the tax bills — provided it is approved by voters — is also a factor not yet decided. However, preliminary indications are that the extra tax might be proposed for a five to 10 year period and the figure of one extra mill has been kicked around. Again, however, it should be noted that the exact millage figure to be proposed, and the duration of the proposed extra tax, will not be known until figures are established on the cost of building the bike paths and buying the tract.

THE TREADMILL—Fifth-graders at Jensen Beach Elementary School had a last last Friday when they held a farewell-to-school picnic at Langford Park. of the popular attractions was taking a spin on the treadmill. # Officials feel referendum has a good chance

BY BOB FRYER

If a referendum is held in November ...finance a network of bike paths for ...sen, Rio and Hutchinson Island and ...buy an 80-acre park site off SR ...A, voters will support it.

At least that's the opinion of officials ...presenting two organizations which ...e been vocal in the past about the ...ed for more bike paths in the com...nity.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Com...erce has made the construction of a ...e path from FIT to the Jensen ...ach Causeway its number one goal ...s year. When asked for his reaction ...the referendum proposal Tuesday, ...hamber executive secretary Dennis ...oyle said, "I think this is great. I ...ink the local citizens have seen the ...riousness of the need. We have been ...eding paths here for a long, long ...e and I hope the voters recognize ...e necessity of this."

Doyle predicted that voters will ...pport the referendum, and said, ...here are times when you can rob ...ter to pay Paul, but in the case of ...nty funds, it looks like there just ...'t enough money around to shift to ...e paths. I think this is the way it ...eds to be done, to bring it to the voters. You can count on donations from some persons to help, but they can't be expected to foot the bill totally. This way the burden can be spread more evenly. It is unfortunate that a death had to bring the problem to the forefront."

As for the park site, Doyle commented that Langford Park is already crowded at times and that with Jensen Beach growing westward, the park would be a great help in meeting recreational needs.

Doyle also happily reported that local citizen Susie Sullivan began last week going door to door along Indian River Drive to ask property owners if they would donate right-of-way for a bike path.

In the last six months, three bicyclists have died in traffic accidents in the Jensen Beach-Rio area. All three fatalities occurred on roads that had no bike paths. In the wake of the most recent death, of Florida Institute of Technology student Cruz Marvel, a number of persons have spoken out on the need for more bike paths in the area.

Members of the recently formed FIT Bike Club went to the county commission meeting last week to plea for more paths, and Sewall's Point town commissioners instructed their engineer to begin drawing specifications for a bike path down North Sewall's Point Road from A1A to FIT. That path is to be built in three half-mile segments over a period of three years.

At the county commission meeting, Dr. William Gehring, academic dean at FIT, spoke of the need for more paths and was told that the process of getting paths built in the community could be speeded up if members of the Bike Club could donate labor for construction of paths.

Dr. Gehring said a meeting of club members was held the next day and that members agreed to supply the labor for construction of a path along Indian River Drive in front of FIT if the county can supply the needed materials. He also noted that students are in the process of getting petitions signed to urge local governments to build more bike paths. He said once the petitions are ready, students plan to ride bikes to the office of the county commission, Stuart city commission and Sewall's Point town commission to present them with the petitions. He said the petitions will be circulated at local storefronts and that anyone wishing to sign one who isn't contacted by a student should come to the main lobby of the FIT business office.

The Bike Club meeting was held prior to word from Wacha that he is looking to the possibility of a referendum in November, and Dr. Gehring commented last week that "I know the problem is financial and that they (county commissioners) are in favor of the principle of bike paths. They set their budget for next year in July, and we plan to make sure our voices are heard then so money can be allocated for more paths."

When told Tuesday of the proposed referendum, Dr. Gehring said, "That sounds great. I think we can get enough community support to pass an issue of that nature."

He added, "I hope we can keep the momentum going that we seem to have now, and I think we will. We seem to have enough students involved to get this thing off the ground. You know, the students aren't doing this for selfish reasons, but for the community. Many of the students will have left FIT by the time the paths are built, so they're doing this for the community and for future students."

He said the petitions the students are circulating should be ready for presentation to the governmental officials in a couple of weeks. "The petitions are not meant as a means of confrontation with the public officials, but as cooperation, to show them there is community support for bike paths," he said, adding that so far he has heard of no negative reaction to the petitions. He also said he planned to talk to Stuart city commissioners Tuesday night about the need for bike paths.

Holt files for 3rd term

Martin County Sheriff James Holt has filed for re-election to the post he has held since 1972. Thus far, he is running unopposed.

Seeking the third term, he said last week his major objective will be against theft and other crime against property. If elected, he said, he plans to seek more patrols to beef up his campaign against crime.

He has named James Weisgerber of Vista Pines as his campaign treasurer.

Commission gives go-ahead for fire station on island

Martin County commissioners gave the go-ahead last week for construction to begin on a fire station on Hutchinson Island.

The station is to be built along A1A south of the Elliott Museum by Indian River Plantation as part of an agreement with IRP officials that was made when county commissioners gave approval for the condominium resort project.

Commissioner Frank Wacha said he expects the station, which will also have a community meeting room and will serve as a voting precinct, will be finished in September.

It is hoped that funds can be raised by island residents to buy a fire truck with a 75-foot hydraulic ladder to be housed in the station. A fund drive for that is expected to be announced soon.

Wacha said there has been a slight delay in getting bid specifications ready for a fire station to be built along Savanna Road at the entrance to the Timberwick subdivision, but said bids should go out soon and the station should be completed around September.

Bids on building a fireplace for the log cabin senior citizen center at Langford Park came in too high, Wacha said, so he said the purchasing agent was instructed to negotiate with a bidder to see if a lower price can be established. No bids were received for a chimney for the fireplace.

Wacha said that the purchasing agent will also try to negotiate a price on that.

renda Sue Fulton makes history
s one of West Point's co-ed grads

tory is being made this week by a girl. Brenda Sue Fulton, as one of first woman graduates of the ed States Military Academy at West Point.

Sue, as she is known to her many friends here, is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Ben Fulton of 328 W. Flora Dr., Jensen Beach. She is a graduate of Martin County High School.

Miss Fulton was preparing to enroll in Florida State University in 1976, when she learned that the traditionally all-male Military Academy was opening up to female students. She made the transition, she said, not to become a "first," but because of the economic advantages. The government pays for the students' education and guarantees them jobs on graduation.

In an interview with a reporter from the Palm Beach Post, Miss Fulton said that a large part of her decision to attend West Point was the challenge. Mentally, she felt she was up to meeting it, because she was an outstanding student in high school and served as her graduating class salutatorian. (During her senior year at the Academy she was a Florida finalist for a Rhodes Scholarship.)

The physical part of the training was hardest, she said. The first year's basic training weeded out many of the women students, cutting the component down from 119 to 100. But she managed to sweat it out, successfully.

Academically, Miss Fulton has an outstanding record. During the past year she has won a major English award for excellence in writing. She was one of two women on the academy debating team which took a trophy in its first tournament.

Miss Fulton graduates today as one of the first 62 women to successfully complete their studies and training at the academy. She has a five year commitment to the Army in return for her education.

Her mother, Clara Fulton, a past principal of Martin County High School, Her father Ben operates the Martin County Airport.

Time to fix up tired mailboxes

"It's time to do something for your winter-weary friend, the mailbox," says Jensen Beach Postmaster Al Kovar, "and the perfect time to do it is during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 19-24."

Residents of Jensen Beach delivery area are urged to examine their mailboxes to determine whether they have been damaged during the winter by weather or vandalism — particularly those located along rural routes.

"Some boxes may only need painting," says Kovar. "Others may need to be replaced. Mailbox improvement week is a g r e time to decide the best way to imp ve your mailbox. A damaged or improperly placed box will make it difficult for letter carriers to leave that special letter or package."

The Postal Service does not restrict customers to a specific type of mailbox, but does say that all boxes — whether standard or custom-made — must meet certain specifications for size, strength and location. A variety of approved commerical mailbox designs are available for use with decorative posts. "Customers should check with the Jensen Beach Post Office for specifications," the postmaster said.

"I would remind people that the mailbox regulations have been written with safety and efficiency in mind," said Kovar. "You should not use massive farm equipment or heavy objects like plows and milk cans filled with cement to hold up mailboxes. Supports of this type are potential accident hazards. They can damage vehicles and cause serious injury to people who accidentally strike them."

Her musical background includes years of teaching, conducting, arranging, etc. She at one time had the reputation for converting "rock and rollers" to Beethoven.

These meetings are open at no charge to anyone who has lost their spouse as well as to friends of theirs.

This is just one of many services in this H.R.S. program for people in this situation. Other services include help in job hunting, help to further education and training, information and referral for business affairs, and emotional help. For further information, phone Cindy Hays at 287-8585.

Last month's informal hit a new high of enthusiasm when Bill Satterlee of Crisis Line told of their work and Sis Bongiorni of Jensen Beach Travel Service presented a fascinating and informative talk on travel.

EMPHASIS

A REPORT TO OUR CUSTOMERS BY FLORIDA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

NEWSPAPER READERSHIP REMAINS HIGH, BUT... A Florida Press Association newspaper readership survey shows that 8 out of 10 Floridians regularly read a daily newspaper. And that for local news, papers outdraw television and radio, 54.5% to about 40%.

Readership of financial information, the spring which keeps our economy moving, was low, about 21% on a regular basis. It did beat out agricultural news, 4% and legal notices, 9%.

A WHOLE NEW BALLGAME

It's interesting to note that in today's environment, Washington often rewards failure (like Chrysler) and penalizes winners. A prominent American summarized, "Success is now sufficient evidence to invite scrutiny by the government to determine how success can be 'remedied', as if it were a disease. To win is to lose, and the losers are not just the companies found 'guilty' of success. The real losers are the consumers."

ENERGY-RICH VS ENERGY-POOR

The nation is at the crossroads in choosing a future that will be either energy-rich or energy-poor. The energy-poor path leads to more menial jobs, less buying power, lower quality of living, less upward social mobility, inadequate resources for essential services, environmental protection and national defense.

The energy-rich path offers better working environment, more opportunity, greater productivity, greater buying power, more opportunity for more people, greater national strength and unity.

FPL's Board Chairman, Marshall McDonald: "I firmly believe we will choose the energy-rich path. I worry that we may not make this choice in time." Decisions relating to the nation's energy future are being made now. You can make your voice heard!

Would Christopher Columbus have started out from Spain if the bureaucratic red tape had him ensnarled? Capt. Columbus borrowed the money from Queen Isabella and headed west, hoping to find the east. No permits. No public hearings. By contrast, some 84 different permits were required just to build and start-up Turkey Point nuclear generating plants. Just something to think about.

The same would be true in Jensen Beach. Busing for an hour or more to elementary schools would also be futile.

Those associations and mixing could be achieved when entering the secondary school level. There, the youngsters are patterned in a more adult atmosphere, and more readily accept the associations. And, all young people in that age group are going to one school.

As the area grows, it might be possible that in the future a high school would be built in the Jensen Beach or Port St. Lucie areas. If that became necessary, it would again be time to rethink the value of busing, but by then it is possible that the two communities would be bi-racial enough for a balanced school system.

The breakdown of neighborhoods to achieve social and racial equality has been one of the major problems in the United States since the passage of the civil rights act of 1965. The family unit, and the neighborhood life, has fallen victim to federal social programs.

Some good has come of the program, but we wonder if the value hasn't been at too high a price. The million dollars a year spent on fuel by just the St. Lucie County School Board would be better used on increasing teacher salaries and providing a better education for all students.

Potential and practical

Let us suppose that the Free Energy group of Jensen Beach is successful in raising enough money to build the windmill it plans at the Jensen Beach Environmental Center. That windmill would create enough energy to light one electric bulb, and possible enough to pump up some water to make a plot of green grass.

Aren't the windmills in Holland picturesque?

It would be a symbol of energy efficiency, using the ever-steady southeast winds to produce energy and it would be free energy.

Great idea, huh?

Another great idea would be raising enough through donations to put in some solar panels that would collect the ever-present sunshine that would convert the sun's rays into heat to produce hot water for the environmental center.

Imagine the potential for savings. Also imagine the projects being a prototype to encourage the residents of Martin and St. Lucie counties to install their own energy-saving windmills and solar panels to cut our dependence on electric power produced by Florida Power and Light.

After all, FPL uses high cost oil and nuclear power to get that electric to us. Cut down on demand for electric and we cut down on its cost, and we cut down on use of expensive OPEC oil.

Everyone should have his own windmill and solar panels.

The state and federal governments are working to offer rebates and tax breaks to those who install solar panels. There is as much as a $500 tax break for those who install solar panels now. More will be in the offing if Governor Graham's energy package is passed.

Of course, if people wanted to produce their own electricity for their homes, they would have to have a larger wigdmill than the one is proposed for the environmental center.

Can anyone imagine what this area would look like with tens of thousands of windmills built at every house and business? If you think Holland is picturesque, with verdant hills and occasional windmills turning slowly in the sunlight, our area would be like a forest of wildly turning sticks and fans.

Quiet areas would become a blur of action, and it boggles the mind.

Then, too, solar panels and their appurtenances would also be a problem. Think of thousands of square miles of aluminum, glass, plastic and fiberglass to catch the sun's rays. One on an occasional house would be attractive, but the glare of reflecting rays, and the monotonous sameness of solar panels on every here would be a sight blight that few could endure.

Professor Roderick Nash, of the University of California history and environmental studies department, warns that conversion to solar, wind and water power could bring "a nightmare of stripped forests, crowded wilderness, scenic pollution and social changes few Americans are ready for."

As an example, Nash cites the once beautiful and wild Glen Canyon in Utah. "A single nuclear facility occupying less than a square mile would produce as much power" as the Glen Canyon dam. The dam inundated the valley with an 186-mile-long lake.

The nuclear power versus dam battle would be especially strong in the eastern United States, where wilderness is almost gone.

So, with the prospect of free energy offering potentially so many disadvantages, what is the answer?

First, people must stop looking at a potential, and become aware that there is no easy cure to our energy problems. There is no one answer. There are many answers.

Energy self-sufficiency will come from a proper mix of nuclear power, oil power, coal power, wood power, solar power, wind power and water power. Using each where they are most adaptable, and combining all for total energy resource is the answer.

Thus, potential can move into the area of practicality.

The art (?) of standing by

Delta airplanes are a marvel of the modern age. They travel on a schedule out of West Palm Airport for Atlanta on a schedule better than most city bus systems.

The flight attendants are friendly, well trained, and efficient in bringing you goodies at the exact minute of the trip to allow you to finish them before landing at the other end — if you eat and drink fast enough.

They arrive on time, and take off on time.

I didn't, and I wasn't.

I really don't know what happened. I'd traveled the road to Palm Beach and made it down there in an hour, with plenty of time to spare for my doctor's appointment. I guess I simply failed to take into account the slowed-down traffic, an itinerant train or two, plus the added distance to the airport.

But then, I'm not noted for thinking my best any time before noon. Up to 10 a.m., I need a keeper. And daughter Valerie was responding to my "scheduler" in all innocence — she hadn't ever made the run to the PB airport, and couldn't be expected to know how long it was going to take.

The result of my miscalculations put the vapor trail of my plane high ever-head by the time I hopped out of the car and into the air terminal.

Hollowly, I told the nice guy at the counter, "I think I've missed my plane," in the tone of voice which split the thin line between putting the blame on him and committing suicide.

No problem. Another Atlanta-bound plane would be along and would take off in a couple of hours. He was sure he could get me on it.

That is the way I found out about flying stand by. You sit. You watch all the "white card" passengers get on — then the yellow card — then the red card. Just when you're sure the dumb thing is going to take off without you, they begin calling the stand by names. Mine was next to last.

When!! I made it!

Well, says I to me, this looks easy, as I settle back in my seat, fasten my seat belt, and prepare to be winged to Atlanta. The time goes by so fast. I know I'm going to sit down at the mid way point before Val gets back home with the car.

I pass my time in my favorite travel pursuit! — picking up young men. The one in the seat next to me this trip is a handsome devil who's bound for Kansas City. He's been attending conventions on company time in Sanibel Island and Palm Beach.

Palm Beach, he says, is the pits. He had several days in a fabulous beach-side mansion, but at night, there's nowhere to go and nothing to do.

I think a minute, and agree.

The food comes — sandwiches and an apple. I give him my apple which he consumes post haste. They call me the odd apple polisher.

I have a drink — one of the very few I was to consume during my entire vacation.

We put down in Atlanta. Again I am on stand-by. I discover after making the miles-long walk from point of arrival to point of departure — or at least what I think is going to be POD.

Only an hour to wait, so I don't stray too far from gate where the next plane is due to land from. Instead, I pick up another young man.

This one is bearded, looks a bit like a hippy and with strong overtones of Tennessee in his vocal make up. But that doesn't keep him from getting around.

"Just spent two weeks in Argentina, and a while back they sent me to Hawaii — that was the nihze won," he told me, going on at length about them purty Hayweyan girls. He was on expense account, so he didn't immediately go into the high cost of living in our fiftieth state, as everyone else does. These traveling men get the cream without the curds.

Mr. T-M kept me from getting bored during the wait, and possibly from getting a board. He was also on stand by, and by the time they'd called his name, the plane was full.

I was bumped — for another two hours.

Helplessly, I rushed for the tele phone, to let son Bruce know I'd be stalled for another two hours. No answer. He — and apparently the whole family — had already left for Knoxville to meet me.

Dispirited and exhausted, I made my way up to the nearest lounge. I could at least drown my sorrows, or if not, wet them down a bit. No seat at the bar and no empty tables. I plunked myself down at a table for two where a young man was seated, reading. Hoping he wouldn't notice me (by now I was looking like a mis used rag doll) I ordered a drink.

This young man proved to be the nicest of all my targets for the day. A Miamian, he was in the cesling fan business, and was on his way to Chattanooga to pick the brains of a factory with the goal of starting up one for himself. It was small world time. We had places and faces in common. We exchanged cards. By the time he left, the world looked far more friendly and rosy.

"I've been laid over from one flight," I told the sweet faced girl at the counter. "I'm a cancer victim (patting on my most thread worn face) and I don't think I'll make it through another wait."

The dear girl put my ticket on the top of the stand-by pile. I was the first on the list to be called.

When I disembarked at Knoxville, I was greeted by four very sleepy people — son Bruce (who never wears out), daughter-in-law Marilyn, granddaughter Christy, eight, who wasn't a bit crabby and welcomed me with a big kiss, and three year old Cindy, a sleepy lump in her mother's arms. I'd kept them waiting for more than three hours.

Needless to say, when it came time to get up in the morning on the day of my return, I was up, dressed, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, in plenty of time to get to the airport.

Standing by in some matters may be a virtue, but when it comes to flying, no more stand-bys for me, thank you.

Ice cream dreams

This diet, like the other two, has been a frustrating one. There are mornings when I'll get up, weigh in, and find I've gained a pound or two after starving myself the day before. I don't know why it happens, but it seems to be common, as Mary says the same thing happens to her.

In spite of the occasional days when I actually gain weight instead of losing it, over the long stretch, I'm losing weight. I've been on the diet for about three weeks now and weighed in this morning at 164.

My goal this time is 140, and I figure it will take another week or two to lose those last four stubborn pounds.

I keep telling myself that when I get to 140, I'm going to be reasonable about what I eat, and that I'll go back on the diet the minute I reach 145.

But during this diet, the refrigerator at the office here has become packed with all sorts of tempting goodies. The women around the office are always bringing in pastry, cakes, ice cream, pies and cookies. Since I'm a bachelor, I think they've always figured it was their motherly duty to keep a supply of treats around for their adopted son. And, when not on a diet, I've always done my part to make sure they knew their cooking was appreciated. But in the last few weeks, I've had the heart-breaking experience of watching a strawberry shortcake harden like a brick, and watching cookies and crackers go stale. I had to turn down a banana split at the fifth-grade social at Jensen Elementary and I passed up the best looking chocolate-chip cookie I ever saw at the kindergarten screening tests the next morning.

I can't wait for this miserable diet to end, and in spite of declarations to myself that I'll never again let my weight get out of control, I know already that the lure of an ice cream cone at Susie's in downtown Jensen will be just too much to resist.

What the heck, if I get chubby again, there's always diet number four.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

I do not intend to seek re-election to my seat on the St. Lucie County Commission.

I make the announcement at this time to give anyone that might wish to serve on the County Commission time to consider running for the seat.

I want to thank the eight different County Commissioners I have served with for co-operating with me during my term.

I am proud that our commission has always considered and acted on problems on a countywide basis for the good of the entire county, rather than on any narrow sectionalist basis.

I thank my family for their support and understanding during my term of office.

I leave the commission with one strong hope: that the Florida House and Senate reverse their trend in recent years of passing irresponsible laws that mandate local government programs while simultaneously limiting income sources to local governments, thus making it near impossible for local governments to respond to the needs of our citizens.

I thank the citizens of St. Lucie County for allowing me to serve as your county commissioner for sixteen years.

Best wishes to all.
John B. Park

Letters to the editor must bear the writer's name and address. The use of initials or pen names or signatures will eliminate a letter from consideration for publication. All letters are subject to condensation by the editor.

The suspense is unbearable in the mornings.

I get up, groggily wash my face, then wrestle with my contact lenses a few minutes before getting them properly placed on my eyeballs.

Then, without a stitch of clothing on, I step on the bathroom scales and determine what sort of mood I'll be in until the same time the next day.

I'm on a diet.

I wasn't fat to begin with, but after months of watching my middle bulge out to a fair-sized innertube, I decided several weeks ago that it was time to shed some of the extra weight. It had gotten to the point where it was hard to suck in my belly on the beach, and with my 33rd birthday coming up, I figured if I didn't do something soon, the middle-age spread may set in permanently.

Depending on whose diet book you read, and depending on what sort of "frame" I possess—it seems to fall between small and medium—I should weigh anywhere from 138 to 145 pounds.

At one time in my life, I weighed 173 pounds. That was several years ago, and only lasted a brief time. It came after a year or so of carrying around about 165 pounds. I don't know why I suddenly baloooned up to 173, but without doing anything about it, I quickly dropped back to 165.

I stayed at that weight a while longer, then went on my first diet. In two and a half months of suffering, I dropped 25 pounds, to 140. My belly was nearly flat and my ribs showed—a condition I hadn't enjoyed since my Junior year in high shcool. And back then, I didn't enjoy it. At that time I would have given most anything to have weighed 173 pounds, as I wanted desperately to be on the football team and was sick of always being the smallest one in my class.

I didn't make the team. Instead of catching footballs, I caught pneumonia.

Now that football doesn't mean anything to me, I prefer being slim to hefty.

The first diet was a real killer. A friend of mine had started the diet about a week before I got on it. I saw it was working for him and decided to try it.

I didn't read his diet book. I just followed his instructions, and on his diet, you can counts fats and carbohydrates. We tried—and succeeded on most days—to keep both fats and carbos limited to 25 to 30 grams a day. In effect, that means there is practically nothing you can eat. On top of that, we did 100 situps a day, and I did a lot of jogging on the beach.

For two and a half months, we starved ourselves and each of us lost 25 pounds.

I hated that diet, but I stuck to it until I reached my goal.

Then, I did what most all dieters do. After I reached my desired weight, I began devouring all those goodies I'd denied myself of for so long. I ate anything with bread wrapped around it. I ate ice cream by the gallon, making sure to pour lots of chocolate sauce on it, and I ate lots of sweet fruits and baked potatoes.

I developed a new liking for peanuts, so long as they weren't in the form of peanut butter, and I couldn't pass by a convience store without stopping for a piece of cake or fudge.

Surprisingly, I didn't gain weight at a rapid pace. In fact, it took me about a year to get up to 155, and I leveled off there until last fall.

That's when I went on my second diet. I went on that one because Mary Meissner, an ad salesperson for The Mirror, went on one. On her diet, you don't have to watch fats, just carbos. That means you can eat things cooked in butter and can eat lots of meats you can't eat on diet number one.

I lost 10 pounds on that diet and again felt really fit. But again, I immediately headed for the baked potatoes and pastries after quitting the diet—and loved every bit of them.

By last month, I was back up to 154, so I started my third diet when Mary said she was going on it again.

To the Editor:

How soon they forget!

France has met with the Premier of Russia and has decided to send their teams to the Moscow Olympics. In World War I and World War II, the United States sent its flower of youth to supposedly make the World Safe For Democracy.

These fine young men suffered hardships, deprivation, cold, hunger, and were quartered thousands of miles away from their loved ones. At the time, France was profuse in their gratitude for this great sacrifice, but as the years progress, the greed has surpassed the thanks.

May I suggest that all those who suffered and lost loved ones in these two catastrophic Wars, will now boycott any and all products for sale by this turncoat country of France. If we are able to cut their profits in wine, perfumes, etc. they can peddle their wares in the Soviet Union!

TAX-FREE CASH

QUESTION: I purchased a small office building several years ago. When I bought the property, the seller took back a first mortgage. The mortgage, which now has a balance of approximately $20,000, is due, and the seller insists that if he paid off, I can obtain a new first mortgage for $100,000. If I do, I will pocket $80,000 after paying off the current mortgage. My question is this: Because I would pocket $80,000 if I refinanced, would I have to report this on my income tax return?

ANSWER: No. The proceeds of refinancing are not taxable because they are not the result of a sale or disposition of the property.

Despite the expense of carrying such extensive refinancing, the $80,000 in tax-free cash could be quite attractive.

You must weigh the alternatives for reinvesting these proceeds. For example, it would probably make no sense to refinance if you could not invest the capital (or a major portion of it) at a sufficient yield. This yield, combining current yield and appreciation, should exceed the interest rate on your newly borrowed money.

A Murder is Announced' to open at Barn

The Barn Theatre will present its opening night performance of the Agatha Christie thriller, "A Murder is Announced" at 8:30 p.m. Friday, May

The play, a delight for mystery lovers, features one of Christie's favorite characters, Miss Marple, who is up to her usual tricks.

Set design and construction are the work of Ray Hilton, with special assistance by Bernie Donato.

Co-producers are Jeanne Small and Sue Franklin, stage manager is Joan Gallagher, and director is Kathleen Cohen, who also directed Christie's "Ten Little Indians" a few months ago.

Sexual assault crisis team is established

State Attorney Robert E. Stone recently announced the formation of a Sexual Assault Crisis Team designed to improve the effectiveness of detection and prosecution of rape and sexual assault cases.

Members of the Team are Ft. Pierce Police Department's Chief James Powell, Community Relations Officer George Pitcher and Detective Pam Huddleston. Sheriff Lane Norvell; Detectives Fonda Cook and Peggy Erhardt, both of the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department; Sgt. James Thaxton, Supervisor of the 911 Center; Dan Nippes, Chief Criminalist of the Indian River Regional Crime Lab; Erma Detrick, R.N., of the Lawnwood Medical Center; Bernadette Floyd, Director of Consultation and Education of the Indian River Community Mental Health Center; Hattie Hagans, St. Lucie County Branch Director of the Indian River Community Mental Health Center, and Assistant State Attorneys Margaret Blanton, Pamela Roebuck and Lynn McDonough.

All of these members are volunteering their time and services in an effort to lessen the burden on the victims of rape or sexual assault, to provide medical and social supportive services to the victims, to aid law enforcement and to educate the citizens of St. Lucie County about rape and sexual assault.

"Rape is one of the ugliest of crimes. A woman who is raped is doubly victimized - first by the attacker and secondly by the attitudes of society," said Stone. "The purpose of the Crisis Team is to improve procedures in the treatment of victims of rape and sexual assault in the hopes of increasing ultimate convictions in such cases. Victims, the legal system, the medical community, law enforcement agencies and the public will all benefit from the services of the Crisis Team," he said.

The Crisis Team plans to meet on a bimonthly basis.

Local post offices gear for nine-digits

Soon, many residents in Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie will be writing nine digits instead of five when they mail their letters.

The Jensen Beach and Fort Pierce post offices, in conjunction with a nationwide service plan, are gearing up to expand its five-digit zip code to nine. The system, which is scheduled to start in 1981, is an attempt by the government to increase the speed of deliveries while cutting down some of the continually escalating costs.

The present coding operates by reading the first few digits and sorting mail to the major sectional centers. The remaining digits are used to route mail to the associate post offices of those centers. From that point, carriers are required to hand sort the mail according to routes.

The additional four digits will not only pinpoint the general destination of a letter, but will be able to designate the specific mail routes.

The new system will center around large computers located throughout the country. Called Optical Character Readers, they will read the numbers at the point of beginning and code the appropriate numbers in the lower right hand corner of the envelope.

Al Kovar, Jensen Beach Post master, favors the new system, saying that it will not only cut time but allow workers to expend their energies in other needed areas. He went on to say that since 1976, the number of postal employees has been cut down by 18,000. If the zip code of 1963 had not been initiated, the U.S. Postal service would now be the largest employer in the country today. Kovar added that the volume of letters is "growing around four billion pieces of mail each year" and to handle it is going to warrant a newer and more comprehensive system.

At the Fort Pierce Post Office, Fred Ankrum, manager of customer services, reported that work is also going on there to gear up for the nine-digit system. He said the plan is to implement the nine-digit zip codes for businesses first and that this should occur next February. "We'll start with the businesses and it will take some time before it will be implemented for individual residences," he said.

STUART ROTARY CLUB president Carl J. Metz, right, presented scholarships of $400 each to Florida Institute of Technology students Timothy Smith and Morris Crady during the Awards Night Ceremony at the Jensen FIT campus last week. Also receiving a $400 scholarship from the Rotary Club, but not present, was Kevin Scott. Other awards given during the night included the Brian McCann Memorial Award to Daniel Palmer, the Dean of Students award to Tom Meisner, and Professional Food Management Services scholarships to Alfred Sweeney and Elizabeth Kouchowski. ## YMCA sets day camp

The YMCA's summer day camp program is due to start on June 9th and will continue in two week intervals, comprising ten weeks of fun and enjoyment for youngsters ages 6 through 11, Dave Gessner, executive director of the Y announced today.

"This can be a summer to remember for the youngsters who participate," Gessner said, "with better and more varied programs being planned than ever before."

Camp Thunderbird is held at the YMCA, 903 South 21st Street. Gessner said that this allows us to utilize all the Y's facilities and provides the ideal environment for effective experiences for this age group.

The camp hours will be Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Gessner said that bus service is available for youngsters in the southern portion of the county.

Parents can register their youngsters for one or more two week camp season, or for the entire summer. Anyone desiring additional information can stop by the Y, 903 South 21st Street, or call 465-0330.

Gary home is 'mansion of light'

God's help and a lot of hard work will get you everywhere.

That's attorney Willie Gary's philosophy, and the fine home occupied by him and his family on Sewall's Point Road is an impressive proof of the adage.

The beautiful house, on its spacious walled lot, is indeed a dream home inside and out. The two story, 12 room residence is entered by the gated curving driveway and through hand-carved doors.

You're smitten at once by the hallway entry, which is the hub of activity. Before you, a curved stairway (also hand-carved) leads up to the second floor. To the left is an elegant formal dining room with a table seating eight; to the right a dazzling white formal living room rich with white chairs and sofas and a contour modern fireplace.

But it is easy to see that most of the real living is done in the broad expanse to the rear of the house. Deep, comfortable vinyl sofas in two conversation areas all look out on the handsome two story patio housing the family swimming pool, which at any given time of the day or evening you'll find filled with little Garys cavorting happily in the water.

Mrs. Gary's kitchen is her pride and joy. All of the utilities – oven, sinks, refrigerator, are handily placed around a floating work island where the stove is located. And at one end is the breakfast area where little boys with big appetites can be kept refilled.

Also downstairs, conveniently off the main recreation area and reachable through a door to the pool is the boys' play area, with its superhuge TV screen and other playthings.

Upstairs, the 7,000 square foot home has five bedrooms and three baths. In addition to Gloria's and Willie master bedroom, with its huge bed and two love seats in Florentine design, there are the rooms shared by Sekou, 6, Ali, 3, and year-old Kobie Big brother Kenneth has his own bedroom and his own television set, so he can have his pick of programs while the younger ones enjoy the programs geared to small fry.

Two bedrooms stand empty – one the guest room and a second which was designed and decorated for the little girl they were expecting when Kobie arrived.

"I guess we'll have to adopt, if we're going to get a little girl," Willie told The Mirror.

And speaking of mirrors, every where there are mirrors, in the Gary home – on bedroom walls, bathroom walls, and on the walls of the living area downstairs. One gets the feeling of being in an endless house, with space multiplied a dozen times wherever one looks. The Garys like space, and have made the most of it.

The Garys' success story is made even more remarkable because the young lawyer is only 32 "and getting younger."

A native of Georgia, he came to the Palm Beach area with his parents while he was still a baby, later moving up to Martin County.

He first got the idea he wanted to be a lawyer back in junior high school. He knew he wanted to be of some sort of service to humanity, but the thought didn't entirely gel until after he'd graduated from Murray Junior Senior High and was nearly through Saaw University in Raleigh, N.C.

"I made up my mind I wanted law in my senior year," he said. "Law affords one the opportunity to render a service most valuable to people's rights. I like serving people, yet I knew I wanted financial renumeration, which you can get in the law if you work hard."

Willie Gary had some help with that law career. He married his childhood sweetheart Gloria Royal.

"We met in the second grade. She was sick, and I was chosen to take some fruit to her home," he recalled.

They graduated from college together — she holds her master's degrees in speech therapy and audiology — and she earned her PHT, (putting hubby through) law school.

The couple shares opinions on many things, educationally and otherwise.

On integration of schools: "They're definitely making a mess of it, because of a breakdown in communications and general apathy."

On prejudice: "We don't run into much bigotry. People aren't opposed to the color of your skin when it comes to getting a job done."

Willie's interest, outside his work, is largely in young people.

"You see so many young people going to jail, smoking pot. They have good minds but they wind up in jail. They can sing, dance, act, but they end up going nowhere."

Willie works hard with the Young Men's Progressive Association of Martin County. He's been helping out with the summer olympics, which will take place June 7.

"We start trying to reach them in junior high school," Willie said. "Their problem is a lack of concern on the part of the parents. They don't have enough responsibility in the home – they're not taught they have to earn whatever they get – that they have to pay a price for it."

His boyhood was tough, but it taught him the value of things.

"When we grew up, we worked in the fields, we just understood that you'd go out to work for what you wanted. We got in the habit of doing it. The kids now take the easy way.

"You don't grow up overnight; you go through stages," he continued. "If you miss one of those stages, you don't know what it's all about."

With his own kids, life is still the beautiful dream.

Kenneth wants to be a lawyer, Sekou wants to be a millionaire, and Ali wants to be the Incredible Hulk, he smiled.

In a more serious vein, he added, "They can be whatever they want to be. I don't think the race issue should be used as a hindrance. With work and faith in God you can do whatever you want to do."

SPACIOUS RESIDENCE—The regal residence of the Willie Garys on Sewall's Point Road presents an imposing picture to passers by. The home is built and designed for an athletic young family, complete with sauna bath and steam room, and a super-sized pool across the rear of the dwelling.

GRACEFUL STAIRWAY—The curved stairway in the Willie Gary home is hand-carved by a local artist, as was the design on the home's front door. The stairs lead up to the five-bedroom second floor, where a conversation piece is the sunken tub in one of the three upstairs bathrooms.

DREAM COME TRUE—Attorney Willie Gary stands in front of his dream house, which he and his wife designed.

FUNCTIONAL FIREPLACE—This South Carolina granite fireplace is a cozy note in the huge family room of the Willie Gary home. On the mantel are trophies and plaques won in athletics by the energetic young attorney. He now shares his prowess with young people involved in area programs.

POOL FOR A PALACE—Mrs. Willie Gary and sons Kenneth, Sekou, Ali and Kobie splash away the afternoon's heat in the big family pool with its two-story patio enclosure and relaxation area. All the kids are natural swimmers.

ELEGANT DINING ROOM—The separate dining room in the Willie Gary home is made to appear much larger than it is, with the mirrored wall at one end. The home throughout is geared toward gracious living.

LUNTEERS—These are the volunteer firemen who ved their community as members of the Jensen Beach Fire Department. This month they observed the 33rd anniversary of the department.

AND NOW—This is what the Jensen Beach Fire station looks like today. The department boasts nine fire trucks and a chief's car and has 27 volunteers, including four junior firemen. This month the department observed its 33rd aniniversary.

Fire Department has come a long way

BY BOB FRYER

The original fire station is gone and too are many, if not all, of the ginal members of the Jensen Beach unteer Fire Department. But the ise of pride in service to their mmunity is as alive today as it was years ago this month when the partment was first formed.

Back when the department was ically started, they had a small lding with two bays and one fire ck. We've come a long way since then, and I think the community can take a lot of pride in their local fire department," commented Chief Joe Luciano as he talked about the progress the department has made since it was formed.

Today, the department boasts nine fire trucks and a chief's jeep, and has 27 firemen, including four junior firemen.

Luciano wasn't living in Jensen Beach when the department was formed in 1947, and says he's not sure how many members were in the original department. He does know, however, that the first fire chief was Arthur White and that two of the earliest active members were Arnold "Boots" St. Clair, and Randolph Spinney.

"I understand that back in the old days Spinney used to keep the truck in his back yard, and that when there was a fire, he'd get Boots and they'd go fight it."

The original station was built on the banks of the Indian River where the parking lot for the First Federal Savings and Loan Association is now.

Spinney, who was chief for many years until his retirement in 1976, used to sit at the fire department with Luciano and spin yarns about the many fires he fought locally. "He said in the early days, the most calls they got for fires were ones along the railroad tracks, started by sparks from the coal-burning engines," Luciano said.

Ernie Baker, who has been a member of the department for about 18 years, commented, "Back in the old days, when the department first formed, there wasn't much to Jensen Beach but Indian River Drive. Skyline Drive was a dirt road, and traffic into Jensen from the west came down Sunview Road, as there was no section of Commercial Street paralleling it back then.

Luciano said he understands that the Jensen Department was the first one outside of Stuart to be formed, and said he has heard the department used to cover fires from Jensen to Port Salerno. He said Buck Henry, who was then a county commissioner, was instrumental in getting the county to buy the first truck for the department. Luciano also notes with pride that since that first truck was purchased, the county has only paid for one other truck for the department. That truck, bought earlier this year, will be housed in a new fire station that will soon be built on Savanna Road at the entrance to the Timberwick subdivision. It should be completed by September.

Luciano said the new station, which will be under the wing of the Jensen Department, will mean firemen will no longer have to worry about delays from passing trains when responding to calls west of the tracks.

In talking about the progress of the department since its beginning, Luciano praised the long years that Spinney and ST. Clair, both now deceased, gave to the department. And, he said the department is blessed with several other firemen who have served a number of years. Among them are Baker, Ed Sprague, who has served 22 years, Will Bowman, who has about 16 years of service, and Don Wilkie, who joined around the same time Bowman did.

"I don't know what we'd do without those men. They have proven their value to the department countless times, and the community owes them, as well as all of our other volunteers, a hearty round of thanks," Luciano said.

"The people of this community should be very proud of the equipment and trucks they have purchased for the department with their donations. It shows what can be done when people are community minded," he said, but then added that there seems to be a disturbing trend among the newcomers to Jensen.

"Back in the old days, when the department needed support, most everyone contributed. Now, many of the newer folks just don't make contributions. They don't seem to realize that their help is needed and that they're getting an excellent department much cheaper than it would be if they had to pay taxes for a paid department," he said.

Luciano also appealed for new members. "We need fresh blood in the department. We would sure welcome some new members," he said.

THEN—This is what the first fire station in Jensen Beach looked like when the department was formed 33 years ago this month. It was located on the bank of the Indian River, where the parking lot for First Federal Savings and Loan Association now is. It had two bays, but only one truck.

Holiday Outlines

by RUTH BOWES

assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

A delightful holiday weekend was enjoyed by many at H.Out. Friends and the weather held good most of the time. One of the big get-together parties was Long and Nagy compound, where guests attended: the Robert Nagys, Art Nagys, Iris' Torres, Jeanne Stanley, June Carleton, R. Bowers. An old fashioned outdoor bar-b-cue and watermelon feast was enjoyed. There was singing and Bob Royal entertained, ventriloquizing as a lovable, brown puppy.

Lena Black writes that they arrived home in good time. But she & Bob wish they were here, as it is wet and cold in New Jersey.

Berryle Roy was very happy to have received so many cards from her H.Out friends after her recent illness, on arriving home in Mich. Berryle is thankful for all the support sent her and wants to say that she is well now.

J. Carleton and R. Bowes hosted Dick and Doris Nourse to a farewell dinner. The Nourses left Tuesday for their home in Bradford, Pa.

Lisbee and Artie Smith sent news of visiting a daughter in Atlanta, Ga. while enroute to their home in Blacksburg, W. Va. The weather was cool and nice. The Spring flowers and dog wood trees were in bloom. Housecleaning, ho-hum, starts in both the town and lake houses, after they visit a week with Lisbee's mother in Ohio.

Kay & Roy Johnson arrived safely home in Mass. Now plans are readied to go by motor to Vermont along the East Coast for a summer tour.

Peg and Al Ray left for a three week trip to New Jersey to attend, while there, a wedding anniversary celebration!

Anniversaries Congratulations — Ida & Howard Clugstone, Ella & Richard Hutchison, Lisa & Richard Scarpulla 5-30, Betty & Ed Lally 1-2, Pauline & Earl Niman 6-3.

Happy Birthday Wishes — Frank Innucci 5-29, Tina Van Rasy 5-30, Alice Perrault 5-31, Wes Parker 6-2, Tom Clinger, Verne Clinger 6-3, June Magnum 5-4.

We are sorry to report that Anne Houghton died on Wednesday morning. Anne was a gracious lady and had many friends here in the Park. Her husband Frank, is a member of our Board of Directors.

The couple's daughters flew down to be with their father and to return to Rutland, Vermont with him where memorial services will be held for Anne.

Any friends who wish to, may send a memorial contribution to the Jensen Area Samaritans Ambulance Fund.

Grace and John Carson returned this week after an enjoyable vacation visit to their daughter Nancy and her family in New York City. Part of the pleasure of their trip was a stop-over in Carmel, New York to see Rusty, Ken and Lynne Baxter. The Carsons returned to Holiday Out via Franklin, N.C. where they stayed with the Richard Chodls of Stuart, long time friends.

Dot and Audley (Brownie) Browne entertained a few friends at a buffet supper Sunday evening.

OBPers can now sing "In The Good Ol' Summertime" as they scoot down traffic free roads to a parking space right near the supermart entrance. Also, there has been those late afternoon showers to keep the grass green and the flowers beautiful and what do you know, so far no 'bugs' not even love bugs. It's a great time of the year in Martin County.

Mr. and Mrs. White Rabbit are expecting, according to the usual reliable sources. It'll be something interesting for OBPers to watch.

The Park is all neat and clean again, as the maintenance crew has snipped-off and sawed-down all the frost killed branches and now that the rains have come, they will be out with their power mowers keeping the grass short and trim. Next, up the Cabbage Palms they will go in Ralph's 'cherry picker' to give the palms their mid-summer manicuring. Trees make the park and OBP has plenty of them to give summertime shade.

Now, that the number of residents is down to a manageable size, the monthly 'pot luck suppers' will be started, probably early in June. Watch for an announcement on the bulletin board. These have been great fun in the past and all newcomers are urged to attend as it is a grand way to get acquainted with your street-away neighbors.

Just a quiet comment in answer to numerous requests, as to what is doing at the 'Log Cabin Senior Center'. It is now 7 or 8 logs high, waiting for the special top log that is squared off for mounting the roof rafters, etc. In other words, it is slowly but surely coming along and can be readily seen from the road as one drives by take a look.

HOSPITAL

George Hunter, 41 SW Fifth Ave., is still in the hospital; Paul Tyree, 14 Indian River Dr., is expected home Tuesday, May 27; Earl Sheehey, 11 Oak St., is back in the hospital.

Pappy Snyder, 10 NE Fifth Ave., and Marion Curwen, 9 NE Fourth Ave., entered hospital last week for treatment and Betty Brunt, 8 NE Ninth St., went to the Jupiter Hospital, Saturday, May 24.

Mrs. Leroy Logan, 19 Bay Dr., came home, Thursday, May 22; and Jack Comer, ExOBPer from Lil' Bit Lane came home to Spanish Lakes, Saturday, May 24.

CARD WINNERS

Contract, May 20: Irene Burgess; Ginny Whitehead; Gladys Gilbert; Ness Moore.

Pinochle, May 19: Ness Moore and Gladys Baier.

Pinochle, May 22: Bobbie Tucker and C. Wiedenmann.

Pinochle, May 24: Gertrude Wickes; C. Wiedenmann; Gladys Baier.

RAMBLING AROUND

Jack and Ruth Bowden, 1 Arbor Vitae Dr., are back from a three week visit with a son in Ontario, California, that is now 'smog town' as far as Ruth is concerned. Not one bit as they remembered it when they lived there years ago and Mount Baldie's snow covered peak could be seen against a background of clear blue sky.

When they visited a daughter in Santa Barbara, Ruth joyfully reported, "No smog, yet." They had a very enjoyable time visiting friends of 20 years standing that they hadn't seen for 3 years, but said they were glad to be back for there were just too many people in southern California, with line-ups and waiting all the time.

Ada Baum, 2 Pepper St. came down here a long time ago, but still goes back summers to Booth Harbor, St. Williams, Ont. She recently had son Jerry, wife and granddaughter visiting. Jerry has been with General Motors in Oshawa for 25 years and this year had a chance to take a 6 week vacation, so leisurely drove down. They stayed at the Turtle Reef Club, over on the Island and spent a lot of time on the beach or eating out and will take in Disney World on their way north.

Carole Chapman, 41 SW Sixth St., came here in 1968 to be with her brother George Reese who had come down in 1961. Well, this year Carole had quite a vacation for herself; from November 1979 to May 1980, back home in South Africa.

Carole visited her son Jack Burt, his wife Annette and their three girls (ages 7 to 17) at 'Johannesburg and later at Cape Town. One granddaughter, Susaan, 17 is interested in horse riding and competing with 'grownups', wins championship medals for jumping and dressage. She says she was very active while in Cape Town with 'Lawn Bowls' and walking the beach. It was a great vacation, Carole said, and perhaps the best part, she never cooked a meal or washed a dish the whole time. (Sorry Carole, now it's back to work again, but there is another year a-coming).

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Jim and Grace Blow, 14 Mango St., wrote to Barney Chase from Goderich, Ont. A few nice days, but mostly very cool, so that old furnace was needed, but fumes so bad, electric heater and fireplace had to be used. Planting a garden and cherry trees are covered with blossoms, but the wish they had some Florida weather instead of this cold, lousy fog. (Maybe next year, they won't hurry back so soon.)

Clarence and Eva Papps, 9 NE Sixth St., send word to the Fifth Ave. Merrills from Plymouth, N.H. that they need mittens while waiting for the thermostat to kick the heat on. Eva says that this year she will be working for her Son-in-Law on the local newspaper, and that they plan on being back around Labor Day this year.

Orlee Ecklund, 5 NE Eleventh St., writes to the park office from: 9107 Fremont, So., Minneapolis, Minn. 55320, that her trip home was very easy as they had a wheel chair for her at every place and there was a big welcoming committee waiting.

Now for the operation, Orlee says! They put in a plate and 18 inch pin in her leg. Quote Orlee, "It hurt like hell." At this time (May 14) they had her up walking slowly "And still it hurts," she says. Doctors are a wonder and she doesn't know when she will get out of hospital, but card sent to above address will get to her.

Venture Three

Pot Luck on Thursday was attended by 20 people who enjoyed Lola Bonar's and Ethel Sam's chicken and dumplings with plenty of other delectable dishes. Please remember to sign up at the office to attend these pleasant affairs.

Lola and Clyde Bonar have been busy visiting and having company. First they spent a week in Orlando visiting Lola's niece and family. Then on to Hollywood and Miami for three days to visit friends and to attend horse races at Calder. They left that area before the riots started, so had no unpleasant experiences. After that Michigan friends, Kay and Morey Harris came up from Palm Beach to spend one night and day with them.

A phone call from Betty Drinkard — said they arrived home in Michigan on Saturday, May 17. They had stopped off in Kentucky and Indiana on their way home. Weather was pleasant. They send regards to all.

Catherine Higgins continues to improve and is being well cared for by Hank, who is taking his vacation at this time.

The Shavers were happy to have daughter, Mary, and husband, Rodney Branch stop by on their way down to and back from Miami. They live in Duluth, Ga.

On the Indian River in Jensen Beach

Jenny Cargill is off to flying start in wheelbarrow race.

Ken Gary gives kickball a blast.

Jensen fifth graders enjoy final picnic

Shrills of laughter pierced the sky at Langford Park last Friday as fifth grade students at Jensen Beach Elementary School enjoyed an end of the school year picnic.

It was just about the last time the students would be together as a group, as next year they'll be combined with students from other schools at Stuart Middle School. Perhaps for that reason, or perhaps just because it was a bright, clear day, the students seemed to take special pleasure in the company of one another.

You name it, the students did it. They played pickup games of kickball, staged three-legged races, sack races, wheelbarrow races, and clamored over the wide variety of equipment in the playground area. Some even got in a bit of tennis.

The picnic followed an ice-cream party for the students the night before. Gallons of ice cream and tens of pounds of bananas, as well as loads of chocolate sauce and nuts were combined for scrumptous banana splits. The students also exchanged yearbooks for autographs and played songs at sometimes eardrum-shattering levels. Their favorite song, to the dismay of some of the adults present, was one including lines "We don't need no education" and "Teacher, leave us kids along." In the case of both lines, the students shouted them so loud they drowned out the song itself.

In spite of the song, many of the students seemed to be truly sad to see their years at Jensen Elementary drawing to a close.

...eekend boating restriction ...an is withdrawn by Feds

...S. Department of Energy withdrew its proposed standard issued by the DOE's press Philip Garon.

The withdrawal, necessitated by massive opposition by boating interests, means that when the final standard by conservation plan is published, it will not include any proposal on the use of boats or other recreational vehicles.

"I'm highly pleased with the result and very proud of our industry, the boating press, our customers and our many friends who helped greatly in achieving this victory," said National Marine Manufacturers Association chairman George Good.

"There was no doubt in my mind that we could do it," reported the architect of the opposition, NMMA president Jeff Napier. "It took hundreds of witnesses at the public hearings — and they came forward; tens of thousands of letters had to be written — and they were written; we received the support of dozens of Congressmen who testified against the proposal on our behalf.

"Our success in defeating the proposed boating ban shows how boating interests can organize to solve their problems," said Napier, "and we should remember this experience of unity, organization and effort for future action. For example, if everyone wrote to Senator Jennings Randolph urging opposition to S. 1631 and Congressman John Breaux against H.R. 6674, there would be no possibility that a Federal excise tax on small boats, as proposed in these bills, would gain any recognition in Congress. It's almost that simple."

Boating purchasers concerned with energy availability need not have those concerns any longer. "We have established that national energy policy will not single out boating in times of energy shortage. We have established that boaters will get their proportionate share of fuel as a matter of government energy policy," Napier concluded.

At the state level, where lawmakers are dealing with their own energy conservation plans, the proposed boating restriction is finding little support because of boating consumer and trade group efforts. So far, 31 states have indicated that they will not discriminate against boating activity in their emergency energy conservation plans. The remaining 19 states are undeclared.

was out if you'll use a nylure jig, a blue or black backed Rapala diving plug, or almost any kind of live bait you stand a chance of hooking a snook from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge, the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge or either the Frank Wacha or Mosquito Bridges on the Jensen Causeway, with your chances enhanced if you do your snook fishing after dark on a tide change.

As we discuss elsewhere on this page in the Outdoor News Column, this is the time of year when snook go on a feeding rampage down in the Thousand Islands around Marco Island and Chokoloskee. If you don't mind the drive down to the southwest corner of Florida, it can be a rewarding experience to fish for big snook in the passes on a full moon in May (29th) or June (28th). Area snook fishing stacks up with any in Florida most of the year, but in May and June the best action is around the Thousand Islands.

FRESHWATER FISHING has been hampered by high winds, rains and those thunderstorms, but once things clear up, fishing at Lakes Kissimmee, Blue Cypress, Marion and Okeechobee and in the Jensen Savannas too, should heat up for Florida largemouth bass, bream (bluegills) and shellcrackers (redear sunfish). An Ohio man, fishing with imported nightcrawlers, reported catching a string of bream in the Savannas averaging over a pound apiece!

FROM THE BUCKHEAD RIDGE MARINA ON SR 78 a few miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge, guide Clayton Sutton: "Fishing's not been too exciting. It's kinda slowed down these past few days. It's pretty muddy out there because of the high winds and rains. Bass fishing's real slow but there are lots of bluegills in the canals being caught on live worms or with flies. Fishing around here (the north shore of Lake Okeechobee) should improve as the water clears."

MICKEY STUART, from the party boat Lady Stuart going half days from the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and ALA below Stuart: "It's been fair the last two days. We had two 20 lb. cobias Sunday and lost a bunch. There are lots of blue runners, small amberjacks and vermillion snappers out there. Fishing picked up for a while but has fallen off a little because of the thunderstorms. The fishing this year just isn't what it was last year. It seems to be gradually decreasing. There's nothing whatsoever out at that tire reef. It's all covered over with sand. There'll never be anything there, unless the new jetties change things. The inlet should be well along now but they're scarcely started.

Bringing the rocks from Indiantown by barge is eating them alive with cents. They've put a couple of rocks out there, but they're way behind. It's too bad they can't bring up those big rocks from the bottom of the inlet where they were dumped by a barge years ago. You can see them clearly at low tide. That might be cheaper than bringing them clear from Indiantown. It's all too bad because we do need those jetties so badly, Dick."

VICKI SHIPP, from Shipp's Sportfishing Pier: "Saturday, the Vickar brought in 3 golden tilefish to 20-0 (20 lbs.), a king, a 40-0 amberjack, bonito to 20-0 and a grouper, the Oodles, 3 golden tile, 3 grouper, a dolphin and 13 bonito. Sunday, the Vickar, a sail (John Walker, Ft. Myers), 2 grouper, 11 bonito, 2 dolphin and a king, the Oodles, 2 kings and some bonito. Monday, the Vickar, (Tropical Supply group), a 70-0 grouper and a 120-0 grouper, a king and 3 tilefish, the Oodles, 4 grouper to 125-0."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "It wasn't the best weekend for fishing, Dick. We were awful busy though. Live shrimp are scarce now, but we still have a few in the surf, there are whiting, sand perch and croakers fairly plentiful. There are very few blues now, just one now and then. There are spotted seatrout, silver trout, snook and channel bass (redfish). There are a lot of small flounder in the one to three-pound class in the river too. The best seatrout fishing seems to be on the southern grass flats below the Ernest Lyons Bridge, but they're still catching them around the power plant and in Herman's Bay. Trout touts, mirrolures, gold Tony spoons and live shrimp are good for trout. Offshore, it's been pretty rough and that hasn't helped either trollers or bottom fishers. Those going out are catching bonito mostly. The bridges aren't producing too much now. The thunderstorms didn't help fishing any.

The Nook's log: "Jeff Keppert, a 12-0 jewfish on a trout tout, wading near Big Mud Creek just north of the power plant; Al Martins and Jason and Terry Amland, 38 silver trout, a flounder and 15 croakers on live shrimp and nylure jigs tipped with shrimp, the Weakfish Hole just below the Ernest Lyons; Missy Bates, 13, 6 blues and 4 whiting on fresh shrimp and Krocodile spoons in the surf; Andy Jorgensen and Terry Yager, 23 whiting, 9 sand perch, a bluefish, 3 croakers and a pompano, cut shrimp and clams, Normandy Beach just south of the power plant; Scot Gallivan, 8 trout and a 6-0 snook, live shrimp, Little Mud Creek about three miles above the power plant; Hal Kelsey, an 8-0 seatrout, TMD mirrolure, Walton Road, west shore; Earl Russell, 2 day catch, 6 channel bass to 7-0, 4 mangrove snappers and 3 flounder, gold Tony spoons, fishing at the dropoff off Big Mud Creek; Irv Fisher, 3 blues on cut mullet looking for ribbon fish around the Ernest Lyons Bridge.

State park fees will increase

Fees at Florida's state parks will be increased July 1, following Tuesday's approval by the Governor and Cabinet.

Ney Landrum, director of the Division of Recreation and Parks, Department of Natural Resources, said the increase is prompted by rising operating costs and the need for the parks to be more self-supporting.

General admission fees to the parks will go up from 25 cents to 50 cents a person, making the first rate increase since 1963. The annual family auto entrance permit, admitting the holder and all occupants of a vehicle, is being raised from $10 to $25.

Camping fees will increase from $4 to $5 a day at all parks except three state parks in the Florida Keys. Since operating costs are higher in the Keys, charges will go up from $5 to $6. Electricity for campers is rising from $1 to $2 a day.

The annual family camping permit, available to Florida residents only, is being increased from $100 to $150 annually. The pass allows camping at any state park, with holders paying only the daily electricity fee.

Current holders of the two park permits will not be assessed the additional fees, but purchasers after July 1 will pay the new charge, according to James Cook, chief of DNR's Bureau of Park Operations. The permits run from Jan. through Dec. 31 annually.

River Club to begin work on private docks

River Club, a riverfront condominium community bordered by the St. Lucie River and Warner Creek on State Road 707 in Jensen Beach, has received approval to construct private docking facilities.

The project will provide sixteen slips to accommodate boats up to 28 feet with a maximum draft of 2½ feet; eighteen slips for boats up to 38½ feet with a maximum draft of 4½ feet; and sixteen slips for large boats up to 48½ feet with a maximum draft of 4½ feet. Unique wave dissipaters, constructed of a metal nylon rubber material, will be attached to the bottom edge of the dock to protect boats from damage as a result of waves or rough tides.

Purchase rights for the docks will be granted only to River Club residents.

Angler's Club meeting

The Martin County Anglers Club will hold its last meeting 'till fall Monday, June 2, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building located at Indian River Drive and Commercial Street.

Jon Ferrell, publicity chairman, reports that several fishing experts will be on hand to discuss fishing in local waters, with a question and answer period to follow. "Don't miss this last regular monthly meeting until next fall. Everyone is welcome," Ferrell said.

PSL Anglers hold 'Show and Tell'

The Port St. Lucie Anglers Club will hold its next meeting on Tuesday evening, June 3rd at 7:30 p.m. at the north Port St. Lucie Marina on Prima Vista Blvd. Following a short business meeting, program director Ray Mink will feature an In House Presentation of Show and Tell on fish stories and a demonstration on "How to Throw a Fish Net".

Refreshments will be served following the program. The public is invited to our meetings.

Golf tourney to benefit Ken Mylar

A benefit golf tournament for Ken Mylar a former Martin County High School teacher who suffered a stroke last year, will be held at the Indian River Plantation golf course at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, June 8.

The tourney is sponsored by the Civitan Club of Stuart, and it will feature the Calloway method of scoring. Those wishing to enter the tourney can purchase tickets, for $15, at Indian River Plantation, or by mailing a check to the Civitan Club of Stuart, P.O. Box 2897, Stuart, with a self addressed, stamped envelope.

Mylar's medical bills have been very high since his stroke, and fund raising efforts to date have consisted in the purchase of a van with a lift, a wheelchair, and a special bed.

SNOOK FISHERMEN who really flip over old timasides take a long look at the Thousand Islands and Marco Island at this time of the year - during the full moon in May and June.

That's when the big snook swarm in from the Gulf of Mexico and feed heavily in such passes as Marco and Caxambas. The big action takes place as the tide rushes Gulfward sweeping the baitfish into the deep passes where the big snook lie in wait.

The boaters line up across the pass, gunwale to gunwale, anchored fore and aft, ready for the night moment. You use a live panfish for bait, hooking it through the lips and casting it out as far as you can toward the Gulf. When you feel a strike, you let the rod tip you were holding high dip down until the tip nearly touches the water. Then you rare back just as hard as you can and start reeling like mad.

It's no time to enjoy a long, leisurely fight. Those on both sides of you will just about shoot you if you don't get that fish into the boat plenty pronto. There's nothing like two or three lines fouled on a hard fighting snook.

With any kind of luck, you'll have your limit in an hour or two, and they should be several ranging from perhaps eight to 20 pounds.

The full moon this month is Thursday, May 29, so if you can't make that one, plan to get in on the fun down there on Saturday, June 28 when traditionally the snook fishing is hottest around Naples and the Thousand Islands.

If you decide to make the trip, about 200 miles via Indiantown, Belle Glade, Clewiston, LaBelle, Immokalee, U.S. 29 to U.S. 41, west to SR 92 and southwest to Marco Island: look up Red Stiar at the Marco River Marina. He'll fill you in. If you want a guide, and that's almost a must if this is your first time there, call Red (813) 394-2502; and I'm sure he'll arrange things for you.

If you want a testimonial, give Port St. Lucie's Elwood Searles a call (878-2363). Ed still waxes lyrical whenever he recalls the wild morning we spent fishing for snook out of the Captain's Landing at Marco. We both limited out to 22 lbs. and were back at the dock one hour and 45 minutes after taking off for Marco Pass.

As a matter of fact, I'd like to try it again, in June, if we can work up a party to go.

THE 1980 EDITION OF WORLD RECORD GAME FISHES by the International Game Fish Association (IGFA) is off the press. You should be able to find a copy locally, or, can get one by becoming a member of the IGFA by subscribing. Write the IGFA, at 3000 East Las Olas Blvd., Ft. Lauderdale, 33316 for details. Every one deeply interested in fishing should have this 1980 edition in their library. It not only contains records but also has all kinds of fishing tidbits every angler should know. For instance, did you know that Michael J. Foremny of Jensen Beach holds the spotted seatrout record on 30 lb. test line with a fish of 15 lbs., 8 oz.? Also, that you could make the book yourself if you can top the 11 lb., 10 oz. trout taken by Virgil Hughes of Virginia on 6 lb. test? Marilyn Albright of Stuart holds the Women's 30 lb. test record with a 14 pounder.

This book is just full of goodies like that and with it you might just mount a campaign to break a record yourself. At least take a look at the 1980 edition.

CRUISING WORLD for June is on the news stands and if you are a sailor at heart, you'll find your $2 well spent.

This issue even includes a convenient pocket guide, in full color, depicting each of the America's Cup defenders and challengers.

It gives boat specifications, sail numbers, background information and a photograph of each skipper. Dates of the defender's and challenger's trials, course layout, tips for spectators and a map of Newport harbor showing locations of each twelve meter, facilities and other places of interest to visitors, complete this useful, handy guide. DID YOU KNOW that the second annual bald eagle census of the National Wildlife Federation sighted 35 per cent more eagles in the 'Lower 48' than in the 1979 survey!

The census, taken during three weeks of January, 1980, in the lower 48 states, produced a count of 13,127 eagles, nearly 3,500 more birds than sighted in 1979. It was taken between Jan. 2 and 20 by more than 2,300 counters from 47 state wildlife agencies, seven federal agencies and 136 private conservation organizations.

William S. Clark, director of NWF's Raptor Information Center, said, that the 35 per cent increase in sightings cannot be interpreted as evidence that the bald eagle, an endangered species in 43 of the 48 contiguous states, is making a comeback. The final count in last year's first survey was 9,689.

"We attribute the higher count mainly to the fact that our survey was more intensive this year, with more participants, better coordination, and coverage of more area. We had better coverage in 31 states this year, and in all but two of them we sighted more birds," Clark pointed out.

In this year's survey, the state of Washington reported the biggest eagle population, with 1,623 sightings. Runners-up were Missouri, 954; California, 744; Florida, 733; Utah, 662; Oregon, 653; Colorado, 610; Illinois, 580; and Oklahoma, 548.

The census covers only the 48 contiguous states because the bald eagle is non-exsistent in Hawaii and plentiful in Alaska. Among the contiguous states, the bald eagle is classed as "threatened" in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Oregon and Washington and "endangered" in all the others.

Fish kill seminar

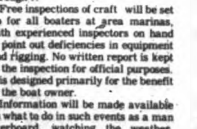
On Saturday, May 31, at 10:30 a.m. the South Florida Water Management District will report on a study of the St. Lucie estuary in the F.I.T. Auditorium. The presentation concerns a recent fish kill investigation, salt-fresh water balance, effects of the rate of discharge of Lake Okeechobee water on the estuary, marine and benthic population data.

Dr. Haumert, Environmentalist, will use color slides and data transparancies to report on aspects of the estuary not previously under scientific study. There will be time for questions and discussion. The program is endorsed by local conservation organizations which are joint sponsors with F.I.T.



NATIONAL
WEEK
JUNE 1-7

The United States Power Squadrons, District 8, is again making ready for its annual Safe Boating Week observance, set this year for June 1 through 7.

Free inspections of craft will be set up for all boaters at area marinas, with experienced inspectors on hand to point out deficiencies in equipment and rigging. No written report is kept of the inspection for official purposes. It is designed primarily for the benefit of the boat owner.

Information will be made available on what to do in such events as a man overboard, watching the weather, water skiing do's and don'ts, and other factors leading to safe boating. Gear will be checked for meeting the standards established by the Coast Guard.

All boaters are invited to participate in the inspections, and in the safe boating classes offered by the Power Squadron periodically throughout the year.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis Indian River Plantation

Tennis vacations, what to look for, where to look, what to expect and how much. There is so much you need to know today, before you send in your deposit. Besides the amount of tennis and instruction you will receive, you should think about some of the following pit falls. How many pupils per instructor, 4 or 8 or ? — What are the accommodations, how is the food, what other type of recreation do they have, how far from home or airports, what kind of weather to expect, what are the extras and total cost? What experience do the instructors have and the head pro, and best of all, a friend's recommendation that has actually been there. After all that, checking you just have to hope the management or staff is not all new.

There are several general types of camps, the family, adult, junior and the plain hard working advanced tournament players. Of course you can also find the party tennis camps where you have a good time but tennis is secondary.

Europe also has an abundance of fine, beautiful, scenic, expensive and fairly inexpensive tennis camps. I travelled through 11 countries by car last year and took a look at quite a few, but I will save that story for another time, as it will take a 2 or 3 part series to cover most of what I saw. Also, gas was only two to three dollars a gallon there then, and like the U.S. still going up.

There is no question of the awareness of an energy crisis in the U.S., and it will influence many people on just how far from home they are willing to travel. Many resorts around the country are anticipating that vacationers are looking for places closer to home. The pleasure travel industry has stated that people don't want the hassel of a gas line or pay the high prices for distant travel.

Indian River Plantation also is advertising in Florida to come on a tankfull and enjoy everything. Even the Garramores ventured all the way from the Yacht & Country Club of Stuart to spend last weekend at the resort, and the Fred Steins from Jensen Beach joined them on their trek.

You can find tennis resorts, or resorts where you can play tennis in several magazines. Two of the best sources, "World Tennis" and "Tennis" with the largest circulation of any tennis publication, do in depth stories on many of them.

California probably has over 100 resorts as does Florida. Some not so well known are 8 resorts, tennis in the summer and skiing in the winter, in Colorado. Idaho even has a couple of fine ones, one with 46 courts (Layhold) and ice skating. Illinois has a nice indoor facility and Indiana is the home of another resort with 18 lighted courts, golf, swimming and horseback riding; all you have to do is find French Lick. Massachusetts boasts four, Michigan four and Minnesota has three. Nevada is loaded with 15, plus every hotel claims some sort of tennis facility. Once you get on a court in Nevada you can stay on as long as you like because you never see a clock. The lists are endless with resorts every where. Vermont lists 15. There is one or more in every state.

When looking for your dream holiday you should start writing down things like, how much free tennis time, how many hours of instruction, the free gifts, the welcome cocktail party, how many in a room, how many meals, spa, restaurants, and games like bridge, backgammon, movies and dancing. Swimming, massage, bicycling, boating, fishing, children's playroom, baby sitters, ice skating, volleyball, racquet ball, roller skating, croquet, archery, ballminton, jogging trail, sauna, steam room, gymnasium, squash, shuffleboard, health club, rafting, mountain climbing, waterskiing, gold mining, canoeing, bowling, paddle tennis, trap and skeet shooting, video re-play, ball machines, indoor courts, lighted courts, what surface, free gatorade, towels and, if you do all this do you receive a certificate stating that you successfully completed the course? This does sound like a bit much but I didn't mention everything that I saw offered.

Now then, if you are a promising young player and would like to go all the way to the top, you start looking for places like West End Tennis and Racquet Club in California where Robert Lansdorp (Tracy's coach) will yell and fuss and push you to the brink. Then just maybe you will show some championship possibilities, which will make it seem right for you to start practicing 6 to 8 hours a day for the next few years.

Another concentration factory is in Sarasota, run by drill Sergeant Nick Bollettieri, who will absolutely dehumanize you. And for his drilling you day and night, your parents will pay him $12,000 for 9 months of eating, drinking and sleeping tennis.

One more worth mentioning, because he too has a fine track record, Harry Hopman, the coach of Rosewall, Laver, Hoad, Sedgman, Emerson and Fraser plus many of the top stars of today, is a champion in his own right. Harry must be about 72 but he is all over the place and emphasizes physical fitness. He will take a good player and make him run, run and then run some more before going to the gym for a real touch work out. Just ask Richie Prentice when he gets back the end of June.

Tennis camps will cost from around $160 to $800 a week. Most of the cost hinges on how you live and eat, and what kind of view you have.

Getting a little commercial, I.R.P. will have its third junior summer clinic for kids 6 to 18 starting June 9th. The program runs Monday thru Friday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. with one hour of supervised swimming in one of the pools or the ocean. Featuring stroke production, grips, footwork, strategy and tactics, there will also be many fine movies, including the U.S. Open and Wimbledon Championships.

Get your partner and enter the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles June 21-22. Harbor Bay Plaza will award the winner's a $150.00 shopping spree plus 60 more prizes for the rest of the field. The Jaycees will be serving Lipton Ices Tea free to all contestants throughout the tournament. Entry blanks are at all the shops in Harbor Bay Plaza, sorts and tennis shops and at the Indian River Plantation Tennis Shop.

June 26 - 29 the 4th annual Martin County Tennis Championships with singles and doubles, men and women in Open, A, B and C divisions. The Stuart National Bank is again sponsoring all the beautiful trophies and you can pick up entry blanks at all Stuart National Bank branches, the Tennis shops and at I.R.P.

Nassau test for Sandpipers

Thursday's schedule of play for the Sandpiper Men golfers will be one of the most unique of the year's events.

It will be individual play with the golfers matching their skills against par over the entire 18 hole route testing against both nine holes and the overall Saints course 18 holes classified as a "Nassau" tourney.

Alternating from Red, White and Blue tee markers throughout 18 holes of play last Thursday, with the two best balls of a foursome figuring in the tabulations, a 119 score of 25 under par earned the top award of the day. That team included Frank Winter, Ed Gaudette, Bert Latimore and Ray Mager.

Two teams finished deadlocked in second place with a 24 under par score of 120. They included these foursomes: Tom Bonne, Leo Cylock, Fred Schecterle and Nels Hawery. Bob Morrisey, John Crosey, John Bowerson and Denny Long.

A quartet of teams finished in a tie for fourth place, all even up at 22 under par, 122. The combos included John Jeffrey, Sid Maves, Bruce Smith and Art McDaniel; Denny Sullivan, Tom Francoline, Gene Dawson, and Jim Lamont. Sam Dewhirst, Charley Schwarz, Walt McNally and Ed Leary and Al Van Nostrand, Will Ferrara Charley Duval and Bob Downing.

Northport Golf

In Northport Men's Golf Association play Tuesday John Schwartz won flight A with a net score of 53. Roy Black had a 62. In flight B Joe Lesoravage had a 57. Fred Sheets a 59.

Tied with nets of 61 in flight C were Julius Wisan and Stan Mick. Bill Harris took flight D with a 61. George Edwards had a 61.

Red Rodgers was closest to the hole on the third. George Baier was closest on the 14th.

IRCC Itinerary

When is that magic moment when a student is prepared to go from high school to college? What makes the difference? Indian River Community College recognizes that students are individuals; that not all students are ready for college at the same time. High school students who are academically advanced have the opportunity to enter college early under a dual enrollment or early admission program. Other students may be encouraged to use the remedial services available at the college, such as the IMT Lab, to catch up on things that they have missed in high school.

Only through close cooperation with the high schools in the four-county area is this individualized attention possible. And the measures taken by IRCC to reach out to the high schools have paid off; students who have entered the college early have adjusted and excelled with the greater challenges, and those who brush up on reading and study habits through remedial work often go on to successfully complete college degree programs.

There are many ways that IRCC works in conjunction with area high schools to make the college accessible to students at the precise time when the student is ready for college.

Early Admission Students

Quite a few of the students enrolled at IRCC have not yet graduated from high school! Students who have demonstrated academic ability, the permission of their parents, and a recommendation from their high school principal may complete their senior year in high school and their first year in college simultaneously through the early admissions program. Admitted with regular full-time status, the student is not limited in the number of credit hours to be attempted.

Early admission students are exempted from their high school senior years, but still graduate with their class. Another thing that early admission students are exempted from is college tuition — any student taking classes at IRCC while still enrolled in high school does not pay tuition for those classes.

Dual Enrollment Students

For academically talented high school students who are not ready to take a full college program, but who would like to take a limited number of specific college-level courses, the dual enrollment program is the answer. The student, with the recommendation of a high school counselor, enrolls on a non-degree seeking status and receives deferred credit. This means that the student may later go through the formal application process, be admitted to the college as a degree-seeking student, and have up to 18 deferred credits transferred into college credit hours, which count toward a degree. This is a good way for high school students to get a head start on college, while not giving up their senior year in high school. Again, as long as they are enrolled in high school, dual enrollment students do not pay tuition to the college.

Tours, Visits, Special Programs

There are several other less formal ways that IRCC reaches out to high school students. Each spring, IRCC counselors go out into all the four county high schools to give academic advisement, to help the students complete applications for enrollment to IRCC, and to explain the various programs offered at the college. Tours of the campus are always available upon request for groups of individual students, and appointments can be set up with college instructors to give those interested an in-depth look at specific programs. In addition, special career programs are presented on campus throughout the year, and students from all the high schools are invited to participate. Some of the career events that have taken place over the past year include Allied Health Career Day, the Reading Bowl, the Math Olympics, and Science Saturday. IRCC faculty and staff members also participate in career programs presented for students by many of the high schools.

For the first time, the college is offering a special two-week class for high school graduates this summer to help them make the difficult decisions and choices that face them now. To run from July 7 through 22, the class will meet daily from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., and will cost only $5. For more information, call the college, ext. 230.

At IRCC, every step is taken to make that sometimes difficult transition from high school to college as smooth as possible. Support and individual attention are the keys to this easy transition, and at IRCC, both are readily available.

1st Mother-Daughter banquet at Prince of Peace Lutheran

For the first time since Prince of Peace Lutheran Church was organized, it held a Mother-Daughter Banquet.

Nearly a hundred people attended on May 21. The youngest mother, the oldest mother and the youngest grandmother were specially honored, as were the high school graduates. Roses made by Lillian Pfund were presented to each of them and two baskets of flowers, made by Mrs. Pfund and used as centerpieces, were given away in drawings to Timmy Socker and Ruby Jacobsen.

Marie Haskop showed original dress designs modeled by members of the congregation. A hilarious section of the style show demonstrated a slipover dress, worn by Carole Lacharite, which turned out to be a slip over a cardigan. She also modeled a print dress — made of newspapers. Betty Lynn Jenkins appeared in a sack dress — made out of burlap, and Peg Smith wore a bathrobe decorated with cotton balls.

Spiritual songs were presented by the Reflections. The affair was well organized by Gladys Johnson and Deborah Circle.

One-woman bike path crusade gets results

BY BOB FRYER

While others simply talk about the need for more bicycle paths in this community, there is one Jensen Beach resident who is doing something about it.

Susan Sullivan began a one-woman campaign last week to help get a bike path built along Indian River Drive from the Florida Institute of Technology campus to the Jensen Beach Causeway. And, so far, she has had good results.

For the last week, Ms Sullivan has been going door to door along Indian River Drive asking residents and business owners if they would be willing to grant right-of-way easements for a bike path. During the week, she has obtained agreements from Wayne Bailey of Bailey Boat Company, from C.R. (Pete) Konst, a propertyowner just north of Bailey Boat Company, from Mack Jordan of Trader Mac's, from Ransom Tilton for land opposite the Tilton Real Estate office, and from Dwayne Fleenr of The Boat House.

Those commitments, coupled with ones previously obtained through the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, mean that agreements to grant much more than half the needed right-of-way have been made.

In addition to the positive responses already obtained by Ms Sullivan, she says she is making progress in tracking down names and addresses of landowners who live out of town.

"I'll have to consult tax records for some of them, but many of the neighbours of the out of town owners have been helpful," she said. To those she already knows the addresses of, she is sending letters.

Why is she doing it?

"Well, in a way it's fortunate that I'm currently unemployed, because that gives me the time to do it. It is something I believe in. I have a six year old son Michael (her son) and I ride our bikes and it makes me very nervous when we ride along Indian River Drive. When he gets older and can ride alone, I want him to ride safely. I also feel the Drive is a very special place and feel it should be shared," she said.

Before going door to door, she contacted Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce President Richard Campbell and got a map of the Drive from him. He also wrote a letter she presents to the landowners, asking for right-of-way easements. It's not a legal letter, but it does state that the landowner agrees to give an "easement without deed" so the county commission can authorize construction of a bike path on the land. If the landowner agrees, the name, address, depth of easement to be granted and number of feet fronting the Drive are recorded on the letter.

When Ms Sullivan gets a positive response, she turns the letters over to the county attorney, so a legal agreement with a legal description of the land, can be drafted.

In no case is the request for more than a 10 foot deep easement, and often the amount of footage is less. "In some cases, the plan is only to paint a stripe along parking lot pavement off the road pavement.

The plan is for the bike path to run along the west side of the road from FIT to the Bailey Boat area, then to cross to the east side of the road and continue northward to the Causeway.

"I found that some owners were willing to grant easements, but didn't want to be the first to do so. They didn't want to give if nobody else was going to. Once Mr. Bailey agreed, it made it easier to get others to agree," she said.

Bailey said his motive for granting an easement was because "I nearly got run over on a bike and I want to ride. Plus, this area needs it desperately. I hope the others all on down the line agree to it too."

Ms Sullivan did have one owner react negatively saying he wanted to talk to a county official before he'd consider granting an easement. "I talked to Campbell and he called county commissioner Frank Wacha to go see the man. I don't know yet what the result was though," she said.

At the beginning of the year, the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce established getting a bike path along the Drive from FIT to the Causeway as its major goal. Chamber President Campbell praised the work of Ms Sullivan as a great help towards meeting that goal.

In the past six months, three bicyclists have died in traffic accidents on local roads. None of those accidents were on Indian River Drive, but the deaths have resulted in an outcry from many citizens for more bike paths.

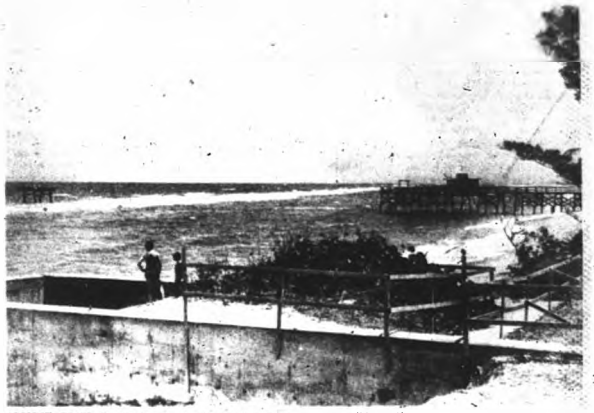
Commissioner Wacha says he has heard such outcrys in the past, in the wake of bicycle deaths. "The public will get upset when they happen, but when it comes to budget time, they'll change and demand we hold the line on expenses," he commented Monday.

This time, Wacha has come up with a proposal that should let the public put its money where its mouth is. He has checked with the county attorney to determine the legal feasibility of having District A (The Jensen-Rio-Hutchinson Island area) taxpayers vote in November on a district tax increase to pay for a bike path network.

"The attorney says it can be done, so I imagine it will be on the ballot," Wacha said. He noted that so far, no figures have been determined as to what the millage hike proposal would be, how long the tax would last, or what the cost of building the paths would be. "We'll have to do some research to come up with those figures," he said.

If the referendum is approved, it would mean the bike path network could be built next year and paid off over a number of years, he said. Last week, when announcing the proposal, Wacha mentioned paths along Indian River Drive from FIT to the Causeway, over the Causeway and down A1A to Stuart Beach, along SR 707 in Rio and down Commercial Street as ones to be built with the referendum tax. Also to be included in the referendum proposal is purchase of an 80 acre tract on the south side of SR 707A (Commercial Street), to the west of the Pinecrest Lakes project. That land would be used for a regional recreation park.

BIKE PATH DONATION—Wayne Bailey of Bailey Boat Company recently agreed to grant a right-of-way easement along his land for a bicycle path after Susan Sullivan made the easement request. The two are shown above inspecting a map of where the path will go. More than half of the needed easement from FIT to the Causeway has been donated so far. (Photo by Bob Fryer)



ALMOST GONE—Rand's Pier, a landmark along the Martin County coastline for years, is nearly gone now. The pier was built about 20 years ago by James Rand, who was developing a project on the south tip of Hutchinson Island to be known as Seminole Shores. The pier and a few other structures were completed before the plans came to a halt, and for awhile local fishermen enjoyed the pier. But a storm-tossed barge knocked out a few pilings and the pier was idle for years. When Mobil Oil officials bought the Seminole Shores land and announced plans for a luxury project to be known as Sailfish Point, they said the pier would be repaired. However, they apparently changed their minds and have been in the process of tearing it down. Soon, it will all be gone. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Turtle watches are GO

The annual summer turtle watches begin next week, with pre-registration at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce already mounting.

The Saturday, June 14 watch is closed out with a few more than the maximum 50 allowed under the new format for turtle watches, according to Dennis Doyle, Chamber executive director. A group of Audubon members from Palm Beach County observed the night, with $3 coming for the watch.

On Thursday, June 12, the opening day of the watches, 12 persons have pre-registered at the Chamber, and on Friday there are 25 registered.

The watches begin at 10 p.m., and are being directed by members of the Naturalist Society of Florida Institute of Technology. The fifty persons are divided into two or three groups and wait at the Jensen Beach public pavilion until a turtle is sighted. They then are either led to the nest, or are led to drive to the public access park nearest the nest for the watch.

The watches will be held every Thursday, Friday and Saturday through July 26, with the exception of July 4. They begin at 10 p.m. each night, according to Lawrence Vogel, president of the Naturalist Society.

Vogel said that there would be two kinds of watches conducted. The first would be a turtle watch, described above. The second would be a turtle hunt, "for the more hardy groups," in which the group would patrol the beach looking for turtles nesting.

Daniel Saskowski, public relations director of the society, suggested that turtle watchers should wear long sleeved shirts, long trousers or slacks, and bring insect repellent to ward off the "no-seeums" and mosquitoes. He added that pets are not welcome on the watches.

Doyle said that persons desiring to attend a turtle watch should register at the Chamber office on Commercial Street in downtown Jensen Beach, or call the reservation in at 334-3444.

The Chamber is presently preparing a brochure that will give information on the turtle watches. The material should be ready by the first turtle watch of the season next week.

The smaller groups will be more in keeping with watching the green, loggerhead and leatherback turtles, weighing up to 500 pounds, as they lumber from the sea, dig a nest with their flippers, and lay 100 to 150 eggs in the nest. The turtles then cover the nest and crawl back into the ocean.

They are frightened and disoriented by lights and noise, so the groups will not be led to the turtle's nest until the turtle is actually laying its eggs.

The Department of Natural Resources field station at Jensen Beach collects the eggs from many nests to hatch them and raise them a year to insure that more of the turtles will live when released.

Vogel said that it is illegal to molest the turtle or disturb the nest.

Interest in home loans is up as the interest rates tumble

BY BOB FRYER

Interest in interest rates seems to be going up as the rates are tumbling.

In recent weeks the interest rates that area savings and loan associations have been charging for home loans have been on a steep decline. As a result, folks who not long ago were shying away from the housing market seem to be looking over the market again.

The drop in interest rates does seem dramatic, as they have tumbled from a high of 16.5 per cent a couple of months ago to rates ranging from 13 to 12 per cent today.

A survey of area savings and loan associations indicates that the drop in interest rates is having an effect on the housing market. Here is what the survey indicates:

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Fort Pierce, where the rate was recently lowered to 12 per cent on 80 per cent financing for owner-occupied dwellings.

First Federal president Michael Brown, noted the 12 per cent rate carries three points. This means that in addition to the downpayment, three per cent of the loan value must also be paid at closing.

He said as long as the loan is for a dwelling that the owner will occupy, the loan can be for a single-family residence or a condominium.

Only about a week ago, the interest rate for an 80 per cent loan was 13.5 per cent at First Federal, and earlier in the year that institution hit a peak in interest rates at 16 per cent.

Brown commented that "The reason we dropped our rate to 12 per cent is that we felt a lot of people were waiting for the rates to hit the bottom. We feel we're at or pretty close to the bottom of what the rates will go to, and we feel this will get people back into the (housing) market."

The new rate only recently took effect, so Brown says there has been no dramatic increase in loans to date. But, he said, "We have had a lot of inquiries and we understand a lot of Realtors are now telling prospective buyers that now might be the time to go ahead and buy a home."

He said the reason for the drop in interest rates to home buyers is because "our cost of money has gone down."

Linda DeMeo, a loan officer at First Federal Savings and Loan of Martin County, noted that there has been an increase in loan applications taken out since the recent drop in interest rates.

She said the First Federal interest rate for single-family, owner-occupied homes valued at less than $75,000 had been as high as 16.25 per cent a few weeks ago, but dropped to 13 per cent on May 21 and was still at that level Tuesday. That rate is for a loan of 80 percent of the house cost, with a 20 percent down payment required. And, she noted the loans at that interest rate carry 3.5 points.

For homes valued at more than $75,000, the interest rate for an 80 per cent loan is 14 per cent with 3.5 points. The latter figures also apply to loans for condominiums and second homes, regardless of their value. Ms DeMeo said until recently First Federal had not even been making loans on condominiums and second homes.

At Heritage Federal at the corner of U.S. 1 and Port St. Lucie Boulevard, the rate for 80 per cent financing, regardless of the home's value, is 13 percent, with 2.5 points. The office just opened for business on Monday, so loan officer Patty Brink had no means of measuring the effect of the interest rate on the home-buying market. However, she did say the 13 per cent rate is lower than it had recently been at other Heritage Federal branches.

She said she is monitoring the competition and will make recommendations for the lower interest rates if it is warranted.

Fred Grossi of Citizen's Federal Savings and Loan of St. Lucie County said the interest rate there on 80 per cent financing is 12.5 per cent, with 3 points for most loans and 3.5 points on new construction. The interest rate dropped from 13.5 per cent to 12.5 per cent on May 29.

Grone said the interest rate at Citizen's Federal hit a high of 16.5 per cent in March and has been falling since then. However, he said he could make no prediction as to whether the rate would continue to drop.

When asked if the lower rate has meant more business, he said, "We do seem to have had more people coming in and have had more phone calls. I think people who have been wanting to buy homes are looking again," he said.

At Indian River Federal Savings and Loan, the current interest rate on 80 per cent financing is 12.5 per cent.

Fran Whalen of Indian River Federal said the 12.5 per cent rate just took effect last week and that only a few weeks ago, the rate was 15 per cent. The high for the year, she added, was 16.5 per cent.

The 12.5 per cent rate carries three points for one and two family primary residences and 3.5 per cent for new construction.

"As the rates have dropped, the interest in taking out loans has increased," she noted.

GRACEFUL SKIP—Kira Bishop skips across the room at Jensen Beach Elementary School during kindergarten screening tests held there recently. Skipping was one of the motor skills tests given during the screening. The reason for the tests was to identify any physical, mental or emotional problems the children entering kindergarten this fall may have, so their teachers will know in what areas to give specialized instructions. A story and photo page on the tests appears inside today's issue of The Mirror. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Park for recreational activities though. The following is a list of other things to do that you can help yourself to in this area.

BEACHES

The county offers a number of public beach access areas and once you're there, you'll find them great for sunbathing, swimming, tossing a Frisbee, jogging, shell collecting or just sitting quietly and enjoying the magnificence of the ocean.

BOATING

With all the water around the Jensen area, boating is a popular sport.

Public boat ramps are located on the Jensen Beach and Stuart causeways, and there are numerous marinas in the area which offer dockage space and private boat ramps.

Jet skis and sailboats can be rented from a firm at the north end of the Stuart Causeway.

SURFING

Depending on the weather conditions surfing off Martin County beaches can range from good to mediocre. Though surfers often move from one area of the coast to another in search of the best waves, they most often seem to congregate off Jensen public beach and off a beach access strip a short distance north of the Sailfish Point project.

FISHING

Summertime fishing is often outstanding in local waters, with snook, trout and snapper being the most sought after catches. The bridges over both causeways and the Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart offer fine fishing opportunities, especially at night and in the early morning hours. Local bait houses can also direct boaters to good fishing spots, or you can find them by reading the fishing news in The Mirror.

Offshore fishing for sailfish, dolphin, and kingfish is good during summer months, and those who prefer bottom fishing can come up with grouper on the offshore reefs. Numerous charter boats, which can be found on the phone book are for hire in the area.

DIVING

Whether you enjoy scuba diving or skin diving, the ocean waters off Martin County will be to your liking. Local dive shops can supply equipment and information for scuba divers, and skin divers will enjoy the underwater sights on the reefs just offshore at Big Hutchinson and Jupiter Islands. A word of caution though, the season for taking lobster is closed for most of the summer, so don't go searching for a lobster dinner or you may wind up in the custody of a marine patrol officer.

BASKETBALL

The Martin County School system is offering a basketball program this summer. It began Monday and runs through July 11, excluding July 4.

The program is offered at Langford Park from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and the Martin County High School gym is open each evening from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. for middle school, high school, junior varsity and varsity ball players, as well as any adults interested in playing. For more information, contact Don Wallen at 287-4111.

SWIMMING

If swimming is your sport, you can do it at the Martin County High School pool on SR 76 and if you don't now how to swim, they offer classes there.

Recreational swimming hours at the pool are 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends.

Family night is featured at the pool on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and the pool is open to adults only, for laps only on weekdays from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Swimming lessons are offered for children two to five years old several times this summer. From June 9-16, Part One lessons will be given from 9:30 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. and from 10:15 a.m. to 11 a.m., and Part Two lessons are from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. From Aug. 4-8, Part One lessons are from 9:30 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. and Part Two lessons are from 10:15 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. From Aug. 11-15, Part One lessons are 9:30 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. and Part Two lessons are from 10:15 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

Red Cross swimming lessons for children six to 13 years old are offered for three sessions this summer. The times for the lessons are 9:30 a.m. to 10:15, 10:15 to 11 a.m., and 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., but you'll have to contact aquatic director Gary Shelton at 286-0133 to determine which hours are for which course. Beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate swimmer lessons will be given from June 16-27 from July 7-18, and from July 21 to Aug. 1.

Lessons for adults will be scheduled according to demand ~~from noon to 1 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and~~ Fridays and in evenings from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Life saving and water safety instructor lessons will also be given if there is enough demand for them.

The pre-school course fees are $5 a week, the Red Cross lesson fees are $10 for two weeks, and the adult and lifesaving fees are $10 per course.

Registration is at the pool and fees will be collected a week prior to the starting date for each session. Pool office hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

NATURE CENTER

The summer environmental day camp offered by the Hobe Sound Nature Center will be conducted from Jensen Beach Elementary School from June 16 through June 29.

Open to youngsters from kindergarten to eighth grades, the activities will include nature hikes, arts and crafts, surveys, nature games, animal tracking, experiments, nature recipes, slides and films on ecology.

Lectures and discussions will also be conducted on conservation and endangered species, sexing and fish identifications, watermelon parties and sing-a-longs.

Daily bus pick-up time will be at 8:30 a.m., with drop-off time at 12:30 p.m.

Children in private schools will be welcome to participate. They may choose the most convenient bus stop at the public school grounds.

Those planning to attend may register by sending their name, age, school, and $5 per child to Hobe Sound Nature Center, P.O. Box 645, Hobe Sound, Fla. 33455.

WHAT'S IN STUART

In addition to the swimming program at the Martin County High School pool, there is a variety of other recreational offerings in Stuart.

The Stuart Recreation Department boasts a number of parks and recreation areas. The city's recreation center on Flagler Avenue, North of the Stuart City Mall, is open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for free recreation time. The center has pool and ping pong tables and also has outdoor playground equipment and a picnic area.

Ceramics classes, clogging classes, social and duplicate bridge games, senior citizen meetings and physical fitness classes are frequently featured at the center. Those wishing details should call the center at 287-3445, ext. 238.

The Stuart Recreation Department also has shuffleboard courts, handball-racquetball courts, baseball fields and tennis courts off Georgia Avenue behind Memorial Park in Stuart. And, if it's picnicing you're after, there is a nice, quiet spot in downtown Stuart. It's Sheppard Park at the west end of West Ocean Boulevard. There are several picnic tables and you have a nice view of the St. Lucie River. And, the park also has boat ramp facilities.

Volunteers needed for 'Vial of Life' program

If you have been meaning to put some of your spare time to use for a worthwhile community project, but haven't yet gotten around to it, here's your opportunity to help – and possibly to save a life.

The Stuart Chapter of the American Red Cross, as well as the Martin County Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) are currently laying the groundwork for a "Vial of Life" program to be implemented this fall.

A Vial of Life is a plastic vial which contains important medical information which ambulance and rescue personnel may find necessary when responding to emergencies.

The goal of the Red Cross and AARP is to get all county residents to place a Vial of Life for each household member in their refrigerators.

Often, when ambulance crews respond to an emergency, they find a person unconscious, and thus unable to tell the emergency personnel important information about their medical condition. And, often, even when a spouse is present, they're too distraught to think clearly. With a Vial of Life in the refrigerator, the ambulance workers can open the vial and learn about the victim's medical history, and if they're allergic to any particular medications, commented Pearl Wyse, AARP health committee chairman.

Wyse and Margaret Evans of the Stuart Red Cross Chapter are currently in the process of getting the information sheet to be contained in the Vial of Life drafted. It will contain the name of the person, the name and phone number of their doctor, medical history information, blood type, religion, hospital preference, the name of their medical insurer and the policy number, Medicare and Medicaid numbers, a list of medications the person is taking, a list of medications they're allergic to, the name of who to notify in case of an emergency, and a waiver to be signed by parents to allow emergency treatment of their children if the parents can't be contacted.

The Vial of Life program is already [illegible] Port St. Lucie, Fort Pierce, Palm Bell [illegible] others in the county. Locally, organizers of the project hope to place 65,000 vials in refrigerators throughout the county. "There should be a vial for each member of the family and all residents should have one," Evans says.

The reason the refrigerator was selected as the place for the vials is because most every house has one and because they're fireproof," she added.

The task of distributing 65,000 vials, as well as decals for the refrigerators and for windows next to the front doors of homes, is a monumental one. "We need all the help we can get. We need businesses, clubs or individuals to help," Wyse said, adding that the plan is to distribute many of the vials through organizations in the county.

If you would like to volunteer, call the Red Cross office at 287-2002 or Wyse at 334-5806.

Commission okays new arts council

(Area lovers of the arts came a step closer Tuesday toward their goal of creating an arts center for Martin County, with the official sanction of the County Commission on membership in a Fine Arts Council.

The drive, initiated several months ago by local artist Helen Wells and Martin County schools' art director Colleen Watts, has been gaining momentum in recent weeks.

A 21-member corporation was formed, with a membership including some of the key influential figures in the community. Attending the first meeting were an architect, a lawyer, and several prominent businessmen including Gale Kipplinger.

"Fifteen members are on the council, many of them figuring in both groups," Mrs. Wells said. "With the headquarters in Tallahassee, it will mean we can plug into many on going programs."

Several civic organizations are taking part in the effort, including the Kiwanis Club, represented by Fred Jones; Junior Women's Club, represented by Sandy Keeler; American Association of University Women, represented by Carol Headley; and Hobe Sound-Jupiter, represented by John Payson.

The site for the new center remains undecided. Mrs. Wells said. The goal is to find a location which will prove mutually advantageous to every community in the county. They are hoping that either the school board or the county commission will come up with a satisfactory site.

A picture is worth a thousand words. You'll find them in the Mirror.

Population of seniors is exploding

Seniors were gratified this week to find that their most recent topics of discussion were featured as lead items in the June-July AARP, "Modern Maturity".

First item pointed out that the 24 million Americans over 55 would grow to 32 million by 2000 and to 43 million by 2020, and one of the reasons for the growth is that life expectancy has risen from 47 in 1900 to 72 in 1980. AARP has grown from one million in 1967 to 12 million in 1980, but has an attrition of one million a year. So, if there are to be adequate, special, economic and medical provisions, a start must be made right now, or our grandchildren will be in a 'bind'.

Second item was in regards to voting. They berated the general public, saying that voter turnout has steadily decreased since 1962, in spite of adding 18 years olds to list, and in 1976 only 45 million bothered to vote. A "VOTE" (Voice of the election) project is being started. AARPers will strive by every means possible to get more registered and then to the polls. We can make sure our children and grandchildren take an interest.

CHAPTER AARP

BY ERNIE CURWEN
Tel.334-0756

Third item was on Social Security COLA (Cost of Living Adjustment). Some Congressmen want to reduce COLA to 85 percent of 'C of L', as seniors don't have heavy expenses. But, that is not so, government figures show that last year when overall inflation was 13.3 percent, the group of, food, fuel, shelter and medical increased by 18 percent, and these are the main items of a senior's budget. Seniors better let their Congressmen know how they feel about cutting 'COLA' in 1981 budget.

While the first item was under discussion, Gladys, the reading, said, "I saw an article recently, reporting that Nursing Homes had gone Big Business with chains of 250 units, and getting 34 percent of the Medicaid dollar. That sounded good, until it was found that these strong lobbies were squashing 'Home-Care' projects, so all the funds could go to the institutions. If ours is an upside down world, the article goes on to state, 'institutions are loaded with folks that could be better served with 'Home Care', and there are thousands on Nursing Home waiting lists.'"

Millie, the writer was all ears, and asked for details, so she could write to Senator Chiles, Chrc. of Com. on Aging, to see if he was on top of this conflict, for if it is a problem now, think what it'll be in 20 or 30 years, when there will be almost twice as many Aging Americans demanding this type of service, and then millie turns to the group and asks, "Who'll help me get some letters off the 'Folks-in-High Places'?"

Lady Alice patiently waited to get a word in edgewise, and when she did, piped up, "I've got one of those 'dollar savers', that was mentioned last week. In the 75 recession time, I found a new can of room deodorant had no 'PSISSS', needed it bad! Remember the ol' 'match trick' of depression days, when there was always a box of kitchen matches in the toilet. You know, struck a match, let it burn, quench under faucet and you had a not unpleasant burn match smell. Well it still works", concluded Lady Alice. "I wonder, has anyone else a dollar-saver."

CHAPTER EVENTS

National AARP News, quotes Dr Robert N. Butler of National Institute on Aging as saying that older Americans at 13 percent of population and using 23 percent of health care deserve the finest and most sensitive medical care, but they are not getting it, and unless a start on improving conditions isn't made now, our present children and grandchildren will be getting even poorer service (write AMA', hum?).

Then, the AARP News tells its members that Medicare Part-B jumps 90 cents to $9.80 in July and reminded them that Part-A deductible jumped $20 last January to $180, and now the average out of pocket cost with Medicare is greater than the total health cost before Medicare in 1965.

Then, the article pointed out that without the 14.3 percent 'COLA', the 1980 retiree would not have been able to afford both food and medical services (phone ship the food, leading to greater medical services and others put off medical attention until it is a big costly problem).

The "Salem (Mass) Senior Power" bulletin sent here by member Vi Watts, had many interesting items, and the one on car operation was an 'eye opener'.

It reported that for a 1979 domestic auto the operating costs were now: sub-compact, 39.1 cents per mile; compact, 31.94; nazmll middle size, 36.47; intermediate, 37.88 and a full size car, 43.29. These figures were the national average for service station items; maintenance, parts, repairs, license fees, insurance, loan interest and depreciation, but not parking nor tolls.

No wonder some folks find that weekly trips to the supermarket must include all other errands and others feel that transportation to the Nutrition Program meals is beyond their budget (there is transportation for those without 'wheels', that might take care of some, when space permits).

According to another item, up that way they have something called 'Measured Telephone Service' where it's possible to save up to $10.65 per month. The service cost $6.35 per month against the unlimited service at $16.50. It works like this, if you use over 30 units (*) per month, each additional unit cost 9.3 cents, but incomming calls are unlimited. That could be quite a saving for those who have a phone mostly for security. (How about it, Southern Bell)

VANDALISM—The men's and women's restrooms at Stuart Beach were extensively damaged by vandals a few days ago, and county worker David McAbee is shown above trying to repair some of the damage.

Enforcement of beach laws needed

Better enforcement of existing laws is the only answer to the beach vandalism problems which have been plaguing area public beaches, according to Asst. State Atty. Richard Kibbey.

"The laws are adequate, but need better enforcing," he said a few days ago.

The annual end-of-school problems faced by law enforcement officials out-stripped beginning with Mother's Day vandalism at Jensen Beach, when vandals destroyed part of the steps and created other hazards to use of the beach by the law abiding public. The most recent outrage occurred Thursday evening at Stuart Beach where the plumbing fixtures were ripped out and other desecrations committed.

"The bathrooms were destroyed we had to board them up," said Jack Cammack, Chief Lifeguard.

The damage was estimated at $1,000.

The trouble stemmed from the use of alcoholic beverages and drugs among the youthful beachgoers, officials say. The use of alcoholic beverages on the beach from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. was banned several months ago by the county commission.

County Worker David McAbee, who was busy repairing the damage to the restrooms at Stuart Beach on Monday, said that vandalism to beach facilities is a common problem.

"If we didn't have to spend the time and money making these repairs," he said, "we could spend it building new things. It's a shame."

McAbee said most of the damage to the restrooms was done Thursday night. All the commodes and all the partitions in the restrooms were torn out, he added.

"We came out and cleaned up and nailed the doors shut, but they came back and tore down the doors and messed up the bathrooms some more," he commented.

A local youth who frequently visits the beach at night, said he was not present when the vandalism took place. He said he has noticed more patrols by deputies during daylight hours, but not at night.

Lt. Jim Mills of the Sheriff's Department said that arrests have been made at the beaches.

"We arrested two people for violating the county ordinance banning alcohol from the beach after 7 p.m. last week, and arrested several others over the weekend. There's no way we can be at the beach every minute unless we just take someone off patrol and leave them out there. We don't have the manpower to do that ... with vacations we are even more short-handed."

The department's workload is increasing, he said, and the department will ask for money to hire four more men in the coming year's budget.

The new men, he indicated, will be assigned to the Port Salerno area where the largest number of calls are coming from.

Heritage Federal hosts huge grand opening

GREETING—Mayor William McChesney greeted Patricia S. Brink, manager of the Port St. Lucie branch Heritage Federal Savings and Loan, in Port St. Lucie Friday, while City Manager Mike Stanyon looked on. Heritage held a grand opening celebration all weekend for the new branch which is located on the corner of U.S. 1 and Port St. Lucie Blvd. (Photo by Michelle Naspinski)

Port St. Lucie's newest financial institution, the branch office of Heritage Federal Savings and Loan Association, located on US Hwy. #1 and Port St. Lucie Blvd., held its grand opening on Saturday, May 31st, according to Patricia S. Brink, Manager.

Brink stated that a formal flag raising ceremony was conducted by Boy Scout Troop 475, with Pat Callahan as leader.

Reverend Clark Thompson, pastor of the Trinity United Methodist Church of Jensen Beach delivered the invocation, prior to words of welcome by Mayor William B. McChesney and Harry Schindehette, representing the Chamber of Commerce.

Alfred J. Ferrari, Heritage Federal President from Daytona Beach also attended and addressed the crowd.

Brink noted that since May 28th, the savings and loan has been open "without fanfare". She stated that it is necessary to open "quietly" in order to ensure all operating details are in place. "Now we are ready to serve the fine citizens of greater Port St. Lucie," she said.

As part of the program, guests were invited to register for an array of gifts. Refreshments were served all afternoon on Saturday.

Brink stated that a unique orchid society display was in the lobby of the association under the direction of Gale Van Barber. Fred Hoethke entertained at the organ.

An ever popular antique auto display was held in the S&L's parking lot, provided by Rick Carroll, well known local auto buff. Carroll had on display some of his most unique antique autos.

Brink said that Heritage Federal is particularly pleased to serve the St. Lucie and Martin county area through this facility, located near Port St. Lucie, Fort Pierce, Jensen Beach and Stuart, as well as other neighboring communities.

The S&L manager said that Heritage Federal will offer complete savings and loan service including drive-in teller facilities.

Aha...selling drug paraphenalia, eh?

Editorials

Heads in the sand

No one likes to deal with marijuana, nor does anyone like the ever-increasing drug traffic built around marijuana, or the newest addiction, cocaine.

Both are illegal, and possession and use of either is a possible jail term, if the arresting officers are careful enough to walk the tightrope of laws that prohibit them from doing much of anything to enforce the law.

The Florida Legislature has passed a law to outlaw the sale and possession of "drug paraphernalia." That includes spoons, scales, and rolling papers.

It could also include newspapers, magazines, toilet paper, shopping market bags, stationery, envelopes anything made of paper. It could also include paper clips, water pipes, regular pipes, and copper tubing, fountain pens, or anything that would hold a cigarette.

It is a dumb law that will be declared unconstitutional at the first challenge.

In another classic case of not paying attention, or not caring, the House voted to increase weekly state unemployment benefits from $95 to $105. This means that those working for minimum wage of $124 a week would have to choose not working and getting $105 a week, or working forty hours that week for $124.

Does this make sense?

And one stands up

To submit to blackmail is to open your door to degradation and shame. To stand up in the face of blackmailers is to stand up proudly.

The Mirror is proud of the stand of Publix Markets in the face of a slanderous attack by the United Farm Workers what is a form of blackmail and coercion to force the highly regarded super market chain to bow down to the UFW and stop buying Red Coach lettuce.

It seems that the UFW is trying to be the bargaining agent of field workers for Red Coach in California. The firm is opposing the practices of the union, and has the support of the workers. So, to bring pressure on Red Coach, the UFW is seeking a boycott of the lettuce in super markets throughout the United States.

Add to that the establishment by the union of a pressure group that files "consumer complaints" against the super markets that will not be blackmailed into banning the lettuce, and you have impressive pressure building.

We believe in the free enterprise system, and believe that there is no room for blackmail or protection rackets in that system.

We encourage Publix Markets to hold out against the union pressure tactics. The forward-looking policy that has brought Publix from a small store in Lakeland to several hundred stores and 27,000 employees in fifty years of service has no room for knuckling under to the United Farm Workers.

How much protection?

Actually, the title of this little bit of frustration probably should be "How much protection can we afford."

Just how far can government go to protect the consumer? Just how much can the consumer pay for that protection before the bank is broke?

Automobiles are an example. The many government required safety features are a good thing, except that they cost one whale of a lot of money. And, who pays for that? The consumer.

Everyone is for safety. Few realize the cost of that safety.

The bike paths are an example in this area. When you think of a beautiful bike path sidewalk along the Indian River, with early morning rides along the river watching the beautiful sunrise, or the evening sunset amidst billowing white clouds, or even the moon paving a glittering path across the river, with a black silouette Hutchinson Island in the backdrop, who can possibly be opposed to that?

When you think of the $40,000 a mile it costs to build that bikepath sidewalk, and of the people of District A paying that you get a different perspective. The people will have an opportunity to vote for a millage to raise the money for bike paths this fall. And the members of The Mirror, along with the members of the Jensen Chamber of Commerce, support the special tax.

But that is so close that the people know where the money goes. They will have a choice of spending their money for the safety of walking or riding bikes along the narrow, dangerous road.

The best example of government over regulation is in the news this week. It seems that the government decided to regualate the safety of lawnmowers. The regulators have decided that the lawnmowers need more protection to the tune of $190 million a year to consumers.

The study began in 1973, and has continued to today. The study itself took 35,000 pages of testimony, through many public meetings.

Can anyone imagine how much it cost, in dollars, man hours and materials just to get the report to the regulators? And, who pays for that? The taxpayer. And who pays for the additional cost of safety? The consumer.

The upshot of it all is that the safety measures require that the lawnmower blade stop in three seconds after the operator takes his hands off the handle of the mower. Any idiot who wants to put his foot or hand in a whirling blade should not cost the taxpayer and consumer millions of dollars just to protect himself against himself.

The whole thing is dumb.

This is another case of government sticking its nose in what can easily be handled by the marketplace. Lawnmower manufacturers can easily police their own products. If they make an unsafe product, the people will not buy it, or will protest in such numbers that the product will be forced off the market.

Unfortunately, when government gets in the act, consumers and taxpayers get it in the neck. The bureaucrats in Washington do not know that the man in the small town wants. They work in numbers, not in human beings.

Does anyone ever look at the number of traffic lights at a small intersection? Where two lights would suffice, they have either eight, or twelve. The reasoning behind it is that there should be a traffic light for each lane of traffic, painted in each direction. What is really is a strong lobby for the traffic light manufacturers has encouraged the various Departments of Transportation that safety will be served if there are that many lights. The bureaucrats demand, in their directives, that that many lights be installed.

It is dumb, and it costs the taxpayers millions upon millions of dollars for the extra lights.

Just how much protection can we afford?

Sallie von Halle ---a happy 90th

I first met Sallie von Halle in Jane Davidson's elegant little shop over in Stuart. People kept talking to "Sally" and we both were guessing.

Soon I found my competition--a part little butterfly of a woman with snow-white hair and a beautiful smile.

"You're Sally Latham," she informed me. "I know, because I read your columns all the time in the Mirror."

We soon discovered we were sisters under the skin in more than name only. Both of us were "converted" Sallies, with the christening name of Sarah. And both of us share a basic love of the fun and humor of life.

Much to my surprise, I found that the main difference was in our ages. Sallie von Halle was excitedly looking forward to a major milestone in her life--she'd be reaching the ripe age of 90 on June 8. And she was proud enough to tell the world about it.

I had to find out where along the way she's discovered the Fountain of Youth. In due course I made a date to go visiting to their little cottage in Ocean Breeze Park to find out for myself.

I was greeted by Frank von Halle, a tall, amiable man with a twinkle in his eye to match the one in his wife's. Frank, who is 68, boasts a little about having married an "older woman."

At Ocean Breeze, the von Halles have discovered the life they like--among friends who share the same interests. It was one of those interests, in fact, that brought them together.

"I met Frank at a square dance here at Ocean Breeze," Sallie told me. "We were married in 1954 in Florence, S.C. We took the travel trailer and traveled all over the coast, but we decided we liked Ocean Breeze the best, so we settled here."

It was a third marriage for Sallie, and the second for Frank, a widow and police officer with the New York City police for 34 years. And a happy marriage it has been.

Part of the reason for Sallie von Halle's alertness is that she was brought up with an awareness of the importance of education.

Born June 9, 1890 in Monon, Ind., she was indoctrinated early in the "women's lib" of the day.

"One of my aunts (Aunt Sallie) went to medical school, and another was the first woman doctor in Chicago," she told me. "My folks were hung up on education."

She was brought up in Alexander, Ohio, near Dennison University.

"They took me away to school, where they didn't discuss all those sex problems," she twinkled.

She graduated from "teaching school" on the campus of Ohio University, and her first teaching job was in van Wert, Ohio, hometown of Gene Hoke, owner and mayor of Ocean Breeze Park.

Her memories of that first job are mixed. She liked the work, but--

"I stayed at the home of the school superintendent, and he liked me too well--I was young and beautiful--my father soon came and got me."

That was the beginning of a series of other colleges for Sallie--Ohio University and Wooster included.

At Wooster, she was the belle of the ball.

"I was voted the most beautiful on campus," she recalled. "I can remember all those flash bulbs being shot at me, and the professors all wanted to make love to me."

She finally met and married her first husband, Dr. Upton Lyle, a prominent physician, and proceeded to live a happily married life for 20 years, alternately between Newport, Indianapolis and South Bend for 20 years.

It was the good doctor's philander ing that put that marriage on the rocks.

"He got too fresh with some of his nurses," Sallie told The Mirror.

She finally divorced, him, and remarried. Her second husband was a wonderful guy but a short-lived one.

"We'd been married six weeks when he had a stroke and died."

Her next several years were spent living with her mother, and working as a case worker in Ohio. When she first came to Ocean Breeze, she'd been living in Chicago.

"When I got here, I didn't even know what a trailer park was," she said.

In Frank von Halle, Sallie found a man of many parts. During World War I, he saw service as a Top Sergeant in France and with the Army of Occupation in Germany.

He also has the great open spaces in his heart.

While he was with the NYPD, he took a leave of absence and spent some time out in the big sky country of Montana.

"She talks about little towns," he said. "All I want is the wide open spaces."

Sallie never had any children of her own, which makes her enjoy even more sharing Frank's family. His daughter, Frances Shaw, is retired from the WAACS, and lives in Miami. Another daughter, Dorothy Hasmer, lives in Walden, N.Y., and has two sons, Karl and Eric, who are the apples of Frank's and Sallie's eyes. And they were just recently visited by a great-granddaughter, who also stole their hearts.

Another secret of the Sallie von Halle charm is her innate penchant for flirting.

"I don't know why women have such trouble getting a man," she smiles. "I've always had more than I wanted."

Happy birthday, Sallie von Halle. May you keep flirting for another dozen years.

srl srl srl

And a belated Happy Birthday to my dear old friend Layton Sprinkle, up in Philadelphia. Layton, who just celebrated a happy 88, is an avid reader of The Mirror and a great admirer of the writings of Bessman Dick Campbell.

Like Frank, Layton is a veteran of World War I with service in France. We belatedly salute him, too, along with our local old guard vets.

When the buzzer goes beep

There are loads of obnoxious songs on the air these days, as I suppose there have been ever since we've had radios.

Of course, what's obnoxious to one person is a popular hit to another.

But I won't even try to be objective about my tastes in music, and if I slam a song you're particularly fond of, tough. You can retaliate if you wish in a letter to the editor, but my column is my column and I'll call them like I hear them.

It used to be the Carpenters and Donnie and Marie who grated on my nerves, but they don't seem to come out with many new tunes these days, so they're on my back-burner obnoxious list.

Barry Manilow, however, seems to crank out one sickenly syrupy song after another. None of his "ones" are for me.

Disco has brought on a wave of annoying songs, far too long to list in a column.

One of the worst that's been getting a lot of airplay lately is a tune full of social commentary. "We don't need no education" and, Teacher leave us kids alone" are two of its more significant statements.

Some songs aren't so bad the first time you hear them, but grow worse with repeated play. The guy who sang the song with the line, "If you like pina coladas, and getting caught in the rain" didn't sound so bad the first few times, but after hearing it day in and day out for what seemed like an eternity, I got a sore arm from turning the radio off each time it came on.

The same fellow has come out with a new song, the name of which, thankfully, escapes me. It's about some guy who calls his girlfriend to propose marriage. He gets a recorded message. He gives the recording his proposal and tells her to call back with her answer. She does, but by then he's out and she gets a recorded message. And, before she can state her reply, the recording ends.

It's one of those songs that took no time at all to grow stale on me. I hated it from the start, and my arm remains sore from turning it off each time I hear the first few notes.

I suppose the guy has a nice enough voice, but it's his subject matter that is annoying. The idea of proposing to a phone tape recorder is ludicrous.

It's disgusting enough that our society has become so electronically automated that phone recorders are commonplace, but to lend credibility to them by suggesting they're a viable means for making proposals is downright bewildering, to say nothing of impersonal.

I know phone recorders are an economic necessity for some business folks who have to be out of the office a lot and can't afford to miss calls for their services. But it is annoying to talk to a machine, and unless I absolutely have to leave a message, I just hang up before the buzzer goes beep. I've thought of retaliating by recording some sort of obnoxious message to leave for the phone recorders.

Here are a few of that I figure would be good for curing folks of using their recorders:

"Hello, this is J. Michael Anthony. I had you down on my list for a gift of $1 million, but since you're not in, I'm passing you by and going to the next name. Sorry you weren't in."

Or, how about, "Hello, Dad, this is your son. I've had it with life. I just can't take it anymore, so I'm going to hang up and jump out of the 10th floor window."

Too morbid? How about, "Hi, honey. I know it's a bit of a risk to leave a recorded message, but you said you'd be home long before your husband and I just had to get word to you. Listen, I've left my wife, like you always wanted me to, and I'm ready to run off to the islands with you. We've dreamed about it too long and you've finally convinced me to do it. So, get down to the bank and withdraw everything from your joint savings account. I'll meet you at our secret spot. I've already withdrawn all that I have and bought the plane tickets, so I'll see you tonight."

The latter message should, of course, be left at a time when you know the husband will be first to arrive at home, and preferably after banking hours, so he won't be able to check his savings account balance.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Does anybody ever look at the condition of the Jensen Beach Causeway? Not just look, but SEE? Without crying, that is. Does anybody care that the beautiful Australian pines are lying on the shores, not sleeping dead?

During the 17 years we have lived in Jensen Beach, hundreds of trees have been lost to erosion, and the Causeway is less than half as wide as it was. Much has been lost. Are we waiting for "too little too late"?

A new recreational park on 707A (see last week's Referendum story in The Mirror) is a good idea, but let's first protect and take care of that which we have.

VENTURE HARBOUR

A card from Winnie and Tom Widlake told of their's and Sam Tucker's safe arrival home in Fitchburg, Mass. Said the weather had been beautiful and that they were happy to be home. They send their regards to all.

Also a card from Jean and Gil Van Willigen who are touring Germany and Austria and having good food and a good trip, and on May 16th they were going to Vienna.

Fran Tener took a short trip down to Ft. Lauderdale to visit friends from California who are on a short Florida vacation. She also visited with friends from North Miami Beach and then on Friday picked up the Shavers at West Palm Beach airport. They had driven to Duluth, Ga. with daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Rodney Branch, where they live. Son Robert and Nancy Shaver also live there. They had a good visit with them but are glad to be back in Venture Harbour.

Edith and Dick Painter are back in Venture Harbour after a short stay in Alabama. They visited son Bob and his family. Harriet and Lee Price made a trip to Miami to check over their old neighborhood and view the destruction there from the recent riot.

A call from Pat and Larry Belt told of their being very busy getting their houses and cottages ready for summer vacationers. Pat misses her days at our pool. They send greetings to all.

St. Lucie has 7.8 percent unemployed

Despite strong reductions of a recession and a drop-off in the construction field, unemployment in St. Lucie County for the first four months was lower than it has been since 1974, the Fort Pierce - Port St. Lucie Chamber of Commerce maintains.

According to figures from the Florida Department of Labor and Employment Security, the average unemployment percentage for Jan. through April, 1980, was 7.8. The best previous record since the 1974-75 recession was 1978, when unemployment was 8 percent for the first four months.

"If the trends of recent years continue," said Chamber executive Dick Reid, "we can expect the May figure to be fairly low before the end of the citrus and tourists seasons, and the current crop of high school graduates entering the job market catch up with us. It is encouraging to know that a little progress is being made, although we are a long way from reaching the State average of around 5 percent."

EFFECTIVE PROPERTY MANAGEMENT

QUESTION: I own a 10-unit [illegible] I purchased about a year ago. I have just gone through a terrible experience. Here's what happened: About six months ago, I rented an apartment to a new tenant. In addition to being destructive, the tenant has not paid rent since his second month in the apartment. Despite months of tiresome legal proceedings he is still there, and I cannot make the apartment available. Other tenants are now complaining about his being noisy. How can I avoid repeating this unpleasant and financially draining experience?

ANSWER: Perhaps the most important part of effective property management is having a good application form for prospective tenants and verifying the information on it. You should check with the prospective tenant's previous employer, to determine whether or not the tenant actually is employed and earns enough to be able to afford the apartment.

Most important, check with the previous landlord to see if the tenant was prompt in paying rent. Ask about the tenant's behavior. Keep in mind that if the tenant is still in the previous landlord's building, that landlord could "cover" for the tenant in order to get rid of him.

Most application forms also include blanks for references, and it is not a bad idea to talk with one or more of these. Unfortunately, however, a prospective tenant seldom provides the names of people who will give him a bad reference.

Time spent in checking the information on a rental application will pay big dividends. If you are thorough and diligent, you should be able to save yourself the misery of going through the same experience again.

Lobsterfest at Admiral's Table

Germany may have its Octoberfest but people in Florida are starting their own kind of tradition with a lobsterfest.

Last week, owners of the Admiral's Table Restaurant in Jensen Beach staged their own festival when they flew in 485 Maine Lobsters for their week long discounted lobster meals in conjunction with the dinners, they ran a contest to see which of the employees could serve the most meals. Of the twelve contestants two tied for first place with 181 each.

First place prize winners Angel Lewis and Terri Bingham received a free meal and drinks of their choice. However rather than be served by their co-workers, the owners of the restaurant did the catering. Angel ordered a pina colada and lobster but her friend Terri must have been tired of looking at nothing but lobster for a full week. She opted for filet mignon.

The above is some of the trivia presented in an hour-long presentation on St. Lucie Nuclear Power Plant by Clarence Wells, plant manager, and Hank Buchanan, radiation supervisor of the plant.

The informative program was the highlight of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Tuesday morning forum at First Federal's Hoke Hall on Commercial Street.

The speakers were qualified in their professions. Wells has 25 years of experience in power plants, fifteen in fossil fuel and ten in nuclear power. Buchanan has been in radiation health physics over 17 years. Both work for Florida Power and Light Company.

Wells explained that the one unit at St. Lucie produces 850 megawatts of power, enough to serve one million people. The second unit, now under constuction and expected to be "on line" in two-and-one-half years, will add an additional 850 megawatts to the FP&L grid.

Asked why electric bills go up when the nuclear unit is not in operation, Wells said that nuclear power costs $3 per kilowatt, fossil fuel costs $25 per kilowatt and gas turbine power costs $100 per kilowatt. Switching to either of the two more expensive power sources would naturally boost the cost to the consumer.

"Nuclear power is just one of the needed energy mix to free our country from the yoke of arab oil," Wells said. He added that there would have to be a combination of nuclear, coal, gas and solar power sources to make the country energy sufficient.

However, the plant manager said that the environmental impact of solar power would be devastating.

"It would take 40-square-miles of area to build a solar power plant to do the job that St. Lucie is doing," Wells said. He added that the strip mines required to produce coal and gas would also ruin the landscape in western states.

The solar power plant would reflect a cost of $14,000 per kilowatt as compared to nuclear power's $1,200 per kilowatt.

As the country that developed the concept of nuclear power, the United States is falling behind other nations, Wells said. He cited the Soviet Union as adding 20 new nuclear power plants each year, with three breeder reactors in operation.

The United States now has 74 plants in operation.

It takes the Japanese 48 months (four years) from start to finish on a nuclear plant, while in the United States it takes 14 to 16 years to get one on line.

"We invented the technology and we are doing nothing about it," Wells said.

Referring to nuclear waste, Wells said that the government was supposed to have made plans for disposal of wastes, but has done nothing about it. Buchanan said that low level waste is easily disposed of, but high level waste, in which St. Lucie produces a three foot cube each year, was difficult to store and dispose of without government leadership in disposal sites.

In a free flow of questions from the forty persons present, the two men handled their answers well, without getting too technical in a very technical subject.

Screening gives teachers help in meeting needs of children

JUNE CAVETTE, a speech therapist, coaxes a smile from Charlie Cartwright during kindergarten screening tests at Jensen Beach Elementary. Ms Cavette's job during the screening was to test the communication skills of the children.

[illegible] skills to understand concepts [illegible] Child Find agencies. The screening tests given at Jensen Elementary recently, are designed to identify learning problems so teachers can concentrate on correcting them.

Story and photos by Bob Fryer

Education in Martin County, like most other regions of the nation, has become a much more sophisticated undertaking than it was in earlier days.

Many oldtimers can remember going to school in a one room school house, where one teacher taught grades one through 12.

The parents of today's school children probably had a little more refined system than that, with most of them having separate teachers for each grade, and separate classrooms for those grades. And, in upper-level grades, they might even have had separate teachers for separate courses.

In more modern times, a wider variety of courses have been offered in most schools.

In future years, who knows what our educational system will be like? But at Jensen Beach Elementary, as well as all other elementary schools in the county, they're taking an approach with beginning students that kids, as well as teachers, in one-room schoolhouses would have found hard to imagine.

In the past, if a child had a hearing problem, he might well have been written off as ignorant or inattentive. The same could be said for a host of other physical or psychological limitations, and often the results were tragic.

Today, educations are taking steps to combat those problems. At Jensen Elementary last week, screening tests were conducted for children who will be entering kindergarten there in the Fall.

The screening is, designed to identify handicaps children may have before they enter school, so parents can be directed to social agencies to correct them, and so their teachers will be aware of any problems and give them specialized help," said Dr. Barbara Anderson, coordinator of primary education for Martin County schools.

The children were tested for a variety of skills. They were required to walk along a balance beam a few inches above the ground, to toss and catch bean bags, and were even timed to see how long they could stand still. The ability to grasp concepts was also tested, as they were told to assemble blocks.

Teachers listened carefully for speech problems during the screening tests, and even the children's ability to compose a story, based on pictures they were shown, was recorded.

Eugene Moore, a hearing specialist who has worked with the county for 25 years, gave hearing tests to the children, and public health nurse Bunny Dustefano tested eyesight.

Volunteers and nurses helped fill out medical forms for the children, making up growth charts that will be updated for them each year they are in school.

Among the workers helping with the screening tests were several members of Child Find, an agency under the state Diagnostic and Learning Resource System.

Chris Miller of Child Find explained that the agency serves Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Okeechobee counties and is designed to locate persons from birth to 21 years of age who are not in public schools and who may have handicaps in the areas of speech, vision, speech and language, or who may have other physical or emotional problems. It is the job of the agency to identify those with problems and refer them to community agencies or physicians who can offer help. The agency also supplies films and materials to preschools to help the handicapped, and Mrs. Miller said so far the agency has been able to find some help for all of the persons they have identified as having problems.

"The screening tests we are conducting are all part of a nationwide standardized test, so it gives us a good evaluation of the children and what areas they may need specialized help in. It also helps us in planning, so we will know what we need to offer in the schools," Dr. Anderson said.

Following the screening tests, which seemed a bit intimidating to some of the youngsters, the children were treated to orange juice, supplied by the school food service, to cookies supplied by MacDonald's and to toys from Burger King.

One of the volunteers helping serve the food was Marjorie Coltart of England, who was in town visiting her niece, school secretary Sheila Lewis. "She asked if I'd like to help and I said I'd be glad to. The children have been very well behaved, though one or two were a wee bit tearful," Coltart said with a friendly British accent.

Parents were urged to accompany their children, and in most cases they did, or else they sent an adult friend along. At the conclusion of the testing, private conferences were held with the adults so they could be informed of any areas these children may need help in and so they could ask questions about the testing results.

CUTTING OUT FIGURES was one means officials at Jensen Beach Elementary used to test the comprehension skills of youngsters like this one who will be entering kindergarten this fall.

HEARING TEST—Katharine Rottele thought listening to the earphones was great fun, and it probably was. But the reason for the earphones wasn't to provide fun, but to test her hearing.

JOSHUA COONS tosses a bean bag into a bucket during recent screening tests for kids entering kindergarten at Jensen Beach Elementary in the fall. At right is Frances Power, a college student majoring in education who volunteered to help with the tests.

This closure will coincide with the State closure in its territorial sea and will allow the shrimp to grow larger before they are harvested. In addition, it will enable commercial shrimpers to harvest a large quantity of shrimp off the Texas coast in a shorter period of time, thereby decreasing their unit costs of operation," Leitzell said.

The plan establishes a permanent closure of an area off the State of Florida, known as the Tortugas Shrimp Sanctuary, to protect small pink shrimp until they reach a larger size and move out of the sanctuary into water open to shrimp fishing.

The closure reestablishes a shrimp conservation area formerly maintained by Florida. The Council, however, slightly reduced the size of the original closed area to allow shrimping in deeper waters near Key West, Leitzell explained.

OF FRESHWATER FISHING intrigues you, and you're a resident of Florida, you can take advantage of Florida's "Cane Pole Law" in fishing area canals, ponds, lakes and Savannas. This law states simply that a resident may fish in the county in which he lives without a license, provided he uses only cane poles numbering no more than three.

That can make for some mighty inexpensive fishing, sport fans. Incidentally, if you decide to go bluegill (bream) fishing in the county, consider using some of those little grass shrimp that are so easy to net in the grass at the edge of the water. Impale three of them on a small bluegill hook and watch the panfish flip over them. They'll get the job done usually, when worms, nor crickets nor flies will bring a strike.

IF YOU WONDER who the winners were in the recently concluded winter tournament of the Stuart Sailfish Club here they are:

Amberjack, Kenneth W. Roth 52-0 52 lbs.; bluefish, Carl M. Nelson, 16-8 false albacore, L.D. Gateley, 9-8 flounder, Tom Oversam, 12-12, jack crevalle, Jack Keegan, 21-0 king mackerel, Barry J. Rugo 43-4 sailfish. Men's Division, Scott Eisenmann, 7 ft. 2 inches sailfish. Women's Division, Pamela Donovan, 7 ft. 1 inches; pompano, Ray Carey 5-12 spotted seatrout, Chas. H. Bodine 12-12, sheepshead Jim Fowler 2-8 snook, Herbert M. Vernon, 4-8 Spanish mackerel, Marvin C. Fiellen 9-0, tripletail Joanne Sellars, 15-0, wahoo, Eleanor B. Reed 58-12, weakfish, Jacques C. Carpenter 4-0.

OUTDOOR LOVERS planning summer vacations can now choose between week-long "back-to-nature" holidays in two mountain retreats, one in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, and the other in the Adirondack Mountains of New York, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

NWF will hold Conservation Summits at conference centers in the Blue Ridge and the Adirondacks this summer. The Summits are designed for singles, couples and entire families, with special programs for younger campers.

Those who choose the June 21-27 Blue Ridge Summit, which is located east of Asheville, at Black Mountain, N.C., will be housed in rustic inns or modern motel rooms. Meals will be served family style in the Blue Ridge dining room, which overlooks Mount Mitchell, the highest U.S. peak east of the Mississippi.

Field trips scheduled for the Blue Ridge Summiteers include visits to the Pisgah National Forest, Great Smoky Mountain Park, the stately Biltmore House in Asheville, the University of North Carolina's Botanical Gardens, local potteries, and the Blue Ridge parkway, to study birds, trees, wildflowers, fungi, insects and reptiles indigenous to the Blue Ridge.

Costs at the Summits vary, according to the type of accomodations and number of people per room, with housing and meals ranging between $127 and $243 per single adult, and $362 and $651 for a family of four. Tuition is $85 for adults, $50 for teenagers; in the adult program, $45 for youths in the teen program, and $60 for children enrolled in the Junior Rich Youth.

Fishing's slow, whiting are still with us

THESE ARE TRYING TIMES for fishermen as we head into perhaps the slowest month of the year. This is when you have to appreciate the joy of being outdoors and just being alive, forgetting for the moment the fact that the fish just aren't biting with any consistency anywhere around here.

Off shore, the seas have been four to eight feet, making fishing out there more than a little uncomfortable. Even the party boats have been finding it too much for their customers. Maybe this is a good time to work on your boat instead of making it work for you.

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY of the party boat Lady Stuart, going half days from the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart, says the wind's been blowing for a week and we haven't been getting out much. We went out Saturday in eight footers (waves). We got some small Lanes (snappers), a mangrove (snapper), some bonito and some porgies. Friday, in heavy seas, we got only a cuba and kingfish. Thursday, the catch amounted to some small snapper and sea bass. The wind's blowing like crazy this morning (Tuesday). I wish I could tell you they're jumping in the boat, but that just isn't the case, Dick. We had a good May but June is always slow. They're out there but we can't get to them. There were a lot of kings in 75 to 150 feet of water off the St. Lucie Inlet last week.

THE BEST NEWS THIS WEEK, in a week characterized by a paucity of good news, is that fishing has picked up at the Roosevelt Bridge, after weeks and weeks of dismal reports of no fish and few fishermen. Let's hear it from Muriel Weideman of the D&M Bait and Tackle Shop at the south end of the bridge on U.S. 1, just north of Stuart.

They're catching things again, not great but a big improvement! They've been catching a lot of nice mangrove snapper on shrimp tails, and Earl Kenney of Belle Glade came over and caught 5 nice bass on a 5-0 (5 lbs.) and several mangrove snapper. John Heckel of Port St. Lucie caught a 17 0 drum on a blue claw crab's claw. There were some pompano caught on those little yellow nylon jigs, and fishermen using cut eels have been stringing small sheepshead. It's been a long dry spell here, Dick, but it may be over at the Rouse mill. I don't know what we'd have done all winter long without the tourists buying shrimp."

So, you see it's a flash in the pan, the fish seem to have returned to the Roosevelt Bridge after a long sojourn in other waters.

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "The fishing's not great, (that old refrain). Evelyn Boyles caught a 3-12 flounder on live shrimp fishing from the Venture. Three seawall: Ed Hojnack, a 16-0 snook on a sand flea (how about that, sport fans!) at the Park-N-Fish recreation area below the Jensen Causeway and Hendley Inn; John and Daisy Cook, 24 whiting, on cut mullet in the surf about a mile below the power plant; Rich Richardson, a 6-0 snook on live shrimp from the seawall walk of the Frank Wach Bridge on the Jensen Causeway. Dick, I'd like to see one thing straight. A lot of those small "skinjacks" being caught in 60 ft. about 100 degrees off the Sheraton are Pacific yellowtails, really delicious eating. You can tell them by a copper streak running back from the head."

DAVE LAMB, from Jensen Bait and Tackle, back in harness after a siege of illness: "Trout fishing's picking up a little and the tripletails in the deep holes around the pilings are still biting like mad on live shrimp. They're averaging 10 12 lbs. and fight like the dickens. Many are being caught by boaters drifting live shrimp across the channel in the intracoastal. Those tripletails are simply delicious eating. Fishing in the surf is slow except for some whiting and croakers. It's been too rough for say offshore fishing. They are getting some snook from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge at night."

Lamb's log: Rob and Brad Burgess, three tripletails to 20-0, on live shrimp; Lou Papadero and Jim Shelton, three tripletails to 16 8 and a 2-0 flounder in a deep hole just north of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge; Dave Smid, 6 trout to 7 0, live shrimp, power plant grass flats; Jay Shank, a 2 8 mangrove snapper and 8 trout to 5-0, on grass flats north of the power plant; Rob Reppert, a 5 0 snook and 6 trout to 2-0 from a St. Lucie River seawall.

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "It's been pretty darn slow, Dick. I don't know what else to say. There are a few whiting, croakers and sand perch in the surf. The river isn't much better. Trout are fair around the power plant, in Herman's Bay, and near Walton Road, but, nothing of any size. Just the regulars are getting a few every day. Offshore, it's just been too rough. We didn't have any live shrimp over the weekend and just got some in again Monday night. Not as many people are fishing and the fishing's a lot crummier. Even the regulars are having it tough. There are some tarpon in the mosquito ditches just north of the power plant. Probably your best bet to catch fish is to go for whiting in the surf. Use two No. 4 or 6 long shanked hooks above the smallest pyramidal sinker that will keep your bait's out some 25 to 50 feet where the whiting are feeding. Bait up with fresh shrimp and a sand flea, and alternate with cut bait and clams until you find what the whiting are feeding on. They're starting to put the rocks on the new north jetty, believe it or not."

The Nook's log: Stan Zegrencis, 2 trout to 6-8, and a mangrove snapper, on a 7M18 marroture floater; Herman's Bay, Irv Fisher, 8 mangrove snapper, live shrimp, power plant; Terry Yager and Keith Miller, 21 whiting and a pompano, shrimp and clams surf; Normandy Beach, just south of the power plant, Andy Jorgensen, 40 whiting and sand perch, and a pompano, cut shrimp, surf; Ray Greenwald, 3 trout and 3 snook to 3 0 (released 3), 7M18 & 21 series mirrolures, Walton Road; Scott Gallivan, 8 trout to 1-8, live shrimp, Frank Wacha Bridge; George White, a channel bass on a trout tout at the power plant; Clay Schumann, 2 flounder and 3 trout, live shrimp, river; Joe Territo, a 5 0 flounder, yellow jig, Ernest Lyons; Charlie Kessler, a 6-4 trout and 3 mangrove snapper, live shrimp, wading above the power plant.

FROM THE BUCKHEAD RIDGE MARINA on SR 78 about four miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee (813 763 2826), Frank Dobson, manager: "It's slowed up here a lot. Curt Gowdy was here yesterday. They were flyfishing and caught 7 yearling bass and a few big bream fishing in Tin House Cove and Worm Cove, with their best luck in Tin House. A party caught 22 Saturday in Tin House on spinnerbaits. The best bass action is in the morning. Bluegills (bream) and shellcrackers are still biting out in the lake. It has been really too windy to do much fishing after mid mdrning. There's some pretty good bass and bluegill fishing in the main canal leading out to the locks. The panfish are going for worms mostly, and some crickets."

GOOD FISHING, but don't get your hopes too high!"

Johnsons holding 3,200 mile trip

When most folks think of taking a boat to the Caribbean Islands, they think bigger than Bruce Parker.

Most people who make the trip do it in large sailboats or aboard luxury liners. However, Parker and five companions are doing it on two 22 foot long Boston Whalers.

They're doing it as a promotional gambit for the boat manufacturer and for Johnson Outboards, and last week they were in Stuart for a visit at the Outboard Marine Corporation test center.

"We didn't need to stop. The Johnsons are running just fine. We haven't had the first problem with them, but the fellows here were interested in taking a look at the engines to see what sort of condition they're in. They test a lot of engines here, but even these test drivers don't log the sort of hours we've put on the boats in recent days," Parker said.

The reason Parker and his companions have put so many hours on the boats is because their journey is no Sunday afternoon jaunt. They began in Ottawa, Canada, and, by the time you read this, they should have completed their 3,200 mile journey to Haiti.

"We've been running about eight to 10 hours a day. We had planned to make around 300 miles a day, but so far we've only done that a couple of days because we've stopped at a lot of Boston Whaler and Johnson dealers along the way to publicize our trip," Parker said, adding that in Savannah, Ga., they were presented with a key to the city and in Jacksonville Beach, their last stop before arriving in Stuart, they were the subject of television interviews. They also gave an interview here to a local television station.

"This trip proves you can take two stock boats and four stock engines and get in them and go 3,200 miles," Parker said.

"We've had no problems. Somehow, everybody expects us to have a bunch of crises along the way, but that's just not the case, Parker said, noting that the only problems they've had are a few jolts in rough seas and from boat wakes. As an afterthought, he pointed to his badly sunburned lips and said, "And, this."

There are four reasons for making the trip, Parker said. Promotion of Boston Whalers, of Johnson Outboards, and of the Turks and Caicos Islands are three of them. The fourth is more a matter of practicality. Parker operates "Scubacamp" on Grand Turk Island. When the journey is completed, the boats will be used for the camp. Scubacamp is a summer camp for boys and girls 10 to 17 years old who went to learn SCUba to dive.

The trip was originally planned as a trip from Ottawa to Grand Turk, but Parker said it was later decided that the group would go on to Haiti, then return to Grand Turk.

Long-distance boat trips are nothing new for Parker. Two years ago Parker and six crew members piloted two 22 foot Wellcraft boats from Miami to Grand Cayman, a trip billed as a "Bust the Devil's Triangle" event. He used Evinrudes for that 1,500 mile event.

Last year he and friends took a pair of 22 foot Robalo boats from Holland, Michigan, to Grand Cayman, a distance of 4,200 miles. That trip, like this year's marathon journey, also included passing through the Devil's Triangle.

Parker said for at least a portion of the journey, he and crew members have taken their boats into the ocean off each state they've passed on the way here. When not at sea, they motored down the intracoastal waterway.

Crew members include Parker's son, Jeff, who is chief photographer at Stonybrook, L.I.; Jean Wenton of Canada; Tor Klingenberg of Oslo, Norway, who has been a diver at Scubacamp for years; Albert Higgs of North Caicos Island; and Nancy Stone of Chicago.

GOLFING NEWS BY MIKE SANDY

Those of us interested in golf in the Port St. Lucie area will be hauntedly awaiting word from General Development Corp. to learn if the community "amenities" for completion of specific projects will include completion of the additional nine holes of the Wilderness Golf course.

GDC settled a court case which arose from a dispute between GDC and a group of property purchasers on "installment payment contracts" in the court action, GDC denied any wrong doing, but has offered to compromise and settle the claims of the property purchasers according to court documents. GDC has offered to spend $2.5 million for so-called "improvements" such as parks and lighting and another half million for road improvements in Port St. Lucie and six other GDC developments in Florida - including Port Charlotte, Vero Beach Highlands, Port Malabar, Port LaBelle, Port St. John and Sebastian Highlands.

Under the agreement, community "amenities" would be determined solely by GDC in accordance with its own best judgment. We believe now is the time for the various committees which have been meeting with GDC officials to urge completion of the Wilderness course. The latest reports we have on the proposal is that plans for completion have been held in abeyance awaiting budget allocations. However, with the court settlement mentioned, a strong "push" by local golf committees might just "do the trick."

Folks around Sandpiper are "humming" about the low scoring rounds produced by a foursome of Bert McDonnell's "Over the Hill crowd which plays every Saturday. The "fearless foursome" included Col. Sam Dewhirst, Jim Docos, Ed Gaudette and the "Mahaff" himself, McDonnell, scoring 80 under par in a best three balls of four units. Actual scores included Docos' 77, Dewhirst and Gaudette, 79 and McDonnell 87. The minus 80 figure included handicap allowances and who knows when other "Over the Hillers" will be able to match that tally?

We learned that talent scouts have been trying to convince Roz Vroman to take a stab at "modeling." This was brought about when photos of La Roz were snapped as runnerup to Jan Werges for the Sandpiper Ladies championship. The photo appeared in several papers and must have caught the eye of experts.

Congrats in order for Bill and Bea Jahn who are making "much to do" about their first grandchild born to daughter Nancy Campbell.

There's no doubt that many of the male golfers will be "eating their hearts out" when they learn that Rose Pedersen, a 20 handicapper scored an "eagle 2" on the par 4 fourteenth hole on the Saints course. The hole is a ninety degree dog leg right and takes two accurate shots to hit green in two. Rose used a driver and four wood and since view of the shot was obstructed by trees and mounds, the ball was located in the hole after a search of five minutes in traps and the area surrounding the green. Rose has a 20 handicap and has been playing the game for 12 years. Included in the foursome which competed in a Special Guest Day event were Eleanor Machel, Mary Sears and Marjorie Brueggeman.

Celebrations continue around Sandpiper also around the Beckman house hold following Doris Beckman's 39 on the back nine of the Saints' course. A 22 handicapper, the score marked La Beckman's first under 40. The gala event took place while playing with Emily Griffin, Helen Osborne and Ann Thatcher.

Entries are now being accepted for the Florida PGA Open Pro Am which will be played on the championship Sinners course at Sandpiper Bay July 9th. Entry fee for amateurs is $50 with a trio of simon pures teamed up with a professional. Members of the Florida PGA who will be vieing for fame and cash will be playing practice rounds July 7 and 8 with tee off for the Open on Thursday, July 10th. Contestants will play 36 holes on each of Saints and Sinners courses.

Plans have been completed for a complete renovation of the Sinners back nine holes with crews starting the project immediately following Florida Open play. New putting greens will be installed plus a new automatic irrigation system. The back nine is expected to open again in late November of this year. Meanwhile members of both the Sandpiper men's and women's associations will be able to play the full complement of the Saints plus the nine hole Wilderness courses.

We're among those happy to see Lou Mariano and wife Jane back home after an extended European tour which took them to areas where Lou visited families and friends he made while fighting in World War II as a paratrooper.

Emmy Hofmeister wins Sandpiper Bay tournament

Ottie Maves was winner in the fourther flight with 39 points, Phil Healy and Mary Kuhn tied with 36, while Marty Engelbert had 35 and Pat James 34.

Elfreide Wochats had a whopping 40 points to take the fifth flight. Six points back was Johanna Howery at 34, while Helen Porteous, Marion Brandon and Marge Thomas each scored 30.

Coast Guard Auxiliary promotes boater safety

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is aspiring to topple their previous accomplishments in the areas of saving lives and property for the boating public during the year of 1980.

Lives of 1,054 of the nation's recreational boaters, and boater's vessel with the combined total value of $221,491,100 dollars, were saved in 1979 through the volunteer efforts of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Year-end performance summaries released by the U.S. Coast Guard credit the 41,700 men and women of its Auxiliary with a "job well done" in all categories of aid to the boating public and the parent service.

Auxiliarists carried out 42,174 safety and regatta patrols, performed 39,592 support missions to the parent service and 17,676 assist to boaters in distress during 1979. These facts reflect the Coast Guard's heavy dependence on its Auxiliary.

In addition to operational services, the Auxiliary undertakes nationally for the Coast Guard the conduct of extensive public boating education classes and the courtesy marine examination program, all in an effort to lift the level of recreational boating safety on the nation's waters.

The Auxiliary was created as a component of the Coast Guard by an Act of Congress June 23, 1939. Today it has more than 1,300 flotillas throughout all Coast Guard Districts. Flotilla 59 in Stuart is in the 7th Coast Guard District. Membership is open to all qualified men and women who are U.S. citizens, 17 years of age or older.

This unique organization seeks members with a lively interest in supporting the Coast Guard's boating safety mission and increasing their own knowledge through advanced study. The only requirement is that he or she own at least 25 percent interest in a boat, aircraft, or radio station, or have a special skill or talent useful in the field of recreational boating.

Flotilla 59 has a membership of 62. In May a 18 lesson Sailing and Seamanship course was completed under the direction of David Kimmel, Public Education Officer. A total of 47 students took the final exam and 45 passed. A second Boating Skills and Seamanship course will begin in the fall. Flotilla 59 also maintains two radio stations, Stuart I monitored by Von Jourdon and Stuart II by Lev Sheron. These two people have assisted many boaters in this area.

If you wish any further information about the Coast Guard Auxiliary please contact Frank Walsh, Flotilla Commander, 59, (283-1027) or Richard Hoy, Vice Flotilla Commander (878-2780). Meetings are held on the first and third Mondays of the month at 8 p.m. at the Flotilla Building, Flagler St., Stuart. All those interested in safe boating are most welcome.

Boat fatalities increase

The U.S. Coast Guard reports the fatality rate for recreational boating accidents in the U.S. increased slightly last year after reaching an all-time low in 1978.

Coast Guard statistics show 9.7 boating fatalities for every 100,000 boats in 1979 compared with a fatality rate of 9.4 in 1978. Total fatalities last year reached 1,400, up 79 from the 1978 total.

Last year, 6,934 boats were involved in 5,368 accidents, according to reports filed with the Coast Guard. In 1978, 8,576 boats were involved in 6,529 reported mishaps. The Coast Guard attributes about one-half of the decline in boating accidents to a change in reporting criteria. Boating regulations previously required that reports be filed on all accidents involving $100 or more in damages. The amount was raised last year to $200.

Boating accidents in 1979 caused injuries to 2,463 persons and $16,681,500 in property damage. Total injuries were up at least 15 percent from any previous year while property damage rose 35 percent. Coast Guard officials again attribute the apparent increase in injuries to new reporting criteria.

In 1979 all injuries requiring medical treatment beyond first-aid were required to be reported. Previously, the Coast Guard had to be notified if a person lost consciousness or received medical treatment, only if the person was disabled for more than 24 hours.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

This has been like old home week for me. Starting last Saturday and Sunday when six "Smarties" ventured to Jupiter for a Florida Senior Tennis Tournament. I ran into so many old friends, it was hard to believe.

First, I must take you back a few years to 1973 when I had just completed the first tennis club in Stuart, Mariner Sands. You needed a sturdy vehicle just to get to the courts. We had 5 beautiful courts, a trailer, water well and a generator, and about 60 avid tennis players right off the bat. As soon as they made the road passable, we jumped to 100 members. But you must remember this, that in 1973 Stuart or Martin County boasted about 4 tennis players, 40 people who played tennis and about 300 who thought it would be fun to learn, including Mr. Richard Campbell and ransoming Ransom Tilton.

As the news spread about this fun tennis club, I started to get people from Jupiter and Tequesta. Soon I was teaching over 30 people from down there. One day a couple asked if I could come down and help them put a tennis club together. I did, and its now called Rivers Edge T.C. Thats when a lot more fun started. (was working 7 days a week including Tuesday and Thursday mornings when I would race down to Rivers Edge and start the tennis clinics and coaching, for 90 ladies, really, 90 ladies and me. They did very well too, after two months of hard work they joined the league and won the 'B' div.

So many of the original members came by to say hello, and two of the original members at Rivers Edge now lease and manage the Jupiter Racquet Club which is very active with another bunch of friends.

Back to the tournament. Gunther Eichorn, who was the tournament dir. defeated Frank Froehling in a stunning upset 6-1, 6-1 in the mens 35 singles, then Gunther lost a heart breaker to Greg Conrad who had defeated Mario Obando 7-5, 6-2 earlier, but not before Mario had defeated Len Canavan an Australian living at Miles Grant. Have I got you confused yet? And as I was leaving, Jim Bochlie was playing Greg Conrad in the finals of the 35s. Obando and Paul Placek lost a tough match after having match point in the 35 doubles, to Froehling and Mike Baldwin, 2-6, 7-5, 6-0.

The 45 division was represented by Bill IMO Oughterson (Bill def. Bill Cloud 6-1, 6-2 before bowing out to Bucky Walters 6-1, 6-1 in the semies. You know Bill, if he can't lick em, he will join em. Bill paired with Bucky to win the 45 doubles over Harry Boardman a&d Tom Garlough 7-6 (7-1), and 6-4.

In the 55 div. Tom Falkenburg def. Bob Kurlander in the finals 7-5, 6-4. Bob is the pro at Heritage Oaks, so he is just about a Martin Countian living on Countyline Road. Bob got some revenge in the doubles final when he and Force def. Ben Swift and yours truly 6-4, 6-2. 7-5. Charles Church an IRP member teamed with L. Therriott of Vero and lost a good match to Kurlander and Force in the semies 6-4, 6-3.

There was a lot of action also in the ladies 35, and 45 divisions. Ruthe Barnett def. Ginny Devine 6-0, 6-2 to take the 35s. Jean Corvino def. Betty Fick 6-1, 6-3 in the 45s. Barnett and Monte Swift won the doubles. Ladies 45s doubles was captured by Corvino and Ro Dowd who def. Shelly Walters and Cavanaugh 6-4, 6-1, 6-2. A recount showed up 8 Martin Countians.

The rest of old home week started last Friday when Jim Wood called from Tampa about coming over this week for some tennis. Jim was my best man when Connie knabbed me.

Then Wade Horn called to see if Thursday, Friday and Saturday was available for he and Baby Ruth to come and bring Mike and Ada Ivashek, and John & Ginny Witkowski for a week-end of tennis. Wade has made us a custom bar for the back porch, and we can't wait to see it. This is really a fun group, they all have a compound jutting into the Bay at Key Largo, four homes and a tennis court designed for nothing but pleasure for all their friends. We have been there many times, and they have been up here, but never all together, so the Resort will get some extra business this week-end.

This is June now, so get your entries in for the Lipton Mixed Doubles or Martin County Championships (or both).

Bon Appetennis

IRCC Itinerary

It has been said from time to time that Indian River Community College is a community in itself. There may well be some truth in this statement, since a community is nothing more than a diverse group of people with common values and goals. At IRCC there is a shared goal — to contribute to individual growth through education, to stimulate community improvement through cultural activities and services. If this makes IRCC a community, then it is one that exists solely to make the community we all live in better. Most of all, IRCC is a community that reaches out to include you, that depends on your involvement and ideas.

Child Care Activities Night

The youngest students at IRCC will "graduate" Thursday night in a ceremony in the Martin Room of the Koblegard Student Union. The Pre-Kindergarten Class from the IRCC Child Care Center has been rehearsing dignity and pomp for weeks now, and the four-year-olds are all set to present a delightful ceremony at 7 p.m. for anyone who would like to attend. Following the graduation ceremony, the two- and three year-old Day Care students will perform in a musical program of songs and finger games. Included in the Activities Night will be tours of the Child Care Center and refreshments. Parents and friends of the Child Care students are encouraged to attend the event, as well as any IRCC student who would like to find out more about the child care services available on campus. Those interested in the Early Childhood Education-Child Care Management Associate of Science degree program or the Certificate in Child Care Services program might want to take this opportunity to see how the IRCC Child Care Center operates.

Going Up on Campus

Probably the most obvious sign of new construction at IRCC is the interestingly shaped building reaching completion on the east side of the Main Campus. To house a professional stage, a 600-seat auditorium, an FM radio station, music rehearsal rooms, and a vocational woodworking shop, the McAlpin Fine Arts Center will be finished this Fall, and will definitely be a cultural asset to the four-county area. Watch for announcements of exciting programs to take place at this new facility later on this year.

One way that you will soon be able to find out about college events is simply by driving down Virginia Avenue in Fort Pierce. There is a new electronic sign on the eastern edge of the campus and, although the sign is not hooked up yet, within the next couple of weeks it will be flashing college news. Look for the sign and the messages — they will keep you in touch with IRCC. Less obvious are two new structures on campus. There is now a guard station between the two wings of the Administration Building, which faces Virginia Avenue, and a gazebo on the green near the Fine Arts Building. Both fit in with the red brick exteriors of existing facilities, and both make attractive and functional additions to the campus.

Catalogs Are In!

The 1980-81 college catalogs have arrived and are available through the Public Information Office on the Main Campus and at all the branch sites. To get your copy, just drop by any of the four sites, or call extension 408 at the college to get a copy mailed to you. You'll be amazed at the number and diversity of classes and programs available to you through IRCC.

Backgammon record is shattered

The game of backgammon has taken on a new twist at the Florida Institute of Technology, Jensen Beach campus, as members of the Blue Water Dive Club take turns planning their game moves underwater.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GAL GLASS of an empty fish tank, the two backgammon players can be seen making their moves during one of the four games played each hour in the swimming pool of Florida Institute of Technology. The 100 participants have already broken the 64 hour underwater backgammon record set in California, and are still playing strong. Pictured are: Rich Blumenfield and Thomas Rando. (Photo by Cathie Farago)

According to Doug Reinhart, president of the club, the students broke the 64 hour record for underwater backgammon at 1 a.m. Monday.

The reason for the contest? Most of the students are doing it just for the sheer fun. It's not everyday you can enjoy a week-end poolside party and beat the heat while you enjoy a good game of backgammon in the bottom of the swimming pool.

Each of the one hundred participants takes his or her turn playing for one hour, with players averaging between four and five games per session. So far, the tournament has been in effect for more than 100 hours with hundreds of games played. However there is already talk of continuing the marathon for another week.

Although the students won't get their names in the Guinness World Book of Records, they will come away from this with some pretty good memories and one soggy backgammon board.

Now is time to prepare for hurricane season

Hurricane season officially began June 1 and ends November 30.

Now is the time to check to see that you have a supply of non perishable food, a first aid kit, fire extinguisher, battery-powered radio, flashlights, and extra batteries. Being prepared can make a significant difference in your ability to cope with these violent storms.

While the strong winds and heavy rain of a hurricane can pose a threat to human life and property, the most dangerous element of a hurricane is the accompanying high tides and rough seas as the storm moves across a coastal area. Tides of from 3 to 10 feet above normal are common. In some cases, surging tides may rise 20 feet and higher, and flood low lying inland areas.

If you live in a coastal area, have a safe evacuation route planned. Your community's hurricane preparedness plan should include areas to be evacuated during a hurricane emergency. Get information on emergency planning by contacting the local Disaster Preparedness Office. Flood elevation maps are available at local post offices.

Hurricanes can cause extensive flooding not just along the coastline, but far inland as well. Flood insurance is valuable financial protection. You should be aware, however, that your homeowners policy may not cover damage from flooding.

Check into the availability of flood insurance through the National Flood Insurance Program by contacting your local insurance agent or broker.

Thanks to modern detection and tracking devices, the National Weather Service can usually give 12 to 24 hours of warning. Advisories are issued by the Weather Service when hurricanes are approaching land.

A hurricane watch means a hurricane has become a threat to coastal areas. When a hurricane watch is issued everyone in the area covered by the watch should listen for further advisories and be prepared to act promptly if a hurricane warning is issued.

A hurricane warning indicates that hurricane winds of 74 miles an hour or higher, or a combination of dangerously high water and very rough seas, are expected in a specific coastal area within 24 hours. Precautionary actions should begin immediately.

ajor I-95 milestone s expected this week

e in progress toward "the missing link" of I-95 built Martin County should be d this week.

Hall, a member of the local Task Force on I-95, said he expects the Design Report on the "missing link" of I-95 from Lucie County line to Palm Beach . Currently I-95 ends at SR 70 Force, but plans are already e work to extend the road to the St. Lucie County line.

said he spoke with William head of the state Department portation (DOT) office in Fort dale on Monday. "Fowler said booked with DOT officials in sville and learned that they had off on the report last week and the federal authorities are almost dy to do so this week. This means te go-ahead as far as design is concerned," Hall said, adding he considered this "a major stride."

far this year, when it looked like I-95 project was, for the umpteenth , getting bogged down, a Citizen's Force was formed to help push construction of the road before eral funds for interstate roads re in 1986. There was fear at the that the missing portion of the would never be built.

he task force met with DOT ials and the DOT gave them a schedule of when they hoped various steps would be taken toward completion of the road. That schedule called for the Design Application Report to be approved by federal officials on June 23. "We will have beat that schedule by at least a week. That's something; it's much better than lagging behind by a month or so, and I'm very hopeful that from here on in, we can do things to speed up the schedule," Hall said.

The DOT schedule calls for a 76 to 78 week period for designing the superhighway, for right-of-way clearing to take place in mid 1982, and for final completion of the highway in 1985.

Hall stressed that he was speaking for himself and not as a voice of the Task Force.

"I think we can get a lot of the work accomplished ahead of time. Instead of waiting until all the work on one phase of the project is completed before starting the next phase, I am hopeful the DOT can go ahead with other things that need to be done. For instance, while they're designing the road, they could also be working on appraisals and toward obtaining the right-of-way," he said.

Hall noted that he is writing a letter to Bill Rose, head of the state DOT, to urge him to authorize overtime work on the I-95 project. "In the long run, it would be cheaper to let them work overtime. In recent years they have been experiencing a 15 to 18 percent increase in the cost of road construction, so the sooner they can finish the project, the more money it could save. It could add up to millions of dollars," Hall said.

Hall is hopeful that if DOT officials agree with him, county officials could be persuaded to give the DOT workers access to county records during nighttime hours. "During the appraisal part of the work, if the DOT men could work in the field during the day, then have access to property records at night, it might speed things up. Also, the designers could do their field work in the day and do their calculations and paper work at night," he said.

The DOT has estimated that the total construction cost of the I-95 missing link will be $138.3 million, that engineering and contingency costs will be $20.8 million and that right-of-way costs will be $29.4 million, for a total cost of $188.5 million. "That's in 1980 dollars though, so with inflation, it will probably be higher. But every month you shave off the time it takes to get the job done represents an awful lot of money," Hall said.

Federal officials will provide 90 per cent of the funds for the job and the state will pay 10 percent of the cost. When asked if he forsees any problems in obtaining federal funds for the project, Hall said it is still to early to worry about major funding. "As I understand it, the state is going ahead with paying for the low budget items and will be paid back by the feds. The real big expenses are farther down the road, and it won't do any good to worry about them until we're near the point of needing them," he said.

Hall said one factor working in favor of speeding up work on I-95 is that there are problems with the I-75 project. "Fowler told me that some environmental concerns have been raised and that it looks like there will be delays with I-75. Hopefully, that means more time and money can be diverted to I-95," he said.

Hall said the next step is for core samples to be taken and for survey work to be done. That should be completed by October, then detailed design work can begin.

"The DOT has been extremely cooperative with us ever since we had a meeting with them in February, and I'm hoping we can perserve that spirit of cooperation. Right now, everything seems to be working in our favor," Hall said.

e than 10,000 persons are ected on the Jensen Beach eway for a full day of activities on day will be filled with sunshine, and planned events, according Doyle, executive director of Jensen Beach Chamber of Com-climax of the day will be the fireworks committee pyro- display, rated by many as the fireworks show in Florida.

ung and old alike will gather on th side of the causeway in Jensen ch to see the aerial and ground plays. Indian River Drive, Skyline ive and A-1-A on Hutchinson Island be lined with cars loaded with ple watching the display . Those who arrived too late to get on e causeway.

There should be more than 300 ats anchored in the Indian River to watch the show, many arriving early the afternoon to picnic and swim while waiting for the 9 p.m. shootout by the fireworks committee.

The Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club will be manning the refreshments booth, serving hamburgers and hot dogs and soft drinks. The Jensen Moose Lodge will be serving beer and Kielbasa sandwiches.

Local civic clubs are planning to handle various phases of the afternoon of activities, with the ensen firemen holding a greased pole climb, Lions holding foot races, the Jensen Optimists having a watermelon eating contest, and the Chamber holding inner-tube swim races.

There will be booths of many organizations on the causeway.

The bridge across the Indian River will be raised at 2 p.m. to allow the fireworks committee to prepare the ground exhibits, according to County Commissioner Frank Wacha. It will remain up until the end of the fireworks show, about 10:15 p.m.

The Chamber plans to have a collection booth at the entrance to the causeway, collecting donations for the fireworks show. A little more than $1,000 has so far been collected for the show that will cost $5,000, it was reported. More donations are needed.

There will also be a boat that will drive among visiting boats asking for donations to the fund.

"It looks like we are going to again have a great Independence Day celebration," Doyle told The Mirror.

Chamber turtle watches are booked up

BY BOB FRYER

If you're planning to participate in the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce sponsored turtle watches, you'd better sign up soon.

Dennis Doyle, executive director of the Chamber, said Tuesday that the first three days of the scheduled turtle watches, June 12-14, have already been booked up.

Registration for participating in the turtle watches can be made by calling the Chamber at 334-3444 or signing up at the Chamber office on Commercial Street. In addition to this weekend's booked-up watches, there will be organized watches on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 19-21 and June 26-28.

"Based on the rate of bookings to date, I'd advise that you sign up soon," Doyle said.

Giant loggerhead and green sea turtles come to Hutchinson Island beaches during the night each year at this time to dig nests and deposit eggs. For years the Chamber has been sponsoring turtle watches, but in the past there have been complaints from some state officials that the crowds of watchers were too large and that the watchers may have been frightening turtles away. So, this year the size of the groups will be limited and students from the Naturalist Society at the Jensen Florida Institute of Technology campus will serve as guides.

The number of persons allowed per night will be 50, and plans call for that number to be broken up into smaller groups for actual viewing of the turtles.

The turtles are very skittish until they actually start laying eggs, so Naturalist Society guides will patrol the beaches looking for nesting sites, then radio back to the Jensen Public Beach, where watchers will be assembled, to direct groups of the watchers to the nesting sites.

"The turtles are our prime concern, and we will expect cooperation when we tell watchers to stand back and when to douse their lights," commented guide Daniel Saskowsky.

There is no charge for the watches, but you must register to participate in them. And, should you be found molesting turtles, there are stiff penalties, as they are protected by law.

One of the groups booked for the first weekend is an Audubon Society chapter from Miami.

Doyle said interest in the watches seems to be strong. "I've had calls from Miami and Gainesville inquiring about the watches and also had calls from a number of radio stations throughout the country, including one in New Jersey," he said.

Doyle further noted that he has heard a television network may be interested in filming a turtle watch.

The guides on hand for the watches will answer questions and provide information about the turtles and have also prepared an informative brochure for turtle watchers.

Local marine biologist Ross Witham has been doing research on sea turtles for years and has an ongoing program for raising turtles from eggs to the time they are about a year old. Then the turtles are tagged, so their movements can be monitored, and are released into the ocean. By raising the turtles until they're about a year old, it increases their chances of survival at sea. And, as luck would have it, there will be a turtle release at 9 p.m. on Thursday, June 12, at Jensen Public Beach. The public is welcome to witness the release.

The Naturalist Society is having t-shirts made to sell to turtle watchers, but Saskowsky said he is not sure if they'll be ready for the first watch Thursday night. Once they arrive, they will be on sale at the Chamber office, however.

The watches begin at 10 p.m. and it is suggested that watchers wear long pants and long-sleeve shirts and that they bring along insect repellent, as the mosquitoes can be pecky on the beach at night.

A referendum on millage taxation to raise funds for bike paths in Jensen Beach, Rio and Hutchinson Island, received the support of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at the monthly board of director meeting Monday morning.

The resolution in support of holding the referendum in the November election for voters in Taxing District A was passed unanimously by the Chamber.

Though the Chamber director's resolution supports the idea of letting the voters decide the issue, the resolution does not take a stance in favor of or against it. The directors decided to wait until they know how much millage is proposed and how long the extra millage is to be imposed before taking a position.

"This will allow the people of the Jensen Beach area to vote on whether they want the bike paths or not," said Chamber president Dick Campbell.

The county attorney is researching the millage that would be required and the length of time it would be assessed.

Sewall's Point concerned over drug money

BY CATHIE FARAGO

It looks as though the Town of Sewall's Point may shift its financial holdings from The Jensen Beach Bank to the First National Bank of Stuart due to concern by some of the town commissioners of the alleged laundering of drug money by Southeast First National of Miami.

The Jensen Bank is a part of that holding company and Mayor Ed Gluckler doesn't want any part of it. According to Gluckler, First National of Stuart is the only remaining institution left in the area, and therefore may well be the recipient of approximately $250,000 in town funds.

The intent is to withdraw checking and savings accounts immediately with the remainder of funds left in certificates of deposit pulled as they become due.

Obviously, members of the Jensen Beach Bank maintain a slightly different outlook. Although bank president Ron Mitchell was out of town and therefore unavailable for comment, sources noted that he had personally contacted commissioners asking them to table the matter at the Wednesday, June 25, meeting until his return. According to Gluckler, that hope is not a probability.

One Jensen Bank member reflected other's viewpoints when he argued that while state rules dictate recording the origin of funds deposited over the amount of $10,000, it is literally impossible to determine the credibility of sources tangled in the realms of paperwork. Additionally, some felt that while the possibility of drug money did exist, that it was more than likely an inherent problem that existed in the larger banks where large sums of money were deposited through channels that to date, didn't have stringent enough controls. Not again, the problem lay in system rather than the individual, they argued.

Passed at the meeting was the proposal of ordinance No. 121 prohibiting the use of above ground storage tanks for gas, benzene naptha, and other volatile substances.

Presently, there are approximately 12 such storage tanks, within the city limits with discretes ranging from 1,800 to 10,000 gallons. It was also approved that any such existing units be grandfathered in.

Underground storage tanks with a maximum capacity of 270 gallons shall be permitted as long as they meet the fire regulations and provided they store only diesel and heater fuel.

Fire Chief Ed Smith of District 2 was present at the meeting with a film depicting some of the deadly hazards resulting from the tanks and urged commissioners to pass the ordinance when it comes up for vote Wednesday.

Gunman takes drugs at Bryan Pharmacy

Jensen Beach pharmacist Glenn Bryan was robbed at gunpoint of about $220 in cash and eight bottles of addicting drugs while Bryan was alone in his pharmacy last Thursday afternoon.

"He was very efficient. He was courteous and very much in control," Bryan said of the robber.

The gunman walked into the Bryan Pharmacy on Commercial Street in Jensen around 5:15 p.m. last Thursday and asked Bryan for some percodan to treat a cut. While Bryan was behind the prescription counter, the man pulled a 45 caliber automatic pistol on him and said, "Do as I tell you. Hand over your Class II drugs."

Sheriff's officials report the man got eight bottles of drugs and took about $220 in cash from the register. Bryan said some hypodermic needles may also be missing.

Before leaving, the robber tied Bryan's hands with an Ace bandage. "When I realized I was alone, I tried to get the bandage loose. It only took about 20 to 30 seconds to get it off," Bryan said. He was not injured.

Bryan said the drugs taken "are the addicting kind, they're highly controlled." The stolen drugs include a bottle of quaaludes, a bottle of percodan, and six bottles of two other types of drugs.

The robber was described as a white man about 30 years old, six feet tall, and weighing about 190 pounds. He had medium length, dirty blond, curly hair with a well-trimmed mustache. He wore light colored pants and a light colored shirt.

The robbery only took two to three minutes from start to finish, and it is not known whether the man fled on foot or in a vehicle.

Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Mihalik and Detective Richard Atchison are investigating the case.

Stereo concert series to feature all-requests

The first all-request program in the Stereo Concert Hall series of recorded classical music will be presented at 3:30 pm Sunday, June 15, at the Environmental Studies Center, 2900 NE Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach.

Opening the concert will be what is probably the most popular piece of classical music in the repertory, Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite." It will be performed by Robert Sharples and the London Festival Orchestra.

Violinist Ruggiero Ricci next occupies the "virtuoso spot" as he performs the lyrical "Violin Concerto No. 1" by Max Bruch, accompanied by the London Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Pierino Gamba.

The final work in the 90-minutes concert will be Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," performed by George Szell and the Cleveland Orchestra.

The series is presented on alternate Sunday afternoons under the sponsorship of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. An all-American concept, featuring music of Samuel Barber, Aaron Copland and George Gershwin, is planned for June 29 in celebration of Independence Day.

The concert series is free. All music lovers are invited to attend and join in discussion of the music.

Snorkle Class soon begins

An advanced snorkling course will be offered on Tuesday nights from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at Martin County High School. This course is designed for the general public to create interest in the underwater environment, to promote safety in aquatic activities and as a physical conditioning program. This will also be an excellent pretraining program for anyone interested in scuba diving. Prerequisites for this course is minimum age of 12 and good swimming skills. Students should provide their own mask, fins, and snorkle. The class will meet for four weeks with one field trip in open water.

To pre register for this class, please call Adult & Community Education, 287-6400, ext. 130, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

THERE WAS NO WILL.

If you should die tomorrow without a will, who would raise your children? The decision would be up to the court. Guardianship proceedings are costly, and the one you had in mind may not be the one caring for your surviving children.

Make an appointment with your lawyer. He'll draw up a will that makes sure your children and estate are properly cared for.

If you have one, have it reviewed regularly as your circumstances change.

Are you a newcomer to Florida? Check with a local attorney for possible required changes in your will.

Samaritans Calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

Bids were opened on new ambulances June 4, at the regular monthly meeting of the Samaritans. Many interesting matters were discussed at the meeting. The first was an interview with two salesmen from ambulance companies regarding the purchase of a new vehicle. Possible two new ambulances will be bought if financially possible.

The vehicles will be suitable for use now as well as when they convert to advanced life support in possibly two or three years.

Before making any decision regarding buying vehicles, a committee of four, one from the squad will be traveling to the headquarters of the ambulance factory and sales in Orlando within a week to look over and select the most suitable vehicles for use and accommodation since our garage was built for van type vehicles.

At the same meeting, the Samaritans voted unanimously to support Florida Institute of Technology in efforts to establish a local training class for Emergency Technicians at the college. This would allow the Samaritans easy access for training their E.M.T. applicants and also avoid a lot of red tape and long distance driving into other counties to get the course.

It is possible that F.I.T., if given time, will also establish a paramedic class. This too would be a great step forward for people to staff the advanced life support vehicles.

The Samaritans voted also to work toward advanced life support by the end of 1982.

We are happy to report we have four new members who read of our need in a recent issue of the Mirror. They are: Jackie Nelson, Doris I. Heureux, Gene Robinson, and Paul Achrun. Welcome aboard, so nice to have you with us.

Three of our young men students from F.I.T., having graduated are leaving us. These young men who gave willingly and cheerfully of their talent and time for over two years, were perfect examples of a Samaritan, giving their best for people in an area where they only came to get education to better their future. They gave so much of themselves for folks in need of help and ambulance service. They were Greg Limberis, Steve Gassen, and Ishmael Rosario. Thank you fellows and may you keep well and succeed greatly in your chosen profession. We will miss you, so please don't forget us.

A great big "Thank You" to Rio Civic Club and the V.F.W. Bingo Club for their generous donations to the Samaritans given recently. We have already bought two new stair chairs with part of the money. We now have a chair for each vehicle, and they are such a help in getting patients from buildings two or more stories high.

YOUR ATTENTION PLEASE

The Samaritans Loan Cupboard has reached an all time low in supplies. We would very much like any who have borrowed, wheel chairs, walkers, canes, or anything of ours which has been borrowed, but not returned, to be brought back by the end of June or sooner if possible. If for any reason you have such an article, but are not able to return it yourselves, please let us know by calling the officer of the Loan Cupboard either at his home, 334-7289 or at our building, 334-8818.

There are people in need today of what someone borrowed some time ago. Please consider them.

If you have any article to dispose of such as mentioned above, it would be of service to us and to the community if you donate it to us.

REGARDING TRANSPORTS

We are happy to transport people in our area who need ambulance service to or from the hospital, or vice versa, and also take transports to other medical services if not too far distant. However we must have as much advanced notice about these transports as possible. Call the day before the transport is to take place, or just as soon as you possibly can.

The main rig can only take emergencies, so we have to call people who are not on main rig. In other words, someone who is having a day off. Since we all have errands to do, it almost is impossible to get two people on short notice. For transport service, call Day Supervisor 334-5094 or 334-1206, President Bailey.

Thank you for remembering and cooperating.

Four officers were appointed by Pres. Bailey at this time, each to serve in office till the end of 1980.

Date Supervisor — Vivian Heaslip.
Assistant Day Supervisor — Joan Schlemmer. Night Supervisor — Gary Gabriel and Membership Chairlady — Christine Gabriel.

Rio home damaged with lighter

Fire destroyed a substantial portion of a home in Rio last week when a four year-old girl played with a cigarette lighter and started the blaze.

Rio Fire Chief Bill Gass said the blaze occurred shortly before 10:30 a.m. last Thursday at a home owned by Mike Lowry, but occupied by Ed and Irene Roth, two children, and Roth's mother.

The home, at 11 Kay Drive, was just a short distance from the fire station and firemen were on the scene in about two minutes. However, Gass said by the time they got there, fire was already coming out of a bedroom window.

Gass said the young girl was attempting to burn the frayed ends off some jeans when the fire started. The flames gutted the bedroom, doing extensive damage to the roof and rafters and causing smoke damage throughout the house. However, Gass said quick action by the firemen kept the blaze from claiming the entire home.

Roth's mother, Gladys Roth, 68, suffered a heart attack in the wake of the fire and was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital. Ironically, the Roths were packing clothes to go to Mrs. Roth's mother's home in Palm City to care for her, as she had recently had a heart attack, Gass said.

The family lost all of their clothing in the fire, and an appeal has been made for donations of clothing. Gass said Monday that some clothes had been donated for the parents, but that more is needed, and especially clothes for the four year old girl and an eight year old boy.

Guinness or not, FIT claims record

Hustles of champagne were popped on last Friday morning as Doug Reinhart and Bob Artley celebrated the past of the former Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology.

The champagne was provided to help the two celebrate achievement of a rather soggy world record — continuous underwater backgammon competition for 168 hours.

Reinhart and Artley didn't spend all that time underwater themselves. But they were the two who organized the underwater backgammon games, so they had the honor of playing the last hour of a full week's play.

The idea for the feat came to them when they read about two dive clubs in California who had played backgammon underwater for 84 hours.

Originally the goal was to play for 72 hours. But after they learned on their third day of play that students at Virginia Polytechnic Institute were claiming a record of 101 hours of underwater backgammon, they decided to continue the games for a full week — 168 hours.

More than 300 FIT students donned scuba gear during the week to take part in the games, with most playing for intervals of an hour at a time. At night, lights were trained on the table at the bottom of the pool, and students — Artley's daughter, Kelly, among them — would take their turns.

We had hoped to get this listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, but we called them and they said they [illegible] Still, so far as we know, it would record," Artley [illegible] [illegible] the dice were [illegible] the bottoms of the playing pieces so they wouldn't get washed around on the board, and originally a pair of dice were placed inside a sealed mason jar. We found the dice would pollute the water though, so we didn't need the jar," Reinhart said. One [illegible] topped, but the dice moved [illegible] motion though, and that some control could be exerted over what numbers would come up by a move [illegible] of the hand.

Coordinating the effort proved to be the hardest part of the feat, Reinhart said. "The time really flew under water, but seemed to drag out longer up here," he noted.

Artley added that had final exams not been coming up, there seemed to be enough interest that the games could have gone on half the summer. We had people begging to get turns to play, even in the early morning hours.

Though students said they communicated well with hand signals and with slates to write messages on, there is one thing that could have brought the games to a halt had they decided to play much longer. The dice dot on the red die was starting to wear off, one of the students commented.

JIM LOVE AND CHARLES ADELSECK of A to Z Realty review the housing plans that will be used when their construction begins in Port St. Lucie this fall. Both maintain high expectations for the growth of the area as well as their new project. (Photo by Cathie Faragol

PSL builders project growth

Port St. Lucie is a rapidly growing urban area that once claimed only a population of 300 people.

Since 1970, the 150,000 lots available from General Development Corporation have fast been selling, leaving the inevitable outcome that someday the city will have an impact of considerable magnitude on the surrounding areas.

According to Jim Love, a local realtor, the influx of people are migrating not only from the north, where bad weather and unemployment plague thousands, but from the Miami region as well. Already congested by too many people and too little planning, they see Port St. Lucie as a well thought out refuge of fine homes and attractive settings.

Love who has had his A to Z Realty firm in Port St. Lucie for a number of years, realizes that with the demand for property there will also be a demand for mid priced homes. It is his intention to fill that continuing need.

His new project, called Libra Development Co., is an aim to capture part of that market by constructing what he calls "decent housing at a fair price." He and his general manager, Charles Adelseck, are taking a dime store approach to housing by creating smaller profit margins but larger referrals.

The approach can be taken partically because of the consistency of the homes designed by Love. All variations on a theme, additions or deletions can be made without changing the base structure, and, subsequently, the basic price. Although the homes boast a modest price range of $39,900 to $50,000, both the layout and design are as well planned and thought out as the city itself.

These two entrepreneurs bring a list of impressive credentials to their newly formed company. Adelseck is an engineer and has had his own construction company for some time. Love credits his entrance to the field through the bad experience he had when he tried to purchase a house in 1966. From that point, he changed employment from Grumman to General Development Corporation, where he worked as a closer for a number of years until he started A to Z Realty in 1975.

Love's initial experience in housing led him not only into a career of real estate but formed an attitude that he now maintains rigidly. It is his belief that if people are offered good terms on a home and it is sold with a "not forget them policy," the repeat business and good will created will draw more customers than any campaign advertising. This attitude, combined with unwasted time and materials used in construction, result in a viable alternative to already spiraling housing prices.

Although Love and Adelseck have been spending considerable time and effort in order to properly gear up for their fall construction date, they are also in the process of building up the existing firm. Their intent is to hire enough good sales people in the office so that with the thide of an office manager, not only the residential but commercial market can be competently reached.

Love is a man of facts and figures as well as considerable foresight. The many future residents of Port St. Lucie who will one day call his blueprint's home will never know that his unfortunate initiation to real estate was their eventual gain.

Beach arrests

More and more the sheriff's partment is reacting to blic dismay over vandalism d drunken rowdyness at the nsen Beach public beach. ore patrols and more arrests sulted from the wanton struction of the rest room cilities there recently.

It seems that there should be me rationale that might be ven to those who use the ach for parties. It could be, reat this place as you would ur home.

For those who enjoy the ach, but do not participate in vandalism, we offer the advice given years ago by the county commissioner. "If I was in a group of people who enjoyed each other's company and someone endangered our right to meet there, I would make certain that that someone didn't endanger our rights again."

It is not vigilante action just good common sense.

At one time there were no laws curbing parties on the beach. The law came because of abuse of the rights of others.

Research center

The kickoff of the turtle itch season comes with a lease of the baby green rtles that have been grown to ear in age so that they will e a better chance of rival in the ocean.

And the turtle watch season minds the residents of the a that Jensen Beach has the emost research center in dies of the sea turtles.

ince 1955, Ross Witham has nded the Department of tural Resources Marine search Laboratory in Jen Beach. His work has vealed many secrets in the cycle of sea turtles, and s done much to protect the dangered species and learn patterns of migration and owth of the loggerhead, een and trunkback turtles. Martin County has given the boratory rent-free housing on the Jensen Causeway, and the Martin County Historical Society has helped with tank space to raise the hatchlings.

Perhaps it is time to begin giving serious thought to a permanent location for the laboratory, with expanded facilities to insure the program its permanence in the community and continuation of its good works.

We hope that local state representatives look into the establishment of permanent research laboratory facilities in Jensen Beach, and that they encourage the Department of Natural Resources to expand its program here.

The work is important, and Jensen Beach, where 99 percent of all sea turtles nest, is the place to keep that work going.

Delaying the buffer

The St. Lucie County commission has again delayed consideration of a buffer zone to protect the environmentally sensitive North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

The buffer has been the topic of consideration for the past three years. Port St. Lucie's City Council passed a fifteen-foot buffer ordinance in 1978.

Why has the buffer been delayed for so long? This time the delay was asked because the county attorney needed more details on enforcement. One would think that three years was enough time for the county commission to get all the facts on a fifteen-foot strip of land.

Oh, it's nice to be a father
On this fifteenth day of June,
When the sun light on the river
Follows dawn and waning moon.

Then it's nice to be a father,
Regardless of the age
Of the youngsters in the family,
As they grow to reach life's stage.

Yes, it's nice to be a father,
With the mother of the clan,
To watch her train the growing broods,
Sure' it's nice to be a man.

Grandmas are like that

This grandmother racket can be downright fun. If applied in small doses. Try go visiting, make your mark, and rule on your score, or next of it, for the rest of the year. It's a practically painless process by which you can make or break yourself with the upcoming generation in one fell swoop and with practically no effort at all on your part.

I have just returned from meeting her "the first time, a very small pigeonage who I'm quite sure I will continue to care how I score with. Candy, at three, is an impetuous past of prettiness wrapped around an iron will. There is no doubt in her mind that the world exists for the exclusive use of Candy Latham, and she makes no bones about letting her loyal subjects know where they stand.

I had already met (at a much younger age) her older sister Christie, who, God bless her, gave me the welcome of an old friend and compatriot when she met me at the airport. Christie, at eight, is a little woman with all the composure of a Kathryn Hepburn and the open arms of a Mother Machree. She is also a very bright package of a girl, unwrapping top grade brains with her charms.

With these two, it was easy to get over the trauma of being called grandma.

With my first set of granddaughters, now in their 20s, I never quite recovered from the shock. With them, I was "Grandma Sally," as opposed to the other grandma who always did everything grandmas were supposed to do. Grandma Grant was the one with the biggest presents at Christmas time and birthdays. Grandma Grant built a swimming pool in her back yard just for the grandchildren. She could do no wrong.

Grandma Sally was the mean grandma. When she came to visit, she made kids behave, and when they didn't, Grandma S. was not averse to swift cuffs on the behind. This not only outraged their dignity, it tore down all their configurations of how grandmothers should react. No law-abiding grandmother spanks kids, no matter how bratty they are.

But we had our good times, too. Most of them in conversation. One Sunday the housekeeper had taken April and Cleo to a Baptist Sunday School while I attended services at the Episcopal Church. As we gathered for Sunday dinner Cleo, then seven, asked me where I had gone to church. I told her.

I could see she was puzzled about something, so I went on to explain. "It's like the Smiths and the Browns and the Joneses all living in the same town for the same reasons, but each having a family of its own to live with and eat together and worship together." I told her. "They all believe in the same thing, but like to express that belief in different ways."

Cleo thought a minute.

"Yes, I do," she said. "Our house keeper has told us about the Catholics and the Presbyterians. Why, she says that out in California they even have a church of the Devil."

Another small pause.

"I guess they figure if they can't fight him they might as well join him."

It took me a while to recover from that bit of logic.

But it proves that small minds have ever thus run deep.

And it was proved again during my visit to Tennessee, which was wearing its most beautiful and moist May greenery. (So moist that it rained every day during my visit, even on the Saturday I was to have gone sailing with old friends the DeCampas.)

One afternoon, as son Bruce and Christie were taking me to fulfill a dinner date across the hilly, woodsy crest of Oak Ridge, I was trying to identify many of the trees, all of which had grown to immense proportions since my previous sojourn in the Atomic City.

Amid the luxurious greens, I spotted one perky little tree with a full head of deep red leaves.

I wonder what that one is, I asked Bruce.

He didn't know, but Cindy came up with the perfect answer.

"Maybe it got stuck in autumn, and couldn't get out," she theorized. I like that one so well I'd rather not know the right answer.

SOME LIGHT LINES

With the gasoline crunch, more people are walking. These are the times that try men's soles.

Having one for the road never seems to do it much good.

Anybody who thinks practice makes perfect probably doesn't bet on the horses.

"Are there many big fish in this part of the county?", questioned the tourist. "Many big fish!, Sir", the native assured him. "We don't allow boys and small men around here to bait a hook unless they're tied to a tree."

A young couple down the road got rid of their water bed. They felt they were drifting apart.

"Dad, what's a person called who puts you in contact with the spirit world?" "A bartender, my boy."

Just plain blackmail

There was a time when the small developers in Martin County were so bogged down by public hearings and restrictions on the use of their lands that many either went belly up or somewhere else to invest their money.

It got so bad that the only county well known in financial circles was Martin and financial advisors would look shocked and say, "Good grief, don't go there."

Look around, bunky. That time is here again. Only this time the investor seems to be Martin Downs, who, with millions already in the ground, cannot walk away, cannot give up an already substantial investment in the community.

The development of regional impact study just released last week can be determined to cost the average home buyer in Martin Downs about a thousand bucks, a heavy price to pay for impact in Palm City.

It is unfair, unfair to the developer and to the home buyer.

No one in Palm City is paying a pro rata share of the impact cost of development. Hey! You go in town being asked to pay that pro rata share. Just Martin Downs.

The same is true throughout Martin County. No developer is being asked to pay a pro rata share of impact on building one home, or ten homes, or 100 homes. "Just get the big guy," is what the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council seems to be saying.

With tens of thousands of acres of land in the area west of the St. Lucie River, Martin Downs, with 2,400 acres to develop, is being asked to pay 50 percent of the cost of four taping the Palm City Bridge. General Development Corporation owns more land in western Martin County than Martin Downs. What will happen when it decides to develop its 4,000 acres. Will GDC reimburse Martin Downs a percentage? Or, will GDC be forced into the same kind of developmental blackmail that will add cost to its homes?

Of all the wildest recommendations made by the staff of the RPC, the one asking Martin Downs to pay 25 percent of the cost of improving Monterey Road from the east end of the Palm City Bridge to SR 76. That is over on the Stuart side of the bridge, not even in Palm City.

No one in Hutchinson Island has agreed to improve the overloaded approaches to the east and west of the Jensen Beach Bridge, but then they only have a few units as compared to the 5,500 homes that Martin Downs will build.

There are a total of fifteen different recommendations made in the DRI on Martin Downs. The company answered the report in a press conference on Monday. The company answer is to be delivered to the Treasure Coast RPC at a meeting Thursday, June 12.

Martin Downs has agreed to every point in the request, all sixteen. Martin Downs wants to get the show on the road, and is trying to resolve all objections.

But, it is unfair to put a developer in such a position. It is unfair to make that developer charge his customers an impact fee when smaller builders are not paying it.

We have favored impact fees in the past and still do. However, we favor impact fees leveled uniformly on everyone, the small and large developers.

If the impact fee was leveled on all, in a uniform manner, all newcomers to Martin County would pick up a proportional share of the total impact of growth.

The owners of Martin Downs admit that they want to pay their share of the impact of their development on the community. They estimate that the cost of everything being asked by the RPC will amount to $7,191,500. That amount would increase with inflation.

Until the Martin County Commission establishes an equitable formula for impact, and assesses impact fees on all developers, small and large, the DRI of the Treasure Coast RPC is nothing more than blackmail, a "protection" racket that allows the big guys to stay in business by paying through the nose.

Only, the RPC members do not wear black coats and smoke cigars.

Making winners of losers

Former Senator Edward Kennedy isn't giving up the fight.

According to the delegate counts made by the news media President Jimmy Carter has more than enough pledged delegates to win the Democratic nomination for President.

Kennedy concedes this is true. Yet he says he'll keep campaigning, supposedly in hopes of getting delegates committed to Carter to change their minds and nominate him.

Many folks seem to feel Kennedy hasn't got much of a chance, and that by continuing his campaign he'll only succeed in splitting the Democratic Party and giving Reagan a boost toward election as our next President.

Personally, I'd like to see Kennedy throw in the towel. In the first place, I don't like or trust the man, and in the second place, I don't want Ronald Reagan as President.

I don't want Carter as president anymore either, but I would rather see a repeat performance by him than see Kennedy or Reagan in the White House. As for John Anderson, I just don't know enough about him yet to make a judgment. But, since he's a third-party candidate with little chance of winning the election, let's discount him for now, and look at what Kennedy's persistence in campaigning is doing.

Shortly before the "Super Tuesday" primaries last week Kennedy called for a debate with Carter and said if there was a debate, he'd abide by the results of the eight Democratic primaries on Tuesday.

It was a pathetically smart thing to do, since it was pretty much a foregone conclusion that even if Carter lost the Tuesday primaries, he'd still pick up enough delegates to assure nomination. So Kennedy had very little to lose by making the challenge.

But the challenge imposed another thing: In effect, Kennedy was saying that the folks who went to the polls in the primaries leading up to the Super Tuesday primaries didn't count. And, when Kennedy decided to let the final primaries be the deciding factor, he was in pretty good standing in the polls of how voters would cast ballots in those primaries.

That's sort of like a baseball team, behind 9 to 5 in the bottom on the ninth inning, but with bases loaded with no outs, declaring that the first eight innings don't count.

And, his decision after the final primaries to continue the campaign is akin to a ball team saying let us pick the innings we contested our opponents in as the only ones to count, and declare ourselves the winner.

The way politics has invaded the world of baseball, it's not too unconceivable that if Kennedy does win the nomination, ball teams will start asking for a reconsideration of their scores.

I can just see it now. The Atlanta Braves, familiar inhabitants of the cellar in baseball standings, could propell themselves to the top of the standings by declaring themselves winners of any games in which they ever held the lead. On second thought, I doubt if the Braves could come up with enough games in which they had even a momentary lead to do any changing of the standings. But, given a team with a bit more of a mediocre record than the Braves, some real winners could be made of losers.

And, of course, the lawyers could join the bandwagon. They could bring class-action suits against the horse and dog tracks, the jai-alai frontons, and other gambling houses, demanding that the holders of losing tickets be paid as winners, provided, of course, that at any time during the contests, the choice of the losing bettors was in the lead.

By using the same logic, the Confederate states could claim to have won the Civil War, based on their early successes in that war. And, the Japanese and Germans could become winners of World War II.

Of course, I'm carrying this thing too far—just as Kennedy is.

The political process we go through to nominate a presidential candidate is far too long to begin with. In Canada and England, as well as many other nations, the citizens don't have to suffer through months of primaries before a new leader is picked. We do. But if we must suffer through it, we ought to at least be able to rely on having the results of the process stand up.

If Kennedy doesn't like the rules of the game he's in, perhaps he should take Anderson's lead and change the game, rather than the rules of the one he's in.

Crackdown on beaches nets several arrests

A crackdown on consumption of alcohol on public beaches netted five arrests on Jensen Beach over the weekend, with seven others taken into custody at other area public facilities.

The intensification of surveillance along the beaches resulted from a rash of vandalism during recent weeks, in which public restrooms were destroyed, and railings broken. The hue and cry from protesting citizens set the highway patrol into action, pinpointing greater surveillance on the popular gathering places.

The intensification of law enforcement is aimed at persons who are found using alcoholic beverages on the beaches after 7 p.m., and against those consuming beverages from glass containers, both spelled out in the law.

The first arrests made after the 7 p.m. ruling were: Byrnall Muse Haley of Fort Pierce; Joseph John Ploch Jr., also of Fort Pierce; Karen Sandra Daugerfield, Fort Pierce; Jeffrey Stack, Fort Pierce, and Robert Sauve Jr., of Jensen Beach. All were in their early 20s.

They were taken to the Martin County jail, where they each posted a $52 bond.

Two men were later arrested at Palm City Ball Park, after they were discovered trying to conceal said beers.

An hour later, four others were arrested at Stuart Beach on the same charge. The arrested were from Stuart and Palm City.

While none of the weekend arrests involved vandalism, Asst. State Atty. Richard Kibbey says he believes the crackdown will lead to a curb in acts of vandalism along the beaches. Kibbey has joined with lifeguard director Jack Cammack in requesting additional patrols along the beaches and fuller enforcement of existing laws.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor,

I would like to thank Bob Fryer for his article about my efforts on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce to secure easements along Indian River Drive for a bike path-sidewalk.

I would only like to correct Bob's headline. I see this project, not as a "one-woman crusade" at all, but as a community crusade. I have met no one who is not in favor of the concept of a bike path. In fact, most residents I've talked with seem to feel it is long-overdue.

Also, I'd like to thank my good neighbor, Carol Stoddard, for looking after my child. She deserves equal credit for anything WE manage to accomplish.

Sincerely,
Susan Sullivan

Unstructured summer program at Langford

It's summertime, and for kids in the Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island area, that means a wide choice of recreational activities.

In last week's issue of The Mirror, many of the activities available locally were listed. However because the directors of the recreational program at Langford Park had not yet arrived in town, little mention of the program there was given.

Directors at the park this year are Mike and Jane Bocchino and Janet Henderson. From now through the first of second week in August, with the exception of the Fourth of July, they'll be overseeing the summer recreation program at the park.

"It's a very unstructured program. I have a schedule of activities for each day, but it depends on the kids. If they're enjoying an activity, we might do it longer, and if they are quickly bored, we'll switch to something else," Mike Bocchino said.

The program is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to children five to 14 years old from the Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island area. And, best of all, it's free.

"During the program, we'll play softball, shuffleball, soccer, basketball, touch football, tennis, racketball, horseshoes, kickball, and several other sports. We'll try to have as many field trips as we can line up, and once a week we'll go to the pool at Martin County High School," Bocchino said.

He added that trips to the House of Refuge and Elliott Museum, to a local skating rink, and to the bowling lanes are also planned, provided transportation can be lined up.

Additionally, Jane Bocchino and Janet Henderson will conduct an arts and crafts program.

Kids are under the supervision of the program directors while they are at the park, but they are not required to stay all day. "They can come every day, or just a few, and they can leave anytime during the day they want. We do require that they check in and check out though," Bocchino said.

When they can be obtained, there will be movies shown. These, plus indoor arts and crafts activities, are planned so the kids can escape the hot summer sun during portions of the day.

If the kids are planning to stay through the lunch hour, they are to bring their own lunches.

Bocchino said he had conducted the recreation program at Langford Park in 1977 and 1978. He has a degree in physical education at Florida State University, and his wife has a degree in childhood education from FSU.

The park is located on SR 707 in Jensen, and children may register for the program any day it's going on.

Paul Budd dies in Canon City

Former Jensen Beach resident Paul Budd, 41, was found dead at his home in Canon City, Colorado on May 31.

He died of a single gunshot wound to his head and a revolver was found nearby.

A Canon City detective has reportedly speculated that the death was a suicide, but said the investigation was not concluded.

Budd was once assistant clerk of the circuit court in Martin County and ran unsuccessfully for the clerk's post. He was president of the Stuart-Jensen Jaycees and was instrumental in spearheading a fund drive for local resident Ron Johnston, who was suffering from kidney failure. Last Christmas Budd and his wife, Kathy, returned for a visit to the Jensen area, and he was featured in a story about the fund drive to save Johnston's life.

During the time they lived here, Budd's wife worked as a nurse at Martin Memorial Hospital. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Kim, 18, and Lisa, 15. An educational fund has been established for the daughters in care of Fremont National Bank, 532 Main St., Canon City, Colorado, 81212.

Budd and his family moved to Canon City several years ago, where Budd was in the real estate business.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

One of the most common questions people ask themselves is when do I really need to consult a doctor for my back ache?

The following check list represents a good guideline:

When the backache persists or worsens instead of getting better.

When you have more than one painful attack in a year.

When it doesn't improve with a day of rest.

When you have numbness or tingling in your arm or leg.

When your backaches increase in frequency or severity.

When you have other symtoms with your backache, such as urinary problems, swelling or fever.

When pain interferes with your sleeping.

When you are injured at work.

When you are involved in an automobile accident, or other accident.

Kenny builds 25-foot dory for House of Refuge Museum

One step, the proverb says, is the beginning of a great journey, and the first step has been taken on a project that will end when a small boat takes to the water off the Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge sometime within the next couple of months.

The boat, a 25-foot clinker-built double-ended dory, is the final item in the Martin County Historical Society's restoration of the 1875 landmark on Hutchinson Island.

Patrick J. Kenny, who started building small boats, then larger ones, as a lad in his grandfather's Prince Edward Island boatyard, has made the pattern for the dory from plans borrowed through the interest of the Historic Seaport in Connecticut. The lands of wood used a hundred years ago are not available now (partly because of scarcity and partly because of excessive cost), but this boat will have a laminated oak and mahogany keel, laminated mahogany stem and stern posts, and the planking will be western white cedar.

The 'timbers' (ribs), risers, thwarts, floor, gunwhale, floors, and such are to be oak. The moulds (forms) are made from shop surplus materials, and represent the shapes of several cross sections of the boat. They are erected, temporarily, on, and at right angles, to the keel.

A clinker boat is planked to the interior of the moulds, the timbers or ribs being installed after the planking is completed. The common term of "clinker building" is derived from the old English word 'clenche' — which describes the type of nail used for fastening the overlapped planking. Ironically, the actual start was delayed several weeks while Kenny waited for copper nails to be shipped to him in Lincolnville, Maine, as none were to be had closer. Meanwhile, in the northeast end of the Elliott Museum's work room, stocks were set and spaced for the keel to be laid, and the stem and stern posts were fastened to it.

The dory is patterned after the type of boats used years ago as surf boats for rescuing sailors.

The House of Refuge, commissioned in 1875, is one of 10 such structures that the U.S. Life Saving Service erected from time to time along the coast of the Atlantic coast to provide shelter for shipwrecked sailors. The one on Hutchinson Island is the only House of Refuge still standing and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. As a Bicentennial project, the House of Refuge was restored to its original design.

Kenny used to spend a lot of time as a child with his grandfather, who fished off Prince Edward Island in the summers and built boats in the winters. "He was always helpful. Instead of telling me to get out of his hair, he would take time to explain what he was doing and why and would let me do little jobs for him. As I got older, he let me do more," Kenny said.

Kenny, who is 68 but acts as though he's 30 years younger, said until World War II, he spent his time fishing and building boats in Prince Edward Island. He noted that in those days, cod sold for half a cent a pound, lobster for three and a half cents a pound, and a boat like the one he is building now would have cost about $150, but now is projected to cost $5,000. And that's with Kenny accepting far less than union wages for hand building the boat. He said if it were contracted for at union wages, it could cost $4,000 to $9,000.

Following World War II Kenny was a building contractor in Ottawa, then moved to Fort Pierce 17 years ago.

The work on the boat has taken about a month so far, but some of that time was spent just preparing a work area. The keel has been laid and on Monday the process of steam heating planks for the boat began. Kenny made the steam heating device, and through the process, he will be able to bend the planks to their proper shape.

When the boat is completed, a special ceremony will be conducted for its launching in the surf off the House of Refuge. "We hope to have about 200 boats out in the ocean for the ceremony," commented Janet Hutchinson, director of the Martin County Historical Society.

Kenny was familiar figure around the Elliott Museum for months, serving as an able handyman when needed. He is especially proud of the tall ship's mast at the House of Refuge. He built it by hand for the House of Refuge restoration project and says it got its true test when it withstood Hurricane David last September.

Kenny is also an accomplished painter and has had solo-man shows of his art.

In addition to his carpentry talents, work at the Elliott Museum

PAT KENNY uses an old plane to shave some wood to the correct dimension for the 25 foot dory he is building at the Elliott Museum. Kenny learned boatbuilding from his grandfather and said the plane is like one his granddad used. "He never used the metal ones," Kenny quipped. The boat is being patterned after the type used to rescue shipwrecked sailors from the surf years ago. Once completed, it will be launched in a special ceremony, then put on display at the House of Refuge. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Donations needed to send children to camp

A good many needy youngsters whose lives would be enriched by such an experience won't have the privilege of attending Salvation Army camp this year unless there is a more generous response from the community to enable them to go, according to Lt Rick Hikles, commander of the St Lucie-Martin County S.A. unit.

Thus far, the response has been far below expectations, moneys use.

It is hoped, Lt Mikles said, to send the first group of boys and girls to camp, some 15 or 20, on July 7, and a total of 50 to 60 at intervals during the summer. But there will have to be a far more liberal response on the part of friends of the Salvation Army and of the needy youngsters if this goal is attained.

The cost is $50 per youngster for the week's camp attendance, which includes transportation both ways, plus all other costs — and a glorious time on the part of the campers.

The Salvation Army camp, Camp Keystone, is located a few miles west of Starke in a beautiful setting with motel-type living facilities. The week's program includes various recreational and inspirational features suitable for development of the youngsters, plus good food and close supervision of all activities.

Checks or cash to apply to the cost of assuring some worthy youngster of a chance to attend the camp may be sent to the Salvation Army, P.O. Box 2131, Fort Pierce, or be left at the S.A. office at 705 Orange Avenue. All donations, of course, are tax deductible.

"We are greatly concerned," said Lt Mikles that no worthy youngster may be denied the wonderful experience of being able to attend our Salvation Army camp, and we are counting on friends of the Salvation Army and of the youngsters to assure that this shall not be the case."

Meanwhile, parents who would like their youngsters to attend camp should contact the Salvation Army office immediately to receive applications and provide information.

The ages are from 7 through 12 and there is no restriction as to race, creed or otherwise.

A new mini-bus has arrived

Lois Williams, Pres. MCCA (Martin County Council on Aging) announced at the May meeting, that their new Dodge Mini-Bus had arrived and was being fitted for a chair lift and as soon as ready, it would replace the Ol' Blue Bus. Also, it was announced that there were enough funds left from the very generous bus donations to get a replacement Courtesy Car.

It was reported that next year's budgets had been approved, the committee can take a summer vacation until Thursday, Sept 4, even though genial George Jacobi, executive director, had to resign for personal reasons. However, the office will be open as usual for all services. Tel 288-2842.

The seniors are again gratified in find another of their important, much discussed items being given an award by "Bells-in High Places". This time the Electronic Industry came up with a device that will make it easier and safer for folks to use Home Health Care Services. It is a personal assistance summoning gadget.

There was a seminar at the Elks Club June 3, on three kinds of these summoning devices. Personal Protector, Medical Alert and Life Line. The actual cost of buying or leasing them wasn't discussed, but it was hinted that the buying costs would be around $350. However, some funding is expected as it will help keep folks out of expensive institutions.

They are all similar, in that there is a small unit that can be hand held or worn on a chain around the neck and when the panic button is pressed, help will be summoned immediately. Therefore the frail elderly living along can be assured that attention is only minutes away. That assurance will allow many to take advantage of the more effective Home Health Care instead of being put away in debilitating and very expensive convalescent centers.

Some systems are sophisticated, being able to summon police, fire dept, ambulance, a neighbor, a relative, etc. Also, there is a complete medical history on tap. They can work through Crisis Line. Call 911, a computer central hospital or police, whichever is most efficient for the community. Even though they estimate that only 1 100th of a percent of the population would be served, it is believed that more will be heard about these amazing gadgets. More info tel 334-7756.

Skip Rafalis, Washington Report: May 1980 saying Congress should act now curbing inflation by cutting expenses got Phil the record keeping award for reminisce regards to a letter sent to "Skip" Nov. 3, 1973 and his reply of Feb. 11, 1974, saying Congress would get busy.

Phil said the 1973 letter was needling Congress on being distracted by the Watergate Circus", when they should be doing something about the rampant inflation (8.8 percent) and the energy crisis (gas 38 cents). Saying that if they didn't get on the ball, there would be runaway inflation and a serious gas shortage. The letter also, pointed out 14 predictions by authorities (Rocks & Runyon); two of which were, in 1980 there would be a bad recession and Russia would assume world leadership (Came true, hum?).

Midge, the senior letter writer, piped up quickly, "Again the seniors were so very right, but as they are thought of as has-beens, no attention was paid to their suggestions. I'm again going to write and tell them, 'we do know something'," and turning to the rest of the group, continues, "who else will write, remember it's election year."

CHAPTER EVENTS

Bulletin preparation Thurs. June 6 at Mildred Capanna's (Chr. Mgr.) went like clock work, as 30 hands made light work of getting the bulletins ready for mailing. The following, helped: Boyd Smith (Editor), Al Tucker (Bus. Mgr.), Ethel Tucker, Bill Capanna, Mel DeBerry, Mel Burden), Ernie Curwen, V. Harrison, Vera King, Helen Lauchley, Grace Donaghy. There will be no July publication, so next session will be Thurs. Aug. 7.

While hands were busy, many chapter items were discussed, such as: Pearl Wyse (AARP) and Margaret Evans (Red Cross) are all ready to "kick-off" the "VIAL OF LIFE" project. But, need donations from some commercial outfit for labels, etc. There will be a label on the vial itself, a label on the refrigerator door, and a label on the window nearest the front door. Volunteers needed, call Pearl or Margret 334-5806.

Last week's item on car operating costs made it evident, that those ill' trips here and there are costly and it probably costs $3.00 or $3.05 to go to the library. So, the workers chewed about getting the Rockpochals to visit condos and mobile home parks or have an empty store branch in home-town. Interested AARPers should write Librarian and the County Commissioners.

Lyle and Cele-Burden of Natalie Estates are just back from an extended tour of Spain. Although, they had a great time, they couldn't help but mention that 36 degree nights and 70 degree days was just too cold for Floridians, especially when the hotel heating goes by the calendar instead of the temperature, with no heat after February.

Ken O'Dell, Director (Adm.) of the Health Planning Council, sent us a letter recently, saying he had a dues problem. Sent in a check last fall, cancelled check returned OK, but no acknowledgement, in fact just the opposite, now getting 'dunning letters' asking for payment. Well Ken, that does happen, too often, but a letter to Ms Adele Barham, mgr. Membership Dept., AARP 215 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach, Calif. 90801 will be the SNAFU straighten out.

Jochimson home: advocate for solar hot water heat

"We should have threatened military action, and we should have been ready to back it up," says William R. Jochimsen of the Iranian hostage situation.

What has an expert opinion on the international front have to do with a house in Jensen Beach?

Plenty, because Jochimsen is a retired American Consul, with 25 years experience in embassies around the world, most of which were located in the Mid- and Far East. One of them was Tehran, hotbed of the current international crisis.

Jochimsen is an innovator, as can be seen in both his philosophy and in his hobbies. Two of them are very much home-related.

It is the Jochimsen house you're looking at when you see the one with the solar heat contraption atop it, at 1153 NE Skyline Dr. It provides the heat necessary to run the family water heater, and an indirect benefit is help with the air conditioning.

Installed three years ago, the Jochimsens' solar heat mechanism knocks a steady $15 per month off the home water heating bill, its owner says.

Of course, the system has an electrical back-up, just in case Old Sol doesn't shine enough.

"We unscrew the electric back-up in the summertime," Jochimsen says.

The system has three collector units on the roof, with automatic sensors. When the water in the tank gets hotter than that on the roof, or when the temperature drops down to 50 degrees, the pumps reverse, and the water goes to the roof to keep it from freezing.

"If we did everything on a time schedule — took our showers during the day or did the dishes in the afternoon, it would undoubtedly save us more money," the owner said.

The system is a money-saver for a lot of house. Built on the hillside, the two-story dwelling has two bedrooms and two baths on the street level, a large living room with fireplace, and a handsome kitchen.

In an area that was the former pantry, you'll find Mr. J. spending a great deal of his time. He is a ham operator, and is in constant contact with the pulse of the area.

Right now, for example, he is coordinating the turtle watches via ham radio. Last fall, as emergency coordinator, he moditored the progress of Hurricane David for the Civil Defense program. His station is alert at all times to emergencies or impending ones.

The ground floor of the home is a separate apartment, occupied by their son William, who is working in construction at Sailfish Point. Reached by outside stairs, the cozy little apartment combines all the comforts of home with storage and work areas for the elder Jochimsens.

It also includes an extra bedroom, used occasionally by daughter Linda Lee Wood and her husband, when they come up from Boca Raton to visit.

During the course of Mr. Jochimsen's diplomatic career, he and wife Eleanor had a total of nine different homes abroad, including Sydney, Australia, Bermuda, Tiajuana, Tokyo, Okinawa, Tehran, and Calcutta.

Most memorable was Okinawa, where he wore "three hats" in the service, and in Tehran where he was in charge of the consulate. His primary concern was the protection of Americans abroad.

He feels that the take-over of the embassy in Tehran and the abduction of its personnel as hostages is historically the most flagrant violation ever experienced by this country.

"There have been cases of insurgents taking over our embassies before," he said, "but never before have they been aided and abetted by the local governments."

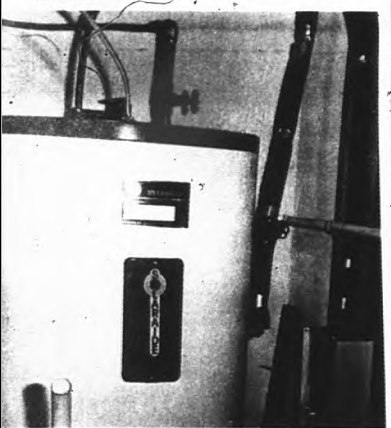
Mr. Jochimsen is also an inventor. Down the hill, in the big four car garage is an alcohol still which he designed and built.

He quickly adds that it is for production of gasohol.

"I had hoped to use the fruit from my trees for the sugar," he said, "but by the time I got my license, the fruit was gone."

So much for that moonshine operation. It will take another season and another crop to put it in production.

ORIENTAL TOUCHES—Shades of the orient are found throughout the William Jochimsen home, relics brought back from their many trips abroad. Jochimsen was a counsul with the United States State Department for 25 years, with service in such places as Japan, Okinawa, Calcutta, and other points throughout the Mid- and Far-East.



NEXPENSIVE HEAT—The hot water supply in the William Jochimsen home is among the cheapest budget items, thanks to this converted hot water tank. Fed from three storage units on the roof, it not only keeps the water hot during the sunny hours, in winter it reverses when the temperature gets to 30 degrees, to heat and thaw the units on the roof.

FORMER PANTRY is the office of Ham Operator William Jochimsen, whose station W4ZK served as coordinator through last September's Hurricane David. Jochimsen, a tireless ham, has his wave length on everything important going on in the area.

BACHELOR PAD—The ground floor level of the William Jochimsen home has been turned over to their son Bill as a bachelor apartment, much to the delight of the single young man. He has his own living room complete with fireplace, kitchen, and extra bedroom, and his own privacy. The stairs down to the apartment are on the outside of the house.

THE ROOFTOP BRISTLES—The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Jochimsen on Skyline Drive is a conversation piece for all passersby. Part of the roofline is accented by a solar heating system which provides all the hot water for the residence, and a major "rooftree" is the tall antenna for Ham Operator Jochimsen's short wave radio set. The huge Norfolk Island pine in the front yard is the tallest on the ridge.

REMINDER TO BOATERS—James Rowe, left, and Bruce Koebe recently installed this sign along the edge of Warner Creek in Rio to remind boaters to slow down for manatee. Koebe says he has sighted manatee in the creek numerous times. He enlisted the help of Rowe, president of the Martin County Audubon Society, to find the sign. Manatee are an endangered species and are vulnerable to the propellers of fast-moving boats. Not much is known about their habits, but they do seem to frequent small creeks and other secluded areas.

Venture Three

The news from Virginia and Leonard Rhindl was for some unknown reason omitted from the column last week so, a review of what she said in her note: They are busy with getting both the place in Michigan and the one in Canada cleaned and the plants and trees pruned, plant sales and classes started in both places, so is much too busy to do much letter writing. They send greetings to their friends.

A short note from Alice and Floyd Reynolds reports on their activities since they arrived home in Penn Yan, New York. They have been working on the dock and boat lifts, and then on their boat. By this time they are enjoying the water. They send their regards to all.

At the pot luck Thursday evening, Jackie Phillips reported on her letter and refund coupons she had received from Dorothy Seelye.

The luck was delicious and the evening was a happy time. As usual, anyone in the park who would enjoy an evening with friends should sign-up in Venture Three office and join in.

It seems everyone is either too busy or too relaxed to share the news, so there is nothing to tell about what is happening.

No news might be good news, but who knows unless it is told.

The parking lot at the recreation area now has newly painted spaces for parking and provides two spaces by the walk reserved for the handicapped.

Owner Chris Panaghi who returned home recently to 94 Woodcut Dr., Mastic Beach, Long Island, N.Y. 11951, passed away the last week of May. Condolences to his wife Marie and family from all friends at H.Out.

Lena & Bob Black write of a pleasant trip home to New Jersey. They attended a 46th year high school re-union and are sorry they had to leave the park so soon.

The Ray Lamons enjoyed their trip home to Mass. and found the weather fine, and are busy putting in their garden.

Alice Perrault writes that she arrived home safely in Mass.

Marion Madaus returned to her home in Cape Cod, only to find it cool and rainy.

Received a card from Bob & Edna Young who are in Greece.

Maurice & Victoria McKeever arrived safely in Stafford Springs, Conn. and are visiting their son and family.

A letter from Peg and Al Ray from Cherry Hill, N.J. They found Williamsburg, Va. "to be most interesting. It was clean and the aroma of clover & honeysuckle cover the entire town. They stayed at Lum's State Park, just 75 miles from their destination and found it very beautiful. After celebrating their best man's 50th Wedding Anniversary they plan to return to H.Out, the last of the month.

Congratulations on Anniversaries— Ruth & Conrad Schenk, 6-12; Ellen & J.C. Freeman, 6-14; Bertha & Clarence Ouellette, and Mabel & Harold Theimer, 6-16; Lois & Dale Foster, 6-17; and Evelyn & Bill Starr, 6-17.

Happy Birthday Wishes — Moe Berman and Arthur Gunderson, 6-12; Mary Cameron and Frank Riley, 6-13; Dr. Glenn Boyd and Mary Desserick, 6-14; Bob Royal and Sam Wooten, 6-15; Douglas Barnard, 6-16 and Evelyn Starr, 6-19.

Mary and Bill Cameron arrived hom in Saginaw, Mich. in time to enjoy all the beauty of the spring flowers. Gardening and the appreciation of growing things is one of Mary and Bill's hobbies. Their Holiday Out lot is a showplace.

The best pot luck

Hurricane David is all but forgotten, but a new hurricane season is on us, so newcomers are aking about preparations. Well, watch for Civil Defense announcements, due any day, but in the meantime: have a few day's supply of canned food stashed away; some drinking water; a battery radio; flashlight and an emergency plan of slapping on the shutters and stowing loose articles, and decision made about a shelter.

If you wonder about a hurricane's fury take a look at the seawall project down on Vista Dr. A giant derrick is ready to lift huge concrete slabs into place. Project may need a couple of sidewalk superintendents.

Mr. and Mrs. Rabbit are very secretive about their family affairs, but very reliable sources report that a pure white baby has been seen, and also a lil' dusky white one was observed. Dog 'Cookie' is dumfounded and welcomes any information about these mysterious doings.

PARK EVENTS

First Pot Luck Supper of the season, Friday, June 6 was the greatest ever, as over 90 OBPers trouped down to the hibiscus trimmed tables at the clubhouse for a 5:30 p.m. feed of home cooked 'goodies'.

The serving tables were loaded with baked chicken and stuffed cabbage to pies and cakes, with salads and vegetables piled high in between. There was plenty for 'seconds' and even 'thirds', and one could tell it was good, as the 'hub-bub' chatter died away as soon as all were served, to a steady clink, clink of knives and forks.

Just before they lined-up, all the newcomers were introduced to their neighbors and were later heard to say, that OBPers were the friendliest people around. Then, after the meal there were door prizes of four Carvel Ice Cream cupcakes that were won by: Earl Burbank, Larry Gardner, and Evelyn Beane. As the folks drifted away, they said we must have another soon and June 27 was a suggested date.

HOSPITAL

Maude Jones, 1 Palm Rd. and Jim Gum, 7 NE Eleventh St. have been released from the hospital.

Val Wells, 7 NE Sixth St.; Paul Tyree, 14 Indian River Dr. (Rm. 404); Pappy Snyder, 10 NE Fifth Ave. (Rm. 204); George Hunter, 41 SW Fifth Ave. are still in the hospital.

The Danzer reported in the hospital last week is not Nettie Danzer, of Mango St. Flora Derr, SW Seventh St. is out of hospital and in a nursing home in Middletown, Pa., according to letter to Nina Zigelhofer.

CARD WINNERS

Pinochle, June 2: Gladys Baier, 688; C. Wiedenmann, 688.

Pinochle, June 5: Ness Moore, 697; Elinor Martin, 684.

Pinochle, June 7: Connie Hileman, 696; Gladys Baier, 642; Ness Moore, 633.

RAMBLING AROUND

Irvin and Leta Keith, 4 Vista Dr. had a time for themselves last week celebrating Irvin's 87th birthday, May 30, the old time Memorial Day. First Jeannie Tomaszewski knowing that Irvin didn't care too much for birthday cakes with a lot of sugary 'doodads', decided to be different this year. She made a meat loaf cake, trimmed it with flaky white whipped potatoes, garnished with carrot flowers and celery stems and for added color a liberal supply of pimentos. It was gorgeous.

Then, on Saturday, May 31, they went to a dinner party at the home of Don and Penny Howarth in the Brigadoon Condo. This time there was a special deep dish apple pie for Irvin, and not to leave Leta out in the cold, there was her favorite, a cherry pie. Congratulation Irvin.

Madelyn Pacella, 14 Pepper Dr. is a newcomer to the park, coming here recently from a six year stay in Dania and before that she was a Real Estate Broker in New Jersey and coming there from Brooklyn. Right now she is getting her place ready, almost commuting to Hollywood, but this will soon be her home. She is a friend of Joe Giacona who was mentioned last week, and when asked what she liked to do in her spare time, mentioned dancing. It turns out she is a square dancer with Joe, so they will be very welcome at the clubhouse dances next fall. They both attended the Pot Luck Friday and after their friendly acceptance they are sure they are going to like it here. We all hope so, welcome Madelyn.

Roy and Nina Zigelhofer, 6 Pine Lane and Glen and Marie Roudebush, 28 SW Sixth St. have had a bunch of visitors recently, as follows: Nina's sister, Helen George of Carrollton, Ohio; her son Howard and his wife Rosanna; their daughter Vickie Costea, of Minerva, Ohio; and Glen Roudebush's daughter Colleen, from Minneapolis, Minn.

They will all be here for a couple of weeks and when not at beach swimming, they will take in Disney World, Busch Gardens, etc., but probably no dining out, as Roy says the best meals of all are served at the Ziegelhofer Motel and Restaurant.

Dot Beck, corner Sixth and Banyan: The balance of her very interesting trip to the Holy Land and Oberammergan Passion Play will be published next week.

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Ken and Verna Belle Bartlett, 11 NW Cocoa recently wrote to Connie Hileman from RR-5 Box 298, Montecello, Ind. 47960 saying they had a real nice trip home last month and found their place in good shape with trees and early flowers all in bloom. They have a family of 8 Mallard ducks and a nest full of eggs ready to hatch.

They have had the usual up and down weather with some 80 degree afternoons and some frost in the morning, but it is getting better and if they will ollly get some rain, the crops will be fine again this year.

Helen Dennis, ExOBPer from Bay Dr. wrote to Marion Curwen from 24 Mystic St. Apt. 32, Methuen, Mass. 01844, saying that she has been up there a month, hardly seems possible. She had a good trip home and the weather has been very nice, so far. helen is staying with her sister while she waits for a nearby apartment to be ready. She had a letter from Dick and Julia Aumiller and they are both fine, attending the senior citizen congregate meals. Helen says 'hello'

BIG NEWS on the fishing this week is that spotted ... fishing in the Indian River is ... upswing. They are catching lots ... up and down the river on the ... flats, mostly with live shrimp, ... popping corks, but some with ... bouts, mirrolures like 7M18 or ... gold Tony Accetta spoons. ... want a prime location for your ... fishing, fish the flats in Herman's ... south of the power plant, and ... to Little Mud Creek some three ... north of the plant. Another good ... off Frances Langford's, and ... always catch some around ... Road on the west shore of the ... and from the bridges and ... at Nettles Island.

SHORE FISHING is bonito, ... bonito, unfortunately. There ... some kings off the St. Lucie Inlet ... 60 ft. of water, an occasional ... scattered sails, and a few ... out in the blue water. Bottom ... for grouper at Six Mile Reef is ... with emphasis on big ones taking ... Snapper fishing is slow but ... pick up very soon as the ... and Lanes complete their ...

SURF FISHING for whiting and ... continues good, and anglers ... for them with fresh shrimp, ... or sand fleas stand to pick up an ... pompano, or even an ... edestable snook. FRESHWATER FISHING is pretty ... for bluegills (bream) on the north ... of Lake Okeechobee, but bass fishing has been sporadic at best.

CHRIS LONGO, 13, couldn't be prouder of the 6 lb. 4 oz. spotted seatrout he holds. Chris caught it fishing with live shrimp from the Nettles Island seawall.

JACK MYERS holds a 7 lb. 12 oz. seatrout he caught, along with 4 mangrove snappers and 2 black drum, fishing with live shrimp in Herman's Bay just south of the power plant on the east shore of the Indian River.

Tommy Tindell of Big Bass Lodge (813-946-1707) at Lake Port, about 18 miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on SR 78, reported thusly: "Fishing's been good for bluegills for flyfishermen in the Harney Pond Canal, real good. One boat brought in 400 last weekend. Bass fishing is slow. They're getting some on black and purple plastic worms in the Monkey Box and Moonshine Bay areas. Very few shellcrackers are being caught now."

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY of the party or head boat Lady Stuart, going half days out of the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart: "We're doing about the same, Dick, getting three or four nice grouper each trip. We got two dolphin and a couple of kings on Sunday. It's spotty but not red hot. The fish have been nice but not enough of them. We've been drifting Spanish sardines across Six Mile Reef for grouper. Even the charter boatmen are discouraged about the offshore fishing. Lots of bonito out there but not much else. This has been the worst year for fishing I've ever seen. It's been just plain slow. I wish the vermillions and Lanes (snappers) would show up again. They don't bite much when they're spawning."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE, Ellen Lebron: "Fishing from the Roosevelt Bridge was excellent Saturday, but has slowed down since then. It's hard to get live shrimp now and that doesn't help fishing any. We have plenty of clams though. The bridge fishing's best on an outgoing tide, like from 9 to 11 a.m. this Thursday. On Saturday, Bill Hazelton caught 3 black drum to 15-0 and an incredible 2-8 (2 lbs. 8 oz.) sand perch, also a string of croakers and a seatrout, all on cut clams and shrimp. Eugene Davis caught a 4-0 trout, 6 croakers and a sheepshead on clams and shrimp."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Dave Lamb: "Fishing seems to be better, Dick. Some are complaining but it's just a matter of finding the fish."

Lamb's log: John Fenno and Wayne Kendall, 6 dolphin to 23-0 and a sailfish release, ballyhoo, 180 ft. of water, due east of the St. Lucie Inlet; John Mackintosh, 22 whiting to 2-0 and 2 pompano to 2-0 at Park-N-Fish, shrimp and sand fleas; Robert Lundblad, 8 trout to 7-0, five shrimp and popping cork, wading the flats on the W. shore at Walton Road; Bob Thompson, 18 whiting and 2 croakers, clams, Mud Hole just south of the Oceana; Jim Steadman, 4 whiting and a 4-0 pompano, sand fleas, behind the House of Refuge; Bill Williams, a 16-6 snook, white feather, the Bath Tub just below the House of Refuge; Jay Shank, 17 whiting, 4 croakers and a drum, clams and shrimp, just S. of the Holiday Inn; Jeff and Joe Ianeri and Dave Lamb, 3 blues to 5-0, 8 trout to 4-0 and a string of mangrove snappers to 2-0, wading just north of the power plant fishing live shrimp on popping corks; Joe Ignatowski, a 6-8 trout, live shrimp, Ernest Lyons (25 cent) bridge.

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "The kings are out there in about 55-60 ft. of water, due east of the inlet and up toward the Sheraton. There are lots of bonito. Jack Jardell caught a nice string of whiting and croakers on dead shrimp at the Park-N-Fish; Steve Schambach, an 8-0 trout, live shrimp, Nettles Island Bridge; Dennis Shaffer, a 14-0 snook, red tail hawk jig, west catwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway; Mike Jones, a 10-4 snook, Krocodile spoon, in the surf near the Sheraton; John Loudy, II, a 12-12 snook on dead shrimp in the Windmill Village surf. The current offshore is strong. I've never seen it stronger than it was Sunday night."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "Fishing is better. Trout are plentiful again and are running a little larger around the power plant, mostly, with live shrimp the best bait at the moment. There are also some on the grass flats near Frances Langford's. The surf is good for whiting and croakers up at Normandy Beach just south of the power plant. Offshore, there are a lot of bonito, a few kings and some scattered cobia. More catfish are being caught from the bridges than anything else. Bottom fishing is just fair. Inshore too many saltwater cats. Snook fishing is slow. Bridge fishing is so-so at best."

The Nook's log: Irv Fisher, 2 days fishing, 5 trout to 7-8, 7M18 and #1 series mirrolures; Josh Myers, a 7-12 trout, 4 mangrove snappers and 2 drum, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Chris Longo, 13, a 6-4 trout on live shrimp, Nettles Island seawall; John Fesler, 14 whiting, cut shrimp, surf; Tom Hargrave, 8 croakers and 6 whiting, cut shrimp, surf; Ron Wiles, 10 trout to 8-4, a gold Tony spoon, Herman's Bay; Jeff Kappert, 4 trout to 2-0, mirrolure, river; Dan Waggoner, a 5-0 channel bass, a 5-0 trout, trout touts, Cross Roads; Romeo and Pauline Garavaglia, a cobia and 2 bonito, ballyhoo, offshore; Peter Peterson and Capt. Jim Stark, a 55-0 wahoo, 5 bonito, ballyhoo, off the SL Inlet; Scot Galliven and Chuck Watkins, a 25-0 African pompano, 12 bonito and 2 kings to 12-0, ballyhoo, offshore, T. J. Thibault, a 16-0 snook and 25 whiting, clams, surf — caught the snook on a half of a whiting.

THE GRASS IS ALWAYS GREENER elsewhere and so is the water, I guess. Stemming from several inquiries of late, here are a couple of considerations coming soon you might try if you have a yen to get a few miles on your conveyance and have a go at some Florida largemouths, bluegills (bream) or shellcrackers (redear sunfish), all of which can be caught in the Savannas and other waters of this area, and also at such "faraway places" as Lake Okeechobee, Lake Marian, Lake Blue Cypress and Lake Kissimmee, to name some bodies of water relatively close at hand.

Lake Marian is a super body of water simply reeking with Florida's natural beauty. Nine miles long from east to west, and three miles wide, Marian is 12 to 25 feet deep down the middle and sports a goodly number of bass, bluegills, shellcrackers, bluegills, bass, speckled perch (black crappie) and catfish, not to mention shad and mudfish (bowfins). This time of the year Marian is better noted for its wildfowl, bluegills and shellcrackers, than for its bass fishing, although there are bass to at least 15 pounds lurking in beds in the grass, or in the deep water now that it's getting hot.

You can reach Lake Marian by driving up the turnpike to Yeehaw Junction, turning left at the gas station (there's only one in Kenansville which is 14 miles north of Yeehaw up U.S. 441. You'll reach the Lake Marian Marina or the Osceola County Landing next door in about five minutes. The marina has boats, motors, bait, tackle and motel rooms (436-1021). The landing has only bait, some tackle and a launch ramp that is better than the marina's next door. You'll enjoy a visit to Lake Marian, even if you don't catch a lot of fish.

LAKE BLUE CYPRESS is also a scenic lake, nearly round, lying six miles north of SR 60, about 28 miles west of Vero Beach if you go up the turnpike to Yeehaw Junction, you have to double back six miles to the east to pick up the little, rough dirt road leading northward from SR 60 to Middleton's Fish Camp. Both Marian and Cypress have about the same fish, but Cypress may be a better bass lake. They don't have phones up there so you just have to drive up and hope for the best. Joe Middleton can rent you a trailer and the county does maintain some camp sites at Cypress.

LAKE KISSIMMEE is in the same general direction. To get to the Cazaz Fish Camp of J.W. Lunsford, at the south end of big, shallow Lake Kissimmee, head west on SR 60 fro mYeehaw Junction 20 miles. Lunsford has just about everything you'll want, including motel rooms. You can write for a reservation to The Oasis, Rt 1, Box 230, Lake Wales, Fla 33853. Of the three, Kissimmee is by far the best bass lake, but there are specks, bluegills, shellcrackers and catfish there in abundance too.

IF YOU DON'T WANT to end driving a few more miles once you're at Lake Marian, that SR 536 that took you from Kenansville to Marian goes on another 20 miles or so to Lake Tohopekaliga and Rad's Fish Camp. Turn off on Canoe Creek Road and it'll take you to Rad's. Lake Toho is fabled for its big bass. They think nothing of a 10-pounder up there and are always yearning for one tipping the scales 16 pounds or better. Many veterans think that one day, perhaps, a hunker approaching Georgia's record 22 lb. 4 oz. fish may come from Toho. Unless they've put in accommodations since my last trip up there, you'll have to stay in nearby St. Cloud on U.S. 441. There are lots of fine panfish at Toho. West (there's a smaller Toho East) but anglers approaching the Lake of the "Sleeping Tiger" are almost always bent on big bass. The Indians called it that because of the sudden, violent windstorms that spring up without warning. I experienced one in the bay at the south end of the lake one afternoon around 5 p.m. and hope never to go through anything like that again on a freshwater lake — or saltwater either. Just remember to respect Toho if you go up there.

FISH TRAP BILL (Sb8), June 5, 1980, put an end once and for all to saltwater fish traps, except those used for crabs, crawfish or panfish. Anyone convicted of using other types of traps after Oct. 1 will be guilty of a first-degree misdemeanor, and any vessel or equipment used in violation of the law and any fish caught in an illegal trap are subject to forfeiture.

The Martin County Anglers, an energetic service club, are to be commended for their support of the Florida League of Anglers, undoubtedly the prime mover in the concerted effort by commercial and recreation fishermen to put an end to fish traps in salt waters of Florida. The Anglers Club contributed $100 to the FLA in becoming an avowed supporter of FLA's objective of improving Fla's fisheries.

It takes clout to be heard up in Tallahassee and the FLA, its ranks growing almost daily, is building clout right along. If you haven't joined FLA, there's no time like the fishing present.

CONSERVATION, hunting, fishing, whatever, is everyone's business and we all need to be alert always for those who could care less about what we leave for those who will follow. There is a toll free number in West Palm Beach (1-800-432-2046) now hungering for your report, if you spot a violation. Get as much information as possible about the incident, including names, addresses, descriptions of individuals involved and vehicles, tag numbers, when and where it occurred. Write it all down and remember to cover who, what, where, when and why!

We're talking about hunting during closed seasons or at night, the illegal killing of songbirds or endangered species like the bald eagle, panther or manatee. Report suspicious activities that are linked to hunting, fishing or trespassing on wildlife refuges and management areas, such as vehicles using spotlights at night along roads, in fields or woods, or the sound of gunshots after dark.

The wildlife officers of Florida's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission stand ready to look into any violation you may report. They can't be everywhere, so you have to use your eyes to make them more effective in apprehending lawbreak ers.

It's your Florida. Be alert! Get involved!

SIX WINNERS in the Everglades Youth Camp contest have been selected, with three from the West Palm Beach area, one from Miami, one from Marco Island and one from LaBelle. They all win a free week's stay at the Everglades Youth Camp which begins its summer program on June 13 and continues on a weekly basis through Aug. 9. Lt. B.F. Lampton of the WPB Region (683-0748) reports that there are several weekly sessions that are full but that some others are open. The cost of the nature-oriented summer camp for boys and girls is $80 per week. There is also a toll-free number (1-800-432-2046) you can use to get more information.

BASSERS interested in the tournament trail will want to know who won the recent three-day North Carolina Invitational B.A.S.S. Tournament on Albemarle Sound near Elizabeth City. N.C. Tommy Chapman, a 36 year-old Denver, N.C. bass guide cast and cranked a half-ounce spinnerbait to victory, landing 60 lbs. 10 oz. in outfishing his 349 opponents in the $70,000 event.

"It was about one bass every hour then maybe two or three in a row," Chapman said after collecting the $10,500 winner's prize, including $5,000 cash and a $5,500 Ranger bass boat. It was relatively slow fishing, by Albemarle Sound's standards, according to local anglers.

CATALOG FANCIERS will be interested to know that you can get a free copy of a new Canvas Products catalog by writing to The Coleman Company, Inc., 250 N. St. Francis, Wichita, Kansas 67201. The 16 page catalog shows 29 completely machine washable sleeping bags and 10 models of family tents.

There is also an Outing Products catalog available free from the same mailing address. This 24-page four-color catalog, with an original cover painting by Joe Castar, a student of Normal Rockwell, contains the complete line of Coleman coolers and jugs; gasoline and propane lanterns, camp stoves and catalytic heaters, and accessory items.

BOATERS! Don't forget that bow riding is a hazard to life and limb. Wearing a life jacket does not insure against amputation of death. That's just one of many safe boating suggestions from the United States Power Squadrons.

Stuart tournament is this week

The 10th Annual Stuart Sailfish Club Small Boat Tournament will take place this weekend on Saturday and Sunday, and, according to Tournament Chairman Barry Rufo, it is predicted to be a "spectacular fishing event and a great anniversary event."

Late entries ($80 per boat) will be accepted at the briefing meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Stuart Woman's Club, Rufo said. Two tickets to the awards dinner at Sandsprit Park after Sunday's fishing, are included in the cost of the entry fee.

There will be dozens of extra awards in the form of door prizes, and there will be first, second and third place trophies for the largest wahoo, dolphin, little tunny, barracuda, kingfish and also for the most unusual and most outstanding catches.

The most coveted prizes, Rufo emphasized, will be the Evinrude Awards for the most sailfish released by the top female, male and junior angler in the tournament.

The contest, Rufo went on, is designed for families, and it encourages participation by young anglers through sponsorship of the junior division of the contest. All anglers under 16 compete for trophies for the same fishing categories as the adults.

Brochures detailing the rules for the contest are available at most bait and tackle shops and marinas in the area and from the Martin/St. Lucie Chamber of Commerce.

Looking for a honey hole?

HERMAN'S BAY and the power plant grass flats, for seatrout, as far north as Little Mud Creek, seem to be your best fishing bet right now. You can either wade or do your trout fishing from a boat. The best approach is to use live shrimp swimming free under a popping cork, but that doesn't mean that a series 7M18 or 21 mirrolure, trout touts or gold Tony Accetta spoons won't get the job done. The trout are running bigger now and some nice ones in the six to eight pound range are being taken. Keep in mind that seatrout have to be 12 inches to be legal! If you live farther south and would rather fish closer to home, the grass flats near The Outrigger have been producing nice trout this week.

IF THE SURF is more to your liking than the Indian River, anglers are still catching nice strings of whiting and croakers, and even an occasional snook near the Martin County Park-N-Fish area below the Jensen Causeway, using fresh shrimp and cut clams. Normandy Beach just below the power plant, the Mud Hole below the Oceana condo, and the rocks below the House of Refuge have all been good spots for whiting and croaker fishermen this week, and those flipping sand fleas in addition to shrimp and clams have come up with an occasional pompano. Some of the whiting have been in the two pound class. Both whiting and croakers are excellent table fare. Nothing need be said concerning the gustatory appeal of pompano or snook.

Plan for mackerel and cobia approved

Meeting at Fort Pierce July 2nd

A proposed Fishery Management Plan for King and Spanish mackerel and cobia within the 200 mile limit received final approval from the South Atlantic Fishery Management Council at its meeting last week in Raleigh, N.C. The plan is being prepared jointly with the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council and now goes before that council for final consideration before being submitted to the Secretary of Commerce for review and approval.

Some modifications were included in the final version of the plan as a result of the many comments considered by the council from the region-wide public hearings conducted to gain the input of the public on all phases of the plan. Over 650 persons attended the public hearings in the South Atlantic Region.

THE PLAN, officially called "Coastal Migratory Pelagic Resources", stipulates a minimum size limit of 12 inches for Spanish mackerel; no King mackerel under 25 inches may be sold; minimum size limit of 33 inches for cobia; minimum gill net mesh size of 4¾ inches and a mandatory catch reporting system for both commercial and recreational fishermen.

Of prime concern to the council, based on the comments from public hearings, was the issue of gear conflicts and the plan now contains emergency provisions through the use of special Field Orders to handle potential conflicts between user groups, especially in the southeast Florida coastal area.

BECAUSE of the specialized nature of the fishery for king mackerel in that area, another public hearing will be scheduled for the Ft. Pierce, Florida area at the Civic Center July 2 to specifically address measures and options to reduce gear conflict only.

Both Councils have determined that no surplus exists in the fishery, thus foreign fishing for these species has been prohibited in both the Gulf and the South Atlantic.

The plan is designed to produce the optimum yield from each fishery and permits the taking of 37 million pounds of King mackerel, allocated as nine million for commercial and 28 million for recreational fishermen. Spanish mackerel optimum yield has been set at 27 million pounds and cobia at one million pounds with no prescribed user group allocation for either species.

Once the plan has been approved by the Gulf of Mexico Council and reviewed by the Secretary of Commerce there will be an additional 45 day period for additional public comments before the plan is implemented.

Joe Lopez' kin sets a first in area Pro-Am

BY MIKE SANDY

Youth was again served in Pro Am Golf play at Mariner Sands Country Club's 18 hole championship course when 19 year old Bill Chase, an assistant pro at Indian Hills Golf Club in Fort Pierce, captured the top pro award among twenty pay-for-play contestants shooting a four under par 68. He edged out the Crane Creek pro, Jay Pyle who carded a 69. Joe Lopez had 73 as Mariner Sands pro Chuck Knebels and the veteran Cliff Settergren, Ft. Pierce, deadlocked at two over 74's.

Included among the 60 amateurs who competed was Miss Judy Allred, 16 year old granddaughter of the veteran Lopez. A seasoned veteran of the game, Lopez, a former Florida Open champion, has been grooming Miss Allred and believes she has the makings of a college and tour star and while he rejoices over the conquests of Nancy Lopez (no relationship), he would give everything dear to him to have Miss Allred make the grade. In competing with the men she plays from the men's tees and she did contribute to her team's finish of third place in the Pro Am foursome playing with her grandfather as pro of the team. They finished at 20 under par 124.

First place honors in that category went to the team headed by Pro Kelly Childs of Mid Rivers in Palm City. Included in the winning foursome were John Leighton, Martin County; John Repa, Crane Creek and Lloyd Adamson, Sandpiper Bay. The winners score was 23 under 121.

Second place in team play went to Pro Matt Moore of North Palm Beach with amateurs Joe Cappelle, Hutchinson Island; Tom Madyda, Crane Creek and John Hennessey, Mariner Sands.

Tied at 124 was the team led by pro Rick Dytrych, Palm Beach and amateurs Bill Henderson, Palm Beach; Cam Harlan, Sandpiper and Vic Georgyeff, Crane Creek.

The next Pro Am event scheduled at Mariners Sands is Friday, June 20th and with the keen interest being shown by area pros there is a noticeable shortage of amateurs. Those interested in competing should contact either of three pro shops Mariner Sands, Crane Creek and Sandpiper Bay.

Sandpiper Bay will host a Pro Am Thursday, June 12th.

Northport Men's Golf

Ken Goodwin and Howard Fatzinger tied with net scores of 60 to take flight B as Northport Men's Golf association played Tuesday. Charles Stallings had a net of 60 to take flight A; Earl Graham had a 62.

Al Baker won flight C with a 59; Jim Hehsel had a 62. In flight D Joe Zajac had a 61.

Ernie Riefler was closest on the eighth hole; Fred Sheets was closest on the 14th.

GOLFING NEWS BY MIKE SANDY

BY MIKE SANDY

Activity among the pro golfers in the area continues to find many veterans of the game able to keep their games in tune although several young lions of the area have more than made their presence felt and it very likely may be that area followers of the game will be watching very closely the doings of veterans such as Joe Lopez Sr. a Florida Open winner in 1963 and Cliff Settergren of Fort Pierce who has had more time to practice and play of late.

Matt Moore of North Palm Beach continues to post commendable scores. However there are those close followers of the game who are looking for a young dark horse from this area to be in the think of things when the Florida Open gets under way here July 9th.

J. D. Murchison, of Stuart who scored a sensational 65 in the Open last year while competing as an amateur, has recntly turned pro and won his first event the day after he gave up his amateur status. Chuck Knebels, the 25 year old head pro at Mariner Sands comes off a victory in the Florida PGA Southeastern chapter tournament last week, besting the eighty top pros of the chapter.

Billy Close another young swinger who works at the pro shop of Indian Hills Club in Fort Pierce has just added a pro am win to his laurels competing with top area swingers at Mariner Sands. Jay Pyle another area luminary since his youth around Martin County is liable to break loose and establish a course record.

Jay's talented assistant at Crane Creek, Phil Campoli, continues to hit the ball squarely and has also figured on the top rung in Pro Am play here. Another young un who'll be heard from is Kelly Childs of Mid Rivers Club in Palm City. Add to these the names of three Sandpiper young pros Bruce Harrison, Greg Cerulli and Rob Cruso. It is not likely either of the latter three will compete in the Open since the club to which they are assigned is host to the event.

Meanwhile the tour players will be heading for Springfield, N.J., site of the 1980 U.S. Open championship on the Baltusrol Golf course. Hale Irwin is the defending champion who believes that this tricky course is made to order for his game.

Gary Player and Jerry Pate finished in a tie for second last year only two strokes off Irwin, tourney winning 284. Player believes the course to be one of the toughest on the tour. Every hole is long and the rough is really rough. The course measures 7,076 yards and the best shots should be saved for last. The 17th is a 630 yard par 5 while the 18th is also a par 5 with 542 yards to travel.

Bill Meyers, property manager for General Development feels like the Rabbi who while playing alone on Yom Kippur Day scored a hole in one. Meyers scored his third hole in one on the par 3 16th hole of the, Sinners recently while playing with two of his guests Bill and Peggy Cranston of Lawrenceville, N.J. Irony is the Cranstons left town that evening and couldn't be reached for verification of the shot. Bill told all that he used a three iron for the shot which traveled 191 yards into the hole.

His other aces were scored on the 14th hole at Buena Vista using a two iron for the 194 yards. The other shot was scored on the 167 yard third hole of Hopewall C.C. also in Jersey. Bill normally plays golf here with Lou Merlano, Harold Goldman, Bill LoBrutto, his assistant Toby Acierno and pros Bruce Harrison and Rob Cruso. He's had a tough job convincing his playmates that the hole in one was genuine.

Story has it that Attorney Goldman has dispatched a special assistant to Lawrenceville, N.J. to secure signed statements from Cranstons which must be notarized.

Charley Schwarz, a member of Sandpiper is printing up requisites which he will pass out to all golfers with whom he plays. He will be advising them "in writing" that he will not play any shots out a sand trap. What's more he will not take a penalty stroke since he has more than paid the penalty of getting out of a bunker.$

It all happened Thursday, when in Sandpiper men's play his ball found the front trap of the first hole at the Saints. he dug his spikes into the sand ready to take the shot and was immediately swarmed over by fire ants. He was stung, burned and upset as his ball flew out over the green.

We are told he became ill and by the third hole was escorted back to the pro shop where he was given first aid by Joe Corsello before 911 quickly responded.

Charley was short of breath and was rushed to Martin Memorial Hospital where tests proved no heart attack and that he had suffered insect bites.

He has been placed on special medication and told not to play golf for a week and most of all not to hit into a sand trap. He'll be back playing Saturday and will ride his golf cart at least twenty feet away from the approaches and bunkers.

They've been celebrating around the John Schwartz household these days, rejoicing over the news that John and Florence Schwartz' grandson John Callahan, 18 year older has been accepted at The U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. The young grandson is 18 and is their only grandchild. He matriculated at Mynderse Academy in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

Dewhirst 'doos' good

BY MIKE SANDY

Ret. Col. Sam Dewhirst led a trio of Sandpipers who broke the eighty barrier Thursday scoring a three over par 75 while Jim Docos and Bill Flanagan racked up like tallies of 79. The scrambled event was tagged as Individual Stableford play with points stipulated as four for eagles, three for birdies, two for par and one for bogey. Dewhirst figured down the line in prize allocation since his handicap of eight gave him shots on only the eight lowest handicap holes while Docos took advantage of his 15 shots to gather 44 points for the top slot.

Ray Hannun carded an 80 for 43 points to finish in a three way deadlock for second with Adolph Lewis and new member Raymond Fox.

Five golfers wound up the days play tied up in the next slot with 42 points. They included Russ Skinner, 85; Bill Griffin, 87; Ken Pagel, 80; Flanagan, 79; Ken Beckman, 92.

Another single shot off the pace found seven players carding 41 points including Dom 'LePore, 85; Nels Howery, 91; Dewhirst 75, Jim Keenan, 81; Roy Rutherford 83; Graydon Smith, 87 and Dick Landin, 90.

Meanwhile members have been signing up in pairs teaming for Thursday's play which is labeled as a Partner's Best event with each combo to select the best nine holes of the 18 hole round. Play will continue on the 18 hold championship Saints course.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis Indian River Plantation

About five years ago I was flying to Las Vegas for the Alan King Classic, and stopped off in Dallas to see the finals of the WCT Championships and my two daughters who live in Dallas. The tennis was superb, Bjorn Borg a young Swedish flash vs Rod Laver winner of the Grand Slam not once but twice and in my opinion one of the all time greats. Rod had his hands full, but was a convincing winner. Then I visited with Anita and Linda before boarding the plane the next morning for Vegas.

Sitting across the isle from Connie and I was another all time great, Donald Budge, the first winner of the Grand Slam back in 1938. And, in the seat behind us was the winner of more National Championships than any other person, living or dead Gardner Mulloy.

Don and Gar have both been friends of mine for some forty five years, starting in my early ball boy days when I would ask Tilden and all the rest of the greatest their opinion on this or that pertaining to tennis. At some time or other I have emulated all the tennis greats. So it was natural for me to start a two hour discussion on the match and the merits or future of the young Swede.

Don was quick to point out, his top spin is too high and too short. I would step in and clobber those balls." Then Gar chimmed in with, "it doesn't matter anyway because with that stroke he will have the worst tennis elbow in history. Well, we kicked that around for awhile with both of these two greats agreeing Borg couldn't make it with those strokes.

So occasionally one can make a little mistake. Borg just won an unprecedented 5th French Championship with the same old short topspin forehand and backhand shots that I saw five years ago in Dallas.

Very few of the greatest tennis players do everything the same way, so don't feel like your strokes are not proper. If you can get the job done, do it your way. Frank DeStefano is a pretty good example, he can do more with less than anyone around here.

Last Sunday Marquer Sandpiper hosted the Awards Banquet, or I should say Awards BBQ for the Jr. County Tennis Club Association. The food was excellent but the awards were nonexistent. I had promises from three weeks ago right up to Saturday, "no problem. I'll be there with time to spare."

Mario Obando, the host pro, promised to deliver them as soon as they show up, and this is where he will be going. Men's Doubles winner, North River Shores, runner up, Westside TC. Mixed Doubles, again North River Shores with Twin Oaks the runner up. In the Ladies 1st Div., Heiko Voges again sported a large smile as North River Shores was announced for the third time. Sandlewood was the runner up, and our President, Allan Quay was there with his contingent to accept the plaudits. In the Ladies 2nd Div., Marquer hands was the winner with Indian River Plantation the runner up. All in all it was very nice but too bad more players didn't make plans to attend.

Allan Quay and Heiko Voges announced plans for a bigger and better format for next year, which will actually start the latter part of this year. One of the changes will include teams of six instead of eight. This is hoped to have a more even strong team for both the 1st and 2nd divisions, and also make it easier to field a team with less calls for the team captains.

Fun's a'crowdin. June 21 and 22 with the Lipton lead Ten Mixed Doubles Championship at IRP. Harbour Bay Plaza is sponsoring this event with divisions in "A" and "B" and prizes galore. The winners of the "A" division, aside from going on to regional play offs, will receive a $150 shopping spree in the Plaza. Every store has donated either gift certificates or merchandise so that everyone will have a chance to win something. The Jensen Beach Jaycees will keep the lead Tea coming for all contestants. Don't wait another day, call your partner and enter now. Entry blanks at all Harbour Bay Plaza shops, tennis clubs and sports shops.

And, while you're at it, be sure and get your entry in for the 4th Annual Martin County Championships with beautiful trophies again sponsored by the Stuart National Bank. Dates are June 26 to 29. Divisions with over 16 entries will have to play either Thursday or Friday evening. We will try to accommodate times where possible. If you play tennis, we have a division for you.

Sandpiper Bay Women's golf

The par 3s and 5s were the only holes that counted in the Tuesday tournament played by 100 members of the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association on the Saints golf course.

Gross score winners were determined in flights and Addie Hannum led the first flight with a 37 closely followed by Jan Werges at 38. The next lowest score was 40 which produced a six-way tie between Emmy Hofmeister, Wilma Leary, Rot Vroman, Lola Jelnick, Mary Newsom, and Larry Martell.

Second flight winners were Dorie Beckman and Marge Kennedy, both with 39. Ginny Wood and Mary Long scored 40. Lorraine Swift and Emily Griffin had 41 and Marge Simmons carded a 42.

Evelyn Adamson led the third flight with a 40 and Cindy Lorentson was next at 41. Eva Christensen and Edna Fickinger both scored 42, while Sylva Barnwell, Pearl Grasemer, Alberta Crofoot and Doris Harvey each had a gross 43.

Fourth flight winner was Linda Mood with 41 followed by Mary Kuhn at 42, and C. M. Lineberry with 43. There was a three-way tie between Dorina Tanner, Marion Cole, and Doris Muller each scoring 44 and Phil Healy was at 45.

Leader of the fifth flight was Libby Webster with 42, followed by Marge Thomas at 43, Johanna Howery at 44, Marion Brandon with 46, Jodie Fennel and Inez Bowman at 47 and Elfreide Wochatz, Edris Kessler, Flora Kummel, Ginna Leyda and Jane Radcliffe all at 48.

Sailfish regatta to be featured on Channel 12

Stuart's Sailfish Regatta will be making national news soon.

The Regatta will be featured by PM Magazine in a story on hydroplane racer Chuck Woodruff of Miami.

PM will air the program Thursday, June 12 at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 12, WPEC-TV.

Representatives of the news feature magazine spent two days at the Regatta filming the races and feature stories on the drivers and crews.

Woodruff captured the PM camera's eye because of his recent comeback to the racing circuit. In February, 1979, Woodruff was paralyzed in a hydroplane accident and after eight months of physical therapy, he returned to racing. The Stuart Regatta marked one of his first racing events since the accident.

Barbara Reeve of PM Magazine said the 225 cu. in. and 280 cu. in. hydroplane races will be highlighted with Woodruff racing Miss Prime Mover and the Buckeye Kid respectively.

The Regatta segment will also show the one accident that marred the local race. Mike Rexford was uninjured when his Super Stock, Short 'N Sassy, flipped in the north fork of the St. Lucie River.

PM is a syndicated program purchased for airing by Ch. 12 in West Palm Beach. Regional stories will be filmed periodically on the show, which premiered Monday, June 2.

Rich Reis and Drexal Gilbert serve as hosts.

Suggestions for story ideas are welcome and can be mailed to PM Magazine, WPEC, Fairfield Drive, West Palm Beach.

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted [illegible] the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie on June 24, 1980 at 8:00 p.m., City Hall, City Hall Plaza (Corner of Alcazar and Port St. Lucie Boulevards) Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 80-31

AN ORDINANCE PRESCRIBING USE OF OFF-HIGHWAY MOTOR VEHICLES ON PRIVATE PROPERTY OR ON PUBLIC PROPERTIES OPEN FOR VEHICULAR USE; PROVIDING A PENALTY FOR VIOLATION AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Findings and purposes:

(a) The City Council finds that the driving, riding and use of motorcycles, motor bikes, mini-bikes, dirt bikes, trail bikes, dune buggies, motor scooters, jeeps, or other forms of off-highway motor vehicles on public and private property within the limits of the City of Port St. Lucie is and can be the cause of noise and dust and of the destruction of plants, other ecological damage, (and damage to) landscaping and other personal and real property, which conduct adversely affects the comfort and privacy of occupants and residents of the City of Port St. Lucie. Because said conduct may be intermittent, fleeting, moving and or caused by persons who are minors, the noise and public nuisance provisions of this Code, as well as other legal remedies, are inadequate to control said conduct and its adverse effects. The provisions of this section relating to the regulations of motorcycles, motor bikes, mini-bikes, dirt bikes, trail bikes, dune buggies, motor scooters, jeeps or other forms of off-highway motor vehicles are therefore necessary for the public welfare.

(b) The City Council declares that the purpose of this section is to exercise the general police power in order to protect the enjoyment and use of public and private property; to protect the rights of privacy, to preserve property and personal values, and to promote peace and quiet within the City of Port St. Lucie by regulating the use of motorcycles, motor bikes, mini-bikes, dirt bikes, trail bikes, dune buggies, motor scooters, jeeps, or other forms of off-highway motor vehicles on public and private property within the City of Port St. Lucie.

(c) No person shall operate upon the private property of another or upon any public property which is not held open to the public for any vehicular use and which is not subject to the provision of the Florida Uniform Traffic Control Law, a motor vehicle, including a motorcycle, motor bike, mini-bike, dirt bike, trail bike, dune buggy, motor scooter, jeep, or other forms of off-highway motor vehicle. The provisions of this paragraph shall not prohibit the operation of off-highway motor vehicles upon the property of another when said motor vehicles are:

(i) Authorized emergency vehicles;

(ii) Used for ingress to the egress from, and parking upon, parking lots or structures open to the public, or private parking lots.

(iii) Motor vehicles operated upon property used for a motor vehicle riding area which has received approval from the City and is being operated as a business.

(iv) The property of any governmental agency, including any motor vehicle riding facility operated by the City of Port St. Lucie;

(v) Upon property of another and when the operator has the written consent of the owner or person in lawful possession of such property;

(vi) Used by the owner of the land himself, his family, employees, agents or lessees;

(vii) Upon private property for ingress and egress only.

(d) The operation of any motorcycle, motor bike, mini-bike, dirt bike, trail bike, dune buggy, motor scooter, jeep, or other forms of off-highway motor vehicle upon any vacant or unimproved lands within the city limits shall constitute a prima facie violation of this section unless the operator is able immediately to exhibit signed written permission by the owner of the land for such use.

SECTION 2. Each parent and-or guardian of any child under the age of eighteen (18) years may be charged under this section with having permitted a violation of any of the provisions of this section. Subsequent to receipt of a written warning from the chief of police, each parent and-or guardian so warned shall be assumed knowingly to have permitted any subsequent violation and shall be subject, upon conviction, to penalties identical to those provided for the violator for having permitted a violation of this section.

SECTION 3. Whoever shall violate the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not to exceed the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) and-or imprisonment not to exceed ten (10) days for any single offense. Penalties shall be double for any offense after the first conviction.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after its final adoption.

SECTION 5. PASSED AND APPROVED on first reading by the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie this 10th day of June, 1980.

APPROVED:
CITY COUNCIL
CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE
BY: William B. McChesney, Mayor

ATTEST:
Sandra C. Krause,
City Clerk
APPROVED AS TO FORM:

WHEELS AND TRAIN CARS were scattered all over the place after 20 cars in a Florida East Coast Railway train left the track in Jensen Beach Tuesday afternoon. The train was northbound, rounding a curve, when the cars began swaying, then tumbled off the rails into backyards of nearby residents. There were no injuries and most of the cars were empty. # 20 cars derailed

BY BOB FRYER

Amid a deafening roar and a massive cloud of dust, 20 Florida East Coast Railway cars jumped the track in Jensen Beach Tuesday afternoon, sending cars crashing into trees and back yards of nearby residents and ripping out hundreds of yards of track.

Witnesses said rocks, huge wheel and axle sections, and train cars were flying everywhere.

The derailment occurred shortly after 2:30 p.m. as the train was rounding a curve about a quarter mile south of the Skyline Drive crossing.

There were no injuries and the only damage to private property was apparently the destruction of several palm trees in the back yards along Indian River Drive.

According to residents living in the area, the train was moving fast when the wreck occurred. Ironically, the accident took place in an area where FEC maintenance crews had been working for the last few days.

Rusty Greene of 21 James Lane saw the derailment. "I was in the kitchen when I saw it come by like usual. Then the cars just started turning over. I could see it (the train) bend over and fall," he said.

Greene pointed to an overturned boxcar near his home and said, "normally, there are a lot of cars parked there. Some FIT (Florida Institute of Technology) students were living here and parked their cars there, but school just ended last week and they've moved away."

Richard Kupp of 4143 Skyline Drive said his wife attracted his attention to the train when she said, "Look at those cars rocking." Kupp said, "I was sitting in the house watching it and saw the cars start to sway. Then, all of a sudden, off they go and there was a big cloud of dust. They started to sway around the curve."

Kupp added that the train "was really moving."

A crew member of the train crew was still in the engine, talking on a radio, when asked about the accident.

"If you're from the press, I can't talk. It is company policy. You'll have to get your information from R. W. Wykoff, the senior vice president of FEC in St. Augustine, and you'll have to get off the equipment," he said.

A call was placed to Wykoff, but he was out of town, possibly on the way to Jensen Beach. A secretary said she did not yet have any information on how the derailment occurred or how long it would take to clean up the wreckage.

The train was pulled by two engines and the front 25 cars stayed on the tracks. For well over an hour they were blocking the crossings at Skyline Drive and County Line Road. Then the cars still on the tracks were uncoupled and moved forward to clear the crossings.

After the first 25 cars, there were nine cars off the tracks, but still connected to each other. The first few were still on the track bed, but the back ones were well off the tracks. Then there was a break of about 200 yards with a lone boxcar overturned and with twisted wheels of train cars strewn about. The tracks at that point were about 15 feet apart and many concrete ties were damaged.

About 50 yards beyond the lone boxcar, there were 10 more cars off the tracks, with several up in the back yards of homes. Track was badly twisted at this point, but the last cars were still on the track bed. The very last car still had all wheels on the track, just at the end of a curve.

Behind it about 100 feet, there were severe twists in the track, and an FEC worker who is a member of the maintenance crew working in the area the last few days speculated that the tracks simply got too hot.

"The tracks move when they get hot," he said.

A crew member on the train at the time of the derailment, Ernest Salyer, was walking along the derailed cars taking notes on the damage and asking residents if anyone was injured or if they had had any damage.

He said, "I have no idea how it happened, sometimes in the hot sun, the rails pinch." He said no one in the crew was hurt and commented that the train consisted mostly of empty cars. It was on its way from Fort Lauderdale to Jacksonville, he noted.

Glenice Turner of 4282 Indian River Drive had two cars up against her back yard, not far from a storage shed. She said the only damage sustained was to a tree and a garbage can.

Joey Woodcock of 4240 Indian River Drive said he was sitting on his front porch when it happened. "All I could see was a big cloud of dust."

Robert Irons of 510 N. Palmetto was on the scene when the derailment occurred. "I was out there and it started shaking and the wheels flew out and cars and rocks flew all over the place." He pointed to a car and said, "The blue car came loose and the wheels started rolling."

Joe Emmick of 4240 N.E. Indian Drive didn't see the derailment, but said he could hear it and feel it. "The whole ground was shaking, a lot more than ever before. All the houses in the area started shaking. We got up and looked out and all I could see was a cloud of dust," he said, adding "The ground rumbles when the trains go by, but not like this. It was really super loud. Usually they go slow when they're going north because they're going uphill, but he must have been going pretty fast."

About half an hour or more after the derailment, the Jensen Beach Fire Department arrived. Chief Joe Luciano was overheard complaining that the call to the department did not come in as soon as it should have.

The first duty of the firemen was to check the cars to make sure they contained no hazardous materials. They didn't, but one car had a sign on it stating it had oxidized materials inside. "The car was empty, but they should have marked over the sign, so we would have known that," he said.

Assistant county Disaster Preparedness director Steve Wells said Jensen area residents were fortunate that the cars contained no hazardous materials "or we could have had a real disaster."

Wareheim gives $70,000 for gym, senior center

BY BOB FRYER

In the future, when children play basketball in a gymnasium at Langford Park and senior citizens gather for meetings at the park, they'll have E. C. Wareheim to thank for it.

GENEROUS DONATION—E. C. Wareheim, right, signs papers deeding Martin County a tract of land valued at $70,000. The land is being sold, and proceeds will be used for construction of a floor slab and chimney at the senior citizen's center in Langford Park, with the balance of the money to go towards construction of a gymnasium at the park. County Commissioner Frank Wacha, left, accepted the deed for the county, and Realtor Ransom Tilton served as witness to the transaction.

On Tuesday, Martin County Commissioners happily accepted a donation of land from Wareheim valued at $70,000.

The land, located on SR 76 in Stuart adjacent to La Ronda Apartments, is being sold to La Ronda Ltd. Proceeds from the sale are to go to the county for two projects at Langford Park on SR 707 in Jensen Beach.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha noted that $19,900 of the proceeds will be spent for pouring a slab for the log cabin Senior Citizen's Center now under construction at the park and also for building a large fireplace for the center. The balance of the money will go towards building a gymnasium at the park.

The log cabin was a landmark in Stuart for years, used at one time as a community meeting room and later as the bandroom at Stuart Middle School.

When plans were announced to tear down the old cabin, community leaders took steps to have it dismantled, with logs marked, in hopes that one day it would be rebuilt.

That dream is in the process of becoming true. County officials were successful in obtaining a federal grant for putting the cabin back together for use as a Senior Citizen's Center at the park after Gene Hoke of Ocean Breeze Park and Realtor Ransom Tilton made sizeable donations toward the project.

The cabin turned out to be in worse

Mirror is first in state

The Mirror won four key first place awards and three third places to capture the coveted "Best Florida Weekly Newspaper" sweepstakes trophy in the 1979 Florida Press Association better newspaper contest.

The plaques and trophy were presented at the annual FPA awards luncheon at Sanibel Island last weekend. The competition was between 97 of the 135 weekly-twice weekly and three times weekly newspapers in the state. There were over 1,200 entries in the 28 divisions of the contest.

The Mirror placed first in community service for its series of articles and editorials on the emergency medical technician problems faced by the Jensen Beach Samaritan free ambulance service.

Bob Fryer, Mirror city editor, was judged Florida's best columnist in weekly newspapers, winning a first place plaque for his 1979 column on newspapers-public trust. The Mirror's year long effort at community promotions won the first place plaque for newspaper promotion.

Also, the editorial page of The Mirror won a first place plaque. Judges (all Texas prize winning editors and publishers) commend that The Mirror had "great presentation of an editorial page...strong makeup, good writing."

Fryer also won a third place in news photography for his photo of efforts to save a pygmy sperm whale in the surf on Hutchinson Island.

Sally Latham and Dick Campbell shared a third place in in-depth investigative reporting for their articles and editorials on the personnel problems in the Jensen Beach Post Office.

And, Donnie Wilkie won a third place honor for his photo-feature on Kathy Rinaldi's grand slam in tennis.

It is the fourth time in the twenty-year history of The Mirror that the Jensen Beach newspaper has been honored as "Florida's Best Weekly Newspaper," having won the honor previously in 1969, 1972 and 1974.

Fifteen Mirror staffers attended the convention in Sanibel Island.

In social activities, Dick Campbell placed second in the FPA tennis tournament and the mixed doubles championship was won by Dick and Salli Campbell.

Campbell also presented the Claudia Rosa Memorial award for investigative reporting to Don Moore editor of the Anna Maria Island Islander. The award honors the best investigative reporting in Florida for the year in memory of the former Mirror and Palm Beach Post reporter who was murdered in Bangkok, Thialand while doing investigative reporting.

HAPPY PAIR—Mirror editor Dick Campbell and General Manager Peg Meissner were radiant following the presentation to the Mirror of the sweepstakes trophy as "Florida's Best Weekly Newspaper."

BEST COLUMN—Bob Fryer, Mirror city editor, received the first place plaque for best column from Charles Brumback, president of the Florida Press Association, in ceremonies at the FPA convention last weekend in Sanibel Island.

WHEEL SECTIONS from train cars were scattered for hundreds of yards when 20 Florida East Coast Railway cars went flying off the track in Jensen Beach Tuesday afternoon.

Train leaves tracks in Jensen

AMID THE WRECKAGE of the train derailment in Jensen Beach, a local resident points out a section of twisted track. The northbound train was rounding a curve south of the Skyline Drive crossing when the mishap occurred, sending cars, rocks and wheels flying all over the place.

TWISTED TRACK—Martin County Sheriff's detectives inspect severely twisted track in the middle of a curve a short distance behind the train derailment wreckage. Based on reports from witnesses, the train started swaying as it rounded the curve, apparently causing this section of track to twist before the cars went flying.

ETTY GREENE said the train cars just bent over and fell off the tracks when they rounded a curve near his house. One boxcar landed in front of his home in an area he said is normally occupied by several autos.

BUNCHED UP—Wheels, boxcars, and chunks of railroad ties were all bunched up after a Florida East Coast Railway train derailed in Jensen Beach Tuesday afternoon. Fortunately, most of the cars were empty and none contained any hazardous materials.

When club members noticed a for le sign on the tract and learned the asking price is $350,000.

Realtor Barbara Torow was asked y the club to make an appraisal on e land and a report on her appraisal expected at the Wednesday night eeting. She has also provided Optimist president Larry Barraga ith advice about what the club may to help push for getting the land into ounty hands.

County Commissioner Frankie John has said it would be nice to have the land become a part of the park, but has said the county does not currently have funds available for its purchase.

Barraga has said in the past that once an appraisal of the land was made, there would most likely be efforts made for getting other area clubs to help push for obtaining the park.

The IRP team was 13-3 overall, but faced a tough team from Coral Reef in the league playoffs. After splitting the first two games in the three game series, IRP Manager Joe Varillo and Coach Craig Baker patched together the decimated lineup and came through with a 11-8 victory.

Friendly Jesse Taylor ends career

One of the friendliest cops you'd ever hope to meet is no longer a cop.

Last week, Jesse James Taylor retired from law enforcement, a career he had been in since 1952, and headed for the hills of North Carolina.

From 1960 until last year, Taylor was known locally as "Stuart's friendly police chief," a title he gave himself and one that most citizens agreed he deserved.

Taylor started his career with the Martin County Sheriff's Department, then shifted to the Stuart Police Department and became chief in 1960. Stuart was a sleepy little town back then, and law enforcement was not the complex task it is now. Arrests could be made with less concern for the procedures involved.

As the city grew, the department expanded and the job of chief became more complex. Taylor seemed to take it all in stride. He still maintained the image of a country boy, "friendly" police chief. But in a recent conversation with Taylor, he admitted that the strain on him from the pressures of the job mounted as the city grew. When he came under fire from what he considered an over-zealous news reporter, and when he was the subject of a grand jury investigation for alleged perjury, he said the job of chief began to lose its appeal. He was cleared by the grand jury, but still faced a somewhat hostile city council, so last summer, he resigned from the city police force. He still lacked about a year of governmental service to qualify for full retirement benefits, but said he just wasn't prepared to finish out that time as chief.

Fortunately for Taylor, Martin County Sheriff James Holt hired him at desk sergeant, thus allowing Taylor finish out the time needed to collect the benefits.

At one point in Taylor's career, he served as both Stuart Police Chief and Martin County Sheriff. That lasted only five days, however. It occurred in 1972 when the governor suspended Roy Baker from duties as sheriff and was prior to the time he named Bob Crowder to serve out Baker's term. When the county suddenly found itself without a sheriff, Circuit Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge named Taylor to act as interim sheriff.

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

Our experience reveals that feet are often one of the major causes of spinal problems. One out of every three of our patients exhibit some foot problems.

When your feet are improperly balanced, weak and turn in or out at the ankle (look at your foot posture), they can throw the entire spine and muscle structure out of balance and alignment from head to toe with resultant back, leg and related pains.

Spinal-pelvic stabilizer may be the splinting your doctor recommends. They are light weight appliances that fit into your own shoes. And, they are individually custom made from impressions of your own feet.

Even if your feet don't hurt, postural imbalance may be a part of the cause of your health problems. Examinations can conclusively indicate any postural imbalance. Be sure to ask your doctor to test you today.

POSSESSION BEFORE TITLE

QUESTION: I own a four-family house. Until last week I had lived in one of the apartments and rented the other three. Some out-of-town buyers have agreed to purchase the property at a price which is satisfactory to me. Although all of the papers are signed, we are not scheduled to complete the sale for about eight weeks because the buyers are lining up financing. But the buyers want to move in a month before our scheduled closing. They are willing to pay me a fair rent. The buyer says that I would get two advantages from this arrangement: the apartment would not be vacant, and I would receive income for that month.

I have a feeling there may be some disadvantages. What do you think?

ANSWER: I too have an uneasy feeling about this.

First of all, if your transaction fails to close, because they can't get financing – or for any reason – and the buyers are in your building, you may be stuck with a tenant you don't want.

If that happens, you can expect your buyer-tenants to start developing their "check-list" of deficiencies. As they do, the transaction may become more difficult to close. If they are living in the building, every minor flaw may take on monumental proportions. You can be sure that this check list will be presented to you as a precedent to closing.

The fact that they are in possession of the apartment will give them a very strong negotiating posture.

The reasons for not granting their request seem to far outweigh any small advantage which might be gained from the rental income you would receive.

Hospital support

The July 9 date for a hearing on applications for the right to build a hospital in Port St. Lucie is drawing near. What is expected to be a bonanza to any hospital firm is up for grabs before the Regional Planning Council's Indian River Committee.

Martin Memorial Hospital has planned its bid for a 50-bed hospital, out-patient center and offices for physicians.

If there is one overriding concern, it lies in who will use the facility, and Martin Memorial has a track record of attracting a large number of South St. Lucie County residents to its facility.

Martin Memorial is one of the most modern hospitals in South Florida. It has the staff and the equipment to offer a high standard of medical service to the community.

It is also a non-profit hospital, assuring the people that all profits over cost will be pumped back into the hospital to further expand the service to the community.

As Port St. Lucie grows, Martin Memorial would expand to meet the need.

We cannot see the financial wisdom of duplicating medical staff and equipment by approving a separate hospital to operate in Port St. Lucie. The cost would be borne by the patients, and Martin Memorial already has some of the most sophisticated equipment needed to operate properly.

Adding a satellite facility in Port St. Lucie would be less costly, with the heavy duty out-patient services taking a major role, and the high-cost operating room-intensive care facilities remaining in the home base until the growth of Port St. Lucie demands installation there.

Martin Memorial already serves a great number of south county people, totalling almost half the patient load of the hospital. This should weigh heavily in favor of Martin Memorial when the applications for construction are reviewed.

We hope that the health planning council committee takes a good look at Martin Memorial, and all it can do for the people of Port St. Lucie.

Fireworks funding

The fund drive for the July 4 Independence Day fireworks spectacular is $3,500 short of the $5,000 goal.

The fireworks show is put on by volunteers who make their own displays and produce a show that is worth three times the amount raised by donations.

We hope that the people of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie support the fireworks fund drive with their donations so that the goal can be met.

There are just a few weeks left.

Send donations to Fireworks Fund, Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, 1910 NE Commercial Street, Jensen Beach, Fl. 33457.

15 years ago in The Mirror

All that was left to do to complete the east side of the new Jensen Beach bridge was place the side rails, as work on the new span progressed.

Marie (Mrs. Ove) Christensen and son Ricky were pictured with a 40 pound watermelon grown from seeds planted in their yard on Skyline Drive.

Scott Miles, Ocean Breeze Park, was given a surprise party by neighbors and friends in honor of his 20th birthday.

Several pictures depicted surfers riding the waves at Jensen Beach, citing the fact that Martin County "is one of the few remaining east coast counties still permitting surfing."

The rains came in gully washers, putting an end to a long, long dry spell. It was good to hear the frogs sing again.

The "Arrive Alive" highway safety campaign was kicked off by Governor Claude Kirk.

Leta Keith of Ocean Breeze Park retired after 27 years as a school teacher. Her career started in a one-room school house and ended in the first elementary school in Martin County to be teaching by television.

Bob and Loretta Means had a busy week as their daughter Dianne graduated from Florida State University and their son Steve, a Lance Corporal in the U.S. Marines, was promoted to Sergeant.

An editorial deplored replacing "nuns" with "nudis."

Alice Roberts and Jay Pitchford, Jensen Beach Elementary School sixth graders, were presented American Legion highest honors.

A Scamper II sailboat, to be given away free at the end of the Stuart Sailfish Regatta, was put on display in a local bank.

Sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, two organized turtle watches were scheduled at two locations on Jensen public beaches, and chairman Al Tomaszewski was pictured with a turtle on page one.

Martin, Palm Beach, St. Lucie and Indian River counties agreed to present a united front in asking the state to allow them to withdraw from the South Florida Regional Council and form a new regional council.

John Whitacar of the Environmental Studies Center was pictured with a 25 pound grouper, which had grown too big for the tanks and was being returned to the Indian River.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Riley were pictured with daughter Katherine, who will go to Japan in the Lions Club Exchange Student program.

3 Br., 2 Ba canal front home was offered at $35,900.

Dick Campbell

Crazy people...all winners

Rick Campbell was talking with a buddy at his home on Thursday evening when he suddenly said, "I've got a gut feeling I think we're going to win the best weekly award."

Rick packed a bag and left in the morning, driving that big, black Ford pickup to Sanibel Island.

I was surprised when he walked up to the tennis court where we were playing the Florida Press tennis tournament. I hadn't expected him to be there.

His gut feeling came true. We won the number of awards that gave us the points we needed to be "Florida's Best Weekly Newspaper" for the year. Four first place and three third place plaques.

At the awards luncheon, we had fifteen members of The Mirror on hand. The only people missing were Rose Washburn, who was recuperating in Martin Memorial Hospital from an operation, Charlie Fracapane, John Jamison and Ann Conklin, who couldn't make it.

What a crazy bunch of people this Mirror staff.

Bob Fryer, who hates to write a column, and has written more than a dozen columns on hating to write columns (which he does whenever he has no idea of what to write about), was honored as Florida's best weekly columnist, taking first place for his effort in explaining the relationship between people and newspapers.

Most of the publishers of Florida, who look very seriously at the bottom line of the profit and loss, wouldn't think of taking their entire staff to a Florida Press convention. It costs a lot of money. We, however, think of The Mirror as home, and the staff as family. Maybe that is why the bottom line isn't as good here as in other towns.

But, then, no other newspaper has as much fun as the Mirror family.

Who else would make up a song, sing it in front of the entire convention, and then climax the song by throwing me and then Bob Fryer into the pool. (What other editors would stand for that?)

Everyone on the staff is like that. They are continually playing practical jokes on each other. For example, on Monday morning, Mary Meissner walked into the office to tell me that none of the pictures taken by Fred Meissner turned out. She showed me a roll of blank film, and said the film didn't work on the pool in the camera.

Only after I clutched at my heart did she tell me that the roll was Cathie Farago's, and not Meissners.

Pardon the crazy bunch for bragging. It has been a long, lean six years since The Mirror won best newspaper in 1974. We have been second four times and third twice in those years.

We have won our share of awards during those years, often more than seven, but this year the sweepstakes never looked better.

We have always been high on awards. It means that your peers think you are doing something right. We have always won in a broad spectrum of newspaper classifications, too.

Nothing is more important to us than the community service award. To win first place in that division is the highest praise. That has happened three times in the past nineteen years. We felt we had a good entry this year in our series of editorials and features on the emergency medical technician problem of the Samaritans, and it was proven in the award from Florida Press.

The quality of Florida newspapers is not to be denied. In all the years I have been active, seven awards has never won the sweepstakes award. The Mirror has won ten and came in third.

But this year, only two newspapers won eight awards, two won seven, two won six, five newspapers won five awards and the rest were disbursed among 44 newspapers in the state. Out of 56 newspapers entering the contest, 55 newspapers won one or more awards.

That is high praise for the quality of Florida newspapers.

The big, gold trophy sits on Jean Morgan's desk at the entrance to The Mirror office. The eagle atop the bowl needs to be tightened, and it has a few small dents from shipping.

But, to us, it is the most beautiful thing in the world.

It is a time of great pride for the crazy bunch at The Mirror. I'd just like our readers to know how much I appreciate all of them for making that pride possible through hard work, dedication, and having fun on the job.

Florida's best weekly

We won!

My Lord in heaven, we won!

Last weekend at the 101st annual Florida Press Association convention on Sanibel Island, The Mirror was judged the best weekly newspaper in the state.

Actually, we share that honor with the Sanibel Island Reporter, as there was a tie when the points were totaled for the prizes the two papers won in various categories.

That's okay with me. In this case, a tie is not like kissing your sister.

In the newspaper business, the rewards for a job well done are few and far between. So, when you are recognized by your peers for producing the best weekly paper in the state it provides a great sense of satisfaction.

We did a lot of celebrating in Sanibel, and you'll have to excuse the members of our staff when you see them during the next few weeks if they seem to have larger than usual heads. It's just that we're very proud of our achievement.

But by being judged best doesn't mean we're perfect. In spite of our swelled heads, we all recognize we have a lot of room for improvement. And, we recognize that the process of judging newspapers is a highly subjective sort of thing. This time, we just happened to have enough of the kind of stuff in our paper that the judges liked.

Each year, the judges are different, and each judge, no doubt, places a different emphasis on things.

Some of the categories we won awards in this year were different from some of the ones we won awards in last year. For instance, last year we won an award for our classified pages. This year, in spite of the fact that the pages are laid out in the same format as they were last year, and in spite of the fact that our classified section has grown vastly, we didn't win. I don't understand that, because I think we have an excellent classified section for a paper our size.

We had what I considered outstanding color ad pages that were prepared by our staff last year and that year. Last year we won an award in that category and this year we didn't.

It all serves to emphasize how subjective the judging is. And, frankly, I'll have to admit that there are weeks when I wouldn't rate our paper in the top 50 in the state. Sometimes we'll work hard and wind up with a messy looking paper because of careless printing. Some times, typographical errors seem to crop up in the most embarrassing places, and sometimes what looks like a well laid-out page when we make it up Tuesday night looks amateurish the next morning.

The way we use to hold down the type on our pages doesn't always stick until we get the master to the printer resulting in out-of-place type in the final product. Once, half of a page-one photo cutline just vanished, leaving readers puzzled and staff members both red faced and furious.

Sometimes, we have no wax or printer to blame, and have to place it on ourselves for not being careful in laying our pages, for not getting thorough information on a story, or taking a bad photo. And once the paper is printed, our mistakes are there for our readers to find fault with for a full week.

Knowing the mistakes we've made makes me wonder how we could have possibly been judged best. But knowing the hard work and beyond-the-call-of-duty efforts all of our staff members have made to produce The Mirror makes me wonder why we didn't win even more awards.

The thing is, the 122 other weekly papers in the state are in the same boat. They too have wax that doesn't stick, typographical errors that cause embarrassment, and weeks that simply don't go right.

So, when you read The Mirror and hear us boasting that we're the best, you find mistakes in our paper that seem to negate that claim, keep it in mind that no paper is perfect, and never will be.

That doesn't stop us from being very proud of the honor we received in Sanibel last week, and will not stop us from redoubling our efforts to win the top prize again next year.

Sally Latham Number ONE

It's good, every rare once in a while, to be a cog in the Number One wheel, no matter how small and insignificant a cog. And it is a particular thrill to be there when Number One gets its due recognition.

That's what happened to all of us on the Mirror staff last week. You'll read about it all from a far less biased view in other parts of this edition this week, but this little cog is happy to join in the chorus of triumph, theme of which is "We Are Number One Hallelujah!"

If anyone tried to do business with The Mirror Thursday through Saturday, they were deemed to failure. We were ALL in Sanibel Island to take part in the great event — the spring meeting of the Florida Press Association. Boss Man Dick Campbell is unique among newspaper publishers in that he makes it possible for everyone to attend, and as a result, we had the largest rooting section of any of the more than 100 weekly publications attending the elegant event at Sanibel's Sun Dial resort hotel.

I said we were all there. Well, actually, most all of us were there. Rose Washburn, our classified ad manager, couldn't attend because she was recovering from an operation, and Charlie Fracapane, John Jamison and Ann Conklin also couldn't attend.

After we learned we won, Sallie Campbell relayed the news to Rose via telephone. If you're a member of The Mirror, you are among the best and most closeknit families imaginable. No one gets left out, for any reason.

The big thrill came on Friday, day of the awards luncheon. And it proved a double triumph for all of us. The slide presentation, one of the finest, most professional pieces of art imaginable, was prepared and presented by Bill Meissner, son of our General Manager Peggy Meissner. Bill, now working for the Orlando Sentinel cut his eye teeth on major slide opuses for the Mirror a couple of years ago, and his talents were so impressive he was snapped up by the Orlando paper last year.

Bill showed off his talents not only for artistic work but for discretion. As compositor of the production, he knew well in advance who the winners were, and he was no doubt busting with the news. But he kept the big secret to himself (except for maybe tattling to mama) right up to the glorious end. When word was given out that The Mirror shared top honors with the Sanibel paper for the big Sweepstakes, Bossman Dick lit up like the proverbial Christmas tree — truly surprised with the photo finish. When he received the big gold trophy he looked like an astonished Statue of Liberty getting her torch for the first time.

And later, when the team threw him in the pool in front of the audience of hundreds, he went down just for effect. He could have walked on that water. And we were so proud we all could have followed in his footsteps.

It was a first trip to Sanibel for me, and in my considered opinion, getting there is Not half the fun. In fact, as far as I've been able to discern, there is no comfortable way to get across the state of Florida. You don't ride — you jump from bump to bump, and are jarred by the vacuums in between.

Of course, it is better than it was when we first began traversing the state. Back in the '30s, you had one course — you rode the hump. Round-top roads were the only thing you had to travel on, and if you met a car coming in the other direction, somebody had to take to the ditch.

You also raked life and limb with cows lying on the macadam, drawing the coolth as an escape from the hot sun. And wild pigs were a menace. In Gainesville, I found myself unexpectedly playing hostess to a niece who was the lucky one in a misadventure with a pig which put my Uncle Frank in the hospital for an uncomfortable few days. Pigs are not to be discounted as adversaries, however small they appear.

But the trip was worth it. Sanibel is beautiful, and very different. It has a real islandsy atmosphere. Life is slow. With the exception of the motel, where there was plenty of action around the clock, they unroll the city about midday, and roll it back up again by 10 p.m.

In the morning, everyone is shelling. And you have to get up early in order to find any good ones. By the time this slug-shed got around to doing a little beachcombing, all the goodies had been picked over and all that was left was a vast bed of crushed shells to walk on. It's a shell of a place for everyone but shells.

We took in the Ding Darling wild life sanctuary, an impressive nature tour on a tract given to the state by the philantropic cartoonist. The miles of protected wildlife preserve were fascinating, and filled with Florida nature at its best. But as we drove through, I was beset with the feeling that if had nothing more beautiful to offer than we have right here at home, if we know where to go looking for it.

Home, on the Indian River, is a hard act to beat.

The Song to the tune of
"I've Been Working on the Railroad"

We've been working for the Mirror all the whole year long;
We've been working for a trophy, just so we could sing this song.
Maybe we will have to share it, but we think that is cool;
We've been working just so we could...
THROW DICK IN THE POOL.
Dickie won't you swim, Dickie won't
you swim,
Dickie won't you swim to shore.
Dickie won't you swim, Dickie won't
you swim,
Dickie won't you swim to shore.
Someone's in the pool with Dickie,
Someone's in the pool we know.
Someone's in the pool with Dickie,
So Fryer here you go.

SHOWMAN—Bill Meissner, son of Mirror general manager Peg Meissner, again displayed his talent in audio-visual creation in handling the presentation of awards in the Florida Press Association annual better newspaper contest. Meissner has created the show for three years, and was on loan from the Orlando Sentinel to do the show on projectors furnished by Indian River Community College.

GLASSES SAVED—Keeping a cool humor, Dick Campbell came to the surface still somewhat wearing his glasses.

ENJOYED THE—City editor Bob Fryer joined Campbell in the pool as his reward for winning the top [illegible] award.

Social Security

BY BRUCE FERGUSON
SSA Field Representative

Everyone who applies for a social security number must provide evidence of age, identity and U.S. citizenship or lawful admission status.

Parents sometimes have difficulty finding the required evidence for their children. They especially have trouble with the idea of providing evidence of identity.

Proof of age is relatively easy—public or hospital record of birth recorded before age 5 or religious record of birth or baptism recorded before age 5. One of these documents will also establish citizenship.

Documents which will establish identity include: Driver's license, report card, school identification card, baby's hospital wrist band, newspaper birth announcement, baby book, court order for name change, church membership or confirmation record, doctor or hospital records, vaccination certificate, daycare or nursery school records, or child's membership in Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts or other youth organization.

Any document provoding identifying data such as physical description, photograph, or signature may be used as evidence of identity.

At least two documents must be presented one to establish age or citizenship and one to establish identity. Only the original documents or official copies certified by the issuing agency can be used.

If you are 18 or older, you must apply in person. If you are applying for a replacement card or changing your name or other information on your record, you must establish your identity. For a change-of-name request, the evidence must identify you with both your old name and your new name. If you are changing your name because of marriage, please bring your marriage certificate.

For more information, phone your social security office. The people there have a free leaflet, "Applying for a social security number." The telephone number is 283-5700 or 464-5700.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Elizabeth O Donnell and Peg Ray

Father's Day was consorted by many in the Park — at churches, family gatherings, and eating out. The weather cooperated. It was a beautiful day! The oldest father in the Park was 91 young and he enjoyed his day to the fullest.

We are having each lot number painted on the front of the driveway. Large enough for all to see. It will help visitors more readily find their friends. Many of the old signs are covered up by plants.

The Holiday Out mixed team at Jensen Lanes won 4 points last Wed Bob Leister rolled 207 & 205 games

Carolyn & Al Wright had the pleasure of a visit by their son Bud & wife Kathie from Cornwall, N.Y. They also are expecting daughter Donna & husband Bob, and grandchildren, Kyle & Kim for a week. They came from Washingtonville, N.Y.

Al & Betty Nagy had guests over the weekend. Al's mother Mrs. Helen Baranyai, Mrs. Helen Allison, Betty's mother & friends Bob & Rita Royal, for a Father's Day cookout of steaks bar-b-cued & all the fixings on the Longs & Nagys compound.

Millie & Frank Pius arrived at their son's home in Midford, N.J. after a very nice trip. They shall await the arrival of their 3rd grandchild. Then will head for California.

Ray & Ray Johnson are on a bus tour to Vermont. They write that they are enjoying the sight seeing and the delightful cool nights.

News from Peg & Al Ray: they are enjoying the green grass and trees. But miss our blue skies. There it has been dull utmo. They had good weather the first six days, then two days of hot and humid days in Gloucester, Mass. Leaving there they visited friends in Elkins Park, Reading, Penn. Al Peg had a close encounter while in a "Vanity" Fair Discount Shop. A tornado came through. They looked out the windows and thought it was a heavy rain storm, but found out differently when they came out. The tornado lasted only 15 minutes, with winds at 90 miles an hour. It had gone through Penn., Maryland, and Virginia. 127,000 people were without lights till the next day. Al & Peg also visited their niece in Wolmersdorf, Pa. Then on to Skyline Drive, stopping at a camp park there. Had to don two sweaters, hood, shoes & stockings. Peg said she got by a fire & wasn't warm enough. They intend to spend 3 days on Skyline, with the final 3 days on the Blue Ridge Parkway.

What more delightful place to spend the first week of school vacation than Holiday Out? Cathy and Brian Hobbs, Irene Fawcett's grandchildren at last do this. They had a busy week here beaching, pooling, bicycling, roller skating and crabbing (not the verbal kind). Irene shared all their activities except roller skating and enjoyed every minute of the children's visit.

Louise and Al Schneider, former lot owners in Holiday Out, have been renting a lot the past week and enjoying the pool and the shuffleboard courts with old friends.

Anniversary Congratulations— Florence & George Poor 6-20; Evelyn & Joe Lang 6-22, Peg & Al Ray, Louise & Patrick Magrino 6-23, Rosemary & Vernon May 6-27, Lisetta & Georges Labbe 6-28.

Happy Birthdays— Virginia Inman, John Hendrickson 6-21, Jean Davis, Russell Walls 6-22, Art Norris 6-23, Helen Kay, Dean Bennett 6-28.

Still cold in Northland

Some of the new summer residents have been heard saying, "It's a hot day, isn't it?", giving the regulars a chance to retort, "did you see on TV last night: Cleveland 45; Detroit 48; Boston 44; Hartford 40; and Worcester 38?" A little 80 degree weather is far better than the damp cold of the northlands (even in the summer time).

While discussing Hurricane David with some folks who had weathered it last fall an interesting point was brought out. If everyone waits until the last few hours to have shutters put on, most folks won't get them on in time. Get ready the day before, better too soon than sorry. If the "frail elderly" living alone need help in closing up and getting to a shelter, they can register with park civil defense director Ernie C. and someone will look after them.

Blood Pressure Friday is coming up, Fri. June 20. Remember, all seniors can get a free blood pressure check and nutrition counseling by the Martin County Health Dept. 9-11 a.m. Langford Field. It's a "must" for seniors to watch their blood pressure.

The impromptu rubbish dump on county property just off Ocean Breeze Dr. almost got taken care of last week, according to Bill Jones who has view of it. County Commissioner Frank Wachs said he would see about it, and evidently he did. One morning last week, 2 or 3 big county vehicles and 5 or 6 men appeared, investigated, then shoved the rubbish all together in one big heap. Bill says, "Thanks Frank for the try, maybe next time it can be removed, hum?"

Sea Wall project is step by slow step moving along. 6 or 8 of the big concrete slabs have been hoisted in place. Maybe, project would move along faster if there were a few sidewalk superintendents, anyone with free time should drift down to Vista Dr. to the spot of the big derrick.

PARK EVENTS

It has been decided to have the next Pot Luck supper on Friday the Fourth, at 5:30 p.m. in the clubhouse. If it turns out like the last one, all will have a great feed, good socializing, and then a chance to wander down to the shore by Lil Bit Le and pick a spot for observing the Fourth of July fireworks on the Causeway. If there are any visitors around, bring 'em along to get acquainted.

HOSPT: L

Val Wells, 7 NE 6th St. came home last week and Hulda Tyler of Arbor Vitae went to a retirement home near her son in San Francisco.

Geneva Hunter, 41 SW 5th Ave., and Pappy Sadler, 16 SE 5th Ave are still in the hospital.

Erba Langle, 14 NE Board St was taken to hospital and released on Wednesday and again on Saturday. Dan Wells, SW 9th St. was taken to the hospital on Saturday.

Paul Tyree, 14 Indian River Drive, died Monday at a Ft Lauderdale hospital.

RAMBLING AROUND

Emmett and Anita Maher, 32 Key Lane came down here from St. Paul, Minnesota in 1962 and have until this year gone back each summer for 6 weeks or more. Emmett was a Park & Davis Drug salesman visiting the doctors for years and Anita taught elementary school in St. Paul for years and is thankful she doesn't have to do it now-a-days. They have one married son and 8 grandchildren with the lone boy entering Dartmouth this year.

Henry and Sarah Niemann, 15 Pine Ln. came to OBP last year, after spending 28 years in Fort Lauderdale, where they settled when they came south from North Haven, Conn. Henry works for DOT on bridges and was transferred here just before he retired at 62.

Last year they took a trip to New Foundland where Henry was born and found the house he was born in still standing in good condition. In fact the whole fishing village was just about as they had left it many years ago. They took a bus trip all around the island, then Sarah had a slight stroke from which she has recovered very well.

Thelma Cadwell, 14 SW 5th Ave. came down here in 1953 from Chatham, New Jersey. When her husband Willis died a few years ago at the age of 68, Thelma decided as she here with all her friends. However, she often has visitors from the north, like this week she had her niece Elizbeth Noise and husband Thomas from Washington, D.C. here for a few days of talking over old times.

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Ada Baum of Pelpper St. writes from Box No. 21, St. Williams, Ont. saying that after stop-overs in Ohio and London she arrived OK, but still has not received her copy of the Mirror, which she misses very much. Ada says it is a busy place with 600 boats in the Parbor and 90 trailers in her park. Then, she goes on to say that they were all praying for rain, then got a 3 or 4 day deluge. But, the flowers are now beautiful and the farmers are getting their crops in.

Ellen Nixon of Center St. writes from P.O. Box 158, Jessupport, Maine 04648, in care of Vi Alley, that they are enjoying their visit with mama (Vi Alley, ExOBPer) who is fine and driving her car like 'old times'.

Clare and Thelma Caddy of Board & Teeth wrote to Ruth Tregear from 1221 King St., London, Ont. N8W2Y1, that Stan and Anna Hamel who lived with them in OBP, report that Stan who was an ill in new out of the hospital and walking with a cane. Thelma says food is awful high up there with sugar 8 pounds for $3.00, etc. They will be glad to get back here to the bingo, but need to locate another trailer, as the one the rented last year has been sold.

Harry and Margret Sharp, 30 SW 7th St., write from 184 W. Aster Rd. Wildwood Crest, N.J. 08260, that they had smooth trip home in good weather; but it is a little cool there now. Will be back to OBP in Oct.

FLORENCE KEGLEY of the Sewall's Point Police Department answers a call from a concerned resident over a recent traffic accident. The policewoman, previously employed in Jupiter Island, fills a much needed vacancy in the department.

Sewall's Point gets first policewoman

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Whenever I used to pass a police car, I immediately hit the brakes whether I needed to or not. If I managed to pass him without seeing the blue light come alive, I'd breathe a sigh of relief and cautiously work my way up to previous cruising speed.

After finding with Officer Florence Kegley of the Sewall's Point Police Department, I learned a better lesson in futility, for I was shown that by the time you see the police car, it's already too late, and the most you can do is smile, because whether you like it or not, you're on candid camera.

The radar gun can pick up speeds from a distance of two city blocks and any car driving over what the officer sets the radar limit at is immediately locked in and recorded. It was, however, amusing if not humbling to watch other auto's speeds on the screen decrease digit by digit as they neared our blue lights.

Florence takes this all in stride though. She's not out to get anyone needlessly, rather she's there to enforce the law.

Enforcing the law in Sewall's Point is something relatively new to her. Prior to her arrival, she worked for five and a half years in the Jupiter Island Police Department, spending most of her time in the office setting up and maintaining an organized system of operations. She compares both areas as being "basically the same" with the main difference being the newly found opportunity to circulate among the residents.

That is something Florence likes best and is evident as she walks through Harbor Bay Plaza talking with the shopowners or driving through the residential areas waving to the passersby.

Florence may wave to the people out of friendliness, but in fact, she probably knows more than half of them. Living in Stuart since her birth, she's seen the area grow from a small town to a rapidly expanding community. Although she admits there is something to be lost in the transition, she adds, "you have to grow with the times."

Florence started working for the community in 1965 as a clerk in the Sheriff's Department. She continued there until her second child was born and then decided to devote her full efforts into raising a family. Her daughter and son are now 14 and 11 respectively, and with the exception of a few years sabbatical, Florence is still going strong.

There are others who would look at her and shake their heads, wondering why she works so hard in both fields. While she admits "my family comes first with me" she realizes a personal need for the outside stimulation of a job and organizes both careers to fit into her lifestyle.

Florence is quick to point out that her husband is her most valuable asset and has always been supportive of her decisions. Married, high-school sweet hearts, they have always maintained that whatever work made the other happy they would support totally.

Obviously, for Florence, police work is a needed ingredient for satisfaction, and like her homelife, she finds it neither boring or routine. Perhaps she is a petite woman and the gun holster looks a little large on her but this line of work calls more for brains than brawn.

Florence explains that if a situation arises that warrants additional help, she calls for a back up team.

"You don't go in and try and play hero. Even the men have the same attitude," she explains.

She employed that statement a few days ago when a hit-and-run accident occured on the bridge. With help, the runaway driver was apprehended and, at the same time, victims on the scene were immediately tended to. Although the damaged cars had since been towed away, the wreckage of paperwork remain on her desk. Accident reports had to be filled out and calls answered from nervous victims wondering what to do about insurance claims.

Florence was determined to finish the paperwork before she got off duty Sunday. Then, she was going to go home and take her son fishing.

Our open door policy starts here.

It starts with John O'Neill, manager of our Northside office. His door is always open. If you need help with your banking, come in and talk to him. Or Carl Mihaly. Or Dave Skiles. Or Charlie Paul. As Stuart National managers, their doors are always open, too.

With five full-service offices all over town, and more coming, no matter where you are, you're near Stuart National. When you bank at one office, you can bank at all. And, you spend less time and use less gas getting there. That's important, with today's skyrocketing gas prices.

People like John O'Neill make our open door policy work. Like all our managers, he's there when you need him, treating you as a friend and neighbor as well as a customer.

So come to Stuart National. Our doors are open all over town.

Sewall's Point youngsters commended

ONE OF THE LITTLEST HELPERS in the Sewall's Point clean-up brigade, Gavin DeWindt, who is almost two, gets a certificate and a big smile from his proud father and mother, Dana and Kathy DeWindt.

Story & Photos
BY CATHIE FARAGO

Sewall's Point had some young residents in attendance at the last town council meeting, however they weren't there to listen to the business on the agenda, they were there to pick up their certificates of appreciation given to them by the commissioners.

Commissioner Dana DeWindt awarded the children of the Homewood subdivision the certificates for the work they had done on the park located nearby. After Hurricane David left the area with a mass of fallen trees and shrubs, the park was used as an emergency storage area for debris.

Although the park was eventually cleared, it took DeWindt and several youngsters to get it back to its original state. The children, all varying in ages, planted shrubbery and trees and now, not only have a once again beautiful park to play in, but a certificate they can proudly display.

Sewall's Point commissioners have run into a problem of having the appropriate funds to start work on the proposed bike path but not the appropriate people to do the work. According to Town Engineer Richard Hellstrom, the town advertised for bids on bike paths, and to date have received none.

Hellstrom added that "it's a devilish kind of job" being too small for a general contractor and too large for sub-contractors. He suggested that he and Town Attorney Jim Knight look into the possibility of hiring a specialty contractor so that work can begin as soon as possible. If need be, a special meeting will be called to get the necessary approvals.

Also voted at last week's meeting was a decision to transfer funds out of the Jensen Beach Bank and transfer them to First National of Stuart. The commissioners were seemingly disappointed that no representatives from the Jensen Bank were on hand for the discussion.

Commissioner Gilbert Strubell said that bank president Ron Mitchell "asked that we postpone action" until he returned to town but Mayor Ed Gluckler stated that "I don't want to wait. Things seem to be getting worse than better."

Strubell felt that "we owe him the courtesy," but Gluckler was apparently irritated over what he thought was Mitchell's untimely vacation and added that in the past "we've had some real problems there."

Ordinance 121, regulating fuel tank installations was passed by a unanimous vote. District No. 2 Fire Chief Ed Smith Jr. who was at the previous meeting to urge commissioners to pass the regulation was relieved at the news. According to Smith, "the residential area is not a place for the storage of gasoline." He went on to say that the largest gasoline tank in Sewall's Point holds 2,000 gallons and that an explosion resulting from gas vapors could be so devastating that "I'm not about to take these kids in to fight a fire like that.

"As far as I'm concerned, they've got gas stations and they can go to the gas stations," he said.

COURTNY McBRIDE PROUDLY DISPLAYS HER CERTIFICATE received for the work she and other children of the Homewood Sub-division did on the park. Thanks to their efforts, the many youngsters of the area can again play in a setting of trees and shrubs.

Doc Myers to speak at coffee this Thursday

State Representative William "Doc" Myers will be the featured speaker at a Stuart-Martin County Chamber of Commerce coffee meeting at 7:55 a.m. Thursday, June 19, at the Holiday Inn on U.S. 1 in Stuart.

Myers will talk about the recently ended legislative session and what impact that session will have locally.

The public is invited to attend.

Social Security Meet

The solvency of Social Security has seniors worried, so they will be glad to know a Town Meeting will be held, June 23, in Ft. Pierce to discuss ideas for keeping it viable. Your reporter was invited, but unexpected events will prevent his attendance, however, here is some advance information that will give them an idea of problems to be discussed.

The Social Security Advisory Council for OASIDIHI (Old Age Survivors Insurance, Disability Ins., Hospital Ins.) and Trustees of Social Security Program have issued reports showing the 'Fund' status for short, intermediate and long range; under optimistic, intermediate and pessimistic conditions.

This Town Meeting will discuss ways of making the 'fund' sound for the next 75 years. All suggested plans call for some use of General Revenue, as taxing current workers to pay current benefits is a losing game. Right now there are 5 workers for each beneficiary, but by 2035 there will be only 3, so the present unreasonably high S.S. taxes would have to almost doubled.

Here are some things for our 'grass-roots' consideration: A one percent increase in personal and corporate taxes would raise $2.3 billion. Most industrial nations use some form of general revenue. Does general revenue financing weaken preconceived tie between taxes and benefits; and in the view of some, lead to more fiscal irresponsibility; Many feel general revenue financing would simply enlarge Fed. deficit.

VAT (Value-Added-Tax) of 1 percent would produce $5-$9 billion; most European Countries use 'VAT'. There would be less voter resistance with 'VAT', but states would object, as it competes with their sales tax. It would be much harder on the poor and 1980 retirees.

The 'DI' and 'HI' funds were discussed and it was admitted that not much could be done for the 'HI' without Hospital Cost Containment. Also COLA (Cost of Living Adjustment) was touched on, noting the "unintended-overadjustment of 1972", put 1980 retirees in bind.

Here's what will happen to monthly benefits of 1960 retirees with 14.3 percent COLA this year and 10 percent until 1991. Say a couple gets $275 in 1979; they could get $312 in 1980 and $740 in 1991, but the 1979 retiree couple who would get $675 in 1979 jumps to $772 in 1980 and $1830 in 1991. So, the 1960 couple that was $460 behind in 1979, would be $460 behind in 1980 and $1080 behind by 1991. And, this 1960 couple worked just as hard or harder all their lives and still have to trade in the same market place as their more affluent neighbors. Almost unbelievable. But that's inflation for you and if something isn't done soon, the 1960 couple will have to either give up eating or medical care. Why not have equal dollar 'SOLA' for all, thereby at least the 1960 retiree wouldn't fall further behind each year.

CHAPTER EVENTS

The June Board-ExCom. meeting (June 12) was kicked off on time by John Vance (1st V.P.) with Boyd Smith (Bulletin Editor) giving invocation, Harry Keebler (Sec. Protem.) reading minutes and Doris Cass (Treas.) giving financial status. Then, the following items were discussed.

Pearl Wyse (Health an Legislative Chm.) reported that the 'VIAL-OF-LIFE' program was shaping up well. The plan to distribute 65,000 vials to residents of Martin County, starting November 1, 1980. Commercial organizations are cooperating splendidly; some by donations to underwrite the cost of some items; others supplying materials at less than their wholesale costs.

Still more contributions are needed as it will cost around $6500 to obatin 65,000 vials, 190,000 decals, the information forms and plastic bags for delivery. Volunteers by the hundreds will be needed next fall.

The By-law and Standing Rule changes that have been 'hanging-fire' for a long time, again had to go back to committee, as a 'point-of-order' brought up their legality (Motions made by a previous Board, must be re-introduced?). Fred Sundheim (Parliamentarian) to investigate and report back at next meeting. Before the chapter became of age, folks would sit around figuring out what was best for the chapter, then go ahead and do it; now correct procedure must be first determined....Oh, for the good ol' days, said past president Ernie C.

Chapter and National members at the Treasure Coast Senior Service recreational program had some superb entertainment last week when they heard the delightful harmony of the Fort Pierce "Sweet Adelines", consisting of: Evelyn Jackson; Theresa Bush; Sally Manele and Grace Riley. Elliot Arluck, the program director, after a short vacation back home to Brooklyn will arrange for these programs to continue throughout the summer.

AARPers are reminded that it is getting near "Silver-Haired Legislative" time (July 27-30) and if they want their 'pet' items considered, they must let Leta Williams (their representative) know at once. Call her at 283-2422. Last year over half the items purposed were later taken up and passed by the regular legislature. The program does work.

THE WINNING EDGE was a book written by Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, telling how the organization was built to back Super Bowls VII 1972-73 and played in the Super Bowl for three straight years. Fishermen are always looking for that "winning edge" too. Some make a scientific study of the feeding habits of the species they specialize in, and learn where they will be feeding at various times of the week, month and year. Some try to go where the action seems to be and hope to get in on it before it dies down.

Still many believe in the use of tables like the Solunar Tables of John Alden Knight. According to Knight, these conditions not being unfavorable, animals will move about, birds will sing and fly from place to place, in fact, all living things will become more active, more alive, during Solunar periods than at other times of apparent equal value. The tables simply pinpoint the major and minor periods each day when game and fish are the most active. If you're fishing on a lake and moving about, you'll make it a point to be where you usually find fish, just before a major, and fish around it.

It's not a matter of trying to have your luck going for you, in addition to a knowledge of your quarry and its customary feeding patterns. All fishing is, generally, is to be at the right place, at the right time, with the right fish are feeding on, or lures that simulate that bait. Using the tables may believe, enables them to schedule their fishing hours into efficient packages — like resting comfortably ashore until an hour or so before a major Solunar period begins.

THE SOLUNAR TABLES aren't the only pebble on the beach. There's also the Fish & Game Forecaster, "the sportsman's timetable that predicts fish and game movement for every hour of the year." The 1980 Forecaster can be obtained from Vexilar, Inc., 9955 Penn Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55431, for $4.95 plus $1.25 postage and handling. You might be able to find it in one of the area bait and tackle stores.

This almost pocket-sized booklet, according to Vexilar, features a presentation of the optimum times for fish and game activity for each day of the year. Moonrise, moon-set tables, along with additional pages for field notes are included.

Looking at the 1980 Forecaster, for June 20 as an example, tells us that fishing hereabouts should be very good Friday between 7 and 8 p.m., beginning at about 5 p.m., peaking at 7:30 p.m. and falling off again at 9 p.m. On Saturday, June 21, look for good but not very good fishing around 8 p.m. On Sunday, it won't be very good at all, according to the Forecaster, but your best times will be from 7 to 9 a.m., peaking at 8 a.m., and from 8 to 10 p.m., peaking at about 8:30 p.m. The point is that the very best fishing will be Friday evening. If you insist on fishing Friday morning, do so from 7-9 a.m., but it won't be much better than fair even then.

One handy thing about the tables, which are really graphs for each day in the year, is that they keep you up to date on the moon's position. Thus, for June, the first quarter will be on the 26th, apogee will be on the 21st and it will be full on the 28th. In July, moon at perigee will be July 4, last quarter on the 5th, new moon on the 12th, moon at apogee on the 19th, first quarter on the 26th, full moon on the 27th and moon at perigee on July 30.

Anglers could do a lot worse than invest in a Forecaster and chart their successes and failure against its graphs. Who knows, it just might give you that "winning edge."

Boaters are to use extreme caution when approaching craft flying divers down flags.

GO THROUGH a check list of equipment and operating procedures before starting out for a day on the water; check your entire fuel system for signs of leaks, cracks or aging in general, and pay close attention to the connections at the gas tank and engine; check the current weather reports before you set sail for a day on the water, and watch the sky for the appearance of sudden storms so you can get back to port safely — are all safe boating suggestions from the United States Power Squadrons.

IF YOU WONDER sometimes about Florida's saltwater laws, pick up from a bait and tackle shop a copy of "Facts for Florida Fishermen", a small leaflet that lets you know what you can and can't do.

For instance the legal limit (tip of nose to rear center edge of tail) for bluefish is 10 inches, 9½ for pompano, 11 for flounder, 12 for mackerel, 12 for spotted seatrout, 12 for channel bass (redfish), 18 for snook (can't possess more than 4), and 18 for bonefish (can't possess more than 2).

Crawfish have a closed season from March 31 to Aug. 1. You can't buy or sell snook, sailfish or tarpon, and may have only 2 sails or tarpon in your possession.

It's illegal to use more than 5 traps for the taking of blue claw crabs without a permit from the Department of Natural Resources. Egg bearing females cannot be sold.

It's illegal to spearfish in the immediate area of public bathing beaches, commercial or public fishing piers, bridge catwalks or jetties.

DID YOU KNOW that the addition of the Monument Unit of the Big Cypress National Preserve to Florida's system of wildlife management areas has more than doubled the size of the Big Cypress Wildlife Management Area?

The unit, over 300,000 acres in size, joins four other subdivisions of the area to bring the preserve up to 570,000 total acres, thus creating one of the most unique management areas in the state, according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Habitat for deer and other game species in the new area is being enhanced, but care is being taken to assure the reputation of such endangered species as the Florida panther and Everglades mink, said biologist Dave Pylant.

For sportsmen, Big Cypress offers abundant hunting opportunities. The camping area in the Bear Island Unit has been tripled in size and quotas have been established for the general gun season. Those quotas are 250 hunters in the Bear Island Unit; 10,000 for Mondment and Deep Lake, and 5,500 for Stairsteps and Loop Road.

Hunters who wish to use vehicles off the road must make sure their tires are at least nine inches wide, to minimize any possible ecological damage. Their vehicles must be registered in advance with the Park Service as well as the Commission. Those not wishing to use vehicles will have the Loop Road Unit to themselves. No dogs are allowed in this unit.

Applications for permits are available from the Commission or at offices of county tax collectors (see Danny Knowles).

Hunters aren't the only outdoorsmen who will benefit from the Monument addition. Photographers, backpackers and campers should delight in the scenery and fishermen can expect to find outstanding bass and bream fishing there.

Plantlife in Big Cypress varies from stands of pine to cypress swamp and sawgrass. Rare orchids can be seen and photographed while part of the Florida Trail runs though the Cypress.

If you need further information, call the Commission at 1-800-432-2046 or (305) 683-0748.

This week it's trout and black drum

SPOTTED SEATROUT in the Indian River and black drum in the St. Lucie River highlight fishing in the area. There are still whiting in the somewhat weedy surf, and some sheepshead, sand perch and mangrove snappers at the area's bridges, but, by and large, the best fishing action right now seems to be for trout around the power plant on the grass flats and for black drum from the rejuvenated Roosevelt Bridge where for so many months reports were dismal.

Offshore reports aren't exactly glowing but are promising enough to warrant small boaters going into action. There are dolphin around the weedlines out where the blue water begins, grouper and snapper on the reefs, an occasional sailfish or cobia, and some big smoker kings in the Kingfish Hole below the St. Lucie Inlet.

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY of the party (head) boat Lady Stuart (286-1860), going half days out of the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart: "We're getting some grouper and kingfish (king mackerel). We've changed our schedule. No more all day trips on Saturday. We're going out from 8-12 and 1-5 every day, and also nights from 7-11 p.m. on Wednesdays and Fridays. We'll have Ladies Day on Monday mornings when they'll go for half price. The fishing's been decent. We've been bringing in up to 10 nice grouper, a couple of nice-sized kings, a cobia, and some triggerfish, vermillion snapper and sea bass every trip. We had some beautiful muttons (snapper) one day. We've been catching the kings on frozen sardines and ballyhoo and live grunts."

FROM THE MISS FORT PIERCE, (464-4828) party (head) boat docking at the Fort Pierce Marina, Rita Fasano: "We're back to seven days a week, Dick, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. every day except Friday when we go from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday is our Ladies Day when ladies and children under 13 go for only $10. We now have Capt. Ron Lane helping Capt. Larry (Fasano). It's been decent, up and downish days. We had a 33 lb. (33-0) grouper on Saturday that won first place in the Treasure Coast Blue Water Open. Dolphin are starting to show up. Vermillions (snapper) and sea bass are best. They've been going east and northeast, mostly, from the Fort Pierce Inlet."

ELLEN LEBRON, from the D&M Bait and Tackle Shop at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 just north of Stuart: "Fishing is picking up here, and it's much the best on an outgoing tide, like from Wednesday this week from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. We are getting live shrimp again after two weeks. The fish are really biting on clams. The Roosevelt is back in business again, after all those dreary weeks of nothing. I understand there are plenty of kings in the Kingfish Hole just south of the St. Lucie Inlet. Tell the folks we've got fish again. Louis Carter caught a 12-0 black drum, 2 spadefish and 4 mangrove snapper on frozen shrimp; Willie Chapman, 3 drum to 13-0, clams; John Williams, 3 mangrove snapper, 4 sand perch, a 3-0 trout and a 3-0 drum on frozen shrimp."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "I haven't got very much for you, Dick. We've been out of shrimp most of the time. Maybe next week we'll have a better report. Thanks for calling."

TOM STEWART from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "Trout in the river seems to be the best bet this week. The surf is a little weedy, just a few whiting there and not much else. The trout in the Indian River continue to be excellent, up to 9 and 10 lbs. Live shrimp are best for trout, when you can find them. Trout touts, mirrolures and gold Tony-spoons are good too, if you can use them and make them look like bait moving through the water. There are a few small snook in the St. Lucie River around the Palm City Bridge and in the C-24 canal. Bridge fishing is fair. Willie Chapman caught a 62-0 black drum from the Frank Waldo Bridge catwalk last Friday night, but that's the only good report we've had on bridge fishing, except that we've sold a lot of clams lately and that usually means a lot of anglers are after drum. Some sand perch and sheepshead are being caught from the Jensen Causeway. There are really big schools of mullet in the river now. This would be a good time to cast net, debone and freeze some mullet for trolling this summer when a shortage in ballyhoo is predicted."

The Nook's log: Paul Phoenix, a 7-8 trout, tout, river; Hal Kelsey and Tom Deodata, 18 trout to 8-8, 7M27 mirrolure, just north of Walton Road on the west bank; Pete Colvin, a 9-12 trout, 7M21 mirrolure, wading; George Leudke, 3 trout to 5-0, mirrolure, near Nettles Island; Charlie Kessler and Johnny Crawford, 6 trout to 2-8 (like peas in a pod, Johnny says), live shrimp and pigfish, on the flats near the Big Mud Creek dropoff; Ralph Warren, an 8-12 trout, Ryan's popper, Herman's Bay; Charlie Areni and Charlie Bryant, 21 trout, touts, flats north of the power plant; Pat and Barry Noll, 4 channel bass to 7-0 and 2 trout, mirrolures, Walton Road (west bank).

DAVE LAMB, from Jensen Bait and Tackle: "It wasn't a bad week at all, Dick, considering that the shrimp were in and out, mostly out. You can look at our log and see just how good it was."

Lamb's log: Hank Ziegler, a 32-0 snook, live mullet, Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge; Dave and Dale Bateman, Ed Cordez and Dave Dipesa, a 6 ft. sail, 3 kings to 14-0 and 2 small dolphin, ballyhoo, 200 ft. N.E. of the SL Inlet; Wayne Kendall and John Fenno, a 13-0 cobia and 18 red snapper to 10-0, 70 ft., S. of the SL Inlet, bonito and squid; Jay Shank, 4 trout to 7-8, live shrimp, flats N. of Herman's Bay; Bob Thompson, 22 whiting, 6 croakers, clams, Jensen Beach surf; Bill Tillman, a 10-0 snook, 2 trout to 4-0, live shrimp, Cross Roads; John Snyder, 12 whiting, 2 croakers and a 2-8 pompano, clams and sand fleas, the Mudhole just south of the Oceana condo; Jeff Keppert, 8 trout to 5-0 and a 3-0 mangrove snapper, live shrimp, Walton Road; Jeff Ianeri, a 5-0 flounder, fishing with live shrimp right behind Jensen Bait and Tackle.

"WHERE THE LIVIN'S EASY" could be the caption for this photo of Lola Brown (right) and Jean Cameron of Hutchinson Island, fishing in style from the south side of the Jensen Causeway. They just fish for enjoyment, sunning and reading the hours away. If they do catch anything, they give it away to nearby anglers. Their car with an ice chest in the trunk, is close by, to add the final touch to gracious fishing ala Cameron-Brown. (Dick Lundin photo)

WANT TO IMPROVE SALTWATER SPORTFISHING? Why not join the Martin County Anglers Club, a service club actively devoted to this end, and a strong supporter of the Florida League of Anglers? At the same time, if you aren't already a member of the FLA, join up now and become a part of an organization representing you and all of the other recreational fishermen in the state. All it'll cost you is $5 for a membership and you can join by picking up an application blank at one of the area bait and tackle shops. To make it easier for you, The Mirror will print an application blank on the Outdoor Page next week. Join up and help out!

ED GIERING of San Diego and Phyllis Leber from New Jersey were enjoying the sun and doing some fun fishing out on the Jensen Causeway's wooden pier when this three-pound jack crevalle struck Ed's bait and caused considerable commotion before he hauled it up only to find it was "only" a jack. They released it carefully and kept fishing, hoping for the flounder they first thought the jack was. (Dick Lundin photo)

Looking for a honey hole?

SPOTTED SEATROUT CONTINUE TO BE THE ANGLER'S BEST BET THIS WEEK. Fish for them around the power plant on the grass flats in Herman's Bay and off Big Mud Creek just to the north of the plant, using live shrimp if you can get them, or trout touts, mirrolures or gold Tony Accetta spoons – if you know how to use them so that the trout think they're alive and good to eat. Some of these trout will tip the scales from 7 to 9 lbs., but a lot of them are under the legal limit of 12 inches. Wading is best, but you can catch them from a boat nearly as well.

BLACK DRUM aren't everyone's bag because they tend to coarsen up a bit over five pounds, but the drum fishing in the St. Lucie River at the Roosevelt Bridge has been good on an afternoon outgoing tide for fishermen using clams for bait. Clams are in short supply most places because of the sudden demand, so get yours early if you plan to head for the Roosevelt between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, or a little later on Thursday.

IT WASN'T EASY getting all these folks together on the bandstand at the Jensen Causeway, but big Frank Blalock, seventh from the left standing, herded them up there for a group shot. They include members from the Port St. Lucie Chapter of NARFE as well as invited guests from the Fort Pierce and Martin County NARFE chapters, picnicking together on the Causeway, an annual event for the Port St. Lucie chapter.

Sandpiper Bay Men to meet the press in golf tourney

Designed for the purpose of introducing members of the press to members of the Sandpiper Bay Men's Golf Association, President Robert Wilson and Tournament Chairman Jim Healy have scheduled a "Meet and Beat the Press Day" Thursday, June 26th at the Saints 18-hole champion ship course.

This inaugural event will test the Sandpipers against members of the press whose scores will be the target for the field. Representing the press are Dick Campbell, publisher of the Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach Mirror newspapers; Dick Landin, Mirror outdoor editor; Bob Aggelo of the Stuart News Sports Department; Dwight DeBolt of the Ft. Pierce News Tribune; and Mike Sandy, free lance sports columnist for the papers mentioned.

The day's play will be a full handicap basis and it is likely that few of the Sandpipers will be able to "beat the press" as all mentioned members of the Fourth Estate have been working on their game under the watchful eyes of area pros.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

The junior tennis camp is in full swing at the Plantation, and I couldn't wait for my grandsons to arrive from Texas to join the fun and for me to see if they inherited any strokes from their grandfather. Well somewhere along the line I seem to have forgotten their ages or thought they would be much bigger. Aaron is only 4 and Ryan 2. After the first swing of the heavy headed racket, Connie and I made reservations at Disney World for this past weekend.

I feel like I just finished a tough five setter, 10, 8, in the tiebreaker. Only you grandparents know how tough that trip is. Fun, yes but very tough on good legs and feet, and trying to say and do the right thing for the kids all or even part of the time made it a little harder yet. And when you start getting tired, the kids are also tiring to a point of crying and wanting everything, and it seems you can't do the right thing no matter what.

Well, Anita, Husband Jim Greeve, Aaron and Ryan had a great time and saw almost everything and Connie and I enjoyed watching the expressions when they came face to face with Mickey and Minnie and Pluto, the Three Little Pigs, the Wolf and all those other lovable characters. As Jim said, they will be telling their friends about it for a long long time.

So what's this got to do with tennis? Not very much at all but I would like you to remember these two kids in about two or three more years when I really go to work on their tennis. Also I could mention that very little tennis activity is going on up there. We never saw anyone using the courts at Disney World and or two other Clubs in the area. So I could say that Indian River Plantation Tennis Club is really jumping now and even more so this coming week-end when the Lipton Mixed Doubles tourney gets under way. You still have time to enter, so come on down.

June 26 will be the deadline for entries in the Martin County Championships, so don't delay there either.

Monday morning I called Editor Dick Campbell to tell him I was still at Disney World and he said "no problem"; I don't know exactly what that means, but I have a problem writing after the long week-end, the many stops and the trip home. The kids fell asleep about 30 minutes from Stuart, but I understand that is par for the course. Next week I can give you all the results from the Mixed Tourney and some highlights of interesting matches.

Flowering tree seeds are offered

Yellow flowered trees are highly popular now for street planting in all parts of Florida.

The snapdragon tree (Gmelina Arborea) from India with rich brown blossoms spattered with gold, blooms in March. A spray of its flowers in a bronze vase was on the tricolor in one flower shop.

The Gold tree (Tabebuia argentea) from Paraguay, that covers itself with golden flowers against the silvery green foliage, is highly popular all over Florida through April and May. The Cuban pink trumpet (Tabebuia Pallida), a related tree covers itself several times each summer with pretty pink blossoms.

The Golden shower tree (Cassia fistula) which made Hawaii famous for beauty, blooms through June and July, with hanging clusters of golden blossoms.

Free seed of any of these trees is available now from the Flowering Tree Man, Box 107, Stuart Fl. 33494, but you pick one and leave some of the seeds for other folks. Send stamp for return mailing.

IRP summer tennis program in high gear

The tennis program at Indian River Plantation Resort is going strong for the summer. Besides the many clinics and evenings events offered to adults, a comprehensive training camp for juniors is now in session. Quality development for beginners, intermediates and advanced players is stressed by tennis director and USPTA pro Tom Falkenburg. The tennis program runs from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Included will be films on tennis greats and a daily swim break in the pool or ocean. Call the Tennis Department at Indian River for more information.

The Lighted Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Tournament to be held at IRP on June 21 and 22, will have some prominent players from the Stuart-Martin County area entered. Heading the list will be Dr. Jim Gressinckle and his daughter Beth, who have done very well over the last few years in Florida Father-Daughter tournaments. Stiff competition will come from Bill and Scott Oughterson, who will be playing with Judy Woods and Candy Johnson respectively. The Oughterson family, lead by T.T. Oughterson, who is reputed to be the founder of tennis in Martin County, has a history of fielding strong teams in county tournaments and either couple could make it to the nechanals at Sawgrass.

JUNE 25, 1990, 26 PAGES

FIRE CHIEF Joe Luciano applies glue to strips of paper used to build fireworks displays. A gala fireworks show will be lighting up the sky over the Jensen Beach Causeway on July 4th, sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Local firemen have been making fireworks displays for years, helping to cut down on the expense of the show. Still, it takes a lot of money to put it on, and contributions are needed. If you haven't sent yours in yet, make your check out to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Fireworks Fund and mail it to the Chamber at 1910 N.E. Commerical Street, Jensen Beach.

Chamber has less than half of cash needed for July 4 show

Less than half of the money needed to put on the annual Fourth of July fireworks show at the Jensen Beach Causeway has been raised so far.

Each year the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce sponsors what is considered one of the best fireworks shows on the East Coast. The cost of the show is about $5,000, and as of Monday, only $2,167 had been raised, according to Chamber executive director Dennis Doyle.

The show will go on this year. Chamber directors have guaranteed that by transferring funds from their general account to the fireworks fund account. But without more donations from the public, Chamber President Dick Campbell says the future of the annual fireworks show is in jeopardy.

Last year donations were slow to come in, and that has been the case again this year. Should donations not cover the expenses this year, there could be no Fourth of July fireworks show next ye- Campbell said.

The cham has started a letter campaign to seek funds this year. Letters requesting donations are being mailed out with bank statements from the Jensen Beach Bank. Doyle says the letters early response to the letter campaign has been encouraging, but that plenty more donations are needed.

Regardless of the fate of next year's show, this year's should be outstanding. Bill Yurillo and his crew of volunteers have been busy making many of the fireworks, including ground displays that will feature a firetruck, firemen and house on fire, a turtle, an American flag, a giant wheel, and a UFO display. Additionally, there will be loads of aerial fireworks, including a 210-shot finale.

The fireworks show will begin around dusk, but the July Fourth events on the Jensen Beach Causeway will begin much sooner. At noon, the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club will begin serving food from their concession stand on the causeway, and at 1 p.m. there will be a flag raising ceremony by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10066 of Jensen. At 1:30 p.m. the Jensen Beach Lions Club will sponsor foot races for kids, and at 2 p.m. the causeway bridge spans will be raised. They will remain up until the fireworks show ends around 11 p.m., so motorists planning trips to the island should use the Stuart Causeway after 2 p.m.

The Jensen Optimist Club will have a watermelon eating contest at 3 p.m. and the Chamber of Commerce will sponsor inner tube races at 4 p.m.

The Jensen Beach Fire Department will conduct a greased pole climb at 5 p.m.

In addition to the Kiwanis Club concession stand, the Jensen Moose Lodge will also have a concession stand and will sell kielbasa sausage and beer.

The Sheriff's Department will beef up patrols for the event, as about 10,000 spectators are expected to take part in the day's activities and watch the fireworks show at night.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the fireworks fund can make checks payable to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Fireworks Fund and mail it to the chamber office at 1910 N.E. Commercial St., Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457.

Sewall's Point to consider bike path

The Town of Sewall's Point is well on it's way toward beginning work on its long standing project, the North Sewall's Point Road bike path.

The only remaining question is who and how much. A special meeting will be held Wednesday, June 25 at 7:30 p.m. to determine the answers to those questions. Presently, town engineer, Richard Hellstrom is meeting with the two contracting firms, Mosley and Son, and Conner Concrete to negotiate final costs. His findings will be voiced at Wednesday's meeting.

The town, however, is not committed to either of these two firms to do the work on the path. Commissioners are looking into the possibility of contracting with Martin County for the use of their work crews. Presently, they are busy completing the sidewalk located in Snug Harbor.

Initially, the town board planned on constructing the sidewalk in phases of $10,000 increments, but there is now talk of additional money being allocated the project. Approximately $60,000 of other earmarked money in the town budget looks like it may not be used for their appropriate projects by the end of the fiscal year on September 30th. This would allow the town to transfer the funds to complete the much-needed bike path in a much shorter period of time.

Mayor Ed Gluckler, long-time advocate of the bike path, feels the residents of Sewall's Point are in strong favor of the issue and intends to complete the project as soon as possible. Additionally, the majority of commissioners support Gluckler and, in fact, used this issue on their campaign platforms. Commissioner Clinton Towl, still in the hospital recovering from surgery, remains skeptical of the path, claiming it will bring additional litter and people into the town.

A town workshop meeting normally scheduled for Wednesday, July 2, has been cancelled.

Lots of people, few turtles at Jensen Chamber watches

Although the people attending the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce sea turtle watches have been pretty cooperative this year, officials organizing the watches have met with one slight problem: Mother Nature.

"The turtles just aren't coming out of the ocean to nest on cue," quipped turtle watch guide Daniel Sasdowsky.

Since June, during the summer months, when sea turtles crawl out of the sea at night to dig nests and deposit eggs in the sand along the local beaches. But they do so on their own time schedule, and that hasn't matched that of humans at times.

During the first three days of turtle watches, June 12-14, guides reported that there were plenty of turtles to be viewed the first night, but few the second and third nights. They speculated that high tides, leaving little beach sand for turtle nests between the ocean and dune vegetation, may have been a factor.

The second set of watches were held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Sasdowsky said on Thursday a couple of fresh tracks of turtle crawls were spotted, but no turtles. On Friday and Saturday nights, turtles were spotted and viewers got a good look at them laying their eggs. "On Friday night, we had started down the beach from the Park-n-Fish beach strip when one came up behind us. Someone spotted it and the people got a good show without having to do much walking," Sasdowsky said.

That has not always been the case though. The procedure is for guides to meet viewers at Jensen Public Beach, then to break up into smaller groups. Then guides will go out alone in search of nesting turtles and flash back a signal with a light when one is spotted. Then the crowd comes forward. This way, it keeps crowds off the beach until a turtle is spotted nesting. That helps prevents scaring the skittish turtles away. Once they begin laying eggs, the turtles are oblivious to humans and it is safe to gather around them to watch.

"We have had good turnouts all nights so far. It's too bad some haven't gotten to see turtles, but the people have to remember this is not a Disney World attraction and the turtles don't come out on cue. We've had some people get discouraged and leave, but had weekend we had an 80 year old woman with asthma walk about a mile down the beach to watch a turtle lay her eggs. Her 60 year old daughter came along too," Sasdowsky said.

Originally, those who registered with the Chamber of Commerce to participate in a turtle watch would meet on their assigned night at Jensen Public Beach at 10 p.m. However, because of the problem with high tides, the meeting times are being changed to suit the tides, and watchers will be informed of the meeting time when registering.

Watches will be conducted each Thursday, Friday and Saturday night through the end of July, with the exception of July 4th, and there is no registration fee. The registration is to control the size of the crowds.

The Naturalist Society of the Florida Institute of Technology Jensen Beach campus is supplying guides for the watches. The Society has had some colorful turtle watch t-shirts made and is selling them at watches. They are also on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office on Commercial Street.

TURTLE WATCH T-SHIRTS like the one Cathie Farago is showing above, are on sale at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce and from guides at turtle watches. The shirts were made by the Naturalist Society at the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology to raise funds for Society projects.

Feds grant I-95 okay

As expected, Federal officials granted approval last week to a Design Application Report for the "missing link" of I-95 from Palm Beach Gardens to the south St. Lucie County line.

The action is, according to Jensen Beach resident Robert Hall, a member of the I-95 Blue Ribbon Citizen's Task Force, "a major milestone."

William Fowler, head of the Fort Lauderdale district office of the state Department of Transportation, made the announcement of the federal approval. "With approval on location and on the number of interchanges, we can now proceed with the design phase while other staff members acquire the needed right-of-way in anticipation of beginning construction within the next two years."

Back in February, the state DOT met with the citizen's task force and presented a schedule that the state hoped to keep in getting the missing link built before federal funds for interstate projects run out in 1996. The schedule called for completion of the 30-mile stretch of superhighway in Martin County in 1995. The federal design application report approval last week came a few days ahead of the Monday, June 23, date set as a goal for the approval in the master schedule.

Hall recently expressed hope that with diligent efforts, the road can be finished ahead of schedule. And, to back up that hope, he sent a five page letter to Bill Rose, state Secretary of Transportation, to make suggestions for speeding up I-95 progress.

Hall notes that based on a conservation estimate of rising land values, the cost of the right-of-way for the missing link will probably increase $375,000 per month. He says finishing the job ahead of schedule should save the state that sum for each month that can be shaved off the right-of-way purchase time. He noted even greater savings could be realized on actual construction costs if the job can be finished ahead of schedule, and recommended overtime work by DOT officials to speed up the project. He also suggested not waiting for one phase of the project to be completed before starting another.

The DOT has estimated that the total construction cost for the missing link will be $328.3 million, that engineering and contingency costs will be $20.8 million, and that right-of-way costs will be $29.4 million, for a total project cost of $188.5 million. With inflation, however, those figures could be higher.

The state will pay for 10 per cent of the cost, with the federal government paying 90 per cent of the cost. Once the missing link is completed, the superhighway will run continuously from Maine to Miami.

Citizens show pride by pitching in for JB Center

Community pride is alive and well in Jensen Beach.

That's the discovery Mirror ad salesperson Mary Meissner made last week when she announced plans to spruce up the old Jense Beach Community Center on Commerical Street.

Shortly after The Mirror ran a story about the project, Meissner received a call from Ginny Scranton of Joan's Beauty Salon in Jensen. Scranton had a check for $100 for the community center project.

A few hours later, Meissner stopped in the Paint Shed in Jensen and owner Fred Keller pledged to donate Benjamin Moore Paint for the center. And on Monday, a $100 check from Anita Wacha was received for the fund.

Mirror editor and publisher and Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce president Dick Campbell made arrangements for the chamber to keep a special account for donations for the center project. Anyone wishing to make a contribution should make checks payable to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Community Center Fund and mail them to the chamber office at 1910 N.E. Commercial Street, Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457, or drop them off at The Mirror office at 1769 N.E. Sunview Road in Jensen. Donations are tax deductible.

Money isn't all that has been donated. Last Sunday, a crew of nine volunteers showed up at the old downtown landmark to donate some elbow grease.

The volunteers used scrapers and wire brushes to chip off old paint on the front of the building, while other volunteers weeded the ground around the front of the building and trimmed the long-neglected plants. It was a slow, tedious and very sweaty process, but some real progress was made on the front of the center. However, before much more can be accomplished, ladders or scaffolding is needed so volunteers can reach the upper portion of the structure. Meissner says she is hopeful of receiving loans of ladders or scaffolding, and added that she also welcomes donations of any other equipment that would be helpful.

Anyone who would like to volunteer some labor is also more than welcome to do so. The crew that worked on the center last Sunday is planning to put in some more time soon, and Meissner says she will be happy to coordinate efforts to get volunteers organized into groups that can work together. To volunteer, call The Mirror at 334-4333 and ask for her.

"The building still looks shabby, but we are making progress and the responses from the community has been gratifying so far. Jensen Beach is a special sort of place and it's good to know we have citizens who take pride in living here," Meissner said.

The volunteers who worked on the center last Sunday are: Meissner; Liz, Bill and Scott Brothers; Dana Phaneuf, Joyce Artrip, Robby Lancraft, and Bob Fryer.

Two more train cars leave FEC tracks in Jensen Beach

BY BOB FRYER

Two days after 20 Florida East Coast Railway train cars jumped the track in eastern Beach, two more train cars left the rails in the same vicinity.

The second derailment occurred shortly after 8:30 p.m. last Thursday as a slow-moving northbound train was passing by the wreckage from the Tuesday, June 17, derailment.

The day following the first derailment, FEC workers installed a temporary set of tracks and a backlog of trains, many of them with more than 100 cars, began moving through town again. The trains moved slowly over the temporary tracks, and due to the length of the trains, railroad crossings were frequently blocked for long periods of time.

But the slow movement of the trains was apparently not enough to keep two cars from leaving the track Thursday night. The cars left the rails at different points along the track. Several tank cars, as well as a number of apparently loaded boxcars and some flatcars loaded with semi truck trailers, were in between the two errant cars. However, in both cases, the cars that left the tracks remained upright and didn't travel far from the rails.

The forward wheels of a boxcar were only inches off the track at a point about 100 yards north of the Skyline Drive crossing, on a section of track that was not part of the temporary tracks. About a quarter mile south of the Skyline Drive crossing, a flatcar with two semi trailers aboard was off the rails. Again, only the forward section of wheels was off, but this time the wheels were about a foot from the rails and deep depressions about the length of a train car were burrowed in the trackbed.

Within about half an hour, FEC workers arrived and began the process of putting the cars back on the tracks. Two large metal objects which a worker called a "trainlift" were clamped on the sides of the track, then after the wheel brakes were freed, the errant boxcar was pulled forward. When the wheels got to the trainlift, they rode up on top of it and followed grooves that put them back on the track. A similar procedure was followed for the second car and the train moved out around 1 a.m. Friday.

No statements from FEC officials have been released yet as to the cause of the first or second degailment. In fact, when this reporter contacted FEC Sheriff James Holt that an FEC spokesman had been hard to contact, he quipped, "You think you're telling me something I don't already know. We haven't been able to get much information out of them either."

According to witnesses, the first derailment occurred when a northbound train was moving rapidly around a curve about a quarter mile south of the Skyline Drive crossing. The track in that area had just been worked on by maintenance crews, and one FEC worker speculated that the tracks may have "pinched" in the heat.

In the case of both derailments, there were no injuries and, aside from some trees felled by careening train cars and a smashed garbage can, there was no property damage.

By Monday morning, the derailed cars from the first mishap had been removed, and based on the speed with which the temporary set of tracks was installed, permanent tracks to replace those destroyed in the first accident should be installed soon. However, no specific date for installation of those tracks was available from FEC officials.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha of Jensen Beach said he was concerned about the long delays of road traffic due to the slow-moving trains passing along the temporary tracks. He noted the trains were tying up traffic and could be a real problem for emergency vehicles needing to cross the tracks. He said he asked the county attorney to look into ways to shorten the time the crossings are blocked.

SECOND DERAILMENT – Just two days after 20 cars in a northbound Florida East Coast Railway train jumped the track in Jensen Beach, there was another derailment. The Thursday evening mishap only involved two cars, and another boxcar and a train car with two semi truck trailers on it had a set of wheels go about a foot off the track. FEC workers got both cars back on the tracks in about four hours. The boxcar jumped the track about 100 yards north of the Skyline Drive crossing and the other train car jumped a temporary track south of that crossing, adjacent to the Tuesday, June 17, 20-car derailment. # School board expected to give bike easement

The Martin County School Board was expected to have agreed Tuesday night to grant a 10-foot easement in front of the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach for a bicycle path.

The meeting occurred after The Mirror deadline, so results of it are not available. However, the day before the meeting, School Superintendent V. James Navitsky said he expected there would be no problem in getting the board's approval for the bike path.

The request for the easement was made by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. The chamber board has made it their top priority this year to get a bike path along Indian River Drive from Florida Institute of Technology to the Jensen Beach Causeway. So far, about half of the needed right-of-way has been pledged for the path and efforts are underway to secure the rest of it. The land in front of the Environmental Studies Center, east of the road, is to be used for part of the bike path.

"I see no reason why the school board would object to granting the easement. We can't use that land for anything anyway and the bike path is certainly needed. It will make it safer for bike riders and I intend to recommend that the board grant the easement," Navitsky said.

COMMUNITY PRIDE runs deep in Jensen Beach. That's what Mirror ad salesperson Mary Meissner, left, found out when she began organizing efforts to spruce up the Jensen Beach Community Center. Response came quickly when Fred Keller, right, owner of the Paint Shed in Jensen, pledged to supply paint for the center. Keller says he hopes others in the community will also pitch in to help.

DONATION—When Ginny Scranton, owner of Joan's Beauty Shop in Jensen Beach, learned of a project to spruce up the appearance of the Jensen Beach Community Center, she was first to come forward with a donation to aid the project. # Time draws near to make funding plea

If you're one of those who gripes that there are no county funds for your pet project, the time to speak out is drawing near.

Preliminary hearings on the 1980-81 county budget will begin this Friday.

Martin County administrator Ed Strube said the schedule for the hearings is still not firmed up, but supplied a tentative one to The Mirror and noted that anytime a citizen wants to make a pitch for county funding for a project, the county is willing to listen.

The commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Friday to hear Property Appraiser Augie Maffregot discuss the recently approved state legislation concerning property appraisals. "He will tell us what effect the bill will have on appraisals and fill us in on the new deadlines we will have to meet to be in compliance with the law," Strube said.

The commission will meet for half a day on Monday, beginning at 9 a.m. adn the Animal Rescue League fund request will be considered.

On Tuesday the commission will begin at 9 a.m. and meet all day to receive presentations from all the constitutional officers. These include the Sheriff, Tax Collector, Supervisor of Elections and Clerk of the Circuit Court. County departmental budgets will also be considered.

On Wednesday, the commission will again begin its meeting at 9 a.m. and will hear requests from various agencies the county provides partial funding for. The Council on Aging, Congregate Meals program, and Mental Health Board are among the requests to be heard.

During the year, local citizens have made calls for funds for bike paths, for more recreation space and for better roads. If you'd like to follow up on those items, the time to speak out is during budget hearings. A call to the administrator to have a time scheduled to make your plea probably wouldn't hurt.

Strube pointed out that the commission will have more budget deliberations after hearing the preliminary requests, but said the schedule for those is not set yet.

YOUNG ANGLERS—These children, participants in the Indian River Plantation summer recreation program, went on a fishing outing last week with local expert Tony Battaglia. ## Jensen has no hurricane plan

Jensen Beach merchants will be asked to spur hurricane preparedness on Monday when the monthly forum is held at the holiday Inn Oceanside at 7:30 a.m.

Bill Jackson, disaster preparedness chairman of the Red Cross, will be the Chamber of Commerce guest speaker, and offers the suggestion that Jensen Beach "needs to get going now" on an organized plan of action for a hurricane.

Jensen Beach is the only community in Martin County that does not have such a plan, while Stuart, Hobe Sound, Palm City and Port Salerno areas do, according to Jackson.

The coffee meeting, open to members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 7:30 a.m. The program will start at 8:05 and end at 9 a.m. on Monday morning, according to Dennis Doyle, executive director.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

Backache frequently goes along with tension, fatigue, and irritability during premenstrual period. One cause is muscular imbalance due to spinal structural abnormalities. Another is weak muscles in the back and abdomen, many times as a result of previous strains or other injuries long since forgotten.

We at the Webb Clinic frequently use nutritional aids to help reduce premenstrual problems with excellent results. The blood calcium level often drops before menstruation and taking properly balanced calcium-magnesium along with certain other vitamins and minerals reduces backache, cramps and irritability. Examination can reveal any musculoskeletal abnormalities and nutritional deficiences.

For a consultation and examination by a staff doctor, call Webb Clinic, P.A.

Back to Archie

I know dog days aren't officially here yet, but it feels like it. Between the heat and the worn out, warmed over ickiness of politics, especially at this particular point in the deadly quadrennial, the only vacation spot seems to be the Last Resort.

And, as invariably happens in a presidential political year, my Last Resort is to turn off the television, throw out the news magazines and retreat to the comfortable philosophies of my old friend Archie the Cockroach.

If you don't know Archie, you should. He was the brainchild of the late belated Don Marquis, a small highbrow of an insect who inhabited Marquis' typewriter back in the Thirties, and did most of the writer's columns for him.

The reincarnation of a very likeable poet, Archie consorted with the good guys and bad guys of the vermin world, and told their stories objectively, from the bug's eye point of view. And most of those philosophies made more sense than the ones issuing from Washington or whatever political headquarters so happens to be at the time.

Archie's first love and baneful beholder was an alley cat named Mehitabel, the "trasismogrification" of Cleopatra. Mehitabel thought, and Archie as "a queer little insect who" wheedles and begs, with too many morals and too many legs," but a dear friend for all of that. Much of Archie's wisdom was put to typewriter for or about Mehitabel.

As you Archie-philes well know, it's a tough job for a cockroach to manipulate a typewriter. He had to get on top of the carriage, HURL himself at the keys, and thereby tell his tales. He couldn't manage capitals or punctuation, so his imparted wisdom was a bit hard to read. So in quoting him, I'm throwing in a few capitals to make him more readable while, hopefully, not destroying any of the flavor. But quote him I must, if for no other reason than to counteract the effect of the trite and trifling tedium dripping from the lips of belaboring seat seekers.

For sheer escape, I always turn to some of the more comforting maxims of Archie:

"If you get gloomy just take an hour off and sit and think how much better this world is than hell
Of course it won't cheer you up much if you expect to go there"

"If monkey glands did restore your youth what would you do with it question mark
Just what you did before interrogation point."

"Yes I thought so exclamation point"

"Procrastination is the art of keeping up with yesterday"

"Every cloud has its silver lining but it is sometimes a little difficult to get it to the mint."

"Prohibition makes you want to cry into your beer and desires you the beer to cry into"

"I heard a couple of fleas talking the other day Says one come to lunch with me
I can lead you to a pedigreed dog
Says the other one
I don't care what a dog's pedigree may be
Safety first is my motto
What I want to know is whether he has got a muzzle on Millions,yes and bums taste about alike to me"

"Insects have their own point of view about civilization
A man thinks he amounts to a great deal but to a flea or a mosquito a human being is merely something good to eat."

"The bees got their governmental system settled millions of years ago
but the human race is still groping."

Imitation, they say, is the sincerest form of flattery, and Carol Channing and David Wayne proved it, some years back, when they did a musical comedy form of Archie and Mehitabel. And probably the best and most profound thing, it is their version of Don Marquis' take of the Moth and the flame:

"I met a bug the other night who loved to play with fire.
He was trying to break into a 100-watt bulb
To fry himself on a wire.
I said to him if you keep that up
Your years will be painfully few.
Do you play with fire 'cause you like it
Or because it's the conventional thing
For moths to do?
He looked at me all starry-eyed
And he fluttered his wings as he softly sighed
"Did you ever see the secret heart of a flame?
How many people have ever seen the secret heart of a flame?
We moths would rather see beauty once and then just cease to be
Than never know any beauty at all and live an eternity."
We wad up our life
Into one little ball
And into the flame
We shoot it all.
Into the flame we fly
What a wonderful way to die!"
And with that, the little blighter
Threw himself into the business end of a patented windproof lighter.
Goodbye!
And peace! no little blighter.
Boss, I know it's silly, I guess,
But there's one thing I can't deny
I wish there were something
In this world I wanted
As much as he wanted
To fry.

Turtle watch help

The hard-working young men of the Florida Institute of Technology Naturalist Society have found a project that they feel is both worth-while and educational: the annual turtle watches in Jensen Beach.

Last week the first series in their Thursday-Friday-Saturday format was held. The first night they found several turtles. The second night there was one turtle that changed her mind and went back to sea without building a nest and laying eggs. The third night drew a blank, due to high tides.

The Naturalist Society has chosen to offer three nights of turtle watches each week, with up to 50 persons taken on the hunt. The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce is handling the registration of the turtle watchers.

But the young men need help.

Due to the lack of communications equipment (walkie-talkies), the FIT students are resorting to flashlight signals. However, condo-dwellers and sightseers see the signals and turn on their flashlights, thus confusing the signals.

The Naturalists need two walkie-talkies to communicate their findings back and forth. If some public spirited citizen would like to donate several walkie-talkies to the society for use during the turtle watches, contact The Mirror and we will get them to the hard working volunteers. Phone 334-4333.

Speak up, Sewall's Point

For a number of years now, the state of Florida has had a Government in the Sunshine Law, requiring elected officials to refrain from discussing governmental business outside of public meetings. It has proved to be a good law, and the vast majority of elected officials have abided by the law.

We have no reason to believe that the law has not been upheld by the Sewall's Point Town Council. The council members seem to be dedicated public servants.

But at a recent council meeting, we experienced a problem that seems to negate the spirit, though not the letter, of the law. The problem was that council members spoke so softly during the town council meeting that those beyond the first row of seats were having a tough time hearing them. We understand this was not an isolated event, but a rather common one.

The purpose of conducting governmental business at public meetings is to let the public know what is going on, and, hopefully, to foster public input in governmental proceedings. But if the public can't hear the council members express their thoughts and actions, the public can't very well provide that input.

In a town known for it's well-to-do residents, we would think the council could afford to invest in a bubble set of microphones and speakers.

In addition to speaking up at their meetings, there is more the commissioners could do to show their support for the spirit of the Government in the Sunsine law. In many cities, and Port St. Lucie comes to mind as a prime example, reporters and members of the public who request it are furnished with copies of documents which council members have before them as they conduct city business. It is a tremendous aid in helping the reporters and members of the public understand the issues being considered. It is also quite a help later when the reporters write their stories on the meetings. It lends itself to more accurate reporting of the governmental proceedings and to a better understanding of the facts upon which the elected officials based their decisions.

Reproduction of the documents may cost a little more, but we feel it is a small price to pay for a better informed public.

Sewall's Point could do a public service by investing in a better sound system and making extra copies of the documents considered at the town meetings.

Friday the 13th it began

Usually I keep the embarassing things to myself. There is a cardinal rule about not making fun of anyone but yourself when writing an column. This is an exception.

We were having our usual morning coffee when Tom Falkenburg, resident pro at Indian River Plantation, and Mirror columnist on tennis, plopped himself down and grabbed a cup of coffee. He was smiling.

On the way to coffee, Tom had run out of gas in his motorcycle. He had run out the day before, but had switched over to the auxiliary tank and ignored a gas station until the thing went dead from lack of fuel.

"It's been going since July 13, Friday, and I'm not superstitious," he said. Then he poured forth the story.

By the time he got through, Peg Meissner and I were almost in tears.

He had been had gotten himself a 1986 Cadillac in mint condition. His daughter and family were coming to visit, so on Friday the 13th he got in the Caddy and started down to the airport in West Palm to pick them up.

The transmission fell out of the car a few miles down the road, so he returned to the house to change cars. He packed up the family at the airport and brought them back to the "helless" Falkenburg home.

First of all, the young kids were not housebroken. They went here and there, and were afterward barred from the living room and bedrooms, and then from the stairwells where the paint could not refuse the fingerprints.

"Our house was not constructed with kids in mind," Tom said. He added that the stairwells would need a complete coat of paint.

Then, the kids wanted to take a boat trip, so Tom got out the little $300 value boat he keeps. He hadn't used it for a year, so the battery was ruined. He got a battery from the car and put it in the boat. The outboard turned over the first time, and off they went.

They had a picnic that day, tied the boat up for the night, and then the rains came.

"It as a case of the good and bad news," Tom said. "The good news was that the boat was still tied to the dock. The bad news was that the boat was lying on the bottom of the Snug Harbor marina."

The seats and cushions were floating in the mangroves.

Tom pulled the boat around to the launching ramp, and laboriously hand-winched it up on the trailer to take it to a repair shop. When it reached the top of the trailer, the weight of a water filled boat crushed the trailer, splitting it in two.

"I called the marina repair shop and they fixed the boat," he said. "They must have known the $300 value of the boat, because they charged me $250 to fix the boat. That didn't include the battery."

All the time, Tom was smiling. I asked him why, and he said, "When you hear the rest of my story, you'll smile, too."

Tom came home and filled the refrigerator with beer. The next morning, Connie told him that there was a big puddle of water in front of the "frig". The warranty, it was learned, had just ended a few months before.

"I took it to the appliance shop. It was cheaper to buy a new refrigerator."

"Then, I got out the lawnmower. I hadn't used it for a few months, but when I started it, it sprung to life...and then died after 45 seconds. I took it to the repair shop. They fixed it. I took it home, and it started up right away. It died 45 seconds later.

"I took it back to the repair shop and told them that they had fixed it so that it did the same thing. They still have it, and I don't know what it will cost to fix it.

Falkenburg then went back to the courts to give a lesson. Connie called to tell him that the icemaker had broken, and they would need a new icemaker to the tune of $650.

That's about when the neighbor called him to tell him that he had better hurry home. A brush fire had sprung up near his home and the wind was blowing it across an empty lot toward the house.

"I hurried home and grabbed a hose. The electric was out, so I couldn't use the pump, but I strung hose across the lot from city water and was sprinkling the burning hedge when a reporter was fired up and asked me what was going on.

"Imagine. I'm fighting a fire and this guy is asking me who owns the house. I told him I was too busy, so he never did find out. It was my house and that's the way he printed the story.

Tom got out of that with 30-feet of hedge burned, three trees lost, soot and cinders burning the deck on the second level and holes burned in a new canvas awning he had just put up.

"I've got this little truck. It then laid down and died because of a ruptured transmission fluid line," he said, smiling.

I still couldn't imagine why he was smiling, and so, said, "But, why are you smiling?"

"I'm not superstitious. But, coming here to tell you this, I ran out of gas. What else can happen after Friday the 13th?"

Spiders don't bug me

"If you're going to live in Florida, you're going to have to learn to live with the bugs."

That's the line I used on Mary Meissner, Cathie Farago and Michelle Naspinski recently after I was called over to Mary and Cathie's place to rid their cottage of a large, and apparently pregnant, wolf spider.

Michelle had been visiting next door at Mary and Cathie's and, while sitting in their living room chatting, glanced at the ceiling. She spotted the spider, and within seconds, all three of them had screamed and dashed out the door to the front screen porch.

It happened around 11:30 p.m. and I was next door in my cottage, just drifting off to sleep.

The commotion they made woke me, but I just figured they were in a boisterous mood, bowling at each other's witticisms.

But then Mary came knocking on my door, and I quickly learned the source of the commotion. "You've got to come get that spider out of there. We're not going back in that room until you get him out," she said, going on about what a horrible, monsterous creature the spider was.

Mary and I have had numerous encounters seem moons. She hates them. I don't.

I've tried to tell her how harmless they are and that in all my years of life in Florida, I've never heard of any spiders attacking people. I've told her most every spider is non-poisonous and how they're great for controlling the mosquito population.

She's made requests in the past to have me kill spiders in her house, and I've refused those requests.

I used to have a wolf spider living in my apartment at Seminole Shores, and when I moved into the next apartment, I found it had hidden in a cardboard box and moved with me.

The spider lived in harmony with me. It ate mosquitoes and stayed out of the way. I made two more moves and wound up in my present place. In the last place before this one, Mary once threatened not to come over and visit if I was going to live with a spider, but I refused to do in my eight-legged pet.

I thought I'd left it behind when I moved next door to Mary, but days after I'd moved in I opened a styrofoam ice chest and it scurried out.

I saw it a few times after that, but haven't seen it in more than a month now. I even brought it a friend--a wolf spider I captured and removed from Mary and Cathie's place--but I haven't seen it lately either.

When I was called next door recently to remove the spider Michelle had spotted, I failed in my efforts to trap it in a container against the ceiling and feel bad that I may have harmed it before it dropped to the floor and disappeared. The fact that I found no corpse gave me hope that the spider survived, but I just don't know.

I did capture another one last week in Mary's medicine cabinet and removed the spider to a shed in the back yard that Mary never goes in.

With each spider incident, I've rubbed it in to Mary that they're beneficial and harmless, but I made an unfortunate statement to her and Cathie and Michelle when I tried to remove the pregnant spider. "If you can't get along with the bugs here, maybe you should go back North to live. Florida is a tropical place, and you'll just have to live with the bugs if you want to lay any sort of claim to being a Floridian," I told them.

Again, I told them about how spiders are good to have around because they eat mosquitoes.

But I think I'll lay off that line for awhile now. Problem is, for all my talk about having to live with bugs to become a native, I've never learned in 32 and a half years of life in Florida to get used to mosquitoes or noseums. They seem to seek me out and sting me even when others around aren't feeling the first bite. They drive me to distraction.

The worst part of it is that Mary is one of those who seem immune to their bites. Oh, maybe they bite her, but the bites just don't sting her like they do me.

The other day, when I fell victim to a miserable attack of mosquitoes and was complaining about how horrible they are, Mary chirped up and said, "Well, Bob, you better move North if you can't stand the bugs. You have no business in Florida if you can't learn to live with them."

Spiders may eat mosquitoes, but lately, I've been eating crow.

MORE ON COOPERATIVES

QUESTION: A few weeks ago you discussed the difference between a cooperative and a condominium. I have heard that just as the real estate industry rushed to offer condominiums as an alternative to the single-family home in the seventies, the big rush of the eighties could be into cooperatives. What do the experts think?

ANSWER: Many housing experts feel that cooperatives may be a very popular form of residential ownership in the early eighties.

As we pointed out here a few weeks ago, the cooperative form of ownership is obtained through buying stock in a cooperative housing corporation. The buyer gains possession of a unit through a proprietary lease from the corporation. There are several potential advantages to cooperative ownership. For example, when an existing apartment complex converts, the buyer can take advantage of any existing financing which is assumable at a favorable rate.

Another advantage is the increased possibility of the developers achieving a favorable capital gains rate as a result of the conversion.

Until recently, the big drawback in cooperatives has been the relative difficulty of financing the equity when buying or re-selling one.

But recent decisions by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board have made it possible for Federal Savings and Loan Associations to finance the equity in a cooperative with relatively high ratio loans. This represents a significant breakthrough. Other leaders will probably follow suit soon.

With the major obstacle to cooperatives removed, cooperatives may well be one of the housing booms of the eighties.

Sheriff bounces beach patrol ball

In spite of a recent wave of arrests at local beaches, Sheriff James Holt says if the public wants continuous beach patrols by deputies, they'll have to pay for it.

During last week's county commission meeting there was a discussion of recent vandalism incidents at the beach. Holt attended the meeting and said in the wake of the incidents, he had noted requests from other zones to make more frequent patrols of the beaches. However, he told commissioners that in order to have a deputy on the inland 24 hours a day, he would have to hire four more deputies and that their salaried and all the equipment and other expenses for the lawmen would come to about $100,000.

Holt said he would include four deputies for the inland in his budget request and that it would be up to county commissioners to decide if they feel the need for them is great enough to supply the funds.

Renegotiable loans expected to lure buyers with low rates

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

Heritage Federal Savings and Loan Association of Daytona Beach, with its local office in Fort St. Lucie, buttressed out other local lending institutions in the rating game Monday, when they made available their new renegotiable rate mortgage (RRM) at an interest rate of 11.75 percent.

The standard Heritage rate for an 80 percent fixed term mortgage loan is presently at 12.25 percent.

John H. Gallion, Heritage executive vice president for lending explained that the RRM's are renewable five-year notes, secured by a 30-year mortgage, and that the interest rate may increase or decrease at each renewal.

Any change in the interest rate, however, would be governed by a national index computed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which mandates that the rate cannot increase or decrease more than one half of one percent per year, or one and a half percent in the three year period between renegotiations.

The monthly principal and interest on the renegotiable rate mortgage would be constant for each three year term, and there is no prepayment penalty, according to Gallion.

"I think everyone is aware of the devastating effect recent high interest rates have had on the housing market and the general economy," said Gillion, "the new RRM will allow us to continue to provide mortgage funds to home buyers despite fluctuations in market rates, while we pay savers a good return."

Other loan institutions in the area have dropped their interest rates on mortgage loans in recent weeks, although Heritage is the first to institute a renegotiable rate mortgage.

First Federal Savings and Loan of Ft. Pierce lowered its interest rate on conventional 80 percent mortgages to 12 percent in late May, while the rate for 90 percent or higher financing dropped to 12¼ percent.

First Federal spokesman Richard Kayes said Tuesday that the worst is definitely over in regard to the rating game, although he confirmed that the loan institution would not drop below 12 percent as long as the volume of applications keeps up.

"We've had well over 200 applications since the first of the month," said Kayes, "and we've had a lot more approvals."

Mike Bollinger of Citizen's Federal Savings and Loan reported that that institution dropped its rate from 12¼ to 12⅛ percent two weeks ago, for 80 percent mortgages on owner-occupied dwellings.

Citizen's Federal is presently holding at 12½ percent and 12¾ percent for 90 percent and 95 percent financing respectively.

Bollinger said he has seen a noticeable increase in the number of applicants for mortgage loans, although he mentioned that many people have cut back spending in an attempt to pay old bills, rather than create new debts.

"Every little drop gets a few more people back in the market," said Bollinger, "it has certainly picked up somewhat."

Although he could not say where interest rates will be when they "bottom out," Bollinger hypothesized that rates will continue to drop through November, but will begin increasing again following the presidential election.

"You'll see them drop to 11½ in the next few weeks," he said, "they may actually drop to 10 before November."

Lost potential home buyers wait out the rate ride, however. Bollinger stressed that there are other factors involved.

"You have to weigh the cost of construction vs. the cost of financing," Bollinger commented, "very few will be able to catch it at the bottom."

Bollinger mentioned that Citizen's Federal will be offering its own renegotiable rate mortgage within a week, however, he could not say what the rates for the RRM's will be initially fixed at.

First Federal Savings and Loan of Lake Worth is presently holding its rate for an 80 percent mortgage loan to 13 percent, with a three point service charge, plus closing. This rate became effective June 2nd, when the lending institution dropped from its previous 13½ percent.

Sharon Jones, spokesperson for Community Federal Savings and Loan, reported one of the highest interest rates on home mortgage loans in the area, with 12¾ percent being the current norm on mortage of 80 percent.

Interest rates for Community Federal increase to 13 percent on a 90 percent mortgage and 13¼ percent on a 95 percent mortgage.

Jones mentioned that Community Federal has been consistently dropping its rate ¼ percent per week, although the lending institution recorded no decrease for the past week.

The Citizen's Federal spokesperson still predicted that rates will climb again, although she doubted that it will reach the previous high of 16 percent.

To finance or not to finance? That is the question.

The new renegotiable rate mortgage loans will certainly make the housing market more accessible to a great number of potential home buyers, however, those who are attempting to win at the rating game — waiting for interest rates to bottom out — might just find themselves found to forfeit their winnings on rising construction costs.

Nergard dinner will be at Center

A campaign "kick-off" dinner for State Representative Charles "Chuck" Nergard will be held on July 10 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, on Prima Vista Blvd. in Port St. Lucie.

The reception will commence at the Center at 6 p.m., with dinner being served at 8 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by Kay and Wes Frush.

The July 10 dinner will mark the start of Nergard's 1980 campaign for re-election to his seat in the state legislature.

Nergard has served as state representative for District 78, which includes most of St. Lucie and Martin Counties, for six terms, or twelve years.

He was first elected in 1967 and served until 1976, when a family illness caused him to not seek re-election for the following two-year term.

The representative reclaimed his office in 1978, and will be actively campaigning to keep it in 1980. The funds raised by the kick-off dinner will be used as contributions to the Nergard campaign.

As the seating capacity at the Center is limited to 250, those residents interested in attending are urged to secure their tickets early.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Rita Frischkorn at 461-1223, Jack Cullison at 878-1430 or Kay Harvin at [illegible] or 286-3830.

Ft. Pierce area job outlook good

Ft. Pierce area employers project generally positive employment levels for the next three months, according to a survey conducted by Manpower, Inc., the world's largest temporary help firm.

Lana McClain, manager of the Ft. Pierce Manpower office, said, "Overall, 33 per cent of the area employers polled plan to hire additional workers during the third quarter (July, August, September), while another 23 per cent expect to reduce staff during the coming months. The balance of the respondents, 44 per cent, foresee no change in current levels."

During the coming months, increased employment is projected for the construction, ——— goods manufacturing, finance and public administration sectors. Reductions in staff are noted among non durable goods manufacturers, with all other areas of the local economy projecting generally stable employment patterns.

The Manpower Employment Outlook Survey measures employer intentions to change workforce levels in nine non-agricultural sectors of the local economy.

Nationally, a sharp drop in anticipated hiring plans is registered by the survey. Of the more than 8,000 employers polled, 19 per cent plan to hire additional workers during the July through September period, down from the 29 per cent recorded for the comparable quarter one year ago. Another 17 per cent foresee staff reductions, up sharply from the 7 per cent recorded in 1979.

Port St. Lucie Community Center News!

288 SW Prima Vista 878-1386

Where you are always welcome

We hope that when you are making plans for Independence Day you will be sure to include the Community Center activities in your program for this holiday.

The traditional parade, by now a PSL feature, will be sponsored by the Exchange Club of this area, with the theme "United We Stand". It starts at the North Port Marina and ends at the Center.

Beginning at noon, and continuing until five p.m., the Center Volunteers will be serving a chicken barbeque with a choice of potato salad or baked beans, a vegetable, cole slaw, dessert and coffee or tea — all for $4.00 if you are an adult, and $3.00 each for children. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the Center office.

If you want to eat more lightly, the Snack Bar will be open during the same hours. Remember — we do provide carry-outs if you prefer to have your meal at home, or if you are having a patio-pool party, this is a great way to concentrate on just having fun and leave the cooking to us.

During the afternoon at the Community Center the Kiwanis Club of PSL will be arranging all sorts of games for children and the Exchange Club members will be presenting a "Gong Show" which you won't want to miss. The PSL Bank is lending its Pop Corn Machine for an added treat and the Junior Woman's Club members will be assisting at all these festivities.

Sounds like a grand and glorious Fourth! All that is needed is your presence, so come on out and be a part of this event.

It appears that the children of this community will be using the Center in large numbers this summer. Pre-registration for the "Hooray for Art" Workshop featuring arts and crafts was close to 90 when we last checked with Kathy Gebene. The Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring these classes and they have been tremendously successful in past years. Wednesday and Thursday of this week are the scheduled days and these learning by doing experiences are anticipated with enthusiasm by those youngsters who need lots of outlets for their energies and talents. We salute the Junior Women for coming through again this year in behalf of the kids.

All of the PSL Library summer program activities for children are also being held at the Community Center because the Library building just isn't large enough to accommodate them. More than 350 children have registered so far for this program, designed to encourage free time reading.

The Library is always a popular spot for the young people of this area, as anyone who is a regular patron can readily attest. This summer's projects of demonstrations, Disney Films and workshops will be held in Lundin Hall, while the younger tots' Story Hour on Fridays are scheduled for Kallmdt Room No. 1.

Having children use the Center is a constant reminder that these facilities are for all the residents of this community, not just the adults.

Unfortunately, and for reasons not yet fully determined, the summer dances on the second Friday of each month in Lundin Hall, and featuring the great music of "The Smoothies", have not attracted as many participants as anticipated. Those who have been in attendance claim "a wonderful evening," but there aren't enough coming out to make it worthwhile for the Center. The price is right, the music fantastic, the hall most accommodating, but sustained interest from more dancers and listeners is needed.

From Gudmundsen, chairman of the Events Committee, says the July 11th wheelsied dance will go on as planned, but if more persons don't appear, that event will have to be re-evaluated. So, come on and give us and The Smoothies a whirl.

We hope lots of you have marked 7 p.m. Monday night, June 30th, on your calendar to be at the Ambassador Club meeting at the Community Center. A film on the imperial cities of Morocco will be shown and refreshments will include samples of Japanese delicacies.

The Club meets on the fourth Monday night of each month except when holidays intervene. July 28, August 25, September 30, October 28, November 25, and December 30 are the scheduled dates for the remainder of the year. The club also meets at the Woman's Club in Stuart on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m.

The latest issue, June-July, of The Ambassador Magazine is in the mail and chuck full of travel ideas to appeal to any pocket book and every whim. Tours, cruises, trips of all kinds fill the pages. If you aren't on the mailing list, drop by the Travel House office and pick up a copy. Better still, come to the Ambassador Club's meeting next Monday night.

We do regret our inability to respond to some of the needs of those who are appealing for transportation to doctors' offices through the Community Services Committee of the Center. Theresa Cavell, chairman of this committee, has been hospitalized herself and is just getting back into circulation. She reports that the Meals on Wheels program is proceeding satisfactorily, but that all of her volunteer drivers on whom she has depended for transportation duty have gone north or are out of town on vacation. It has been impossible for her to fill some of your requests, but she promises to try to do something about the situation within the next several days. In the meantime, PLEASE — if any of you can volunteer for transportation duty of this nature, please call Theresa at 878-3052. She will be most happy to hear from you.

Finally, we want to correct a statement in last week's column. Former Snack Bar Supervisor Ethel McGee's leaving the Center is due to the termination of her CETA contract, not because of family illness.

cha gets bad news on roads

Commissioner Frank Wacha got some bad news for local recently from the state nt of Transportation.

said the county had a DOT study of the Indian ve and Jensen Causeway on to determine what could improve traffic flow. Wacha was hopeful that the study clude the feasibility of a strip of pavement as ided north on Indian River uld make a continuous turn onto the Causeway. The ld include stop signs at the on of the two roads for traffic rth or south along Indian ue.

r. Wacha said he received in the DOT that the agency consider there is enough the intersection to warrant a ridiculous. They have people the road who have no ge of the area or the I'm quite distressed with I don't think they are doing in Martin County. It seems as ey are waiting until we have roblems before they will do to address them," Wacha ng that when winter visitors and when traffic is headed to the nuclear power plant, real traffic problems that e solved.

Wacha did say that the intersection of Commercial Street and U.S. 1 is due for improvements soon. He said the project is in the bidding stage and that it involved improvements to the Commercial Street portion of the intersection.

The likelihood of changing traffic patterns to improve another problem area has also diminished some recently. This time, the problem involved the Florida East Coast Railway instead of the DOT.

For years, Palmetto Road north of Commercial Street has been situated on FEC right-of-way. Technically, if FEC wanted to do it, the firm could close off the street and even block access to the Jensen Beach Bank drive-in, library, the fire department and the loading dock of the post office, as the right of way extends beyond the east side of Palmetto.

Both county and FEC officials say that is hardly likely, but still, the county has been seeking to obtain much of the FEC right-of-way in question.

Plans have been discussed to make the downtown portion of Commercial Street one-way east, to make Ricou Terrace one-way west, and to make the block of Palmetto in between the roads one way south. The plan calls for adding turning lanes on Palmetto and even for moving the FEC railroad siding from the east to the west side of the tracks. But that can't be done until the county can obtain the FEC right of way along Palmetto. Negotiations to do so have dragged out for about two years now. Months ago, the FEC agreed to name an appraiser to get a value for the land in question. The appraiser came up with a figure of $1,600 and the county offered to pay it. But last week county commissioners learned that the FEC wants to sell the county a portion of the right-of-way encroaching 18 feet eastward from the guardrail along the tracks and to keep the rest of the right-of way, including some on which Palmetto is on.

Wacha said commissioners did not like the offer and that they decided to once again make an offer of $9,000 to the FEC for the right-of way they originally asked for.

In other commission action last week a proposed shoreline protection ordinance for the south fork of the St. Lucie River was tabled to determine if it is constitutional. The commission also tabled a proposed sign ordinance, a request for final plat approval for a 116-lot subdivision in Jensen Park Estates, and a final plat for a 13-lot project along SR 707 to be known as Pine Grove subdivision.

Approval was granted for replacing an air conditioning unit at the House of Refuge museum.

Venture Three

Venture Out at St. Lucie

We congratulate The Mirror for their "First in Florida Weeklys". Many of us especially enjoy Sally Latham's columns, her features on houses, her photography, as well as her poetry for its beauty and humor.

The Venture Three Potluck Supper was a social gathering this week with former residents Fran Potter and the Owens joining old friends. New Owners, Lot 474, Ray and Valerie Dombrowski, are here vacationing with two lovely granddaughters.

Returning from a shakedown with their new motor home, Bob and Grace Murphy reported they are happy about it all. Interesting sights they will remember were the manatees and porpoises out for evening swims in Sebastian Inlet and early morning groups of [illegible] egrets out for breakfast.

Send in your summer news so that we can pass it along to all your friends.

ATTRACTIVE ENTRYWAY—Lots of greenery, inside and out, makes Ken Ray's condominium-living home an attractive place to live. The central feature of the apartment-sized dwelling is the jaccuzzi located in the patio, a few steps away from the community swimming pool.

AROUND THE CORNER—The new villa Ken Ray at Indian River Point doesn't need a separate swimming pool—the community pool is practically at his back steps, as are the community tennis courts.

Jaccuzzi is attention-getter at lawyer's I-R Point home

ENTRYWAY—The foyer of the Ken Ray villa in Indian River Point is raised, giving an extended, intimate impression of the combination living room and dining area. The use of jungly greenery leaves little doubt that one is in the tropics.

NO MAN'S HOME—in Florida, at least, is complete without a bill-fish to grace the walls, the Ken Ray's is no exception. This beauty is part of the decor of the dining end of the combination living-dining room of the young lawyer's residence at Indian River Point.

KEN RAY—attorney and fuel conservative promoter, enjoys the cool interior of his living room at Indian River Point home. The decor is done in soft earth tones and wicker, to give the illusion of space throughout the two bedroom, two bath home.

MASTER BEDROOM—The master bedroom of Ken Ray's Indian River Point home is in keeping with the theme of the rest of the decor—handsome, masculine lamps and solid art pieces divert the eye subtly but not fancily in every room.

Ken Ray, a handsome, youthful appearing bachelor, has found his ideal bachelor pad and the perfect outlet for his product at the same time.

Ken, an up-state New Yorker, is one of the lucky residents of the new Indian River Point development where something is fast-growing for people of every need and taste.

His house is just that, a small, separate dwelling with all the advantages of a condominium and none of the disadvantages.

In most bachelor pads, one expects the bizarre or at least overly masculine in decor, but no so in Ken Ray's home. He turned the job of decoration entirely over to the developer decorator Ursula Brockmann, and the results are charming, warm and cozy without being heavy on the feminine touch.

The house is small, so Ursula chose soft earth tones throughout to unify the rooms, tawny browns and rusts prevail throughout the living room and master bedroom giving the whole interior a very cool appearance.

The home has, in addition to the livingroom and 2 bedrooms, a small den which could be used for a third bedroom, and two baths. The kitchen is a masterpiece of simplicity, with butcher block counters opening bar effect into the living areas and out onto the patio.

That patio is Ray's pride and joy. It is centered by a jacuzzi where Ken spends much of his time relaxing. He doesn't need a separate swimming pool, since the community pool is only a few steps away from his patio, as are the community tennis courts.

Ken Ray chose this area as home both for business and personal reasons. A native of Brooklyn, N.Y. he is an attorney by profession. He did his undergraduate work at Syracuse University (financed mainly via a boxing scholarship,) and earned his law degree from Cornell University.

He was on the board of editors with the Cornell Law Review.

He had been a government prosecutor with the U.S. Department of Justice for approximately five years when a friend told him about a Canadian firm which had developed "Synergy, an energy extender "that really works.

He made the trip to Canada to look into the firm, based on a precept which interested him greatly. He was so impressed that he and the friend dove into the pool and helped establish and American branch of "XRG International Inc." at Utica, N.Y.

The firm began its operation concentrating on commercial customers only. Now, with its move to Palm City, it is ready to open up the individual customer market, with emphasis on boating customers.

Incidentally, you'll soon be seeing famed Indianapolis race car driver Bobby Unser in ads and on television promoting Ray's XRG product.

Why did they pick this area in which to settle their plant and their future?

"I don't think there's a nicer place in Florida than the Stuart area, to live in," he told The Mirror.

Story and photos by Sally Latham

MASCULINE REFLECTION—Though small, the living room of the Ken Ray villa at Indian River Point gives the illusion of spaciousness, thanks to the mirrored wall. Ken perches proudly on the arm of one of the deep, soft sofas.

WHERE THE LIVIN' IS EASY—probably the most used part of the Ken Ray home on Indian River Point is the sunny patio, where the focal point is the well-used jaccuzzi. It is Ray's favorite place to entertain when the soft summer breezes are coming uninterrupted up the river.

FOR HEAVY DUTY—The kitchen of the villa of Ken Ray, at Indian River Point, was definitely designed with a man in mind. The butcher block cabinet tops make a pleasant and sturdy spot for the bachelor to perform his culinary arts.

THE BEST—Scott Oughterson and Candy Johnson, right, defeated Jim Grossnickle and Beth Grossnickle for the top honors in the Lipton Tea tournament last weekend at Indian River Plantation. At rear is umpire Lee Abraham.

Oughterson and Johnson win tournament

Playing a strong combined game from start to finish, the team of Scott Oughterson and Candy Johnson won the finals of the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Championship Sunday at Indian River Plantation 6-2, 6-4.

The convincing straight set victory over Jim and Beth Grossnickle earned the winning team a $150 "Plaza Shopping Spree" donated by the merchants of Harbour Bay Plaza.

The Fourth Annual Martin County Championships will be held, this coming weekend at Indian River Plantation. Sponsored by the Stuart National Bank, the tournament includes play in the Open, "A", "B" and "C" divisions. In the event of too many entries in any one division, play will begin on Thursday night. Otherwise, competition will start at 8 a.m. on Saturday. Tennis pro Tom Falkenburg will contact players if play in their division is to start before Saturday.

TIGHT MATCH—Tom Falkenburg congratulated Frank and Kelly Scutari on their close match against Larry Goin and Linda Newbauer. The final score was 6-1, 4-6, 7-6 (7-5 tiebreaker). The Scutaris then went on to defeat Hogan and Shelt 6-3, 6-0 and Greene and Pate, 6-0, 6-2.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

We are now in the middle of National Tennis Week. IRP started off last week-end with the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Championships for this section of Florida. On Saturday June 21, I gave a free tennis clinic as did some 500 other USPTA pros around the country.

And then 24 mixed doubles teams started their eliminations. Sunday the overall winners were Scott Oughterson and Candy Johnson, defeating Dr. Jim and daughter Beth Grossnickle 6-2, 6-4. The tennis was very good, and a large crowd spectated.

Scott and Candy will receive notice soon on where they will play their next regional match. I really hope they go all the way to Monaco, as the host pro also receives an all-expense-paid trip.

In the 'B' division we saw Frank and Kelly Scutari squeak by Larry Goin and Linda Newbauer 6-1, 4-6, 7-6 and 7-5 in the tiebreaker. In the second round, they were down 5-2 and match point in the third set. Then they got their act together and breezed by Hogan and Shelt 6-3, and 6-0 before attacking Homer Greene and Hilde Pate in the finals 6-0, 6-2.

Then in the 'almost winners' division, we saw a bedraggled Bill Dunne held up by Nancy Montgomery come from sure defeat, down one set and 4-2, to edge out Charles Areni and Leigh Ann Neild 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Connie ran the tournament desk, and John McCaskill kept the courts immaculent throughout all adverse elements.

The Harbour Bay Plaza merchants did a first, furnishing prizes and merchandise worth over $1,000. The winners received a $150.00 shopping spree, and every entrant that was there got a pick off the goody table. Jack Cernar won the door prize, a Crow Indian figure from Collectibles Ltd. valued at $400.00. Thanks. Hey Jack, I tried to call you to give you the good news, but you now have an unlisted number.

I was informed that Harbour Bay Plaza was very generous as a fund raiser for the Audobon Society as well, thanks again.

The count down has started, all entries to the Martin County Tennis Championships must be at the Pro Shop by 6:00 p.m. Thursday. I will take phone entries if you bring your completed entry in by Friday. Remember there is a division for everyone, Pros and beginners. Stop by your Stuart National Bank and take a look at some of the pretty trophies they are again sponsoring.

Wimbledon has rolled around again. BBC in London has scheduled over 80 hours of live coverage. Last year when I was at the tennis camp in England, I was amazed at how almost anytime I could turn on the T.V., there was Wimbledon with an audience of over 200 million. Between 40 and 50 countries "buy" Wimbledon T.V.

Ten years ago, United States T.V. was not interested. Now N.B.C. has a staff of 60 at Wimbledon and broadcasts the finals live. N.B.C. T.V. paid one million dollars for the privilege in 1977.

T.V. is really a small part of the overall coverage of Wimbledon. There are over 1300 accredited reporters with press badges worth a fortune, fighting their way up and down the walkways to different courts, with over 30,000 spectators trying to do the same thing, every day of the tournament. Many people sleep all night outside the gate for a few standing only tickets.

But you are lucky, if you don't have time, or the inclination to watch, I will give you Tom's fearless predictions and you will know the results ten days sooner than the unfortunate non-Mirror subscribers.

Bjorn Borg has one very big advantage over the rest of the field. Because of his popularity, 60 percent teenagers, the 'bobbies' cannot control the crowds on outside courts, so like last year, Borg will probably play every match on Center Court.

Some of the outside courts are just plain awful. If you are unlucky, you can draw the pasture. If you are not familiar with Wimbledon, Its played on grass, and some not nearly as nice as Craig Baker's greens, and his undulations are on purpose. So luck plays a very big role in many matches. Literally, one bad bounce can and has changed the outcome of many close matches.

Mens Singles: Borg will dominate again. Back in the pack will be McEnroe, Connors, Amritraj, Amaya, Villas, Tanner, and maybe Gerulaitis.

Ladies Singles: Tracy Austin has all the necessary equipment and will ward off all challenges from Navratilova, Everett, Goolagong, and King.

The doubles championships will be won by teams not consisting of two players seeded in the top 10 in singles. In plain English, the records show that doubles is a more specialized team effort and two good singles players seldom make a top doubles team.

Fitzpatrick ace helps team win golf tourney

A surprising team came up winners at the Ronald McDonald House Gold Tournament held at Indian River Plantation this past weekend.

Sponsored by the STuart-Jensen Beach Jaycees, this tournament brought out eighty participants from the Stuart area to compete for the $150 grand prize.

Shooting a 10-under-par 51, the team of Frank Fitzpatrick, Pay Yancy, Ric Johnson and Bill Mang won the scramble event by two strokes. Coming in a close second was the team of John Merrilees, Carlos Rojas, Chuck Laundergott and Al Fisher, winners of the $80 runner-up prize.

Fitzpatrick aided his team's chances greatly by scoring a hole-in-one on the 14th hole. He attributed his perfect drive to the wind which, at the time, was at his back.

WINNERS—Over $500 was raised in the benefit Stuart-Jensen Jaycee golf tournament last Saturday at Indian River Plantation. The tournament, drawing a field of 79 golfers, benefitted the Ronald McDonald House in Miami. Among the winners were, left to right, Ric Johnson, Billy Mang, Frank Fitzpatrick and Patrick Yancey. Fitzpatrick had a hole-in-one on the 14th hole.

Cassalman's ace could win free Scotland trip

William E. Cassalman of 114 N. Sewalls Point Road, Jensen Beach, is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Mariner Sands Country Club.

Cassalman's ace qualified him for the 20th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-one Sweepstakes.

SAYING THANKS—Members of the Certified Carpet Cleaners T-ball team gathered recently to say thanks to their sponsor, Phil May, for providing support for the team. The kids compiled the best record in T-ball competition and had a trophy, shown above, made for May. Not all of the team members could be assembled for a photo, but those present are, from the left: Jimmy Billings, David Phipps, Kari Sager, Elizabeth Billings, Robert Gladwin, Michael McAbee, and Billy Shanley. # Cunningham, Cayll take top honors

BY MIKE SANDY

Steve Cunningham of Jensen Beach and Ron Cayll, Longwood, Florida shared the spotlight in the Ninth Annual South Florida Invitational Golf Tournament staged recently at the Sandpiper Bay resort courses.

Cunningham, a transplanted pro from the Chicago area, came close to equalling the Sinner's course record, missing by only two shots when he posted a sizzling round of six under par 66 which included a 30 on the front side and an even par 36 on the back nine. Most remarkable about Cunningham's round included a double eagle on the par 5 ninth hole, belting a three wood from some 220 yards smack into the cup. The round earned Cunningham low gross awards for the two day event. He scored a 74 on the Wilderness course together with his 66.

Cayll, who represents the Etonic Shoe Corporation, waltzed off with the net laurels with a score of 133, including an 84 on the final day. He needed a par 4 on the difficult 427 yard par 4 18th hole to clinch the crown. His chances for the coveted crown looked dismal when his tee shot found the area of palmetto bushes. He did however manage a three iron shot, which he strulled. The ball skipped over the pond adjacent to the green, finishing on the slopes guarding the carpet. His next shot, a wedge, was also skulled. It struck the flag, stopping some 15 feet from the hole. He sunk the putt and waltzed off with the trophy, especially designed showing the 18th hole and the directions of his miracle shots. Dale Anderson, once City of Stuart mayor, finished in a deadlock for second place with Dempsey White of Fort Pierce, a co-sponsor of the tournament.

In Pitch and Putt Scramble action Richard Cromwell, a member of the Texas A & M football team and recently named to the All American second team, won that event in a sudden death playoff with George Swartout Sr. of Orlando when the Stuart collegian scored a hole in one on the very first extra hole.

Fifty players competed in the ninth annual event which was co-sponsored by John Jane of Stuart's Golf Gallery; George Swartout Sr. and Jr., operators of Florida Golf and Tennis in Lake Worth and Lake Park; and Dempsey White.

THE DEATH OF THE ST. JOHNS may be in the offing, according to F.G. Wade, director of the Division of Forestry for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. He reported a massive fish kill in the river, covering a six-mile stretch, and said that conditions in the river that resulted in the death of at least 10 million fish, mostly the essential mullet, gizzard and threadfin shad, aren't likely to improve much in the next few months.

"Lack of dissolved oxygen needed by the fish (largemouth bass to 12 pounds, bluegills, shellcrackers, redbreasts, black crappies, channel catfish to 20 pounds, garfish and the shad) is the immediate cause of the kill, but the situation goes deeper than that. Because of excessive amounts of nutrients pumped into the St. Johns River by polluting runoff, the St. Johns has heavy green algae bloom throughout a considerable amount of its upper reaches.

"These algae need sunlight and proper water temperature to grow. The rains which plagued the area last week caused the algae to die off in massive numbers. When this happened, the decaying plants utilized all the available oxygen in the water, leaving none for the fish to breathe. The result is the massive die-off of fish in the river between Lake Jessup and Lake Harney," Banks said.

He added that they expect more fish kills in the river soon, not only in the Lake Jessup and the river in the Sanford area, but also possibly in Lake George and the Palatka-Dunns Creek region where massive blooms of algae have been reported.

Banks concluded with: "Commission studies of the St. Johns River have pinpointed man's activities in the watershed as the major factor in the river's decline. Until the pollution due to overenrichment from municipal, residential, agriculture, and industrial wastes is halted, the river will continue to decline until it reaches a collapse similar to the death of Lake Apopka. Fish kills and deterioration of the habitat will continue until the river is cleaned up."

Those are discouraging and alarming words. Man's inhumanity to man is one thing, but his negligent, careless destruction of natural habitats through irresponsible discharge of waste products should give us all pause for thought.

Incidentally, if you didn't know, the St. Johns is one of the few rivers in the country flowing from south to north, beginning at about SR 520 some five miles west of I-95. If you'd like to see it's headwaters, drive up there some weekend and stop in at the Lone Cabbage Palm Fish Camp on SR 520. You can rent a boat and motor there and travel up the St. Johns through some gently rolling country mostly populated by cattle. In the spring, there is some mighty fine shad fishing on the St. Johns as the shad come upstream to spawn. What it will be like next April, if the river remains polluted, is anyone's guess.

The St. Johns, nearly 300 miles long, goes north all the way to Jacksonville where it turns east to the Atlantic Ocean, so keep in mind how much gas you have in the tank as you laze along northward.

ARE AMBERJACKS GOOD EATING? Most offshore fishermen disdain to bother with the Greater Amberjack, much preferring dolphin, cobia, wahee, mackerel, snapper, grouper and the like, but a medium-sized amberjack is definitely edible and equal as table fare to many fish commonly caught and eaten. A big one, and they do top 100 pounds frequently, can be pretty coarse and scarcely worth the trouble to prepare for the table.

CIGUATERA POISONING is a subject we touch on from time to time, whenever we talk to an angler who dotes on barracuda. Now, I understand that small barracuda seldom if ever contain ciguatera poison, and are therefore safe to eat, but for myself, I like a "winning edge," and don't feel I'm getting one by eating barracuda, and I don't care how small they are. Of course, it isn't only barracuda that contain the poison, big yellowfin grouper and amberjack can be carriers, but they seem to prey more on reef fishes like the Southern puffer, a prime carrier, and so tend to present a more dangerous gustatory risk than another species. It's odd about the puffers. Up in Hampton Roads, puffers are considered a delicacy, as are cutlass fish (ribbon fish), but down here folks just don't eat ribbons, and must like to live dangerously if they go for those two tasty morsels alongside the dorsal fin of the big-mouthed puffer. It seems that the Southern puffer eats coral and ingests the poison, while his northern brethern aren't privy to coral.

COLEMAN'S 1980 OUTDOOR ANNUAL, at $2.25, should be on the news stand now. This one has 24 articles on energy-efficient activities, and touches on hiking, close-to-home camping, skin and scuba diving basics, bass and panfishing, and outdoor hobbies for all. The hobbees include birdwatching, wildlife photography, rockhounding and collecting wild, edible food. There are some mouth watering recipes, like this one called Trout Lass.

Four 13-13 inch trout; 4 tablespoons of butter, olive oil and flour, salt and pepper to taste, one beaten egg; one cup of dried bread crumbs, Italian flavoring. Dry the cleaned, headless trout and dust with seasoned flour. Dip fish in beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs. Let rest for 5 minutes. Heat butter and oil in a heavy skillet and add trout when pan is sizzling hot. Brown for a minute or two side, then flip over and brown for 3 on the other. Cover the pan. Reduce heat to medium and continue cooking for 5 more minutes. When fish flakes at thickest part when prodded with fork, you're ready to trout up! Give it a try. Maybe you'll like it. There's a recipe for fish chowder that's most intriguing but the ingredients are so extensive we'll have to skip it here.

If you can't find this informative, entertaining annual locally, send your $2.25 to Aqua-Field Publications, Inc., 728 Beaver Dam Rd., Point Pleasant, N.J. 08742.

GIRL BASSERS will compete at Lake Millwood, Arkansas, the site of the third qualifying event of the 1980 Bass'n Gal tournament circuit. Over 150 women from 15 states are expected to fish in the Cotton Cordell-Bass'n Gal Arkansas Invitational on July 11-12, out of the Millwood Inn and Saratoga Landing. The event is for women only, 16 and up, and offers an $8,000 bass rig as first prize. The entry fee is $50 and contestants must be members in good standing of the national organization. For more information, write 'Bass'n Gal, P.O. Box 1000, Grand Prairie, Texas 75051.

COMMERCIAL NETTERS really vex surf fishermen when they draw their nets right up to the shore, in the first trough, and just about make it impossible for the man fishing fro the beach to do any more than watch the netting or simply pack up his gear and go home. Many such anglers ask that something be done to have nets set in deeper water and to ban all river netting. It's the age-old difference of opinion between recreational and commercial fishermen. It would certainly be better for recreational anglers if commercial fishermen were banned from the river and surf, but would it be fair to the men who make their living catching fish?

The commercial fishermen have a strong, organized lobby, and they're heard in the halls of government up in Tally. Recreational fishermen have had no such voice, at least not until the advent of the Florida League of Anglers which had so much to do with getting saltwater fish traps banned in the state. If you are disgruntled and concerned over the saltwater fishing situation, join the FLA and add your weight to the growing numbers of those who want representation up in Tallahassee. The FLA has objectives that zero in on improving the saltwater fishery for recreational anglers. You can become a member for just $10, not even a tank of gas. Instead of just grousing about new fishing is going to the dogs, do something about it. Join the FLA today. There's an application form and the FLA's objectives on the Outdoor Page. Use it!

Chicken eating dolphin is highlight of slow fishing

AREA FISHING is just so-so, some whiting in the surf, seatrout, channel bass and small snook in the Indian River, sailfish and dolphin offshore, and black drum and sheepshead from the Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart, but the fish story of the week comes from Darryl and Carol Prew, trolling ballyhoo for dolphin offshore.

According to Dave Lamb of Jensen Bait and Tackle, the Prews had served in on a small school of dolphin and some big ones, hooking them at the stern with one hooked but, still in the water, while using spinning tackle to catch the others. They could catch an occasional small dolphin but couldn't interest the big ones in ballyhoo or anything else.

About that time Darryl noticed that whenever Carol, eating fried chicken while watching her husband work on the school, tossed a piece overboard, the big dolphin snapped it up if it came close to them. Accordingly, he baited up with chicken, promptly caught a fine 22-lb. dolphin. That spooked the rest, but goes to show that you never know what's fish is thinking about gastronomically. The next time you can't interest dolphin in ballyhoo, try fried chicken. This happened to be the Colonel's variety but it's probable that it wasn't the 11 herbs and spices that lured the iridescent beauty into striking. Also, the Prews didn't say whether it was regular or crispy. You'll just have to experiment.

CAPT. MARLIN MOON of the party (head) boat Lady Stuart (288-1080), operating half days out of the Sailfish Marina just east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart: "Fishing's been fair, Dick, but everybody seems happy with their catch when we get back to the dock. We've been getting into the little vermillions (snappers) and sea bass, and two or three grouper in the 10 to 15 pound class, as well as a cobia and a king (mackerel) now and then. Everyone's anxious to get started so we can get to fishing, so I'll have to go now."

FROM THE ROOSEVELT BRIDGE and D&M Bait and Tackle on U.S. 1 just south of Stuart, Muriel Weidaman, frankly back from a vacation with her four grandchildren: "A lot of sheepshead and black drum are being caught with clams on an outgoing tide here every day now, Dick. The best time would be from 7-8 a.m. on Wednesday this week. Some catches we recorded: Larry Reese, an 8-0 Florida largemouth bass on a yellow plastic worm in the Savannas; Mike Lehrer, 7 black drum to 12-0, a sheepshead and several mangrove snapper; Glenn Rennhoff, Larry Newkirk, a string of black drum, mangrove snapper and sheepshead on sand fleas."

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "We finally got a few live shrimp Generally, it's slow, but Dean there's not too many fishing because of the lack of live shrimp and the thunder storms. They're catching some seatrout from that little bridge east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge. The surf is slow. Offshore reports on sailfish and dolphin are pretty good, especially pretty far out and mostly southeast of the St. Lucie Inlet. Our log shows: Virgil Wendt, a 3-0 trout, live shrimp, the Jensen Causeway wooden pier; Glen Irons, 6 trout night fishing with live shrimp from the west catwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway; Greg Kurpita, a 7 ft. sail, Six Mile Reef, deep trolling with strip bait; Jim Hines, an 11-0 Florida largemouth bass, plastic worm, Savannas."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE in Jensen, Dave Lamb: "How about those Prews catching that dolphin on fried chicken! Wasn't that something! Live shrimp are really scarce now. Those thunder storms are scaring everybody off, so you can't really tell how good or bad the fishing really is. The veterans are catching fish though."

Lamb's log: Jay Shank, 12 whiting on clams fishing the surf behind the Holiday Inn just south of the Jensen Causeway; Jim Whitman, a 7-0 trout, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Dick Bobbitt, a 13-0 snook taken at 4:30 a.m. on a live mullet from the Jensen Causeway; George Zmitsky, 4 trout to 5-0 and a 3-0 mangrove snapper, live shrimp, in the river just south of the Ernest Lyons; Bill Steele, 2 trout and a 15-0 tarpon he plans to have mounted, live shrimp, power plant; Jane Williams, a 7-0 black drum and a 5-0 sheepshead, live shrimp, Jensen Causeway.

JOHNNY CRAWFORD, from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "The fishing has slowed down a little. The trout fishing is fair on the grass flats on both sides of the Indian River; mostly north of the Jensen Causeway. There are quite a few small snook in about eight pounds on the flats on the west side of the river north of the county (Martin-St. Lucie) line. There are some whiting in the surf and also a lot of small barracuda. I have eaten some of them little barracuda, Dick and they're delicious. (be my guest, Johnny, I just don't eat barracuda, and it doesn't matter how small they are – just a ciguatera chicken, I guess). There are some reds down (channel bass or redfish) in the river and they're catching a few trout from the bridges at night, also some sheepshead and black drum from the Jensen Causeway. We still have some decent sized shrimp. Offshore, there are some sails southeast of the St. Lucie Inlet in 30 to 60 feet of water, real close in."

The Nook's log: Hal Kelsey, Mike Cato and Rusty O'Neal, 13 trout to 10-0, 4 snook and a channel bass, all on 7M series mirrolures, in two days wading under the power lines on the west shore of the Indian River; Charlie Arens and Ed Wagner, a 9-10 trout and 2 channel bass to 6-4, trout tonic, grass flats; Andy Popovich, 2 trout and an 8-8 snook (8 lbs. 8 oz.), trout tonic, wading the west shore of the Indian River; John Fesler, 3 trout, wading the flats off Big Mud Creek and fishing live shrimp; Stan Lippincott, Pete Petersen and Jim Stark, 2 trout, 2 channel bass and a snook on Rebel plugs just north of the Jensen Causeway; Bill Sowden, 2 channel bass. Tony sphons, wading near the Archipelago; Charles Kessler and Bill Ditzel, 4 trout to 3-8, pigfish, near the power lines on the west shore; Bobby Irons, a 3-0 trout, trout tonic, Frank Wacha Bridge.

King mackerel hearing is at Ft. Pierce July 2

A public information hearing on management options for king mackerel in the 200 mile limit has been scheduled for July 2 from 7-10 p.m. at the St. Lucie County Civic Center in Fort Pierce for presentation of the gear conflict by the South Atlantic Fishery Management Council.

These special management procedures were devised by the Council especially for the southeast Florida area in response to the comments received from public hearings held both in Fort Pierce and throughout the region. Known specifically as the "Fort Pierce Options," they contain provisions to quickly manage gear conflicts in the king mackerel fishery which have resulted in, or have the potential to result in bodily injury or loss of life or property.

In the event of conflict, options are designed to separate user groups or gear types by geographical areas, allocate user group or gear type access to the fishery by day of week or time of day; and, in the event of violence, close the area to all mackerel fishing until the conflict is resolved. In periods of no conflict, all users would have access.

Summary copies of the Fort Pierce Options for gear conflict management in the king mackerel fishery within the 200 mile limit may be obtained locally from Ms. Betty Lataker, Ag Center, Airport Road, Route 5, Box 170, Ft. Pierce, Fla. 33450, or from Bob Whitty, Levi M. Johnson Ag Center, South Dixie Highway, Stuart, Fla. 33494.

LAGNIAPPE, according to the Creoles of southern Louisiana, was a little something extra given a customer, and, in the case of The Mirror, will take the place of a weekly column on the Miami Dolphins.

Outdoor Editor don't usually cover pro football, but this one does and hopes that you'll enjoy reading about Miami's entry in the American Conference of the National Football League as much as I enjoy writing about it.

Until the Dolphins assemble at Biscayne College for their preseason opener with the Detroit Lions in the Orange Bowl on Aug. 10 (8 p.m.), there won't really be too much that we can get our teeth into concerning Miami's prospects for the gruelling 16-game regular season that begins on Sunday, Sept. 7 (1 p.m.) at Buffalo against Coach Chuck Knox' vastly improved Bills, beside themselves over losing 20 straight to the Dolphins in the 70s.

Nevertheless, you have to start somewhere, so let's take a pre-summer camp look at how the Dolphins seem to stack up as they head for the starting gate.

THAT 1980 DRAFT goes to show how much the fans know about how to pick 'em. Charles White, Southern California's great running back, was still available when Miami's turn came in the first round. How could the Dolphins pass him over? They did, demonstrating the unbounded faith Coach Don Shula has in running backs Delvin Williams, Gary Davis, Tony Nathan, Larry Csonka and Steve Howell, and the concern he had for his pass defense. He'll back up with Tim Thomas and Gerald Small, and will, no doubt, be a great asset on defense, but McNeal over White? No way, sport fans, no way, even if many say Charles is too small to make it big in the NFL. Miami's fans were entitled to that exuberant shout.

Miami's head man and his scouting system haven't exactly kept pace lately with the big boys like Dallas and Pittsburgh in the annual drafts. They choose conservatively, while the Cowboys and Steelers linger big-play collegians every year. It seems to take big-play performers to make the Super Bowl these days, and the defensively tough, offensively adequate Dolphins don't have any.

I hope to eat those words next December. The Dolphins could make the playoffs again, because of Shula's magic, but Custer made the Bighorn too, and look what happened to him when he took on all those Sioux. It's hard to keep that playoff debacle up in those lovely late December when the Pittsburgh Steelers showed convincingly just how many light years Miami is away from competing with the powerhouses of the NFL.

That game was even more one-sided than the 34-14 score would indicate.

THE DRAFTEES who will show up at Biscayne in July to compete for spots on the Miami squad that will take on the Bills on Sept. 7, just to refresh your memory, are:

No. 1, McNeal, CB, 5-11½, 190, Alabama; No. 2, Dwight Stephenson, center, 6-2½, 252, Alabama; No. 3, Bill Barnett, DE, 6-4½, 252, Nebraska; No. 4, Elmer Bailey, WR, 6-0, 196, Minnesota; No. 5, traded to Washington in Benny Malone deal; No. 6, Eugene Byrd, WR, 6-0, 185, Michigan State; No. 7, Joe Rose, TE, 6-3½, 228, California; No. 8A, Jeff Allen, CB, 5-11½, 190, Cal-Davis; 8B, Dave Woodley, QB, 6-2, 183, LSU (from Wash. in Jim Mandich deal); No. 9, Mark Goodspeed, T, 6-5½, 270, Nebraska; Doug Lantz, C, 6-2½, 250, Miami of Ohio; No. 10B, Ben Long, LB, 6-2, 220, S. Dakota (from Philadelphia for past consideration); No. 11A, Phil Driscoll, DE, 6-5, 265, Mankato State (from Frisco for Charles Cornelius); No. 11B, choice to Philadelphia); No. 12, Chuck Stone, G, 6-2, 255, N.C. State.

There they are, for better, or for worse. McNeal, Stephenson and Barnett must be considered blue chippers, almost certain to make the team. Bailey, Byrd and Rose should have good shots. Allen, Woodley and Goodspeed are fair longshots. Lantz, Long, Driscoll and Stone are just along for the ride. Seldom does a draftee below seven stay around for the regular season. Let's see how they did last year.

No. 1, Jon Giesler, LT; No. 2, Jeff Toews, LG; No. 3A, Tony Nathan, RB; No. 3B, Mel Land, LLB; No. 3C, Ronnie Lee, TE; No. 4, Steve Howell, FB; No. 5, Don Bessillieu, SS; No. 7, Uwe von Schamann, K-P; No. 8B, Glen Blackwood, S; No. 10B, Mike Koslowski, SS; and free agent Cleveland Green, DT, all made the squad and are in the 1980 preseason depth charts heading into summer camp.

The fact that 10 draftees and a free agent made it is a testimonial to the need Miami had for new blood as Coach Shula continues to restructure in an attempt to build a playoff winner.

THE NFL is made up of three echelons, the teams not really playoff contenders, those with a chance to make the playoffs, and those capable of reaching the Super Bowl.

The Dolphins appear to be in the second category.

Their Achilles heel would appear to be at quarterback.

Bob Griese at 35 doesn't have the big play arm although in Nat Moore and Duriel Harris he has big play receivers.

Don Strock has the arm and could be the answer.

Guy Benjamin has had two years as No. 3 quarterback. Maybe he's the answer.

NEXT WEEK, we'll look closer at the Dolphin depth charts and how Coach Shula views his prospects for 1980.

Bond and Tilton hope to spoil plans of favorites at Daytona

BY BOB FRYER

Though Jensen Beach auto racers Ren Tilton and Rusty Bond have not entered many races this year, and have not had spectacular results in the ones they have entered, they feel that will change this Sunday.

Both local drivers are entered in a six-hour International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) Radial Sedan class race at Daytona International Speedway this Sunday.

Unlike previous racing seasons, when the two raced as a successful team in the IMSA GTU (small engine) class, Bond and Tilton will be competing in separate cars this time.

Tilton will be teamed with Gina Rosati of Atlanta, one of very few women drivers in IMSA RS competition. They will drive Tiltons Mazda RX 2.

Bond will be co-driver in a Mazda RX 3 owned by Mike Meyer of Palm Beach Gardens.

Unlike past seasons when they campaigned a Porsche 911 in the GTU class and were consistently in the running for points awarded to the top drivers in the IMSA series of races, accumulating points will not be a primary objective this time.

It's not that they don't want the points, because those are only awarded to the top 10 finishers in each IMSA race. But since they haven't entered many races this year and the season is half over, any points they earn at Daytona would not be enough to make much of a dent in the seasonal driver standings.

So, the race will be more for the fun and the sake of racing itself than for points. And, they are hopeful that in this race, they can prove to be spoilers for those in the thick of the points competition.

Both Tilton and Bond said they believed their separate entries have "as good a chance as anyone else" of winning the race. They both agreed that the competition in the RS class is pretty evenly matched. "You can run a good, consistent race and be right up there, but to win, you have to drive a perfect race and have luck on your side," Bond said.

Last year Bond shared driving duties in the six-hour event with Meyer and they finished in fourth place. "We were running well and staying right in the thick of things until the last part of the race when the brakes started going out. We had to cut our lap times down a lot because of that and still did well," Bond said.

He noted that Meyer has had some pretty good finishes in the RX 3 this year and said that this time, they plan to replace brake pads about halfway through the race. "We'll do it during a scheduled driver change, so it won't add too much extra time to the pit stop, and I think any time we lose by changing pads will more than be made up by having good brakes at the end," Bond said.

Tilton has torn apart his RX 2 and replaced all worn parts since it was last raced at Road Atlanta in the Spring. And, he is expecting a new engine, prepared for racing, to arrive in Jensen Thursday morning. He said the firm building the engine is known for putting together good ones, but expressed a little nervousness that it will be arriving so close to the race day. "If it doesn't come in time, we have another engine that's good, but it would be nice to have the new one," he said.

Should it arrive Thursday, Tilton says there will be no problem getting it installed and getting to Daytona for practice sessions Friday.

Bond and Tilton have been racing for about seven years now, but Rosati is relatively new to IMSA racing. She and Tilton entered the RX 2 at a race at Sebring in March and ran well until slightly tapped by Meyer's car. At that race, the car had handling problems though. A few weeks later, at Road Atlanta, the problem was resolved and the car "handled real well," Tilton said. Rosati drove the Atlanta race and Tilton said she was running strong until a heavy rain fell, wiping out the element of competition and instilling one of avoiding a wreck. She kept the car out of harm's way and finished 24th.

The Tilton car has had a new paint job since then and is white with a neat brown and yellow trim. It will bear number 42. The Meyer Mazda is also white and carries number 27. The race begins at 1 p.m. and ends at 7 p.m.

RACING TEAM—Gina Rosati and Ren Tilton stand next to their Mazda RX2 in a Jensen garage and hope they'll be standing with the car in Victory Lane this Sunday. They will share driving duties in the Mazda during a six-hour race at Daytona International Speedway. Gina is one of [illegible] women race drivers who will compete in the event, [illegible] says so far most male drivers have been supportive [illegible] than giving her a hard time. ## Second Sight now in sixth year of operation

Second Sight, the Martin County Taping Studio for the Visually Handicapped, reached a milestone recently when it began its sixth year of operation.

New officers for this year are Charles Adair, president; Barbara Capen, vice president; Virginia Koch, secretary; and Lyn Seaman, treasurer. Those officers, as well as K. C. Sloan, Betty Waldie, Wally Gojanovich, Muriel Reed, Ira Crowther and Dwight Geiger, all serve of the board of directors.

Second Sight offers tape recordings of books and magazines for visually handicapped persons, and recently added a new service, that of recording tapes of items taken from local newspapers. The news in the tapes is information not normally covered by radio or television. So far there are about 30 clients for the news tapes, and Second Sight is aiming to produce the tapes weekly.

In a recent newsletter from Second Sight, the women of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and the Port St. Lucie Woman's Club received thanks for generous donations. Additionally, local artists have donated a total of 29 paintings to the organization. The paintings have been placed on display at the Second Sight headquarters in Highlands Plaza on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach, and already 20 of them have been sold, with Second Sight keeping the proceeds. The public is invited to visit the office to view, and, hopefully, buy the paintings.

BABY GATOR—This baby four foot alligator turned up in the front yard of Luke Lukowski, a resident of Indian River Drive. Lukowski, 81, caught the feisty little gator in a net and put him in his concrete pond until water and game officials could come by and pick him up. Those of relatively young, the gator seemed to think he [illegible] seven feet long, as he showed no timidity at either or spectators. (Photo by Michelle [illegible])

Red Cross to elect June 30

The Martin County Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold its annual meeting on June 30, at the Chapter House, 9 East Fifth Street, Stuart, at 7:30 p.m.

Presentation of awards, yearly activities report and election of new board members will take place.

RUSS MITCHELL caught the nice 23-lb. snook he's holding on a live mullet while fishing from the west catwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway Tuesday afternoon. Most snook caught from area bridges are taken at night but this one was a diurnal feeder, just to keep anglers a bit off balance in their efforts to categorize the feeding habits of Old Linesides.

Freshwater fish report

FOR FRESHWATER FISHING this week, we got a report from Ken Hodge of Chalusa Lodge (813-946-0644) on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee and SR 78, about 15 miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge: "Fishing for schooling bass is pretty good here now. They're using topwater plugs like Devil's Horse and Rapalas to catch yearling bass feeding on schools of minnows. You can find them by going where the birds are feeding on the injured baitfish. Otherwise, it's best to use plastic worms either in the Rim Canal or out in the lake along the shoreline. Most of the people panfishing are going after bream (bluegills) but only those using crickets are having good luck. We're out of crickets, so tell folks to bring their own crickets if they plan to load up on bream. There'll be a full moon this weekend (Saturday) and that should trigger some really fast action on bream and possibly shellcrackers (redear sunfish)."

IRCC Itinerary

Although it may seem that summer is just beginning, it is not too early to start making plans and preparations to attend Indian River Community College this Fall. Classes are scheduled to begin August 25, and since many classes fill up quickly, itis a good idea to sign up now for the courses you want to take. Course schedules for both creidt and non-credit Continuing Education classes, as well as the new college catalogs, are readily available -- just stop by the Guidance Office at any of the four sites, or call the Public Information Office, ext. 408, to have any college information mailed to you.

NEW ELECTRONICS PROGRAM

This Fall, IRCC will expand its Radio and Television program into a much more comprehensive and diversified degree program in Electronic Technology. The new Associate in Science degree course outline includes classes in DC and AC Circuitry, Electronic Devices, Communications Circuits, Digital Circuits, TV Circuits, Electronic Instruments, FCC License Preparation, Electronic Drafting, and Introduction to Data Processing. According to Gene Gagliardi, the electronics instructor at IRCC, there are many challenging, well-paying positions available in the electronics industry for persons with the necessary training. If a career with a future in the field of electronics interests you, the one-year certificate or two-year degree programs now offered at IRCC may be just what you're looking for. Call the Public Information Office at the college, extension, 408, for more information.

STUDENTS SEEKING RENTALS

Some of the students who attend IRCC are from out of this area, and are interested in finding rooms, apartments, or houses to rent while they are enrolled here at the college. Since a number of the students are from out of state or foreign countries, the rental arrangement may be beneficial in more ways than one -- it will give the student a place to live and give you an opportunity to learn more about a different culture. If you have property that you would be interested in renting to IRCC students, please call the IRCC Dean of Students Office on the Main Campus, ext. 326.

CHOICES FOR GRADUATES

Life is full of decisions, and many recent high school graduates are faced with the first really important choices in their lives. The plans that they make concerning college and careers may well determine the course their future takes, yet because such decisions are so intimidating, some graduates simply leave their futures to chance with the hope that everything will work out. In any venture, success requires motivation, self-confidence, well-defined goals, and a plan to help you reach those goals. The two-week "Choices for Graduates" class being offered at IRCC from July 7 through July 22 will cover all of these topics, and will include practical tips and advice both for graduates who plan to attend college and those who intend to get a job instead. To meet daily from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at the Main Campus, the special class will show graduates that they can create their own success -- but that there is more to it than flipping coins. Cost of the class is only $5. To sign up or to get more information, call the college, extension 230.

William Campbell completed patrol

Coast Guard Fireman Specialist 1st Class William W. Campbell, son of William P. Campbell of 604 Walden St., Port St. Lucie, recently completed a law enforcement patrol off the East Coast.

He is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Reliance home ported in Yorktown, Va.

During the patrol, the Reliance cruised nearly 2,000 miles and participated in a variety of operations ranging from environmental protection to general law enforcement. Port calls were made in New York City and Earle, N.J.

The Reliance is a 210 foot-long medium endurance cutter with a crew of 81. It is the Coast Guard's only reserve training cutter.

Campbell joined the Coast Guard in November 1978. His wife, Shelly, is the daughter of Harold L. and Joy Wade of Margrate St., Sarasota, Fla.

Nuke Plant outage no cause for alarm

Florida Power and Light's Nuclear Plant No. 1, which was shut down for repairs two weeks ago, flunked its first testing, and is again closed for the balance of this week at least, according to district manager Gene van Curen.

The current outage was necessitated by a defective seal, discovered when the plant was put back on operation after a routine shut down for repairs.

"It was a leak in the primary water system," van Curen said. "We replaced four seals, and one of them failed to function when we turned it back on."

The shut-down of two weeks ago was occasioned by a valve in the coolant system which lost its power. When the plant was turned back on Monday, the power was still low, and was determined to have been caused by a leak in one of the valve seals.

The outage thus far is creating no major emergency, other than the cost of replacement fuel. The price of oil is higher, he pointed out, and estimated at $750,000 per day. These costs will be passed along to the customer in fuel adjustment prices in their bills.

The drain on the system because of the shut-down and the high daily temperatures, thus far, hasn't created any emergency.

"We have already exceeded last year's peak by 25 megawatts," van Curen said.

While the Hutchinson Island plant is shut down, the needed extra power comes from the grid, of which the Turkey Point Plant is a vital unit. Turkey Point has been shut down for refueling but is now back in operation.

At present, there is no cause for concern, the district manager told The Mirror.

Retired NYC officers wanted for new club

Three retired New York City police officers—one from Jensen Beach and two from Port St. Lucie—have set the wheels in motion for organizing a 10-13 Club here.

10-13 is a code signal used in the NYC department for an officer who needs assistance and the club, which is open to any retiree of the NYC police department, will offer just that.

Walter Bleyman, Ken Dunne and Fred Emery report that there are presently 10-13 Clubs in existence in various parts of Florida, but this new one will cater to members who live between south Martin County and Vero Beach.

The three men, all of whom worked together in Precinct 108, of the New York City department, learned that there are at least 10,000 former NYC policemen living in Florida and probably near 200 in this area alone.

They have obtained 70 names and numerous inquiries rooms for NYC policemen recruits thus far.

The 10-13 club, they said, will be a companionship social and community service organization. Other such clubs, they reported, have held dances, sponsored Little League teams and presented awards for outstanding service to Florida policemen.

"Each club chooses its own projects," explained Emery, "right now we are just trying to get started."

The 10-13 club organizers said that they are planning an organizational meeting in the third week of July, at which time an official from the Satellite Beach 10-13 will explain the workings of the club.

As it is impossible to find the whereabouts of all retired New York City police officers who live in the area, the men requested that those who are interested call, and be put on the list.

For more information or to join the new club call Bleyman at 878-0885, Dunne at 334-6980 or Emery at 334-7282.
